A reader of these notes who has succeeded in establishing a very thrifty three acre patch of alfalfa in a latitude and section where practically none of the legume has been thus far grown gives us some account of the method he followed, and we present it here in the idea that it may be helpful to some who have not had any experience with it. The patch in question had been in clover which was manured in the spring and planted to corn the year before the alfalfa was sowed. In the fall the corn was harvested, and the following spring the patch was left until about June 1, when it was plowed, following the application of about seven tons of manure per acre. It was made fine with a harrow and dragged at intervals to germinate and destroy weed seed until the first week in August, when the seed was sown at the rate of twenty pounds per acre. Our friend broadcasted this, but is of the opinion that with a rather dry surface soil the drilling of the seed would give better germination. He further states that he did not take the precaution of inoculating the seed or soil, but believes it would be well worth while to do so. He made two cuttings of this alfalfa last season, made one the middle of June this year and will make a second in a few days. The patch yielded better than two tons per acre the first cutting, when timothy and clover meadows in the neighborhood were yielding a scant three quarters of a ton of hay per acre. Our friend harvested no other crop from the patch the season when he started the patch, but believes sowing on a well manured oat stubble from which the grain has just been removed would give even better results than the plan he followed, as it would not result in the loss of a crop and the weed trouble would be no worse. In addition to the points mentioned, it is well to make note of two or three others factors on which success in growing alfalfa depends. One of these is a well drained subsoil in which the water table does not lie nearer than five or six feet to the surface. A porous subsoil is preferable, but it should not be gravelly. If possible poultry should have the range of the alfalfa patch, as in a dry year grasshoppers are very likely to gobble the young plants. Sometimes the soil may be sour, in which case it should be sweetened by the application of two or three tons of ground limestone per acre disked in before sowing the seed. Good seed costs a round price, but nevertheless nothing but the best should be used, for in the long run it is economy. The growing of alfalfa is not difficult if a few simple directions are followed. We believe the benefits accompanying the growing of it have not begun to be appreciated in a great many sections where its fertility restoring mission is badly needed.

Vaccination for typhoid has been attended with such satisfactory results in the army that its use is now strongly recommended by all leading physicians.

What a whole lot of bother we mortals would be freed from if we were relieved of the necessity of everlastingly scratching for the wherewithal to keep warm or cool and to satisfy hunger!

Many a horse raiser finds it advantageous to breed his mares in November. This gives an October colt, which gets a good start before winter sets in and in the care of which more time is available than during the rush season of the summer.

Serving His Country.

A certain public office has been the object of much satire because of the passive nature of the incumbent's duties—except when he is called by tragic occurrence into the thick of action. So very negative, indeed, is the work of this public servant that he sometimes serves his country most efficiently by being absent, as appears in this extract from Moses Coit Tyler's journal, written in Washington years ago:

"President Grant never starts a conversation, but when it is started he often says a neat thing. Last year there was an excursion down the Potomac. He was on board, with his cabinet and a quorum of both houses.

"'Mr. President,' said Mrs. Judd, who sat near him, 'it would be a pretty bad thing to have a great accident happen to this party. Nearly the whole government would be destroyed.'

"'Yes, Mrs. Judd,' assented the president, 'but you observe that the vice president has very prudently stayed at home.'"

Talking Canaries.

Talking canaries are a great rarity, but several authenticated instances are on record. At Norwood, England, in 1858 a lady had a canary bird which began by repeating a word which its mistress had often used to it—"Kissie, kissie"—and by following the word up by an imitation of the sound of a kiss. After a time the bird repeated other words until it had a large vocabulary of phrases, one of which consisted of five words. Again, in 1863, a talking canary was exhibited in Bath, with a vocabulary such as is generally taught to parrots, and another talking canary was exhibited for a few weeks in this country, but it unfortunately caught cold and died. In Germany and the Tyrol canaries are taught to imitate the notes of other birds and whistle simple tunes, and the words which it imitates may be regarded as a mere development or variant of its musical notes.

The Lerot and the Snake.

Every one has heard of the remarkable combats of the Indian mongoose with venomous snakes, in which little rikki-tikki-tavi comes off victor. The fact that the mongoose invariably survives has led to the suggestion that it is immune to snake poison. Other animals said to be immune are the pig and the hedgehog. The experiments of British naturalists show that an animal of the dormouse family must be added to the list of the immune. This animal is known as the lerot and is said to fight fiercely with vipers. Large doses of viper's poison were injected into one lerot, from which injection no ill effects followed. On one occasion a lerot was bitten badly in the eye by a viper, and no signs of poisoning occurred. There can, it is thought, be no doubt that the lerot is immune to snake poison.

Gold Beaters' Skin.

A cheap substitute is much desired for goldbeaters' skin, which is prepared from the outside membrane of the large intestine of the ox. It is said that goldbeaters first tried paper for inclosing the metal, and mulberry fiber paper is still used in China and Japan, but animal parchment has been mostly employed for two or three centuries at least. While a thinner leaf can be beaten out between paper parchment sheets, it is damaged by adhesion. A special German paper is coated with isinglass or albumen, and paper parchment of some kind is much used in the first stages, but goldbeaters finish their product between goldbeaters' skins, still pounding an ounce of gold into 200 square inches of leaf.—New York Tribune.

Swayed by a Bell's Tones.

The Church of St. Nicaise, in the city of Rheims, is surrounded with pillars. When a certain bell in the tower is rung the top of one pillar always sways to the extent of seven inches on each side, although the base is immovable, and the stones are so firmly cemented as to seem like a solid piece of masonry. Notwithstanding that each of the four bells is about the same distance from the trembling pillar none of the others has the slightest effect on it.

An Odd Bequest.

The following is one of the oddest bequests ever recorded in a last testament. It appeared in the will of a Bristol mariner proved in 1705. The old gentleman ordered his executors to "pay out of the first moneys collected, to my beloved wife, if living, one shilling, which I have given as a token of my love, that she may buy hazelnuts, as I know that she is better pleased with cracking them than she is with mending the holes in her stockings."

Chirography.

"Ethelinda writes a very peculiar hand," said Maude.

"Yes," replied Maymie. "It's just a lot of straight lines and angles. When you read it you have to guess at the spelling, the same as she does."—Washington Star.

An Explanation.

"Your nephew is a college graduate, isn't he?"

"Yes," confessed honest Farmer Hornbeak, "but in justice to the college I'll own up that he had no sense beforehand."—Woman's Home Companion.

The Giraffe's Neck.

"Why does the giraffe have such a long neck?" asks the teacher.

"Because its head is so far away from its body," hopefully answers the boy.—New York Press.

Quite often the care given valuable horses is indicated by getting them new harnesses after they have run away because of the bad repair of the old and by getting them shot after they have slipped and received injuries on icy roads.

As a general rule, irrigating land costs four times as much per acre as does draining it, the figures for the two types of improvement being $40 and $10 respectively. Once installed, the irrigation system costs from fifteen to twenty times as much to maintain as does the drainage.

Aside from a measure of personal satisfaction, the only possible reason for raising pure bred stock of any kind is the added revenue which they will give. It follows from this that unless one is willing to give such stock the special care they are entitled to it is a good deal better to keep on raising scrubs.

Before the window screens and screen doors are stored for the winter it will be a good idea to give them a coat of paint of the color desired. This, of course, is not necessary with special galvanized or copper screens, but in the case of those subject to rust will greatly increase their period of usefulness.

A point that the housewife should remember is that both squashes and pumpkins will keep for a longer time if put on a shelf in the cellar not far from the ceiling, where they will be dry and where the temperature will be warmer. Cold and dampness cause both these vegetables to rot quickly, which is just the reverse with most root crops.

Reports issued by the department of agriculture show that there has been an increase in the acreage in Louisiana and Arkansas devoted to rice culture of approximately 700,000 acres. The country is at present producing rice in a volume about equivalent to that consumed. While some rice is imported to meet the demand of orientals living here, this is offset by the rice shipped from the United States to the islands in the Caribbean sea and to the Philippines.

The simplest as well as the least expensive method of reducing one's weight is to heroically reduce the amount one eats each day to such point that a loss in weight will result, while vigorous exercise by those engaged in sedentary occupations will be of material assistance. This idea that one who wishes to reduce flesh can gorge three times a day and yet reduce flesh by taking dope of one kind or another has just as must to commend it from the standpoint of good sense as would trying to reduce steam pressure by feeding a fire as much fuel as ever and throwing away the pressure gauge.

CEMENT WORK AT PANAMA.

The Isthmian canal commission has lately published some interesting data in regard to the cement work that was done on the Panama project from June 30, 1910, to June 30, 1911. The figures show that during the year mentioned 1,742,028 cubic yards of concrete were laid, while the cost of putting it in place varied from $0.70 per yard in the Gatun spillway to $4.68 per yard in the Miraflores locks. In the cement work at the Gatun dam 73,609 cubic yards of large rocks were used for filling, effecting a saving of over $263,000. The cost of the stone used varied from 84 cents to $2.31 per cubic yard. The cement for the Atlantic division cost $1.19 per barrel at tidewater, while for the Pacific division the cost was $1.0[illegible] per barrels in sacks, which if returned reduced the cost to $1.01.

EVIDENCE FOR THE SILO.

At a farmers' institute which the writer attended some time ago a speaker who was setting forth the merits of corn silage wound up his argument by saying that not only did the horses, cattle, sheep and hogs consume it greedily, but also the poultry, while occasionally he found the hired man chewing it as a substitute for something stronger. This kind of evidence seems conclusive and ought to be sufficient to convert the most skeptical to the silo way.

It is worth remembering that two or three drops of oil put on the threads of a screw will make the job of driving it into a piece of wood much easier.

Corn may do in fitting the old hen or cockerel for a roast or pot pie, but should be fed sparingly to the members of the flock from which results are expected in the trap nests.

Owing to the readiness with which they absorb liquids that are put in them wooden utensils should never be used in the handling of milk or cream. They are germ catchers and have been discarded by most folks.

Both mice and rats seem to possess an instinct which makes clear to them that the appetizing corn of which they are so fond is just the ration that will give them the covering of fat that will guard them against the winter cold.

How little heed we pay in the scramble and rush for honors and dollars to some of the most priceless truths of the ages! For instance, this: "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches and loving honor than silver and gold."

"A cue or not a cue?" is the question that is being put to the Chinese ruralite and townsman these days. If a Manchu or imperialist catches a foe without one off comes his head. If revolutionists find a Manchu with a rat tail they take it off close to his collar button.

One poultry practice that has come into vogue tending to do away with a lot of unnecessary bother and muss is the substitution of the hopper method of feeding the flock in place of the old wet mash method. Not only is time saved as a result, but the hens do better with the dry feed than with the wet.

From now on in the colder latitudes where outside green food is scarce the flock of hens will appreciate an occasional cabbage, the leaves and litter from the clover or alfalfa mow, as well as apple parings and cores discarded from the kitchen. Securing eggs in the winter months lies in large measure in reproducing summer conditions and furnishing the green food mentioned helps to do this.

The practice followed by many of blanketing a horse kept in the stable simply to save the elbow grease consumed in a few minutes' application of currycomb and brush is a sort of encouragement to laziness in the owner and unless there are cracks in the stable so big that a black cat could be thrown through is detrimental to the well being of the horse, as it makes him tender and less able to withstand extreme temperatures when out of doors without suffering.

Some one has figured out that if the $15,000,000 put into each battleship by Uncle Sam were invested instead in permanent highways it would cover the expense of one extending from New York to San Francisco and costing $5,000 per mile. In view of such figures as these sensible folks can hardly be blamed for hoping for the time when "nations shall beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks" and when battleships shall be converted into permanent highways.

A friend is building a feeding shed which has much to commend it. It is of ample size, 30 to 50 feet. The cement foundation on which it rests is extended as a wall three and a half feet above the ground, to give stability and strength. Above this point the shed is of clay, hollow blocks, which in the latitude in which he lives is a decided advantage, for it means a warm structure. Ample door and window space has been arranged on the south side. Next season the shed will be perfected by laying a cement floor, which will prevent mire and mud and make possible a conserving of the maximum value of fertilizing elements contained in the manure.

What is said by the few who have seen it to be the most wonderful cataract in the world is the Kaietur falls on the Potaro river in British Guiana. In single sheer leap the South American falls is surpassed by both Yosemite and Bridal Veil falls in the Yosemite valley in California, 1,500 feet and 900 feet, respectively, but both these are but slender graceful ribbons compared with the British Guiana wonder in which a volume of water between 350 and 400 feet in width flows quietly to the brink and slips unruffled into a chasm 741 feet deep. The Kaietur falls is most inaccessible, and only those who are willing to make a week's trip fraught with much peril can feast their eyes on its wondrous beauty and grandeur.

Our National Capitol.

"One thing I learned during a recent visit to Europe was that the average life of a stone building is not more than 700 years," said a builder. "Naturally I was interested in construction work and gave more attention to this part of Europe than I did to the examination of art galleries and the tombs of famous men. The buildings of Europe are no better in their construction than those of this country. I don't think I saw a building in Europe that is better built than the capitol in Washington. In nearly all of the older cities of England I noticed that the town halls, which had been constructed in many cases 500 years ago, were beginning to collapse. All of them had been patched up, and it was evident that they would not last a great many years longer. I do not think there is any doubt that the capitol building in Washington will be standing 500 years from now if it is not destroyed, but it will not last longer, nor will the treasury building, which is the finest example of its style of architecture in the United States."—Washington Post.

Historic Spot at Ems.

On the riverside promenade at Ems there is a stone inscribed: "13 Juli, 1870, 9 Uhr 10 Min. Morgens." This marks the exact spot where Wilhelm I. and Count Benedetti terminated the interview which led the French to declare war. After the Franco-Prussian war the old emperor often returned to Ems. On one occasion his doctor mentioned that the municipality wished to commemorate the interview with Benedetti, which they considered the most memorable event in the annals of the town. He was instructed to meet the emperor on the promenade by the Lahn at 6 a. m. the following day. Wilhelm then said: "During my lifetime let nothing be erected to recall that sorrowful struggle. When I am dead do as you please. Since you wish to know where I dismissed Benedetti it was here under this tree at 9:10 in the morning." And, saying this, he placed his foot on the spot where the monument now stands.

The Wonders of Color.

A small and simple experiment can be made by any reader which will go far to convince him or her what a debt we owe to color and what a good thing it is we have sunlight, which enables our eyes to take advantage of the beautiful hues of nature. Make a room quite dark and then burn some carbonate of soda in the flame of a bunsen gas burner. It will burn with an orange yellow light sufficiently strong to illuminate everything in the room, but you will realize with a sudden shock that, bright though the light is, all distinctions of color have vanished. Only light and shade remain. A crimson carnation, a blue violet, a red tablecloth, a yellow blind—all look gray or black or white. The faces of those present look positively repulsive, for all natural color has disappeared. No other experiment will so well convince those who have witnessed it how great a loss would be that of our sense for color.

A Risky Place For Doctors.

Medical skill is at a rather low ebb throughout Russia and not without cause. An American physician, tempted by the enormous fees so frequently paid by the nobility, went to St. Petersburg and within a year had a lucrative practice. Then he was called in to attend a baron who was suffering from lung trouble. The doctor gave his patient the best of care and skill, but the baron died, and the widow promptly sued the doctor for damages for unskilled treatment. The unlucky American was sentenced to pay a fine of 1,000 roubles and undergo an imprisonment of thirty days. Under the circumstances it is not surprising that the physician left Russia as soon as he got out of jail, and nothing could tempt him to return.

Knights of Old.

The knights of the days of chivalry were so well protected by their armor that they were practically invincible to all ordinary weapons. Even when dismounted they could not be injured save by the misericordia, a thin dagger, which penetrated the chains of the armor. In more than one battle knights fallen from their horses could not be killed until their armor had been broken up with axes and hammers.

Inquisitive.

"Do you think women would improve politics?"

"Well," replied Mr. Growcher, "after listening to the conversation on the front porch, I'll say this for them: If they ever start an investigation they'll find out something."—Exchange.

Friendship.

Friendship is courteous and gentle; it does not domineer, does not command, but is satisfied with proposing without exacting compliance. At the same time it is indefatigable in labor when labor can achieve a friendly purpose.

THE THREE AGES OF CHRISTMAS.

By ROBERTUS LOVE.

WEEK BEFORE CHRISTMAS.
With Dolly sweetly sleeping
Before the blazing grate
The little ones are keeping
Their vigil very late.
With many chirographic flaws
They write their wants to Santa Claus.

CHRISTMAS EVE.
Now long abed is Dolly,
Because 'tis Christmas eve,
But little Paul and Polly—
Are wide awake, believe!
They cannot sleep nor dine nor sup
Before they hang their stockings up.

CHRISTMAS MORNING.
'Tis Christmas morning early,
Yet these expectant tots
(Now, don't you love them dearly?)
Have risen from their cots,
And even Dolly's eyes are wide
To see the toys of Christmastide.

BEER IS THE NATION'S BEVERAGE

And WHITE SEAL BEER is among the finest made. This country has not yet reached the amount of beer consumption per capita that is recorded by several foreign nations, but every year shows an increase, and it is a sign of good taste and judgment. The beer brewed here is lighter, however, than most foreign beers, the demand being for an extremely mild brew, with alcoholic strength reduced to the minimum.

Good beer is a good drink any time and, when taken with meals, adds zest to the appetite and quickens the digestion. The aromatic properties of the hops are appetizing and the malt is nourishing.

A HAPPY NEW YEAR!

KLINE IS DEFEATED

William Kline, Local Wrestler was Defeated at the Lyceum Firday Night by Ludvig Monson.

After Fourty-Five Minutes of Wrestling Monson Secured the "Scissor Holt", Breaking Three Ribs.

WAGREN VS. MAHON

The preliminary wrestling match between Wagren and Mahon was a real good bout; both men showing up in good style. The first fall was in Wagren's favor, getting his opponet in seven and one half minutes. The second fall was short but sweet; Mahon making quick work of Wagren, securing the second fall in one minute. We feel sure that when James Turnbaugh gets through training they will both be good men at the wrestling game.

GANS VS NELSON.

The three round boxing exhibition between young Teal and Goulet was the source of much enthusiasm to the well filled house. The boys did fine work, but Teal proved to be the fastest man. The second round ended in a draw—while the third was real fast. Goulet got busy in this round and the final decision was in his favor.

MONSON VS KLINE

This was the big feature of the evening. Both men entered the ring looking very fresh and in first class shape. Referee Smith introduced the men, and was greeted with applause and shouts from the audience. When time was called the men shook hands, and the match was on. The men wrestled nearly 20 minutes before either of them were off their feet. Monson went to the mat first; but it was only for a short time. Kline succeeded in getting a "full Nelson" on Monson but was unable to do anything with his opponent.

Monson tried the "scissors holt" on Kline after 30 minutes of wrestling, but could not hold him. When they had wrestled about 40 minutes they began to "tie into" each other, both men going to the mat.

Monson worked around and succeeded in getting Kline with the second "scissors holt," this time he held "Big Bill." Kline was unable to break the hold this time; Monson "reafed" this holt and Kline gave way with a moan "Oh my ribs." After Kline got up a doctor was called, and it was found that he had three ribs broken.

It was proved from the start that the men were evenly matched and in good shape. Arrangements are being made for a match in the near future, which will be announced in this paper.

Use a Red Cross Seal.

The committee in charge of the anti-tuberculosis work asks everyone to help along this great work by generously using the Red Cross seals on their New Year's letters and cards. They also wish to state that the Red Cross Society has given to Pennington County the money received from the sale of the Christmas seals this year in this city, to be used to help in organizing the work of educating the public as to the dangers of tuberculosis in our newly established county.

WAS ORGANIZED

Local Boys Finally Succeed in Getting Athletic Association Started in This City.

Last Thursday evening a big mass meeting was called by the committee in charge for the purpose of organizing an Athletic Association in this city. The meeting was called to order by G. Halvorson, who was appointed temporary chairman. Train Dispatcher Wm. Smith was elected permanent chairman of the Association; R. J. Jordan, of the First State Bank, secretary, and F. C. Niclai, our popular La Lunda cigar maker, treasurer. An investigating committee, composed of Dr. Boorce, Hans Angel and Jas. Turnbaugh, was appointed to look up the cost of putting in a good gymnasium outfit and also how much money can be raised among the people who are in favor of such an organization.

No definite arrangements have been made as to what the membership fee will be—this, with other matters, will be taken up at the next regular meeting, which will be held at the Auditorium Gym this evening, Dec. 28. The main aim of each member should be to do all he can to make this one of the best organizations in the state. One way of assisting would be by keeping his membership fee paid always up-to-date, as it will be very necessary for the organization to be well supplied with money at the start.

Those who are intending to join can rest assured that there are good men at the head of it and if the public will assist, it is a sure thing. We, like many others, feel that this fills a long felt want, and there is no reason why we should not help the boys along in this affair.

NOTICE!

Sealed bids for the excavation of the basement for the building to be erected by the Co-operative Building Co., will be received up to January 12th, 1912. We have the privilege of rejecting any and all bids, if not up to requirements. For information see J. P. Curtis, Sec'y.

THIRD LECTURE

Next Socialist Speaker on Lyceum Course to Be R. R. Maynard of Los Angeles, Cal.

As the third number of the Socialist Lyceum Course, R. A. Maynard, of Los Angeles, will speak on "The War of the Classes," at Auditorium on Jan. 3. It may not be generally understood that, as alleged by local members of the party, the Socialists are opposed to all forms of violence which occur in connection with labor troubles, holding to the theory that the peaceful rule of a democratic majority is the only safe and stable form of government.

No more remarkable example of this has been afforded in recent years than the sudden and sweeping change of position which the Socialists made in relation to the McNamara affair. Almost unanimously they joined with the labor unions in defending the accused men, so long as they could be believed innocent of violence; and with equal unanimity the Socialists changed front the moment it was established that the labor leaders had made use of dynamite.

So careful, in fact, are the Socialists to exclude from their ranks those who believe in violence that their application for Party membership includes a specific endorsement of the "principle of political action," the theory being that only through votes and majorities can great changes be safely effected.

Local Socialists strongly insist that in settling what they call the "class war" every form of force not expressed in peaceful strikes and at the ballot box reacts unfavorable against the working people. Mr. Maynard, they promise, will give an entertaining analysis of the elements which enter into the class war.

The Roller Skating Bear.

The vaudeville attraction which was billed to appear at the Auditorium Dec. 25th, 26th, and 27th, could not be put on, and arrangements were made with the Lyceum, where "Alice Teddy" the roller skating bear, put on a good vaudeville act.

It is claimed that "Alice Teddy" is the only animal that has ever been trained to perform this difficult act. The bear has almost a human brain and masters the roller skates a great deal better than a human being.

A DOUBLE VICTORY

Commercial-Normal's First Team Defeated Plummer; Second Team Wins from Freshmen.

Last Friday evening at the High School gymnasium, the Commercial Normal's first team defeated the Plummer aggregation by a score of 33 to 2. The teams were very evenly matched, the visitors losing through their inability to throw baskets.

C. N.—FRESHMEN.

At 7:30 a game was played between the Commercial Normal's second team and the Freshmen; which resulted in a victory for the former, by score of 11 to 8. At the end of the first half the score was 7 to 5 in favor of the Freshmen.

LIGHT ON ORE CASE

John G. Brown Tells Steel Committee Inside History of Proceedings Before Gopher Commission.

After Suit Was Dropped, Only the Oliver Company Benefited, Witness Declares.

(Dispatch Washington Bureau.)

Washington, Dec. 19.—Charging in effect that the celebrated case brought by Brown et al. against the Duluth & Iron Range railroad before the Minnesota Railroad and Warehouse commission in 1898 was withdrawn as the result of a "conspiracy," John G. Brown of Chicago, for twenty-five years a resident of Duluth, today appeared before the Stanley steel investigating committee.

Mr. Brown denied in the most emphatic manner the assertion made by Joseph B. Cotton of Duluth in a telegram to Chairman Stanley and repeated yesterday by Mr. Cotton when he appeared as a witness before the Stanley committee that the suit was withdrawn on petition of the complainants.

The case was dropped, according to Mr. Brown, with the understanding that the complainants were to receive the benefit of reduced rates, whereas according to the witness the Oliver Mining company was the only concern that derived any advantage from the withdrawal of the suit.

There was constant wrangling among the committeemen today as to the relevancy of the testimony of Mr. Brown. Repeated objections were made by D. A. Reed, counsel for the United States Steel corporation, that Mr. Brown's narrative really had no bearing on the affairs of the corporation, and for that reason should not be admitted to the record of the case.

Some of the committeemen were disposed to agree with Mr. Reed, but Chairman Stanley insisted that the witness should proceed.

"This suit before the Minnesota commission," said Chairman Stanley, "was heralded abroad as an adjudication of the complaints made that the Duluth & Iron Range road was imposing excessive rates for the transportation of ore.

"If that suit was a mere farce resulting only in the payment of rebates to the Oliver Mine company, as has been charged, I think this committee and the country should come into possession of the facts."

Mr. Brown began by telling of his interest in ore properties in the Mesabi country. He was interested in a number of mines, among them the Zenith, the Pioneer, the Savoy and "Section 30."

He was induced to become a complainant in what afterward came to be known as the Brown case in the hope that the road would be forced to reduce its 80-cent rate on ore.

W. W. Billson, now a resident of Los Angeles, was one of the lawyers retained. The case had not proceeded very far when Brown and his associates learned that Billson had also been retained by the Oliver Mine company.

Billson and those associated with him finally informed Brown and his colleagues that it appeared that their interests clashed with the interests of the Oliver company and that they would be compelled to withdraw from the case.

A memorandum was then drawn in

SIMPSON QUITS THE BENCH

Associate Justice of Supreme Court Resigns—Judge Holt of Minneapolis His Successor.

Associate Justice David F. Simpson of the state supreme court has handed in his resignation to take effect on Jan. 2.

Governor Eberhart had been previously informed of Justice Simpson's intention to resign and immediately appointed as his successor Judge Andrew Holt of Minneapolis, while Charles S. Jelley, formerly assistant attorney general, was appointed to succeed Judge Holt on the district bench in Hennepin county.

"I hereby resign the office of associate justice of the supreme court, the resignation to take effect on the second day of January, A. D., 1912."

This was the simple statement issued by Justice Simpson. He explained that he had had the matter under consideration for some time. He will engage in the private practice of law.

MINNESOTA GETS THE PRIZE

Has Most Comprehensive Exhibit at Land Products Show.

Minnesota won the handsome silver trophy cup offered by the St. Paul Association of Commerce for the most comprehensive state exhibit at the Land Products show at St. Paul. The announcement was made by the management after the judges, Thomas Shaw of St. Paul and C. L. Andrews of Fairbanks, Alaska, had spent several days making comparisons.

Montana won the sweepstakes trophy cup for the largest and best exhibit of products from any one state.

The committee which collected the Minnesota exhibit left nothing out. It contained everything from fish to canned corn, from apples to iron ore and sugar beets to butter. It outdistanced any other exhibit when it came to comprehensive character.

MAKES RICH DIAMOND HAUL

Thief Secures $7,000 Worth of Gems at Minneapolis.

Diamonds valued at between $6,000 and $7,000, uncut jewels contained in a jeweler's wallet, were stolen from the diamond room of White & McNaught at Minneapolis. The theft took place almost under the very eyes of the two proprietors of the store and twenty clerks and the thief left the store leisurely with the gems in his pocket and mingled with the crowds of Christmas shoppers and since has not been seen.

Three minutes after the thief departed the loss was discovered by Charles D. White and a man whom the police accuse of being the thief's accomplice was arrested in the store. He gives his name as W. W. Wells and strenuously denies his guilt.

BREN IS AGAIN INDICTED

Another True Bill Against Former Minnesota "U" Treasurer.

Another indictment has been returned at Minneapolis against Joseph D. Bren, former treasurer of the University of Minnesota, already under indictment on charges of being short more than $13,000. The indictment charges failure to turn over to the state treasurer public funds intrusted to him.

Bren says he was robbed last spring of $13,000 on the university campus. Aside from this there is also an alleged shortage of nearly $1,000. Some money was turned over to the university by Bren after his arrest and subsequent release on $15,000 bail. The story of the robbery is declared by the county attorney and the police to be a myth.

CASHIER ADMITS HIS GUILT

Minnesota Bank Official Will Be Sentenced Jan. 2.

The criminal action against R. M. West, cashier of the State bank of Cobden, charging him with embezzling funds of the bank and of the village of Cobden, came to an abrupt close when West pleaded guilty to the first indictment, charging him with misappropriating $12,251.04 of the bank's funds. This plea followed the motion made by Attorney Alfred W. Mueller, an assistant in the attorney general's office, who was sent to New Ulm to assist County Attorney A. O. Erickson in the prosecution, that the court proceed with West's trial.

Judge Olsen deferred passing sentence upon West until Jan. 2.

Pioneer Winona Brewer Dead.

Peter Bub, seventy years old, one of the oldest and most widely known brewers in the state, died at his home in Winona of heart failure after an illness of nine months. Mr. Bub established the Sugar Loaf brewery at Winona in 1871 and since that time it has grown to be one of the most extensive plants of the kind in the state.

ALLEEN FISHER COMES HOME

Missing Young St. Paul Girl Feared Reprimand.

In a manner which indicated that he might be trying to shield some friend of the family who might have harbored his daughter Alleen during the week she remained away from home Allan B. Fisher of St. Paul declined to make known where the fourteen-year-old girl was until she came home.

Mr. Fisher said she was in a good home and well taken care of. He remarked that after her return home he personally investigated the place wherein she remained from the sight of her parents and the police and found to his satisfaction that her reason for staying there so long was because she feared a reprimand from her father for what she childishly throught to be great wrong—the mischievous answering of a want ad asking for young women to join a vaudeville act.

KILLS BREWERY TREASURER

Virginia (Minn.) Machinist Wounds Two Other Men.

Jack Drexler, a machinist, while alleged to be under the influence of liquor, shot Axel Pakala dead, in Pakala's saloon in Virginia, shot John Koshi, a farmer, through the shoulder and slightly wounded Joe Putis. The bullet that hit Koshi also entered the right lung and his condition is serious. Drexler was arrested. He had been thrown out of Pakala's saloon some hours earlier and returned and entered a side room, where Pakala was entertaining some friends and began shooting.

Pakala was thirty-seven years old, married and wealthy. He was treasurer of the Virginia Brewing company.

PRIEST FOR HALF CENTURY

Archbishop Ireland Was Ordained at St. Paul in 1861.

Fifty years ago in the cathedral at St. Paul Archbishop John Ireland was ordained a priest by Bishop Thomas L. Grace.

Under the strict orders of Archbishop Ireland there was no celebration of the anniversary in the churches of St. Paul, but it was impossible for the archbishop to prevent his friends and admirers from expressing their esteem for him upon this occasion in the form of congratulatory telegrams, cablegrams and costly presents.

FINDS SIXTY INDICTMENTS

Grand Jury Scores Police of East Grand Forks.

The Polk county grand jury made a most scathing report in condemnation of the police force of East Grand Forks for allowing crooks and criminals to be harbored by the saloons of that city. Thirty of the forty-two saloon keepers of that city were indicted, twenty-three on a charge of operating slot machines, Brown Bros., Charles Peterson, manager for the Gund Brewing company, trustee in charge of the Harm & Oescharger saloon, and Al Perry on a charge of operating gambling tables, and Brown Bros., Harry Hutchins and several others on a charge of harboring criminals. A total of sixty indictments was returned.

HEAD OF LAKES HAS RECORD

Next to New York Harbor in Freight Movement.

Major F. R. Shunk, who is in temporary charge of the Lake Superior district for the United States government, in his annual report makes the statement that, considering the mean monthly freight movement during the season of navigation, the Duluth-Superior harbor stands next to New York. The total freight received and shipped for the fiscal year was 36,-634,578 tons, valued at $234,049,072, an increase of 12.17 per cent over the previous year, 213 per cent increase over 1900 and 1188 per cent increase over 1890. The fiscal year, with which Major Shunk's report deals, ended June 30, 1911.

MISCELLANEOUS NEWS.

After the jury, which is to try the ten Chicago packers who are charged with violation of the criminal provisions of the Sherman anti-trust law was completed, the opening statement of United States District Attorney James H. Wilkerson was made. Mr. Wilkerson declared the defendants, through the National Packing company, had continued the old pooling practices of the packers and had actually put into effect the most powerful engine for the suppression of competition ever devised in the industrial world.

Federal control, said James Wickersham, progressive Republican, delegate to congress from Alaska, in an address at St. Paul, is the only salvation for Alaska. As things are now, Mr. Wickersham says, the Guggenheim-Morgan interests control not only the territory but the real seat of the territorial government, which is in Washington. Even the Alaskan courts, which he admits are the best Uncle Sam has anywhere, are more or less dominated by this combination, he declares.

One of the greatest slumps in immigration ever recorded at the port of New York is being written into the records during the closing days of the year. Already the records show that nearly 300,000 fewer immigrants have landed there up to the present time than for the corresponding period in 1910 and indications are, Commissioner Williams states, that there will be a reduction of 30 per cent or more from 1910 figures for the year.

Another mile post was set up at the beginning of December in the history of the construction of the world's greatest engineering work, when the engineers announced that on that date four-fifths of the excavation required to complete the Panama canal had been done. There remained only 39,-669,715 cubic yards of material to be removed and that task is expected to be completed within the next year.

"There is and has been for years a connection between the Chicago police department and the criminal classes of the city," says a preliminary report to Mayor Carter H. Harrison, made by the city civil service commission, which has conducted an exhaustive examination of the police department.

THE DEATH RECORD.

John Bigelow, the celebrated American author, journalist and diplomat, is dead in New York city. He was born in Malden, N. Y., on Nov. 25, 1817. John Bigelow, the "grand old man of America," publicist and ambassador to France, had been ill for some months. He had just passed his ninety-fourth birthday on Nov. 25, during the celebration of which he received cable congratulations from all over the world and scores of the most noted men in America called on him.

Rose Eytinge, at one time one of the most popular leading women on the American stage, is dead at Amityville, L. I. Miss Eytinge was born in Philadelphia in 1835 and made her first stage appearance in 1852. She then played for ten years in stock, appearing with Edwin Booth, E. L. Davenport and J. W. Wallack.

Benjamin F. Jonas, former United States senator from Louisiana and for the last half century a prominent figure in the political and commercial life of that state, is dead at New Orleans. He was seventy-six years old.

Emilio Estrada, president of the republic of Ecuador, is dead.

POLITICAL NEWS.

Northwestern senators and representatives speak in more commendatory terms of President Taft's message on the wool schedule than they have of any utterance he has made since he entered the White House. The prediction is made that on this particular phase of the tariff question the progressives will be in entire harmony with the wishes of the administration.

Theodore Roosevelt's candidacy for the Republican nomination was officially launched in Nebraska when there was filed with the secretary of state a petition asking that Mr. Roosevelt's name be placed on the next Republican primary ballot under the Nebraska presidential preference law.

Conferences which are likely to have an important bearing on the attitude of the New York Republican state organization in the next presidential campaign were held in New York city between President Taft and a number of state leaders.

FINANCIAL AND INDUSTRIAL

On the application of the Westinghouse Air Brake company Judge Elmer B. Adams, in the United States circuit court at St. Louis, appointed Frederick A. Delano, Edward D. Pryor and W. H. North Carolina led all other states in the production of tobacco last year, her output being 89,430,948 pounds. Missouri ranked next, with 75,027,579 pounds, while Ohio and Kentucky were neck and neck, with 47,000,000 pounds, and Virginia and New Jersey, with 29,000,000 pounds each.

The production of raisins in the southern California district has increased from 120,000 pounds in 1878 to 112,000,000 pounds in 1910. During the fiscal year closing June 30, 1911, there were imported into the United States 2,500,000 pounds of raisins, while the exports were 18,500,000, the largest shipments on record.

An English chef, M. Soyer, is credited with having discovered the method of cooking in paper bags, which just now is receiving much notice in newspapers and magazines. The points claimed for this new method of cooking are a preservation of the flavors of things cooked and doing away with the washing of so many greasy pans and kettles.

California is making rapid strides to the front as a dairy state. In 1898 the annual butter output of the state was 24,000,000 pounds. In 1910 the production was 60,000,000, and it is contended the gain has been due chiefly to the greatly increased production of alfalfa in the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys, where six tons per acre is a common yield in a single season.

Dangerous as handling dynamite is to limb and life, it is hardly more so than the corn shredder, which deprives so many men of hands and arms during the fall and winter. When one takes into account how quickly one of these machines will chaw to pieces a human hand and arm he is led to wonder why men who have their wits about them will be so careless when working about such machinery.

Our readers—and this will include the majority of those living in or near the smaller towns of the country—should get what consolation they can out of the emphatic assurance of food chemists that the tougher the meat is the more nutritive elements it contains. At from 6 to 8 cents a quart good rich milk is as cheap a food as one can buy, and, more than this, it is just as good for folks fifty years old as it for youngsters of five months; also a whole lot of folks who are run down and poorly nourished would do far better to buy milk at the price mentioned as medicine than to pay $1 a bottle for So-and-so's bitters or tonic, and, besides, their noses would soon lose that boozy, reddish tinge, and this would help their looks.

During the first two weeks of the international egg laying contest which is being conducted at Storrs college, Connecticut, a pen of White Leghorns belonging to an English breeder made the best showing, shelling out seventeen out of a possible thirty-five eggs. The second best record was made by a pen of Buff Leghorns belonging to an Illinois fancier. Many of the pens of supposed winter layers had not at the end of the period mentioned produced a single egg, but maybe they'll get busy later on.

That a wise Providence knew what was necessary when members of the animal kingdom were endowed with two eyes is nicely shown in the case of an old bronze gobbler that recently strayed from the premises of a friend. This bird had lost one eye in some way and some two months ago strayed a couple of miles to a neighbor's. A few weeks later the bird got his affections boggled up and was found on the premises of a farmer some two miles in another direction. If you have a one eyed gobbler, better tether him.

MARKETING FRUIT IN OHIO.

The marketing end is just as important a part of the fruit growing business as any step which precedes it and is receiving much attention just now. In way of solving this problem the plan that has been evolved by the peach growers in the district adjacent to Port Clinton, O., is interesting and may be of value to fruit growers elsewhere. Briefly, the plan referred to is a disposal of the fruit at auction sales, which are held in the home markets. While two successful co-operative marketing companies had been in operation for about twenty years, the auction plan was not inaugurated until six years ago. At that time any peach grower not a member of either company was likely to fall a victim to the commission men who often got these growers to consign their fruit. Since the auction plan has become established the buyers have been compelled to buy outright. As fast as the fruit is picked it is sorted into three grades and taken in baskets to the auction station and sold to the highest bidder. Thereupon the grower is given a slip stating the number of bushels of each grade and the price of each and next receives in exchange for this a check on the local bank. There is no uncertainty about this plan, no delays, no telegrams stating "stuff not as represented" or anything of the kind. Now and then the grower receives less under this plan than he would by consigning to reliable houses, but he runs no risk, and the money in his pocket on the spot has a good sound.

A HERD OF WILD HORSES.

In the rugged and forbidding valleys of Okanogan county, Wash., which lies north of the big bend in the Columbia river, range today a most interesting group of some 5,000 wild horses. These are said to be the runty descendants of horses of good breeding and a much larger size that were brought west at the time of the gold discoveries in the fifties and sixties. These animals average about 700 pounds in weight, are remarkably swift and sure of foot, much like the bighorn sheep, and up to the present time have resisted practically all attempts at taming and bringing under domestication, being vicious and wild and showing no regard for their own lives when attempts have been made to subdue them. An interesting trait noticed in the stallions of this wild herd is their persistent attempts to coax to this wild life mares grazing on the nearest ranges. In many cases these efforts have been successful, with the result that more than one ranchman has unwillingly furnished new blood for this wild horde. However, a railroad is soon to run into the heart of the country ranged by these wild horses, and it is not likely they will long survive this encroachment of civilization.

REPAIRING TREE DAMAGE.

Doubtless more than one reader of these notes who has lately set out small fruit trees will find before spring that some of the trees have been girdled by mice or rabbits unless measures have been taken to protect the trunks. One of the best safeguards against damage by mice is a removal of all grass and weeds from about the trunk over a radius of two or three feet, for mice rarely do damage unless there be a shelter of some kind close to the trunk. In case damage is done, and the discovery of this should not be left until spring, it may be in part overcome by giving the wound a coat of linseed oil or white lead and tying on a poultice of moist clay or cow manure. If the tree is entirely or almost girdled it will be advisable in the long run to take it out in the spring or at once if conditions permit and set a new one in its place. With apple trees bridge or strip grafting may be done in cases where the girdling is complete, but one must be quite expert at such work to insure success.

IS BEARING FRUIT.

For the year ending Nov. 1 Iowa produced 2,783,684 pounds more butter than for the preceding year. In accounting for this increase Dairy Commissioner Barney attributes no small part of the gain to the work done by lectures and demonstrations on the dairy specials that were run over the main railroad lines of the state last winter. In these lectures emphasis was laid upon the need of testing each member of the herd for butter fat production, the importance of and what constitutes a proper ration and the necessity of grading up the dairy herd by the use of a first class sire. Much of this better dairy gospel work has been done in several of the states, and the practical good that has resulted it would be difficult to measure.

ABOUT CROWN GALL.

Crown gall is a disease of fruit trees that in some sections is causing a good deal of trouble. It is a fungous disease that makes its appearance in an enlargement and fibrous or hairy growth at the crown of the root. While many trees affected with the disease do not die, many others are practically ruined. The damage from crown gall may be reduced somewhat by a drenching of the base of the tree and adjacent roots with bordeaux mixture, but this only helps and does not repair damages. It has been found that the disease is contagious, may be carried from one tree to another with hoe or cultivator shovel and that it is not safe to set new trees in soil from which diseased trees have been removed.

The Nobel prize awards for the present year are calculated to give little ground for self complacency to Americans. Though the formal announcement of the awards were not made until Dec. 10, which was the anniversary of the founder's death, the prospective recipients were known beforehand. The prize for chemistry went to Mme. Curie, chief professor of science in the University of Paris, who, with her husband, discovered radium. The prize for physics, which it was believed some time ago would be awarded to Thomas A. Edison, the American inventor, went instead to Professor Wilhelm Wien of Wuerzberg university. Maurice Materlinck, the well known Belgian author and playwright, will receive the literary prize, while the prize in medicine will be awarded to Professor Allvar Gullstrand of the faculty of medicine at Upsala university, for research work in connection with his study of the eye. In the eleven years of the Nobel foundation prizes have been awarded to sixty individuals and to two peace societies. Only two of the sixty have been Americans. A prize in physics was awarded to A. A. Michelson of the University of Chicago, a German by birth, and one of the peace prizes went to President Roosevelt for his services in promoting peace between Russia and Japan. So far no other American has been recognized as worthy of the distinguished honor.

A German writer who recently visited Sweden gives the following reason why Swedish people emigrate in such large numbers to other countries. Says the writer in question: "One need only note with what enthusiasm the Swedish people celebrate their great holiday, May 1, even if they have to wrap themselves in blankets, as they do at Hasselbacken and at the larger inns and restaurants through the country in the early spring. Or watch them around midsummer and note how afraid they are to miss a single day or hour of the beautiful spring air. Little wonder that the Swedes enjoy the short summer months, when they have such long, cold winters. These long winter nights, with their cold and snow, makes the Swedish people long for milder and sunnier climes and new scenes and this, to my way of thinking, is perhaps the greatest reason why they leave their beautiful country in such large numbers."

Of all the rules submitted by the Swedish Olympic committee to the United States in order that the athletes who will represent this country in the games in Sweden next summer may go abroad fully conversant with what they are to expect the one which is causing the most discussion among the runners in the United States is that governing the starting of the races. The rule states that all the races will be started by the report of a pistol, and that no runner shall touch the ground in front of the scratch line with any part of his body. There is no stipulation made regarding false starts. It is certain that the New York committee will question this rule. At the Olympic games in London there was some discussion about just such a ruling. The authorities in this country are anxious to avoid any repetition of this kind. In other respects the rules governing the running races are identical with those in the United States.

An exchange says: "Women played a considerable part in the recent elections in Sweden. They have not got the vote, of course, like the women of Norway, but they have been carrying on an active campaign for suffrage for several years, and they seem at last to have made an impression on the governing powers. For the Conservatives, against whom they threw all their energies, have been beaten. To assist their allies, the Liberals and Social Democrats, the suffragettes established a committee in every constituency, and held 317 meetings during the election. One of their leaders made thirty-five speeches, but their campaign was not marked by any outbreaks of violence against their opponents of the government. The Swedish suffragettes seem to have campaigned on the lines of peaceful persuasion from the first. And perhaps that is why the mere man in Sweden seems to have listened to them."

Norway and Sweden, through their diplomatic representatives, have requested the United States government to grant them, under the favored nations clause of their treaties, the same privileges given Canada by section 2 of the reciprocity agreement, by which wood pulp and print paper are admitted free of duty to the United States. Several other countries, including Germany, it is believed, have asked the same privilege from the United States. These requests place formally before the state department the question whether wood pulp and print paper can be admitted free from other countries than Canada under the favored nation clauses in the existing treaties between the United States and those countries. Officers of the state department are in consultation on the subject with the officers of the customs service of the treasury department and a final decision will not be made until these conferences have been concluded. Under section 2 of the Canadian reciprocity agreement print paper and wood pulp were given free entry to the United States. This section of the bill became effective on July 1, independent of the passage of the law of congress, and its operation was not depending upon ratification of the reciprocity agreement by Canada.

Norway's population on Dec. 1, 1910, was 2,391,782. This shows that there were 80,000 more women than men. The population in the cities was 1,-702,554, of which there were 20,000 more women than men. In the towns there were 689,228 persons, of whom there were 60,000 more women than men, all of which proves that there are lots more women in the country than men. The rule holds good not only in the cities, towns and villages, but also in the country districts. The seven largest cities of the country have the following population according to the last census: Christiania, 241,834; Bergen, 77,000; Trondhjem, 45,000; Stavanger, 37,000; Drammen, 25,000; Fredrikstad and Kristianstad each 15,000.

The discovery of a morphia and opium joint at Osterbro, a suburb of the Danish capital, has come to cap the numerous convictions of Copenhagen residents of good social standing that have been recorded of late on various charges of vicious practices. Here again the patrons have been found to include well known citizens, commonly regarded as pillars of propriety. Though the police are very reticent, it is known that they have their eye on two suspects as the prime movers in this enterprise and sensational developments are looked for. One of these subjects is a retired captain in the mercantile marine with an extensive experience in the Far East. So far the police investigations are being kept secret to a large extent, for it is understood they aim to discover all the ramifications of the illicit traffic in Denmark before attempting to shut down the lid on this particular den.

which it was agreed that the case should be dropped if the Brown interests were given reduced rates which representatives of the Oliver company assured would be given.

This memorandum was to have been put into the form of a contract. A few days after the preparation of the memorandum Attorney Coogdon, representing the Oliver company, told the Browns that they had decided not to enter into a contract in accordance with the terms of the memorandum.

According to Mr. Brown the case was later withdrawn and thereupon the Oliver company received what amounted to rebates from the railroad. There was an intimation in the narrative of Mr. Brown that the withdrawal was the result of collusion on the part of lawyers and to this a number of the committeemen objected.

Mr. Reed contended that the committee should not admit secondary evidence in the face of a statement of A. M. Miller of New York and Duluth, a capitalist, that the memorandum in question is now locked up in a safe in Duluth and would be produced if the committee asked for it.

Chairman Stanley thereupon asked Mr. Miller to file the memorandum as evidence.

DAY LOST ON PACIFIC; CALENDAR TRICKS

Investigation Party Observe Sunday and Christmas Together.

Pastor Russell's Text Was the Song of the Angels at Jesus' Birth, "Glory to God in the Highest and on Earth Peace, Good Will Toward Men." Speaks at Tokio Next.

PASTOR RUSSELL

On the Pacific, December 25th.—When Pastor Russell and party with others westward bound discovered that a day must be dropped from the calendar, they decided to observe Sunday the 24th and Christmas day together. The text for the day was the song of the angels on the morning of Jesus' birth—"Glory to God in the Highest; on earth peace, good will toward men."—Luke ii, 14.

What could be more appropriate to the occasion than the song of the angels! Surely that song must find a response in the hearts of all good people. Nearly nineteen centuries have sped since the Savior was born and the angelic message of peace went forth; but still God is not glorified, and peace and good will are not exemplified amongst men. What means this delay?

Instead of peace, we have war; instead of disarmament, fresh taxes are levied; armies are enlarged and freshly equipped; new guns of more deadly caliber take the place of previous types, and nine more monster dreadnaughts are promised before another year—all for peace! Some of us, as Bible students, have learned within the last few years to place greater confidence than ever in our precious Bible.

Wiping from it the smearings of ignorance and superstition accumulated during the Dark Ages, we find God's Book wonderfully resplendent! It reveals to us the whole situation. It assures us of Divine blessing upon all who have the spirit of peacemakers; but it also assures us that not peace, but great trouble lies immediately in our pathway. "A time of trouble such as was not since there was a nation." (Daniel xii, 1.)

It explains that this is the result of the great increase of knowledge amongst men, in whom the principles of selfishness rather than of love hold control. The Bible predicts that shortly this will break forth like a consuming fire. "Every man's hand will be against his neighbor," in that reign of terror.

A Better Day to Follow.

Thank God! the same Scriptures which tell us of the coming catastrophe point to the silver lining of the cloud. They declare to us that beyond it the Sun of Righteousness will rise with healing, blessing, in His beams, and that then, under the administration of Messiah's Kingdom, God's will shall be brought to pass on earth even as in heaven. Then God will be glorified in the highest, and on earth will be peace, good will, equity, justice and love amongst men.

"But how strange!" says one; "we had hoped that education would have made the world holier, nobler, better. We had hoped to establish this peace and good will amongst men by the conversion of the world." Yea, we once all foolishly trusted in the arm of flesh. We are all to learn the lesson that only the Almighty Arm can deliver us from the snares of our own weakness and selfishness. Do we not see that the majority of our race are not made holy by education, but rather made "lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God?" Do we not see that the prisons and police officers are more numerous and more necessary in proportion to civilization?

World Must Wait Until Election Is Over

How long will it take us to learn the lesson that mankind cannot lift itself out of sin, selfishness, degradation and death any more than a man can lift himself by his own boot straps! The world must learn this lesson before it will be prepared to look to the Lord for the helpful change which He has promised to give, and be prepared to appreciate that help when received. God is teaching our race, yea, the angels also, great lessons which are to be useful to all eternity.

But the Redeemer must first gather from amongst men a select little company to be His companions on the spirit plane in glory, honor and immortality. These are styled the "Body of Christ," or otherwise "the Bride, the Lamb's Wife." The world cannot be dealt with until this election shall first be accomplished. Nearly nineteen centuries have been devoted to the gathering of this saintly few who are called "heirs of God, joint-heirs with Jesus Christ their Lord" to a heavenly inheritance. To our understanding the Bible teaches that very soon the last of these "elect" ones will have been tested and accepted. Then the First Resurrection will be completed, the great Messiah, Head and members, will be glorified, all powerful but invisible to men.

Forthwith the Sun of Righteousness will begin to shine, and earth's dark clouds of sin and sorrow, pain and tears, sickness and death, will melt away, the glory of the Lord will be revealed, and all flesh shall see it together. (Isaiah xl, 5.) Then our text will have reached its fulfilment.

Serving His Country.

A certain public office has been the object of much satire because of the passive nature of the incumbent's duties—except when he is called by tragic occurrence into the thick of action. So very negative, indeed, is the work of this public servant that he sometimes serves his country most efficiently by being absent, as appears in this extract from Moses Colt Tyler's journal, written in Washington years ago:

"President Grant never starts a conversation, but when it is started he often says a neat thing. Last year there was an excursion down the Potomac. He was on board, with his cabinet and a quorum of both houses.

"'Mr. President,' said Mrs. Judd, who sat near him, 'it would be a pretty bad thing to have a great accident happen to this party. Nearly the whole government would be destroyed.'

"'Yes, Mrs. Judd,' assented the president, 'but you observe that the vice president has very prudently stayed at home.'"

Talking Canaries.

Talking canaries are a great rarity, but several authenticated instances are on record. At Norwood, England, in 1858 a lady had a canary bird which began by repeating a word which its mistress had often used to it—"Kissie, kissie"—and by following the word up by an imitation of the sound of a kiss. After a time the bird repeated other words until it had a large vocabulary of phrases, one of which consisted of five words. Again, in 1863, a talking canary was exhibited in Bath, with a vocabulary such as is generally taught to parrots, and another talking canary was exhibited for a few weeks in this country, but it unfortunately caught cold and died. In Germany and the Tyrol canaries are taught to imitate the notes of other birds and whistle simple tunes, and the words which it imitates may be regarded as a mere development or variant of its musical notes.

The Lerot and the Snake.

Every one has heard of the remarkable combats of the Indian mongoose with venomous snakes, in which little rikki-tikki-tavi comes off victor. The fact that the mongoose invariably survives has led to the suggestion that it is immune to snake poison. Other animals said to be immune are the pig and the hedgehog. The experiments of British naturalists show that an animal of the dormouse family must be added to the list of the immune. This animal is known as the lerot and is said to fight fiercely with vipers. Large doses of viper's poison were injected into one lerot, from which injection no ill effects followed. On one occasion a lerot was bitten badly in the eye by a viper, and no signs of poisoning occurred. There can, it is thought, be no doubt that the lerot is immune to snake poison.

Gold Beaters' Skin.

A cheap substitute is much desired for goldbeaters' skin, which is prepared from the outside membrane of the large intestine of the ox. It is said that goldbeaters first tried paper for inclosing the metal, and mulberry fiber paper is still used in China and Japan, but animal parchment has been mostly employed for two or three centuries at least. While a thinner leaf can be beaten out between paper parchment sheets, it is damaged by adhesion. A special German paper is coated with isinglass or albumen, and paper parchment of some kind is much used in the first stages, but goldbeaters finish their product between goldbeaters' skins, still pounding an ounce of gold into [illegible] square inches of leaf.—New York Tribune.

When the horse gets out of condition it is a pretty good plan to make a thorough examination of the teeth or have the same done by a good veterinarian. In a majority of cases the low tone will be found due not to liver complaint or a pessimistic view of life, but merely to inability to get the teeth squarely together on the food masticated. If portions of the teeth project and prevent proper chewing, these points should be filed out.

The small boy, as well as the larger boy, will be saved a good deal of discomfort if he will remember that wiping the hands perfectly dry after each washing will tend to prevent chapped hands. If the hands are already chapped even greater care should be taken to wipe them dry. One of the best ointments to heal them is made by mixing about three or four teaspoonfuls of glycerin in two ounces of rosewater. This should be applied at night and should be put on just after the hands are washed and still moist, then rubbed in over the stove or register until the hands are perfectly dry.

As the stormy and cold winter weather comes on those farmers living in the higher latitudes may perform a real service for themselves by taking some pains to provide food and shelter for the quail and pheasants that during the summer and fall may have been frequenting the brush lots and roadsides near their premises. Especially is this true of the Hungarian and one or two other types of imported game birds which have been recently introduced and have not as yet adjusted themselves to the severer weather conditions. Simply from the standpoint of what these birds will do next season in the way of bug and insect destruction will more than pay for the time and expense of protecting them.

Cabbages require a dry and cool place for storage, and this is why they spoil so soon when left on the floor of the average cellar. Market gardeners and farmers who raise this vegetable in large quantities usually store them out of doors in the following manner: After pulling, the roots are removed, but as many of the outer leaves left on as possible. A well drained piece of land is then selected and the cabbages placed in a long row, the tier nearest the ground three heads wide, the next two and the last one. The conical pile is then covered with three or four inches of coarse hay or straw; then a couple of furrows are turned with a plow toward the cabbages on both sides. Earth is then shoveled over the pile so as to give a covering seven or eight inches deep. Cabbages stored carefully in this manner will keep until spring.

QUICK MARRIAGE

Joseph Fisher, of Erie, Minn., Sets the Pace for All Unmarried Men.

One of the biggest surprises of the season was sprung the first of the week, when Joseph Fisher, of Erie, began introducing a handsome young woman to his unsuspecting friends as his wife. Mr. Fisher had gone to Chicago for a visit, even his most intimate friends being ignorant as to his whereabouts, and while there he first met Miss Matilda Sprincle. It was a case of love at first sight, for on the very next day, Dec. 19, the couple were made man and wife by Judge Hopkins, the marriage taking place in less than twenty four hours from the time of their first meeting. Mr. and Mrs. Fisher soon left Chicago, arriving in Thief River Falls in time for Christmas. On Monday they left for Anton, where they will visit relatives for a time before departing for their home at Erie. The groom is one of the popular young men of the Eleven Towns and the bride is a recent arrival from Bohemia. The News joins with their many friends in wishing the couple a long and happy married life.

SAW LOGS IN THE RIVER

Meeting on Subject to Be Held in this City in the Near Future.

Federal Authorities at Washington Take Action in Regard to the Accumulation of Logs at Red Lake.

The recent action of the Federal authorities at Washington with reference to the accumulation of saw logs in the Red Lake river near the outlet of the great Red Lake in Beltrami county is creating not a little interest in this city.

The river has been very low for two years, this condition being occasioned by the lack of precipitation in that time. It is acknowledged by all familiar with this section of the state that the two seasons just past have not given the usual 24 inches of annual rainfall. The result is that all the lakes and streams in Northern Minnesota are abnormally low, and have been for a long time. The Red Lakes are today three feet below their usual water mark for this season of the year and, and as a natural consequence, the outlet, the Red Lake river is also very low.

Last spring a large drive of logs belonging to the local lumber company were towed across the lake and placed in the river. The water being too low to float them, they became stranded along the river bed for several miles and lie there today, but not in the form of an ordinary log jam. They are scattered and open, just as the water left them when it gradually fell in the early summer. What little water is running in the river now moves easily among the logs, so they prove no obstruction to the lake water in its natural flow into and through the river.—Ex.

STATE NEWS BITS

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

Instruction in marketing is to be given to farmers of the state in the future under a new department of the agricultural college of the university. Professor Carl W. Thompson, at present in the extension department of the university, will have the direction of the new course in agricultural economics. The bureau will study marketing conditions of the farmer, gather statistics and issue bulletins with instructions as to the best means of selling products.

Although some time must elapse before final figures can be obtained the flour output of Minneapolis mills for the year 1911 will make a big showing and will approximate 16,000,000 barrels. The production will be between 500,000 and 600,000 barrels greater than in the calendar year 1910. If it reaches 16,000,000 barrels, the total will again touch the line that stands for Minneapolis' output in years of milling activity.

While A. E. Bohlke and William Nickel were engaged in drilling a well on the farm of Fred Nickel, near Jeffries, they struck a hard substance and in order to make more room for the casing Mr. Bohlke lighted a fuse to a charge of dynamite. The light ignited gas coming from the well and the flames from the gas came up a distance of 140 feet. The gas has been burning constantly since with a steady flame.

The state supreme court has dismissed the proceedings brought against Rev. S. G. Smith of St. Paul, charged with contempt of court in attempting to influence a member of the Ramsey county grand jury. The reason for the dismissal is that there had been neither an indictment nor a conviction and therefore there was nothing on which to hinge an appeal.

The appointment of some expert publicity man as immigration commissioner to succeed the late George Welsh is one of the possibilities discussed by members of the state immigration commission.

Lester Brower is at the Duluth hospital, where he has been operated on for appendicitis. The appendix was found to contain a shingle nail. The hospital authorities say he will recover.

J. W. Shadewald of Minneapolis has been appointed a member of the executive committee of the National Republican league by John Hays Hammond, the president.

An experimental station in the school of mines at the University of Minnesota was established by the board of regents at its recent meeting.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

Game Warden Wood arrested nine violators of the game and fish laws at Half Moon, Embarrass and Ely lakes, taking them to Virginia with fifteen gill nets, a quantity of fish and headlights. All the men were found guilty in municipal court and fined $100 and costs each or ninety days in jail. All preferred the jail sentence. The men admitted on the stand having more than one hundred gill nets.

Abraham Nicholson, aged thirty, of Mansfield, took laudanum and death resulted. The young man was subject to a number of ailments. The family kept the medicine cabinet under lock and key, but he filed off the lock and secured the bottle and drank the contents. He weighed over 500 pounds.

The entire rear wall of the new city hall and Carnegie library at Preston fell outward because of overweight in the concrete floor of the jail, combined with poor construction. Alderman Blunt, who was on the roof, was buried in the ruins and was badly injured.

Charles Kennedy, twenty-three years old, employed by a Winona traction engine company, stepped in front of a suspended steel drill used for punching inch holes in an iron plate. The drill penetrated his back and entered one lung. His condition is critical.

When the revolver which he was examining was accidentally discharged, William Tulley, forty-five years old, of Minneapolis, was shot through the abdomen. He died shortly afterward at St. Mary's hospital.

The grand jury of Brown county has returned three indictments against Rollin M. West, former cashier of the State bank of Cobden. All indictments accuse him of grand larceny in the first degree.

Northern Pacific and Great Northern auditors found Ed Krook, cashier at the union freight office at Cloquet, short $2,500 in his accounts, it is alleged. Krook is in custody at Carlton.

G. Schenzel, a brakeman injured in the freight wreck that occurred at a point between Mantorville and Kasson on Nov. 23, died at Rochester as a result of his injuries.

Gust Anderson, aged eighteen, was drowned in Lake Phalen at St. Paul while skating.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

Mrs. Viola Ada Godfrey, a resident of Minneapolis since 1854, and wife of Abner Godfrey, who reached the Mill City in 1849, is dead.

Guy L. Hutchins, secretary of Minneapolis lodge, No. 44, B. P. O. E., and manager of the Elks' club, is dead of pneumonia.

ABOUT THE STATE

News of Especial Interest to Minnesota Readers.

GORDON ABANDONS SCHEME

Lieutenant Governor Decides Not to Summon State Legislature in Extra Session.

The little group of advisers which had gathered around Lieutenant Governor Sam Y. Gordon at St. Paul the last few days urging him to step into the governor's office in the absence of the chief executive and call a special session of the legislature has dispersed.

A brief statement was issued by Mr. Gordon, in which he declared that he had never sanctioned any statement that he would call the extra session if he did assume the office and that his previous opinion had been that he had no authority to act in a case of this kind.

Thus ended what has been the most exciting two days at the capitol for many months or years and it is asserted by many that, with the sudden end of the extra session talk, also ended the hopes of the Gordon candidacy for governor. His managers, however, will not concede that it has seriously injured him, although they do not assert that they gained anything by what happened.

The opinion of the attorney general was a disappointment to the Gordon people, who had assumed, because Mr. Simpson referred to the Frank A. Day case, that he would rule favorably to them. Mr. Simpson had merely answered the question of a reporter as to whether the point had been passed on in this state by referring to the Day case. When the matter was put up to him officially he searched further and found the Nebraska case holding that the governor upon his return could revoke an extra session called by the lieutenant governor.

DEMAND RETURN OF MONEY

Minnesota "U" Regents Serve Notice on Former Cashier.

Former Governor John Lind, president of the board of regents of the state university, and State Treasurer Walter J. Smith formally demanded that J. D. Bren, former university cashier and acting treasurer, produce the money he says was stolen from him last spring in a campus holdup and all other money which came into his hands as a university employe. The demand was served through the Hennepin county sheriff.

Bren is under indictment charging the embezzlement of about $20,000 of university funds. The officials name no specific sum, but demand that all "funds, money and properties" which came into Bren's custody be "forthwith produced."

The formal demand on Mr. Bren is in accordance with action of the board of regents, who dismissed Bren from the university service and have requested that an accounting for all money be demanded.

STOP WINONA STREET CARS

Sympathizers Break Windows and Strikebreakers Quit.

Violence developed in the street car motorman's strike at Winona and it brought to a halt the attempt of the company to resume service.

One of the three cars on the line was attacked by sympathizers in the extreme outskirts of the city, where stones and bottles were hurled through the windows.

No one was hurt and no arrests were made. Immediately afterward all of the cars were taken off and the city is again without street car service.

Adequate police protection has been demanded by the receivership. Strikebreakers from Chicago manned the cars, three of which were in operation until the trouble developed.

HINCKLEY FIRE HERO DEAD

Jim Root Passes Away in New York City.

James Root is dead in an obscure rooming house at New York.

Jim Root, as engineer of a passenger train on the old St. Paul and Duluth Short Line, saved the lives of more than 300 persons when Hinckley and other towns in Northern Minnesota were destroyed by the tornado of fire that swept that district Sept. 1, 1894, and in Hinckley alone caused the death of more than 500 people.

Shoots Up Minneapolis Saloon.

While one man lay under the bar with his head jammed in a tin pail and yelled for help, Fred Winego shot up a saloon at Minneapolis, clearing it of its other occupants, then turned the gun on himself, inflicting a wound in his neck. He was arrested and taken to the City hospital in the police ambulance, where it was said he would live.

Mortally Shot Over Woman.

Mike Ballis of St. Paul, twenty-three years of age, was mortally wounded in a quarrel over a woman. His cousin, Frank Scavo, nineteen years old, shot him through the abdomen and then escaped, the police say.

FOREIGN NEWS.

A conspiracy to assassinate President Madero of Mexico and proclaim a provisional presidency pending the arrival of General Bernardo Reyes at the capital to assume the office of president, was frustrated at the last moment, in the opinion of the authorities, by the arrest of Generals Higinio Aguilar and Meliton Hurtado of the federal army and a score of co-conspirators.

King George V. and his consort, Queen Mary, have been proclaimed emperor and empress of India. POLITICAL NEWS.

The Republican national committee, in session at Washington, decided that the national convention to nominate candidates for president and vice president will be held in Chicago, beginning Tuesday, June 18. The vote in favor of Chicago was overwhelming. Acting Chairman John F. Hill, former governor of Maine, was unanimously elected chairman of the committee after the acceptance of the resignation of Postmaster General Hitchcock, which went into effect on April 1, 1909. William Hayward of Nebraska was elected secretary to serve until the new national committee is organized in Chicago in June.

Arthur Donaldson, Swedish-American Opera Singer, Makes His Debut in Stockholm—Norwegian Wireless System Extended to Far Northern Parts. Change of Russian Premiers Has Not Modified Policy in Finland.

SWEDEN.

Arthur Donaldson, the Swedish-American opera singer, made his debut at the Oscars theater on the evening of Nov. 24 in a play entitled, "The Great Genius." Mr. Donaldson has been receiving a great deal of free advertising since his arrival in Stockholm, simply because the Stockholm theater going public is curious to know how a Swedish-American would appear in a real Swedish play. The papers treated Mr. Donaldson better before his appearance than afterwards and no doubt the criticisms entered against him were backed up by considerable prejudice. However that may be, Stockholm papers also state that the play is drawing a full house every night and that speaks rather well for Mr. Donaldson, who is the leading man in the play.

We note from a recent report that the traffic on the car ferries between Trelleborg, Sweden, and Sassnitz, Germany, is increasing at a most gratifying rate; indeed there was a certain day not long ago when there were 117 freight cars at Sassnitz which were waiting for the first chance to move over the Swedish boundary. These ferries have wireless telegraph connections and are operated from every viewpoint in a businesslike manner. In the month of September, for instance, there were not less than 9,000 passengers carried over these ferries, coming to and from the two countries, Sweden and Germany.

Just as was predicted in these columns about two years ago the unexpected has happened in Japan. Japanese matches are now crowding out the Swedish product in China. Still enterprising Swedish match manufactures are going to try and meet the competition by erecting a large match factory in China as was reported in last week's letter. The trouble started some years ago when some Japanese travelers came to Sweden and asked to look over Swedish match factories. So cleverly did they observe and study the Swedish match industry that they went back to their own country and taught their countrymen how to make matches.

Judging from the activity of Premier Staaf there will be some very effective anti-liquor legislation forthcoming in the near future. The new cabinet seems to be very much in earnest anent anti-liquor agitation and the committee which is to report on this matter to the riksdag appears to be overwhelmingly opposed to the liquor traffic. Premier Staaf is very much in favor of local option, but he also points out that there are large numbers of Swedish citizens who are in favor of actual prohibition. Anyway the question will come up in some form or other at the next session of the riksdag.

The Mormons of the country and their followers have sent a petition to the king protesting against further excommunication of Mormon prophets from the country. They declare in their petition that Mormon prophets and elders preach nothing but the word of God. Reports are, however, that the Swedish king is not so kindly disposed to the Mormons and that he is strongly opposed to some of their methods of spreading their doctrines in Sweden and is especially opposed to the fact that the Mormon prophets induce so many people to emigrate from Sweden to Utah.

The railway department proposes a reduction of the freight rates for hay. It is explained that the old rates were based on the assumption that hay would always be carried unbaled. In a comparatively short time, however, it has become customary to bale the hay for shipping, and in that shape it takes up less than half as much room as when loose. It is thought that a reduction of 25 per cent on hay and straw would be fair.

NORWAY.

Wireless telegraph stations have been erected at Green Harbor, Ingo and Spitzbergen. The first wireless telegram from these points came to Christiania from Spitzbergen station recently and read as follows: "The connection Spitzbergen-Ingo was completed at 1:30 this morning (Nov. 23). It promises to be a good connection. Experiments will be continued. The line can be opened to the public at any time. Propose Dec. 1. All hands are well and it is splendid to stay here; cold and dark, but cozy. All machines and apparatus work satisfactorily. I have the honor on account of the crew to congratulate you with the successful completion. Greetings.—Peterson." The dispatch was addressed to Thomas Heftye, general director of Norwegian telegraphs and telephones. Mr. Heftye, who is an aggressive man, lieutenant colonel in the army and twice minister of war, originated the idea of building a wireless station at Spitzbergen about a year ago, and his proposal was immediately accepted by the storthing, which appropriated the necessary funds for erecting stations at Green Harbor, Spitzbergen and at Ingo, Norway, a small island north of Hammerfest. This telegraph line is probably one of the first in the entire world which has been erected without any hope of direct profit, for the population of Spitzbergen will probably never reach 500. Meanwhile the station will reach over a great part of the Arctic ocean, with a radius of 2,000 miles, and any Arctic expedition which will be frozen in within this radius will be able to get news from the outside world if they have a wireless apparatus along. The radius of action takes in most of the Siberian coast, Franz Josef Land, Norway as far south as Bergen, and Greenland over to its western boundary. For those workmen and trappers who stay in Spitzbergen, including the American Coal company's hands at Green Harbor, it will mean to be in steady touch with civilization and the sphere of influence of Norway will in this way be extended to this group of valuable islands, which up to the present time have been no man's land.

A leading Congregationalist has been traveling in Norway. He writes in the Congregationalist about his observations among this strong Lutheran people. The North European seems to be as constitutionally honest as the South European is constitutionally dishonest.

The cost varies in different cases, running from a little less than $1.25 to $25."

Rev. Dr. Lenker is publishing a series of articles in a number of Western papers on "Scandinavian Languages in Our Country Schools." His idea is that when a provision is made for "modern" languages none would be more practical or useful to the youth of the West and the Northwest than the various Scandinavian tongues.

DENMARK.

A dispatch from Helsingfors, Finland, says: The assassination of Premier Stolypin was supposed by many Finlanders to mean that his policy against Finland would be modified in the interest of Finnish rights and Finnish liberty. Now the duma has shattered their hopes. Slowly but surely the new premier, Kokovsoff, is putting his iron heel on Finland and the duma has supported him by the crushing vote of 230 to 100.

More than 500 Scandinavian-Americans arrived in Copenhagen the other day on one of the big Scandinavian-American liners, all bound for different parts of Sweden and Denmark. Those who were bound for Norway disembarked in Christianstad. This is one of the largest crowds that has arrived for many years.

The committee appointed to estimate the value of the street car system of Copenhagen put the price which the city ought to pay at a little over $1,000,000. But the company thinks the estimate is too low, and so the courts will have to take up the matter.

Copenhagen is in gay holiday attire and there is great activity in all the downtown shopping centers. There has been an enormous trade from the country districts and neighboring cities and towns this season.

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

Wooing death with firearms is much more fashionable in Minnesota than courting it with poison, according to the annual report of the state board of health, and suicide by hanging is more popular than taking poison. Use of cutting instruments comes fourth and drowning fifth. Sixteen hundred and seven people met death by violence or suicide, during 1909, the report says. In railroad accidents 216 were killed. One hundred and sixty-five persons were accidentally drowned. Twenty died from sunstroke and twenty-four froze to death. As the result of burns and scalds 102 met death. Nine died from injuries received in automobile accidents; seven from injuries suffered in street car accidents, eight were burned to death, forty-nine died from injuries received from horses and vehicles, seventy-five from accidental gunshot wounds. The last number includes those who were mistaken for deer during the open season.

Joel G. Winkjer, state dairy and food commissioner, says that he will favor passage of an act by the next state legislature fixing a standard for acidity in milk and cream, as a measure toward preventing shipment of unfit cream for butter making. The only trouble, he said, is that authorities disagree on the standard. He may also recommend that a standard of bacteria count be made, fixing a maximum for bacteria such as Minneapolis has established by ordinance for milk.

The curtain rolled down on the performances of Thomas Lawrence Rossley, a sick and stranded vaudeville actor, at the St. Louis county hospital at the poor farm. He was one of the sixty actors who, with Ezra Kendall and other prominent thespians, met in Philadelphia years ago and organized the White Rats society, designed to protect actors from just what has happened to Rossley, in becoming dependent on charity. He had got behind with his dues.

Out of 410 veterans at the state Soldiers' home at Minnehaha Falls seventy-eight have died during the year, making the death rate 20 per cent. While the death rate appears to be heavy it is not surprising when the age of the inmates is taken into consideration. There are many infirm soldiers at the home, who spend much of their time in the hospital and infirmary and are too feeble to conform to the routine of the institution.

The nomination of William H. Grimshaw of Minneapolis as United States marshal for Minnesota was sent to congress by President Taft. Mr. Grimshaw has been United States marshal for thirteen years. He was appointed first by President William McKinley in 1898 and held two commissions from McKinley and one from President Roosevelt. The commission is for four years.

The thirty-fourth annual convention of the Minnesota State Dairymen's association will be held in Wadena Jan. 16-19. The printed program carries on its title page the slogan of the association: "Co-operation should be so constructed that profits are equally divided with creamery patrons and not made to flow into the pockets of the scalpers."

The state supreme court has upheld Governor Eberhart in removing from office John Kinsella, county attorney of Lake county. The court holds that certiorari proceedings by which Governor Eberhart proceeded against Kinsella are a proper remedy in such cases. It is also held that the evidence brought against Kinsella tends to sustain the governor's action in removing him from office.

Dr. Williams of Albert Lea reports a peculiar disease among horses in the southern part of Waseca county, where he has been called several times. The disease appears to be a sort of progressive paralysis, sometimes attacking the animals at one point and sometimes another. One man has lost seven head of horses. Thus far treatment has not been successful.

Mrs. Sarah A. Bassett, a resident of Hennepin county for nearly sixty years, is dead at Minneapolis. She was the widow of Charles Bassett, one of the original homesteaders in Hennepin county and their old claim near Hopkins, on which they located in 1854, is still in possession of the family.

While working on ditch No. 18, nine miles southwest of Albert Lea, a vein of lignite coal was discovered on the Henry Henerich farm. The vein lies through a ridge 300 to 400 feet long and is eleven feet beneath the surface. A shaft is being sunk to ascertain the depth of the vein.

James Lautrell of Mankato, in a fit of jealousy, shot his wife twice while in a throng of holiday shoppers. Family troubles are assigned as the cause of the shooting. The woman is in a critical condition, but will live, it is said.

A cablegram received at Winona announces the death at Kingston, Jamaica, of J. R. Watkins, the millionaire head of the J. R. Watkins Medical company of Winona.

W. L. Wilson, one of the oldest men in Blue Earth county, is dead at Mankato. He was born at Chester, Vt., May 4, 1818, and was married nearly sixty four years.

Ole Jacobson, a wealthy Sherburne county farmer, aged sixty, was burned to death at his home at Big Lake

The seasonableness of some agricultural matter used by many newspapers of the country is shown by an injunction given in such a column the other day to the effect that "in hot weather lice breed in pigeon houses by the million and extra care should be taken under these circumstances to keep down the vermin." This injunction, well enough in season, appeared in the papers just following a Medicine Hat blizzard which brought zero weather in many northern states and froze things hard clear to the gulf.

There is probably no incentive to effort that can be used with the boy that will go farther or produce more satisfactory results than appreciation. Many a lad, self willed and independent perhaps, runs away from home and tackles life on his own hook largely because of a lack of this very incentive to better effort, when it is more than likely if his mistakes had been made light of and his honest efforts to do things well had been given a trifle more praise he would have remained at home. Not only does appreciation make heavy work light, but it tends to give that satisfaction which any person must feel if he is to remain long at his work.

Men can learn much from animals if they will keep their eyes open. An instance showing this was that of several tuberculous cows that were being handled with the purpose in view of seeing what the outdoor treatment would do for them. Their quarters were so arranged that they could have the shelter of a warm stable and bedding, but one very cold night when a storm was on their owner was greatly surprised to note that instead of seeking protection they seemed to prefer the fresher air of the open, where the wind blew strong. Many folks who are fairly stupefied by breathing over and over in ill ventilated houses air surcharged with carbonic acid gas haven't as much "cow" sense as these dumb brutes.

STEEL SLEEPER IS TELESCOPED

Ten Killed and Score Injured in Wreck at Odessa, Minn.

COAST TRAIN IN COLLISION

First Section of Columbian Flyer on St. Paul Road Run Into by Silk Special Following.

Odessa, Minn., Dec. 19.—Ten persons were killed and a score injured in a collision here when the second section of the Columbian Flyer, from the Pacific coast, bound for St. Paul on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road, crashed into the rear end of the first section of that train.

The engine of the second section, which was hauling a special consignment of silk, tore its way almost to the middle of the sleeper on the rear of the first section. The sleeper, hurled forward by the impact, was stripped from the front end by the diner, the next coach ahead, almost to the point where the engine had stopped its destructive plowing. The rear of the diner and the pilot of the engine thus almost touched. Those who escaped death were in this small, clear space.

The passengers and crew members in the sleeper, twenty-seven in all, were hurled to the rear by the collision; then tossed back again or to one side as the engine crushed its way into the coach.

No Other Car Damaged.

The sleeper did not leave the right of way, neither was either car twisted. No other cars suffered more than slight damage. Their steel construction had been put to a supreme test and had stood it well, but it was demonstrated that even steel cars may be telescoped. The dead are:

MRS. J. F. RICHARDS and daughter, Mobridge, S. D.

MISS PETERSON, Green Bay, Wis.

THOMAS ALEXANDER, Newark, N. J., second cook in the diner.

UNIDENTIFIED MAN about thirty years old.

The impact when the trains came together was so terrific that buildings were jarred and windows were broken in the vicinity of the station, in front of which the accident occurred. People were aroused by the sound of breaking steel, and rising to investigate, they became volunteer rescuers.

SHOW GIRLS ARE ACQUITTED

Jury Frees Them of Charge of Shooting W. E. D. Stokes.

New York, Dec. 17.—A verdict of not guilty was returned, freeing Lillian Graham and Ethel Conrad of criminal charges on which they had been held since last June, for shooting the millionaire sportsman and hotel proprietor, W. E. D. Stokes. The jury reached its verdict in fifty-eight minutes' deliberation.

"The shooting show girls" were tried on an indictment of three counts, the first charging an attempt to murder Stokes. Of consideration of this count, however, the jurors were relieved by Justice Marcus at the request of the district attorney. The court restricted the jury to the second and third counts, which charged, respectively, assault in the first degree, with intent to kill, and assault in the second degree, with intent to do bodily injury.

ARABS SUFFER HEAVY LOSS

One Thousand Reported Killed or Wounded and 500 Captured.

Rome, Dec. 19.—One thousand Arabs were killed or wounded in an engagement at Homs, according to advices from Italian newspaper men. Cruisers poured a heavy fire among the Arabs, while Italian troops attacked from the rear. Five hundred Arabs were taken prisoners. The Italian losses were small.

ACCIDENT OCCURS IN FOG

Two Killed in Collision of Trolley Cars Near Wolcott, Kan.

Kansas City, Dec. 19.—In a collision between two trolley cars on the Kansas City-Leavenworth electric line which met headon in a dense fog near Wolcott, Kan., two persons were killed and nine seriously injured. A misunderstanding of orders is believed to have caused the collision.

Nat Goodwin Compromises.

New York, Dec. 19.—Edna Goodrich's attorney, Herman L. From foot to block a hog loses approximately one-sixth in weight, depending upon type, condition and feed.

While it takes a lot of them, the English sparrow makes an excellent potpie. Indirectly, too, putting sparrows in pies is an aid in safeguarding other useful birds about one's premises.

Dynamite is a mighty good agency when used with caution in the clearing of stumps from land, but it has lately been demonstrated quite conclusively that it is a woefully inadequate means of settling disputes between capital and labor.

Some idea of the prolificacy of the rat tribe is got from some figures that were kept in a campaign that was waged against them some time ago on an English estate of 2,000 acres. During a given period 31,981 rats were killed, but notwithstanding this killing there were plenty left to insure the propagation of the species.

The postoffice department at Washington seems to take an entirely reasonable and consistent attitude when it holds that patrons of rural mail routes shall not be given service unless they show some inclination along the line of keeping the roads in passable condition, which the rural carriers have to traverse in getting to their places.

While the early genealogy of the rat is shrouded in some obscurity, the rodent seems to have originated in China. It is said to have made its first appearance in England in 1738, in Paris in 1750 and in California in 1849. It scatters the germs of bubonic plague, cholera, hookworm and pellagra and in spite of all the warfare waged against it multiplies prodigiously.

Whatever the size or shape of the hog house, provision should be made for letting in a generous amount of light. It is very desirable if the arrangement of windows can be such that light will shine on some portion of the floor of the structure during the greater part of the day. Sunlight is a first rate germ destroyer and is a great aid in keeping the hog house dry and sweet and healthful.

According to figures lately compiled Texas produces more turkeys than any other state in the Union. The high prices that have prevailed during the past two or three years have served to greatly increase the raising of these big birds. From some points in southwest and west Texas from 3,000 to 4,000 birds are shipped to northern and eastern points daily during November and December.

From the standpoint of the maintenance of soil fertility—and this, after all, is the only true basis for determining whether a given type of agriculture is good or not—it can only be viewed as a misfortune when, as is the case just now, beef and pork are both so low that the feeder does not feel like running the risk of feeding them high priced corn, but instead markets his grain in the raw.

A fellow has a good prospect of grief and disappointment ahead when he swaps the old farm, whose productive capacity he is sure of, for a stock of merchandise, a hotel or livery barn of decidedly uncertain value and of the conduct of which he knows little or nothing. We have known of just such cases as this where in the windup the victims didn't own anything except their clothes and with so little credit left that they could scarce get trusted for a week's board.

One of the interesting as well as quite remarkable fruit records of 1911 was made by a 1,200 acre orchard of seven-year-old Elberta peach trees located in Pike county, Ark. The gross returns are placed at $300,000 and expenses at $100,000, leaving a net profit of $200,000 from a tract of land that was bought for $5 an acre eight or nine years ago. The tract in question was a cut over timber tract, the surface soil being gravelly loam and the subsoil a red clay. The season's output of fruit was 200 cars that averaged $1,500 per car.

The other day a Minnesota farmer who for some time prior had not had any confidence in the stability or soundness of banks as places of safe deposit went upstairs in his house to get some $1,800 which he had worked hard to accumulate and which he had concealed just beneath the floor. On removing the piece of floor he found not the bills that he had placed there in the past with such a feeling of security, but a nicely rounded bunch of greenish white fuzz and scraps including a cozy rats' nest. This fellow has learned his lesson, but by mighty expensive instruction.

AN INTERESTING EXPERIMENT.

Governor West of Oregon is sponsor for an experiment in the employment of convicts in permanent road building in the state that is not only unique, but commendable, both from the standpoint of the welfare of the convicts employed and the building of permanent highways at a minimum cost. The men—there are some thirty of them in the group referred to—are what the governor calls his "honor squad" and have been hired out to the contractor having in charge the building of the state highway to the famous Crater lake, in the southern part of the state. Their camp has been placed in a picturesque spot on the Rogue river, and here the men are today laboring contentedly and healthfully, with no one to look after them but the overseer who is superintending the work. The men are comfortably housed, well fed and receive 25 cents a day besides for the labor. The plan seems to offer a happy solution of the "bad man-good roads problem" and is deserving of the carefulest investigation by those who are interested not only in building permanent highways at a minimum cost, but, what is even more important, redeeming and fitting for citizenship the myriads at present confined in prisons, at once a source of heavy expense and usually a menace to society when released.

SOME CORNHUSKING.

Each fall as corn picking time rolls around much interest is shown in the husking records made in different parts of the corn belt. Within the past few weeks all previous records have gone a-glimmering. The last week in November a grueling husking contest was pulled off near Percival, in Fremont, the southwest county of Iowa. The contestants were Bert Van Houten, a resident of the county, and Earl Neely of Nebraska City, Neb. Spice was added to the contest owing to the fact that Van Houten had a short time before defeated Neely in a husking match and the further fact that each had wagered $500 that he could defeat the other. At the end of ten hours Neely had to his credit 231 bushels and fifty pounds of corn, while Van Houten had husked in the same period 230 bushels and thirty pounds. But if reports are correct these performances were put in the shade by Claude Wilson of Silver City, in Fremont county, who, without a pacemaker, husked 251 bushels and thirty-nine pounds of corn in ten hours, all ears thrown over the wagon being picked up and the corn being as free from husks as average corn. When one takes into account that seventy-five or eighty bushels is considered a very good day's work it can be the better appreciated what the above records mean.

ANOTHER SERVICE.

Birds, the little friends to which mankind is already heavily in debt for song and destruction of insect pests, are being put to a new and interesting use which it is believed will still further safeguard human life. Experiments which have been conducted by the federal department of mines show that birds, especially the canary, will droop or succumb almost immediately when introduced into a mine in which foul gases have been produced as the result of an explosion, while a healthy man may not feel the effects of the foul air for about eight minutes. The birds are to be used by those engaged in rescue work in mines, the birds being kept in cages and watched closely. If the birds are noticed drooping the rescuers take warning and either retrace their steps or put on their oxygen helmets.

HOME CURED BACON.

Those who relish home cured bacon will be interested in the following recipe: After the butchering all of the animal heat should be allowed to get out of the meat, and for best results it should not be allowed to freeze. Each piece to be cured should be rubbed with salt and allowed to drain overnight. All should then be packed in a clean barrel or large stone jar, the thicker pieces at the bottom. For each 100 pounds of meat there should be weighed out eight pounds of salt, two pounds of sugar and one ounce of saltpeter. This should be dissolved in four gallons of water and poured over the meat cold. The meat should then be weighted with a stone to keep it under the brine. In from five to seven weeks, depending upon the size of the pieces, the meat may be hung up and smoked.

COSTLY CARELESSNESS.

In the raising of hogs all too often the value of an excellent ration is largely or entirely offset by improper quarters. Especially is this true as regards the winter care of brood sows. A farmer with whom the writer was talking the other day in speaking of his past season's operations mentioned losing practically all his little pigs last spring, and in discussing this loss it developed that the trouble was not due to feeding the sows an improperly balanced (largely corn) ration, but to the fact that the shelter provided for the sows left them exposed to the dampness and cold, caused them to pile up, and dead little pigs were the result.

THISTLE EXPERT WANTED.

Directors of the Kansas experiment station are looking for some one to establish a thistle scholarship—that is, an endowment sufficient to pay the expenses of a student who shall devote a good share of his time to a study of the Russian thistle and, if possible, breed the spines off the plant.

VOL XXIX THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN., THURSDAY, JANUDRY 4. 1912 NUMBER 1

DISPOSES OF MUCH LAND

Records of Auditor's Office Show 156,171 Acres Belonging to Schools Were Sold.

Number of Homesteaders on Government Tracts 2,673, an Increase of 619.

An increased activity in Minnesota real estate in the year just closing is shown by figures compiled by Fred D. Sherman, in charge of the state immigration bureau since the death of George Welsh, the commissioner.

From the records of the state auditor's office it is found that in the calendar year of 1911 156,171 acres of state school lands were sold, against 70,242 in 1910, showing a gain of 85,929 acres over the previous year. Of the lands sold in 1911 33,830 acres were sold to 185 different persons coming from other states, which averaged 183 acres to each. The average price in 1911 was about $6.77, against $6 20 in 1910, a gain of 57 cents an acre. The above does not include cash paid for timber.

"Records on file at the three United States land offices located in this state show what has been accomplished in securing homesteaders," Mr. Sherman says. "At the Crookston land office in 1911 1,203 persons filed on homesteads, against 707 in 1910, a gain of 496 over the previous year. At Cass Lake 816 filed in 1911, against 750 in 1910, a gain of 66. And at Duluth 654 filed in 1911, against 597 in 1910, a gain of 57, or a total gain in all offices of 619 over the previous year."

Mr. Sherman also made an effort to obtain a record of the number of cars of immigrant movables which came into Minnesota in 1911, and from what reports he was able to gather a very conservative estimate places the figures at more than 2,500 cars, or a gain of 25 per cent over last year.

Speaking of the work of the immigration department, Mr. Sherman said: "During the year of 1911 more than 25,000 letters making inquiries about Minnesota have been received at this office. These letters came principally from Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Wisconsin, Ohio and Pennsylvania, although letters have been received from every state in the union and Canada. To every inquiry a personal letter has been directed and followed with literature, maps, etc., descriptive of the state. We estimate that more than 2,500 have called personally at this office during the year.

"Small display ads have been carried in more than sixty magazines and daily papers in foreign states during the year, which accounts for the active correspondence.

"An advertising car carrying an exhibit of the state's agricultural and manufactured products was kept on the road by this department during January, February and March. This car visited seventy-seven cities and villages in Illinois and twenty-one in Iowa. The attendance was approximately 1,100 persons per day. A similar car was sent out with the recent "governor's special" which was visited by thousands of people in the eastern cities. An exhibit was maintained at the Minnesota State fair. At the Northwestern Land Products show in St. Paul, December 12 to 23, the Minnesota exhibit won the first prize trophy for the most comprehensive display."—Ex.

TO INVESTIGATE

Government Engineers Will Look Over Condition of Red Lake River in Near Future.

A dispatch from Washington gives out the following news. It is to the effect that in the near future a government engineer will look over the condition of the Red Lake river:

Assurances were received by Representative Steenerson today that those interested will be heard by government engineers at Thief River Falls, Minn., at a date to be named later, in the matter of the requests of citizens of Thief River Falls, Crookston, Fisher, East Grand Forks and other cities of Minnesota and Grand Forks, N. D, that steps be taken by the government to remove the log jam in the Red Lake River at or near the outlet of Red Lake, Minnesota.

The determination of the war department to order a hearing in this case followed the presentation of a petition signed by senators Nelson, Clapp and McCumber and Representatives Steenerson and Hanna. They pointed out, in substance, that the contention of the department that it could take no action looking to the removal of the log jam in the Red Lake river because it has no jurisdiction is not tenable, and they insisted that an investigation would demonstrate that navigation as well as the water supply of various towns is affected and that the situation is one to which the government may properly give its attention.

The indications are that an engineer will be sent to the scene of the trouble, following a hearing of the case at Thief River Falls.

A BAD EXPLOSION

Fire Department Called Out Last Friday Morning; Fire Supposed to Have Been at Evelyn Hotel.

Explosion Breaks Three Large Plate Glass Windows—No Other Damage Done.

At 7:30 Friday morning the fire department was called out to extinguish a small blaze at the Evelyn Hotel which was caused by the explosion of a small "water heater" stove. When the department arrived on the scene the fire had been put out. The damage done to the building was very small.

The manner in which the explosion was brought about was very simple. The stove heats the water which is used for different purposes in the kitchen. Pipes run from the stove in the basement to the kitchen; thence back to the stove, the hot water rising and the cold water falling. Some time during the night the pipes where frozen and when the fire was built in the morning the hot water could not rise and consequently an explosion was caused which blew the stove all to pieces.

The shock of the explosion was felt for a number of blocks in the city, patrons of the hotel rushing from the building. There were a few traveling men eating breakfast in the hotel and when the explosion occurred every table in the dining room raised a foot or more from the floor. Directly over the stove on the first floor was a sideboard which had a large number of wine glasses on it, not one of which was disturbed a particle. A castor was broken off the piano from the shock, also two large plate glass windows in the dining room and one in the office were broken.

Men were immediately put to work putting in windows and making the necessary repairs. The total loss was not very great and it is expected that in a short time the glass will be replaced.

The firemen reported to the call very promptly and would have been ready had a bad fire broken out. Mr. Provencher is pleased to know that the damage done was small and very glad that it was not worse.

NEW COUNCIL MEETS

Center of Attraction Tuesday Evening Was Meeting of New Council; Council Chamber Filled.

Arthur Tanem Elected President of City Fathers; E. O. Erickson Appointed Chief of Police.

The new city council held its first regular meeting at the council chambers in the Auditorium Tuesday evening before a large crowd of very enthusiastic citizens, who were all very anxious to know the various appointments.

The meeting was called to order at 8:30 by Arthur Tanem who was appointed as temporary chairman of the meeting. The first in order was the balloting for president of the city council which resulted in the election of Arthur Tanem. Vice-president was the next to be balloted on, Fred Roth, of the city bakery, being honored with the appointment. There were two candidates for city clerk, N. J. Anderson our present clerk, who is the right man for the office, and W. H. Quist who has been acting as a mail carrier. The votes resulted: N. J. Anderson, 2; W. H. Quist, 4.

Our present city attorney, Mr. Ira C. Richardson, was re elected. His past work in city affairs has no doubt shown him well worthy of the office which he holds. Mayor Lars Backe arrived shortly after the meeting had been called to order and handed in the appointments for the city police force, his choice being: Chief, E. O. Erickson, who a few years ago was chief of the local police; Patrolman, Rudolph Warner, who has been driving the Langseth Merc. Co.'s delivery wagon for the past year or two; Captain, James Farr, who has been acting as a member of the police force for a number of years. Each one of the mayor's appointments had to be confirmed by the council. Mr. Erickson and Mr. Warner went through O. K., but the council did not confirm the appointment of James Farr as Captain. Mr. Farr has been one of the ablest police the city of Thief River Falls has ever had and there is no reason why the council should not confirm him.

Bonds were fixed for the city clerk at $1,000 and for the city treasurer at $16,000. The mayor, shortly after handing in his appointments, excused himself and left the council room, immediately after which the motion was made to adjourn until Tuesday, January 9, 1912.

BADLY IN NEED

Thief River Falls in Need of a First Class Hospital. Talk of Getting up Home Talent Play.

Considerable enthusiasm should be aroused when it comes to a hospital benefit. Thief River Falls is plenty large to support a good hospital and has been for four or five years. It is suggested that a home talent play be given, there being plenty of young people who would no doubt be willing to take part in a play for this purpose, and with the assistance of an able director and considerable practice it would be the greatest hit of the season. Every seat in the Auditorium should be sold for an average price of $1.00 and the house should be filled.

The railroad organizations will assist in getting this great need started and it is further stated that the firemen, engineers and trainmen each will furnish and equip a room in the hospital, and no doubt the local lodges will do their share towards the need. The public should take great interest in this, as there are people who go to the Crookston, Warren and St. Vincent hospitals every day, where if a good hospital were built here not a case would go out of the city. Let us all get busy; now is the time. Start the new year right.

We are now running our planing mill, replenishing our retail stock, and will be able, as usual, to furnish our customers with all items of lumber. We also handle Lime, Cement, Plaster, Sash and Doors, and other mill work. Thief River Falls Lumber Co.

What the Ontario Recorder of California Says About the Midland Jubilee Singers.

This is one of the many endorsements which the Midland Jubilee Singers receive when they have appeared.

"The entertainment given by the Midland Jubilee Singers Thursday evening, under the auspices of the Whyte Boys, was one of the best ever given in Ontario. The colored folk charmed the large audience, and every number that was given was heartily applauded. W. A. Hann, the manager and bass soloist, was the life of the entertainment, with his funny jokes and fervent "hallelujah." The company consisted of seven very highly cultured musicians, each of them possessing a voice of extraordinary quality. The Whyte Boys are to be congratulated for obtaining such a high class entertainment for Ontario, and the Jubilee Singers will receive a warm welcome should they return again."—Ex.

MIKE DAVIS IS IN PRISON

Yegg, Wanted for Attempted Robbery of Puposky, Minn., Postoffice Sentenced for Another Crime.

Caught by Couple Village Marshals for Burglarizing Store After Evading Many Famous Detectives.

The following no doubt will be of local interest. Taken from an exchange dated December 29th:

"Mike Davis, the notorious yegg, who escaped the raid of Pinkertons and state deputies when an attempt was made June 17 last to rob and burn the postoffice and general store at Puposky, Minn., was captured December 13th at Durand, Mich., following the robbery three days previously of a postoffice and general store at Gaines, Mich. He was convicted along with a pal named Howard, and is now serving an indeterminate sentence of seven and a half to fifteen years in the Michigan branch state prison at Marquette. Information to this effect was made public Thursday by the St. Paul office of the Pinkerton National Detective agency.

It was in connection with alleged complicity in the Puposky affair that Mayor D. T. Dumas of Cass Lake, Minn., was arrested and convicted later at a trial in Bemidji, information against him having been filed by C. E. Keller, state fire marshal, who alleged he was one of a ring in Northern Minnesota which had been engaged in the burglarizing of stores, etc., and the burning of property to obtain the insurance."—Ex.

DOES AN AD DO JUSTICE?

Many People Think That Advertising in Local Newspapers is Waste of Money.

Space in Local Paper Tells People What You Have to Sell and How Cheap You Can Sell It.

The idea of a great many people in small towns is that if a man has an ad in a home paper it is a waste of money. This, dear readers, is not so; advertising is an investment. Of course, you do not always get immediate results, but they come in time. By reason of our experience in the newspaper business we can furnish names of people who have 30 inches or ¼ of a page of space in newspapers each week and solemnly swear that it gets them business.

Why are the mail order houses so anxious to get space in the country newspapers? They are more than glad to get the space at our regular rate, but if we should accept their ad what would the local merchants say? They would not approve of it in the least. The fact is, the newspaper business in the small towns is a sadly neglected proposition; the publisher stands ever ready to boost every business enterprise that comes to his town and for this gets very little in return.

There is no local merchant who would refuse business from an outside town, although this is what is expected of the newspaper.

This is the time of the year when the mail order houses "catch their suckers." They are sending out thousands of pounds of advertising literature in the form of catalogues, pamphlets and circular letters. Do you think that they would continue with this expenditure if they did not get results? They do get results from advertising. Their goods are of a very poor quality and are sold at a very low price. Your home merchant is here 365 days a year and is always ready to back up the quality of the goods he has to sell, while, if you send in an order to a mail order house you do not have the opportunity to first look over the goods; all you have to regard to the quality of their goods is what is in print in their catalogues, and it is not reliable. Don't be a mail order "sucker"! Buy from the home merchant!

Arthur Donaldson, Swedish-American Opera Singer, Makes His Debut in Stockholm—Norwegian Wireless System Extended to Far Northern Parts. Change of Russian Premiers Has Not Modified Policy in Finland.

SWEDEN.

Arthur Donaldson, the Swedish-American opera singer, made his debut at the Oscars' theater on the evening of Nov. 24 in a play entitled, "The Great Genius." Mr. Donaldson has been receiving a great deal of free advertising since his arrival in Stockholm, simply because the Stockholm theater going public is curious to know how a Swedish-American would appear in a real Swedish play. The papers treated Mr. Donaldson better before his appearance than afterwards and no doubt the criticisms entered against him were backed up by considerable prejudice. However that may be, Stockholm papers also state that the play is drawing a full house every night and that speaks rather well for Mr. Donaldson, who is the leading man in the play.

We note from a recent report that the traffic on the car ferries between Trelleborg, Sweden, and Sassnitz, Germany, is increasing at a most gratifying rate; indeed there was a certain day not long ago when there were 117 freight cars at Sassnitz which were waiting for the first chance to move over the Swedish boundary. These ferries have wireless telegraph connections and are operated from every viewpoint in a businesslike manner. In the month of September, for instance, there were not less than 9,000 passengers carried over these ferries, coming to and from the two countries, Sweden and Germany.

Just as was predicted in these columns about two years ago the unexpected has happened in Japan. Japanese matches are now crowding out the Swedish product in China. Still enterprising Swedish match manufactures are going to try and meet the competition by erecting a large match factory in China as was reported in last week's letter. The trouble started some years ago when some Japanese travelers came to Sweden and asked to look over Swedish match factories. So cleverly did they observe and study the Swedish match industry that they went back to their own country and taught their countrymen how to make matches.

Judging from the activity of Premier Staaf there will be some very effective anti-liquor legislation forthcoming in the near future. The new cabinet seems to be very much in earnest anent anti-liquor agitation and the committee which is to report on this matter to the riksdag appears to be overwhelmingly opposed to the liquor traffic. Premier Staaf is very much in favor of local option, but he also points out that there are large numbers of Swedish citizens who are in favor of actual prohibition. Anyway the question will come up in some form or other at the next session of the riksdag.

The railway department proposes a reduction of the freight rates for hay. It is explained that the old rates were based on the assumption that hay would always be carried unbaled. In a comparatively short time, however, it has become customary to bale the hay for shipping, and in that shape it takes up less than half as much room as when loose. It is thought that a reduction of 25 per cent on hay and straw would be fair.

Norway and Sweden, through their diplomatic representatives, have requested the United States government to grant them, under the favored nations clause of their treaties, the same privileges given Canada by section 2 of the reciprocity agreement, by which wood pulp and print paper are admitted free of duty to the United States. Several other countries, including Germany, it is believed, have asked the same privilege from the United States. These requests place formally before the state department the question whether wood pulp and print paper can be admitted free from other countries than Canada under the favored nation clauses in the existing treaties between the United States and those countries. Officers of the state department are in consultation on the subject with the officers of the customs service of the treasury department and a final decision will not be made until these conferences have been concluded. Under section 2 of the Canadian reciprocity agreement print paper and wood pulp were given free entry to the United States. This section of the bill became effective on July 1, independent of the passage of the law of congress, and its operation was not depending upon ratification of the reciprocity agreement by Canada.

Norway's population on Dec. 1, 1910, was 2,391,782. This shows that there were 80,000 more women than men. The population in the cities was 1,702,554, of which there were 20,000 more women than men. In the towns there were 689,228 persons, of whom there were 60,000 more women than men, all of which proves that there are lots more women in the country than men. The rule holds good not only in the cities, towns and villages, but also in the country districts. Wireless telegraph stations have been erected at Green Harbor, Ingo and Spitzbergen. The first wireless telegram from these points came to Christiania from Spitzbergen station recently and read as follows: "The connection Spitzbergen-Ingo was completed at 1:30 this morning (Nov. 28). It promises to be a good connection. Experiments will be continued. The line can be opened to the public at any time. Propose Dec. 1. All hands are well and it is splendid to stay here; cold and dark, but cozy. All machines and apparatus work satisfactorily. I have the honor on account of the crew to congratulate you with the successful completion. Greetings.—Peterson." The dispatch was addressed to Thomas Heftye, general director of Norwegian telegraphs and telephones. Mr. Heftye, who is an aggressive man, lieutenant colonel in the army and twice minister of war, originated the idea of building a wireless station at Spitzbergen about a year ago, and his proposal was immediately accepted by the storthing, which appropriated the necessary funds for erecting stations at Green Harbor, Spitzbergen and at Ingo, Norway, a small island north of Hammerfest. This telegraph line is probably one of the first in the entire world which has been erected without any hope of direct profit, for the population of Spitzbergen will probably never reach 500. Meanwhile the station will reach over a great part of the Arctic ocean, with a radius of 2,000 miles, and any Arctic expedition which will be frozen in within this radius will be able to get news from the outside world if they have a wireless apparatus along. The radius of action takes in most of the Siberian coast, Franz Josef Land, Norway as far south as Bergen, and Greenland over to its western boundary. For those workmen and trappers who stay in Spitzbergen, including the American Coal company's hands at Green Harbor, it will mean to be in steady touch with civilization and the sphere of influence of Norway will in this way be extended to this group of valuable islands, which up to the present time have been no man's land.

PASTOR RUSSELL AT THE CHINESE PARIS

No Burning Hell For Heathen Mentioned in the Bible.

Rightly Understood the Bible's Message Is One of Great Joy For All People—Tells That He Himself Was Once on Life's Sea Without Chart or Compass.

PASTOR RUSSELL

Shanghai, China, Jan. 7th.—The Committee of Foreign Missions Investigation seemed pleased with its reception here. Special honors were accorded General Hall and Pastor Russell, the former because of his official position as second in command of the United States Army, the latter as the Chairman of the Committee. We report Pastor Russell's discourse:—

Pastor Russell greatly enjoyed his visit to the Chinese Paris. It was an experience he had longed for from childhood. Early in life he had inquired respecting the fate of the heathen and had received the answer that "without faith it is impossible to please God," and that "there is none other Name given under heaven whereby we must be saved" than the name of Jesus, and through faith in His blood. He then inquired the fate of the unsaved, and got the answer of all "orthodox creeds," that such would be consigned for all eternity to a place where they would suffer indescribable tortures.

Supposing that the Bible was the foundation of these creeds he abandoned the Bible, and for nearly two years was on the sea of life without chart or compass, seeking after a true God not less noble and loving and just than the very best of His human creatures.

Feeling sure that a wise, just, loving God, having made man with mental capacity to appreciate Himself, would make a revelation of His character and His purposes, he sought for a book containing such a revelation of the Divine will as his heart and head could accept. Having abandoned the Bible, he sought the teachings of other sacred books of the world, only to find them still more disappointing.

Hungry of soul, he returned to the Bible, thinking possibly he had studied it before through the distorted spectacles of human creeds. His fresh investigations brought a blessing! Nowhere had he found so glorious a representation of the true, Divine character as in Jesus and His teachings! Truly, he said, "Never man spake like this man!"—Finally he saw the great difficulty which had blinded himself and others to the Divine love and gracious plan of the Bible.

The Resurrection of the Dead.

This discovery was that the penalty for sin is not everlasting torture after death, and that the Bible does not so teach. It declares, "The wages of sin is death;" "The soul that sinneth, it shall die." (Romans vi, 23; Ezekiel xviii, 20.) He perceived that for six thousand years the world has been suffering the very penalty which God declared to Adam, "Thou shalt surely die"; "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, until thou return to the ground from whence thou wast taken."

He sought the Bible remedy for all this and found that no remedy could be applied only as the Divine sentence should be settled for Adam by a substitute—that then only could the curse be removed. In full harmony with all this came the Scriptural presentation that the Only Begotten Son of God had left His spiritual plane of glory and become a Man, that "He by the grace of God should taste death for every man"; "Christ died for our sins, according to the Scriptures, and rose again for our justification."

Pursuing this Bible study he soon found that the hope of humanity centers in the resurrection of the dead: "As by a man came death, by a Man also comes the resurrection of the dead; for as all in Adam die, even so all in Christ shall be made alive—every man in his own order," or rank. (I Corinthians xv, 21, 22.)

Two Very Different Salvations.

The Pastor was glad as he thought of the hundreds of millions of patient Chinese who will have a share in the great redemption secured by the death of Jesus, and not only so, but their ancestors, thousands of millions, will also have a share, for "Jesus Christ by the grace of God tasted death for every man." "He is a propitiation [satisfaction] for our sins [the Church's sins], and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole world." Here are the two different salvations secured through the death of Jesus. Only one of these has yet been made effective—"ours"—not the world's. Ours is to be the First Resurrection, the world's is to be a subsequent one.

The elect Church, of which Jesus is the Head, and his saintly followers the members, will reign for a thousand years, overthrowing sin and death, breaking the shackles of ignorance and superstition, uplifting humanity out of sin and degradation to full human perfection. The earth is to be man's Paradise, which will reach perfection by the close of Messiah's reign. All who then reject this light will be destroyed in the Second Death.

GREAT ECONOMIC CHANGES

"White Coal" Working Wonders in Industrial Progress in Sweden—Bill to Abolish Tax Paying Qualification for Women Voters May Pass Next Year in Norway — Denmark Observes Christmas Holiday in a Charming Manner.

SWEDEN.

Says an editorial writer in the Minneapolis Journal regarding "white coal" in Sweden:

"White coal" has already made some great economic changes in the world and it is apparently destined to work still greater ones. The perfection of methods of turning water power into electricity, which may be set to work at points long distant from the origin of the power, has endowed regions where water power is abundant with hitherto unsuspected wealth. Sweden and Norway have made wonderful forward strides in manufacturing in the last half dozen years and "white coal" is responsible for their progress. The Scandinavian peninsula, with its great snow covered mountain ranges and its abundant supplies of water coursing down to the sea by innumerable waterways, is potentially very rich in its water powers.

A recent consular report reveals something of the progress made in Sweden. Rich in minerals and timber Sweden has hitherto been handicapped in manufacturing by the lack of coal deposits. Yet Swedish iron and copper once dominated the world's markets. Much of the timber, which was once turned into charcoal to make possible Sweden's output of fine iron, is now turned into cellulose, the basis of various chemical industries.

The water power of the kingdom is estimated at 4,000,000 horsepower and only about a ninth of this has thus far been harnessed for industrial purposes. Each year a hundred thousand horses are added to the team that is dragging Sweden forward. And this is changing Sweden from a producer of raw materials to a manufacturing country where the processes of modern industrialism are brought to a fine state of efficiency.

One particularly interesting manufacturing development reacts beneficially on agriculture. That is the production of fertilizers. Since half of Sweden's population is engaged in tilling the soil by the most highly developed and intensive methods the demand for artificial fertilizers is active. The annual product amounts to about a million and a half dollars and as yet supplies but half of the home demand. The byproducts of the iron mills—slag rich in apatite, and phosphoric acid from the ores—are utilized, and the fish packing houses furnish herring guano and the like.

With the wealth of its forests and mines and waterways being thus developed, and with agriculture keeping pace, it is not surprising to find that Sweden's material condition has greatly improved in the last few years. The effects of the great general strike of August and September, 1909, when a total of 11,660,000 working days were lost, are wearing off. The extension of the suffrage has opened the way for a complete democratizing of the government, though the process, being peaceful, is necessarily slow. The government finances, too, are in better condition than for some years.

The Mormons are slow to give up their campaign for proselytes among the Scandinavian people both in Sweden, Norway and Denmark. Many Swedish Lutherans are familiar with the fact that Rev. P. Asley, who is connected with the Augustana synod, is now in Sweden, his mission being to present Mormonism in its true color. Rev. Asley has lived in Utah for many years and he proposes now to go to Sweden and tell the truth about the Mormon church as it operates particularly in Utah. His work is already proving very effectual. The Augustana tells us of a recent meeting at which Mormon missionaries attempted to contradict him. They were so persistent that the janitor was compelled to order them out. On the following evening Rev. Asley delivered his address in another church, the Mormons again being present and again taking exception to his address. On this occasion the lights were extinguished and Rev. Frodeen, pastor of the congregation, kindly asked them to leave before the police would be requested to take charge of them.

The Mission Friends have conducted successful work in Turkestan and it is proposed now to publish a New Testament in that particular language.

A horse is often given a tonic to improve its condition when what is needed vastly more is to have the teeth filed so that the food can be properly masticated.

Corncobs not only make first class kindling material, but at $1.05 for a triple wagon box full compare favorably in fuel value with coal at $5 a ton or wood at $6 per cord.

England is smaller than many of our own states, yet the past year she produced 61,057,568 bushels of wheat, which was an increase of 10 per cent over the yield of the year preceding.

During the winter months, when eggs are not needed for hatching purposes, the roosters are best kept by themselves. Hens will not only lay more eggs but the eggs will keep longer if the hens are kept by themselves.

While hogs will eat corn silage with indifferent relish, experiments which have been made in feeding it do not indicate that it is advisable to substitute it for any of the standard feeds that are commonly used in a ration for hogs.

In homes where electric lights are not a possibility and where it is necessary to keep a light burning at night a candle is preferable to a smoky kerosene lamp, which when turned low will smell a room up and spoil the air in a short time.

According to the annual report issued a short time ago by Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, Egyptian cotton is now grown with entire success in southern California, while the finest dates from the Sahara desert thrive in several of the southwestern states.

What is said to be the largest measured yield of potatoes for any considerable area was secured the past season by a grower at Montrose, Colo., who secured an average yield of 621 bushels per acre. About $12,000 was realized for the crop, the price received being $1.50 per hundredweight.

The pen of White Leghorns belonging to an Englishman, Thomas Barron, still heads by a good margin in the international egg laying contest which is being conducted at the Storrs Agricultural college in Connecticut. Two New Jersey breeders hold second and third places, while an Illinois breeder comes fourth.

It is estimated that in the state of Pennsylvania alone the damage to the chestnut growing interest as a result of the chestnut blight has up to the present time amounted to $15,000,000. The state legislature recently appropriated $275,000 with which to fight the pest, and at present some fifty specialists are engaged in a campaign to check its spread.

A deceptive as well as treacherous feature of bovine tuberculosis that those striving to combat it encounter is that the presence of the disease is not indicated by outward physical emaciation. Instances are on record not a few where dairy cows have had the disease from three to five years, yet have in a general way maintained a plump and sleek looking condition.

A Canadian business man of prominence ran down and killed a pedestrian not long ago as a result of careless and too rapid driving. This man was arrested, tried and convicted of manslaughter and sentenced to life imprisonment. It is a stiff dose, but he got what he deserved. If a few speed mad autoists were given the same medicine in the United States the slaughter of innocent people would be greatly reduced.

In the vicinity of Hutchinson, Kan., they are having some great times killing jack rabbits. It is estimated that since the carnage began in the fall 50,000 jack rabbits have been shipped from the territory within a radius of forty or fifty miles of Hutchinson. They kill 'em for fun, to eat, to raise money for the benefit of the churches, and 600 or 700 jacks a day is said to be no unusual bag for four or five good shots. The jacks fetch from 5 to 10 cents apiece and are shipped by the carload to eastern markets, where they are worked up into spring chicken, mutton stew and served plain as roast jack rabbit.

The record price for the sale of real estate was established the other day in New York city when a parcel of land at the corner of Broadway and Thirty fourth street, containing 1,154 square feet of soil, sold for $1,000,000. This was at the rate of $866.55 per square foot.

It is an interesting fact in connection with the habits of domestic animals that horses and sheep will paw through snow to get at the grass beneath, but that cows will not do so. Another is that in case of a storm sheep will go into the teeth of the wind, while cattle will turn tail and run with it.

Athletic Club Assembly.

A meeting of those interested in the formation of the new athletic club will be held Friday night at 8:30 p. m. in the Auditorium gymnasium.

An organization of this kind is sadly needed in this city and now that a fair start has been made, it behooves every man in town, young or old, to turn out and help complete the establishment of the club. The purpose of the organization is to equip the Auditorium gymnasium and to afford a first class place for recreation and exercise. It is to be a public institution, open to any desirable citizen who cares to join, and not a private affair controlled by an exclusive few.

It is especially desired that a goodly number of the prominent business men of the city will become actively interested in the promotion of the club and turn out Friday night to help it along.

A committee consisting of Wm. Smith, chairman, F. C. Nicisi, R. J. Jordan, G. W. Booren, J. G. Turnbaugh and Hans Angell has been diligently at work figuring out and formulating plans for the organization.

At the meeting Friday night a membership campaign will be started and it is hoped the efforts of the committee will be rewarded by a hearty response to its plea for members.

The small fee of $1.00 has been decided upon as a fair compensation for the privilege of becoming a member of the club. Until the organization is successfully launched, it may be necessary each month to assess each member a paltry fee, probably not to exceed a few cents.

Let's get together! Let's attend the meeting and join the Athletic Club, Friday night at 8:30 in the Auditorium Gymnasium.

BEER IS THE NATION'S BEVERAGE

And WHITE SEAL BEER is among the finest made. This country has not yet reached the amount of beer consumption per capita that is recorded by several foreign nations, but every year shows an increase, and it is a sign of good taste and judgment. The beer brewed here is lighter, however, than most foreign beers, the demand being for an extremely mild brew, with alcoholic strength reduced to the minimum.

Good beer is a good drink any time and, when taken with meals, adds zest to the appetite and quickens the digestion. The aromatic properties of the hops are appetizing and the malt is nourishing.

COMPLIMENTARY TO THE JAPANESE

Possess Traits That Are a Worthy Example.

Pastor Russell Compliments Japs For Gentleness and Kind Demeanor, and Wishes He Could Do the Same For Christendom—Discourse on the Importance of the Will and a Proper Choice at the Beginning of the Year.

PASTOR RUSSELL

Tokio, Japan, December 31st.—The International Bible Students Committee of seven, for the investigation of Foreign Missions, is here. Pastor Russell, the Chairman of the Committee, gave two public addresses in one of our principal auditoriums, the Y. M. C. A. He had large audiences and keenest attention. His text was from Joshua xxiv, 15. "Choose ye this day whom ye will serve." He said:

In our day the human will, although still ambitious and avaricious, has taken a higher plane for its exercise than in the days of Alexander the Great and Napoleon. It is rather employed in the conquering of mountains and valleys, in the casting up of highways and piercing of tunnels; in the erection of bridges and the masterpieces of mechanical enginery which traverse the land and the sea with almost incredible speed.

The Will's Greatest Achievement.

But, said the Pastor, the most wonderful achievement of the will is seen in self-control. The Scriptures say truly, "Greater is he that ruleth his own will than he that captures a city." (Proverbs xvi, 32.) The most wonderful illustrations of the will thus exercised he believes are to be found in the case of Jesus and His footstep followers. By the exercise of His will Jesus surrendered His glorious condition for the human estate and then delivered up Himself, as the Man Christ Jesus, to the doing of the Divine will, even unto death, that thus "by the grace of God He might taste death for every man." (Hebrews ii, 9.) The motive behind that strong will was not selfishness, but love.

Compliments the Japanese.

When I note the gentleness and kindness and courtesy of Japanese life in general, I am astonished and wonder little that the ordinary Christian message has not appealed more to your hearts and displaced Shinto worship, for which I understand you have two hundred thousand figures, temples. Sympathetically putting myself in the place of the Japanese, I fancy you saying, Shall we exchange our simple, esthetic gentleness and kindness of spirit for the rudeness and sometimes swagger of the soldiers and sailors, and the domineering headiness of the upper classes who come to us?

Sympathetically, again I hear you say, The missionaries who have expounded Christianity to us for years have told us that our parents and ancestors whom we reverently worship are despised by your Christian God, and are damned to an eternity of torture because they did not know Jesus and become His followers. They tell us, additionally, that we also are bound for that place of eternal horror and torture unless we repudiate the religion of our birth which has made us so happy and contented. Can you wonder that we resent such teaching; that we merely tolerate it to avoid war; that we prefer Buddhism and Shintoism, and that our Shinto temples increase the more rapidly because of antagonism to Christianity?

Heathen Ancestry Not Roasting.

Alas, my dear hearers, Christianity, with very precious truths at its foundation, seriously lost its way long centuries ago and wandered far from the inspired teachings of the Bible. This is the explanation of the numerous sects and parties of Christendom and the different doctrines, none of which I am here to defend—either from the standpoint of reason or the Bible.

The Bible does not teach, as once you supposed, that eternal torment is the penalty for our first parents' disobedience in the eating of the forbidden fruit. On the contrary, it teaches that "the wages of sin is death," and that this death wage has been the experience of our entire race for now six thousand years. It teaches that in God's due time this curse or sentence of death will be lifted and that sorrow and sighing shall flee away.

It teaches that the whole earth shall become Paradise Restored—world-wide, and that those who, when fully informed, shall prefer sin, will be utterly, completely and everlastingly destroyed, in the "Second Death."

So then, my friends, if from Shintoism you have learned to be esthetic in your tastes, kind and gentle in your manner and loyal—these lessons learned will be to you a great advantage in that future time of blessing under Messiah's Kingdom. On the other hand, whoever has cultivated a contrary spirit will be correspondingly depraved and will correspondingly have the more and severer lessons to learn. Take heart then today from the assurance of the good time coming, and that every grace of character that has been acquired by you, either through Shintoism or otherwise, is not lost, but should be maintained.

That type of farming is to be strongly recommended—and this applies with especial force in all sections where the soil has been robbed for years past—where the maximum amount of home-made manures are produced and utilized on each farm. It is for this reason that dairying and the raising and selling of cattle, hogs and sheep have so much to commend them as types of agriculture.

Professor Dyche, fish and game warden of Missouri, recommends shooting roman candles into the trees where blackbirds are wont to roost as an effective means of driving them away. The job is most effectively done just as they are gathering to roost and before it gets dark. He states that this roman candle stunt, repeated about three nights in succession, will drive the birds away for good.

The rabbits that have made their homes on the islands along the Mississippi river during the past two years have been having a rough time of it since the rainy weather set in in the upper watershed of the big valley. Owing to the low stage of water the rabbits occupied these islands and multiplied there prodigiously unmolested. The high water drove them to the highest points of the many islands, where they have been killed or drowned by thousands.

Serving His Country.

A certain public office has been the object of much satire because of the passive nature of the incumbent's duties—except when he is called by tragic occurrence into the thick of action. So very negative, indeed, is the work of this public servant that he sometimes serves his country most efficiently by being absent, as appears in this extract from Moses Coit Tyler's journal, written in Washington years ago:

"President Grant never starts a conversation, but when it is started he often says a neat thing. Last year there was an excursion down the Potomac. He was on board, with his cabinet and a quorum of both houses.

"'Mr. President,' said Mrs. Judd who sat near him, 'it would be a pretty bad thing to have a great accident happen to this party. Nearly the whole government would be destroyed.'

"'Yes, Mrs. Judd,' assented the president, 'but you observe that the vice president has very prudently stayed at home.'"

Talking Canaries.

Talking canaries are a great rarity but several authenticated instances are on record. At Norwood, England, in 1858 a lady had a canary bird which began by repeating a word which its mistress had often used to it—"Kissie kissie"—and by following the word up by an imitation of the sound of a kiss. After a time the bird repeated other words until it had a large vocabulary of phrases, one of which consisted of five words. Again, in 1863, a talking canary was exhibited in Bath, with a vocabulary such as is generally taught to parrots, and another talking canary was exhibited for a few weeks in this country, but it unfortunately caught cold and died. In Germany and the Tyrol canaries are taught to imitate the notes of other birds and whistle simple tunes, and the words which it imitates may be regarded as a mere development or variant of its musical notes.

The Lerot and the Snake.

Every one has heard of the remarkable combats of the Indian mongoose with venomous snakes, in which little rikki-tikki-tavi comes off victor. The fact that the mongoose invariably survives has led to the suggestion that it is immune to snake poison. Other animals said to be immune are the pig and the hedgehog. The experiments of British naturalists show that an animal of the dormouse family must be added to the list of the immune. This animal is known as the lerot and is said to fight fiercely with vipers. Large doses of viper's poison were injected into one lerot, from which injection no ill effects followed. On one occasion a lerot was bitten badly in the eye by a viper, and no signs of poisoning occurred. There can, it is thought, be no doubt that the lerot is immune to snake poison.

Gold Beaters' Skin.

A cheap substitute is much desired for goldbeaters' skin, which is prepared from the outside membrane of the large intestine of the ox. It is said that goldbeaters first tried paper for inclosing the metal, and mulberry fiber paper is still used in China and Japan, but animal parchment has been mostly employed for two or three centuries at least. While a thinner leaf can be beaten out between paper parchment sheets, it is damaged by adhesion. A special German paper is coated with isinglass or albumen, and paper parchment of some kind is much used in the first stages, but goldbeaters finish their product between goldbeaters' skins, still pounding an ounce of gold into 200 square inches of leaf.—New York Tribune.

FARM ORCHARD AND GARDEN BY F. E. TRIGG CENTRAL POINT ROGUE RIVER VALLEY OREGON CORRESPONDENCE SOLICITED

[This matter must not be reprinted without special permission.]

The stains that gather so quickly on the inside of the coffeepot may be easily removed by boiling in it a fairly strong solution of baking soda. If one treatment doesn't do the business, repeat.

One of the latest baits recommended for catching wall eyed pike is strips of orange peeling. It seems to be the bright color of the bait rather than any value it possesses for food that attracts the fish.

The Northwestern Greening is a late and none too prolific bearer, rots quickly if bruised and has none too good a texture, but it has when full ripe a twang and spiciness that are surpassed by not more than two or three other varieties.

A fellow's real patriotism—interest in the welfare of his community and country—is not measured by his fine buildings, bursting cribs and mows and sleek animals, but by the pains he takes to inform himself of the important issues of his time and to cast his vote on election day.

The Colorado blue spruce is a beautiful tree in its native habitat on the hill slopes and in the valleys of the Rockies, but it is even more thrifty and beautiful if given the special care possible when set as an ornament for lawn or park. From the standpoint of vigor, symmetry and color effect no conifer surpasses it.

A good many folks who make light in a general way of the danger of one's contracting tuberculosis from dairy cows afflicted with the disease are not at all anxious to have their own children use the milk from such animals. It is merely a case in which a trouble is not so bad provided it is "on" somebody else, say over in the next county.

Mowing the lawn in the middle of October may improve the looks of it for a brief time, but unless there is a good mulch of well rotted manure applied to enrich the soil and protect the roots of the grass from winter thawing and freezing the practice is not advisable. Grass needs a rest just like folks, and it's a pretty good plan to do no cutting after Sept. 20.

There is no tool that gives as good results in freshly cleared land and is as economical in operation from the standpoint of both horsepower and patience as the disk harrow. This holds both in getting the land in shape for a crop and tending it while growing. The advantage of the disk for the purposes mentioned is appreciated by any one who has operated one of the old break pin cultivators on a rooty field.

If the housewife has a small sized fish to bake she will find an easy as well as a very satisfactory way to do it to cut the fish along the backbone so as to lay it open and then cover it nicely with the stuffing which one prefers, a breadcrumb dressing seasoned with sage and onion being excellent. This method of baking not only keeps the fish moist and tender, but gives a brown crust to the covering which is very appetizing.

Some one has figured out that if every boy in the country would eat five apples a day for the next three months it would require all the apples which have been produced in the country this year and would insure a fair price to the growers. Another thing about this boy-apple combination is that it is just as good for the boy as it is for the apple market. Five apples a day will merely keep the average boy's digestive organs in good working order.

A point that the dweller in the well watered central and eastern states should keep in mind on going into the dry country west of meridian 100 degrees is that, while one acre of pasture in his native section will keep a steer or five head of sheep, it requires from eight to fifteen times as much land in the dry belt to furnish a like amount of forage. This is not said to the detriment of the land of the short grass but simply for the information of the settler who may not be aware of the fact.

Many newly set family orchards that we know, like many boys and girls, need some attention just now if they are going to develop into anything symmetrical and valuable later on. As regards these young trees they should have their rangy, sprawling tops cut back so as to give a sturdier and more shapely head or frame, while cross or ill shaped limbs should be taken out entirely. This work is done easily now, while the trees are in the formative stage, while the results secured are in every way more satisfactory than if the job is postponed.

CHARGED WITH JEWEL THEFT

Scion of Noble English Family Arrested at Minneapolis.

Wilfred Stuart Sheldon-Dickason, said to be the scion of an English noble family, whose social ambitions have carried him into the homes of the best families of Minneapolis for the last nine months, is locked up in the Mill City Central police station charged with the theft of diamonds and jewelry valued at $2,950 from Mrs. Olga von W. Haskell, well known in St. Paul and Minneapolis society.

Arrested with him on suspicion of knowing something of the disappearance of the jewels is George Haskell, son of Mrs. Haskell and of W. E. Haskell, now of Washington, D. C., formerly owner of the Boston Herald and still earlier owner of the Minneapolis Times and at one time with his father of the Minneapolis Journal.

Dickason strenuously denies knowledge of the diamonds or jewelry. For five weeks he has been the guest of the Haskell family at their home and remained there until a few days ago. The jewels were missed ten days ago and a quiet search instituted.

DYGART GOES UP FOR LIFE

Pleads Guilty to Double Murder in Anoka County.

James T. Dygart, thirty-two years of age, pleaded guilty in district court at Anoka to a charge of murder in the second degree for the killing of Mrs. Walter Bolton and her cousin, Frank S. Rhodes, at the Bolton farm in Anoka county on Sept. 11 last.

His attorney, John P. Nash of Minneapolis, said that his client wished to have the charge changed from first degree murder to the lesser charge, to which he would plead guilty. The prosecutor consented and the court accordingly passed sentence of life imprisonment in the state prison at Stillwater.

Judge Giddings, after questioning the prisoner, said he regretted that the law recently had been so amended that capital punishment had been abolished. Dygart inquired whether the law could not be "changed back." Asked if he would prefer to have it so, he said he would "just as soon."

NORTHROP DECLINES HONOR

Former University President Will Not Enter Politics.

Dr. Cyrus Northrop, former president of the state university, will not permit the use of his name for political honors. In a statement given out at Minneapolis he announced his definite decision not to be a candidate, either for governor or for congressman at large from Minnesota. The statement, beyond which he would say nothing, follows:

"I am very greatly obliged to all the friends who have given me advice on the subject of my being a candidate for congressman at large or for governor and I thank them all, whether their advice has been for or against my being a candidate; but I have decided the matter and shall not be a candidate for either position."

ORE ROAD MEN SUMMONED

Officials of Range Railroads Ordered Before Steel Trust Probers.

Officials of the Duluth and Iron Range and the Duluth, Missabe and Northern railroads, the lines in the Lake Superior region owned by the steel trust, have been summoned to appear before the house committee of inquiry into the United States Steel corporation.

Representative Stanley, chairman of the committee, announced that the inquiry for some time will be directed into the transportation charges for the shipment of ore, which, it is contended, are exorbitant and greatly to the disadvantage of independent shippers.

ATTACKS WIFE AND RESCUER

Minneapolis Man Runs Amuck With Revolver.

Anton Anderson shot and seriously wounded his wife, Carrie Anderson, at Minneapolis. Anderson also put two bullets into Benjamin Johnson, who rushed to the rescue of the woman. Both are now at the city hospital, where it is said they will recover, while Anderson is being held at the North Side station.

No motive for the shooting is known. Anderson was sent to the Rochester insane asylum a year ago and was released as cured last spring.

BY FEDERAL GRAND JURY

Mayor Dumas of Cass Lake, Minn., Again Indicted.

The grand jury in the federal district court at Fergus Falls has returned a joint indictment against Dr. Dumas, Martin Behan and Mike Davis, charging them with "conspiring to commit an offense against the United States government," the crime being the alleged attempt to rob the Puposky (Minn.) postoffice.

Vicious Dog Bites Eight.

Eight persons were bitten at St. Paul by a large St. Bernard dog before the police of Central and Rondo stations, in which districts the canine was on a rampage, succeeded in capturing it. None of the persons attacked was severely injured, but the majority had their Sunday clothing torn to shreds.

GEN. HALL AND PARTY IN THE PHILIPPINES

Pastor Russell Speaks to Crowds In Manila.

Foreign Missions Investigation Committee Given Every Means For Noting Civil and Missionary Activities Amongst the Filipinos—Pastor Russell Tells Auditors That Christ's Kingdom, When Established on Earth, Will Exercise Autocratic Power.

Manila, Jan. 14th.—Gen. W. P. Hall, second in command of the U. S. Army and at one time Military Governor of the Philippines, is here in company with Pastor C. T. Russell, Prof. F. H. Robison, Dr. L. W. Jones, Mr. J. T. D. Pyles, Mr. E. W. V. Kuehn and Mr. R. B. Maxwell, the special Committee of Foreign Missions Investigation, appointed by the International Bible Students Association. They were heartily welcomed and given every facility for noting civil and missionary activities amongst the Filipinos. Pastor Russell gave two addresses today to large audiences, chiefly Americans. We report his address from the text, "Thy Kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth, as it is done in heaven." He said:—

Many of us have learned to appreciate a Republican form of government as the very highest type of civil administration. Nevertheless, the Bible teaches that Messiah's reign will be that of a Monarchy; not only so, it will be a very exclusive and aristocratic Monarchy. Additionally, it will be most autocratic—theocratic. At first, in alarm, we are ready to say, Would not that be a most dangerous condition of things? Ordinarily yes, but when I shall describe the nature of the Kingdom and its personnel, all your fears will assuredly vanish.

The Reason For the Failure of Napoleon and Papacy.

Scripturally, the Kingdom is described as Earth's Fifth Universal Empire. I remind you of the Divinely inspired dream of King Nebuchadnezzar, as interpreted by the Prophet Daniel. The great image of Daniel ii, 31 was described as representing the four successive Universal Empires of earth—Babylon, Medo-Persia, Grecia and Rome. No fifth Universal Empire has been possible; hence the failure of Napoleon and of Papacy to accomplish their intentions.

The Pastor declared that the present governments of Europe represent the ten toes of Nebuchadnezzar's image, and expressed the belief that very soon they will be smitten in a great time of trouble, as outlined in this prophecy. The trouble will entirely sweep away all present human governments, and the Kingdom of Messiah will gradually, during a thousand years, fill the whole earth.

This, in Nebuchadnezzar's vision, was pictured in the stone, taken out of the mountain without hands, miraculously, which smote the image in its feet and then became, itself, a great Mountain or Kingdom, and filled the whole earth.

Anticipating thoughts in the minds of his hearers, Pastor Russell claimed that Christendom has been astray for some time on this point; that it has declared Christ's Kingdom as already existing. The kingdoms of Europe unitedly are called Christendom, which means Christ's Kingdom. But alas! said the Pastor, how untrue! The kingdoms claim upon their coins to be reigning by the grace of God, yet the Bible says that they are "kingdoms of this world," and that the great ruler is "Satan, the Prince of this world."

The Church Is the Kingdom.

The Pastor claimed, however, that the Church is the Kingdom of Messiah, in an embryotic state. It is the Kingdom of heaven suffering violence, as Jesus said. (Matthew xi, 12.) The King suffered violence, His Apostles suffered violence, and all of His faithful followers since then have suffered violence. This lesson, to endure violence as good soldiers, is one of the tests of loyalty upon the called and chosen, who, proving faithful, may become joint-heirs with Jesus in His Messianic Kingdom.

As the glorified Jesus is to be the Great King, the Great Priest and the Great Judge of the world during the thousand years of His glorious reign, so the elect Church, gathered from every nation, people, kindred and tongue are to be under-priests, under-kings and subordinate judges. The Kingly Office will be for the ruling, controlling and subduing, with authority and power; the Priestly Office will be exercised for the blessing, encouragement, instruction and assistance of all who will avail themselves of the glorious privileges of that time to become perfect men and to attain everlasting life.

The title of Judge is a comprehensive one: it includes the giving of a trial as well as the passing and execution of the sentence at the close. The trial Day for the world will be a thousand years long. (See II Peter iii, 7, 8.) St. Paul says, "God hath appointed a day in which He will judge the world in righteousness." He also advises us, "Know ye not that the saints shall judge the world?"

For the first time in fifteen years apples are being shipped from points in western Pennsylvania and Ohio by boat down to New Orleans and other points on the Mississippi. The fruit being shipped is A1 stuff, and the cheap river transportation used in getting them in market should insure a good return.

That American farmers are slowly waking up to the need of using commercial fertilizers to take the place of the elements of which the soil has been robbed by continuous cropping and selling products in the raw stage is indicated in the fact that last year there were used in the United States 324,000 tons more phosphate than in the year before.

Milk paint is cheap and does well for old buildings. It is made by adding three pounds of best portland cement to each gallon of whole milk and enough venetian red or other dry paint to give the color desired. The paint should be thoroughly mixed and stirred frequently while using, as the cement is heavy and tends to settle to the bottom of the container.

According to statistics lately published by the department of agriculture, the farmers of the country have suffered a loss the past year of approximately $5,000,000 through marketing eggs that were dirty or stained. In view of this it would seem that a little exercise with a wet rag would give good interest on the investment of time and trouble to clean such eggs up.

The other day the writer noticed a placard in a bushel basket of small and undercolored Kings that bore the legend, "Five cents a pound." This would make a barrel cost in the neighborhood of $8. It is a safe guess that the New York orchardist who packed this fruit did not get more than $1.50 for the three bushels of apples which the barrel contained. No wonder living is high!

ABOUT THE STATE

News of Especial Interest to Minnesota Readers.

MIKE DAVIS BEHIND BARS

Notorious Yegg Implicated in Several Minnesota Cases an Inmate of Michigan Penitentiary.

Mike Davis, the notorious yegg who escaped the raid of private detectives and state deputies when an attempt was made June 7 last to rob and burn the postoffice and general store at Puposky, was captured Dec. 13 at Durand, Mich., following the robbery three days previously of a postoffice and general store at Gaines, Mich. He was convicted along with a pal named Howard, and is now serving an indeterminate sentence of seven and a half to fifteen years in the Michigan branch state prison at Marquette. Information to this effect has been made public by the St. Paul office of the Pinkerton National Detective agency.

It was in connection with alleged complicity in the Puposky affair that Mayor D. T. Dumas of Cass Lake was arrested and convicted later at a trial in Bemidji, information against him having been filed by C. E. Keller, state fire marshal, who alleged he was one of a ring in Northern Minnesota which had been engaged in the burglarizing of stores, etc., and the burning of property to obtain the insurance.

MRS. EBERHART UNDER KNIFE

Wife of Minnesota Governor Stricken With Appendicitis.

Mrs. Adolph O. Eberhart, wife of the governor, was operated on for appendicitis at the Swedish hospital in Minneapolis by Dr. N. H. Scheldrup.

While visiting friends in Minneapolis, Mrs. Eberhart began to suffer acute pains. This being her second attack Governor Eberhart had her taken at once to the hospital.

Dr. Scheldrup said: "Mrs. Eberhart's condition is highly satisfactory. The operation seems to have been successful, as she is resting easily. She has a strong constitution and her pulse at present is strong."

"Everything is as satisfactory as could be expected under the circumstances and we look for her complete recovery. She will probably be confined to the hospital for two weeks or more," said the hospital physician.

RAILROAD HELD TO BLAME

Responsible for Recent Disastrous Wreck at Odessa.

The coroner's jury at Ortonville which investigated the Odessa wreck holds the St. Paul road responsible for the death of the ten persons on account of a defective semaphore at Odessa and in not enforcing its rules for the protection of passengers.

It also placed the responsibility on W. J. Noonan, the train dispatcher, for violating the rules in allowing the second section of No. 18 to enter the same block with the first section.

W. L. Keiser, the operator at Appleton, is censured for giving information that the first section was close to Appleton.

The jury places the responsibility on Roy Law, the flagman, for negligence in protecting the rear of the first section.

TO INDICT ROAD FOR WRECK

Special Grand Jury May Be Called at Ortonville.

As a result of the findings of the coroner's jury which investigated the wreck of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul passenger train Columbian at Odessa last month County Attorney A. B. Kaercher of Big Stone county is of the opinion that information can be introduced before the grand jury which will result in the indictment of the railroad on a charge of manslaughter in the second degree.

The regular session of the grand jury will not be held until next June, but there is a possibility of a special session of the grand jury being called in the near future to take action on this case.

COURT UPHOLDS PLAINTIFF

Order Filed Denying New Hearing in Telephone War Case.

Judge Kelly of the Ramsey county district court at St. Paul filed an order in "the telephone war" of May, 1910, when Mrs. Marjorie A. Souther was injured while offering passive resistance to the placing of poles on the boulevard in front of her home. Mrs. Souther recovered a verdict of $790 from the Northwestern Telephone Exchange company. The telephone company moved for a judgment in its favor or for a new trial.

Judge Kelly denied the motions of the telephone company in the latest order filed.

FILE MILL CITY BRIDGE CASE

Appeal of Road From Judgment of the State Supreme Court.

The record in the appeal of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad from the judgment of the supreme court of Minnesota in the railroad's case against the city of Minneapolis growing out of the construction of a bridge over the canal between Lake of the Isles and Lake Calhoun, has been docketed in the supreme court of the United States.

The case started in the Fourth judicial district for Hennepin county on an agreed statement of the facts and was appealed to the supreme court of the state, where the city won by a divided court, and is now before the federal supreme court on a writ of error to the highest court of Minnesota. Judge Simpson wrote the opinion of the court, but a dissenting opinion was written by Judge Start.

The question is whether the city or the railroad shall bear the full expense of constructing the bridge across the canal to carry the railroad tracks which now rest on an embankment, the city requiring a certain type of architecture in the bridge, more expensive than the type usually constructed by the railroads.

WOMAN DIES OF SLASHES

Victim of Vicious Assault by Alleged Insane Negro.

Mrs. Andrew Jackson, colored, whom George Parker, also colored, cut with a razor at her home in St. Paul several days ago, died at the city hospital. Parker, who is believed to be insane, is under arrest.

Parker's attack on the woman was ferocious. He dragged her from her room on the second floor of the house through a window onto a porch and sought to throw her to the ground. Unable to loosen her hold on the porch railing Parker drew a razor and fearfully slashed the woman about the face, chest and abdomen.

MATTHEW TAYLOR STRICKEN

Builder of First Ice Palace in St. Paul Is Dead.

Matthew Taylor, a prominent contractor and pioneer of St. Paul, died suddenly at his residence there in his seventy-first year.

Besides his widow he leaves two sons, Matthew C. and John S., both of whom were connected with him in the contracting business, and a married daughter, Mrs. Agnes Forbes Stanley of Rushford, Minn.

Mr. Taylor was in charge of the construction of the ice palace in St. Paul in 1886 for the first of the ice carnivals which attracted attention all over the country.

IMPERILS LIFE FOR OTHERS

Domestic Arouses Inmates of Burning House at Hibbing.

The two-story frame dwelling at Hibbing occupied by R. W. Hitchcock, editor of the Hibbing Tribune, and Robert Stratton, caught fire at 2 o'clock in the morning and might have been destroyed along with a loss of life, but for the heroic action of Miss Ness, a domestic, who risked her life to arouse the other inmates. She was awakened by the smoke which filled the upper portion of the house and hastily went from room to room through the suffocating atmosphere arousing every one. She was nearly overcome.

DECIDES AGAINST LAYMEN

Attorney General Refuses to Prosecute St. Paul Mayor.

George T. Simpson closed his official career as attorney general of this state by sending a letter to Frank J. Clemans, head of the Methodist laymen of St. Paul, in which he turned down their request to have the attorney general's department start proceedings to oust the mayor and police commissioners of St. Paul for their alleged failure to enforce certain provisions of the state liquor laws. Mr. Simpson, in substance, holds that the laymen had not presented sufficient evidence upon which to make a case.

ARRESTED ON ARSON CHARGE

Minnesota Fire Marshal Accuses Two St. Paul People.

With the arrest at St. Paul of Mrs. Caroline Neumann and Roman Meier, her son, the state fire marshal's office drew first blood in the campaign to wipe out incendiaries, who have been particularly active in St. Paul this winter. The fire for which these two are held responsible occurred Sunday, Dec. 17.

The blaze did but a few hundred dollars' damage, owing to the prompt arrival of the fire department.

DECLINES TO ENTER FIELD

Lindbergh Not a Candidate for Governor of Minnesota.

"I am not a candidate for governor—I prefer to remain in congress; big things are going on in Washington now and it is my wish to continue my labors there."

This statement was made by Representative Lindbergh of Minnesota by way of comment on reports from the state that he had under consideration the advisability of entering the lists as a candidate for the nomination in opposition to Governor Eberhart.

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

Minnesota's resources and advantages will be advertised by a railway exposition, similar to the famous governors' special, which is being arranged in a railway car from the state's display at the recent land show. The car, which will leave St. Paul Jan. 15, will be sent through Illinois, Indiana and Ohio. The exhibit will be grouped as compactly and effectively as possible, and the car will be plentifully supplied with literature. Frank M. Eddy and Harold Knutson of St. Cloud will accompany the car as chief advertisers for the state.

Oscar A. Loberg, a rural mail carrier on Route No. 2 at Cokato, is believed to be entitled to the distinction of being the speediest mail driver in the state, making his route of twenty-seven miles on an average of less than three hours. So pleased with his services were the patrons of the route that they sprung a Christmas surprise on him by calling a good roads meeting for the farmers. When all had gathered to listen to a good roads talk a purse containing $82 in cash and also fifty-eight sacks of horse feed were presented to the carrier.

Ten new locomotives, half of them passenger engines, of the Duluth, Winnipeg and Pacific Railroad company have been returned to the Virginia yards, after having been in use on the Western division of the Canadian Northern a couple of months. The locomotives and several cabooses and some box cars were returned sooner than was contemplated by the company, owing to the Canadian government insisting that full duty must be paid upon the locomotives and other rolling stock if it remained in Canada.

Minnesota spent $5,586.76 in fighting insect pests in 1911, according to a report submitted to Governor Eberhart by Professor F. L. Washburn, entomologist. He still has $1.09 of his appropriation. Professor Washburn's worst time was with grasshoppers in the western counties. In some localities much damage was done, certain fields losing from 10 to 25 per cent of the crop. The most effective method of fighting the grasshopper was with the hopperdozer loaded with kerosene.

Mrs. Hannah E. Augusta Braman of Baker, Clay county, is the sole legatee of the famous Pike estate at Laconia, Belknap county, N. H., worth several thousands of dollars. Mrs. Braman was the sister of C. J. Pike and a direct descendant of William Pike, an officer of the Revolutionary army. C. J. Pike died in 1906, leaving the estate to his wife during her life. Mrs. C. J. Pike has just died and the estate by the will of Mrs. Braman's brother passes to her.

The members of the Kitchi Gammi club at Duluth have approved plans for a new club building, which to build and furnish will cost $250,000. This amount in bonds already has been subscribed. The site cost $42,000, the building $160,000 and the balance of the $250,000 goes to furnishing. The plans call for old English style or architecture.

Marcellus Sheild, assistant secretary to the house committee on appropriations, who spent his Christmas vacation in Winona, has presented to James A. Tawney an exploded shell taken from one of the magazines of the battleship Maine.

The Minnesota Live Stock Breeders' association will have its annual meeting in the capitol at St. Paul Jan. 11. The meeting will be in conjunction with the meetings of the State Agricultural society and the Field Crop Breeders' association.

Because Lyndon A. Smith, who became attorney general Jan. 2, must be in Washington to argue some cases before the supreme court, the meeting of the state pardon board scheduled for Jan. 8 has been postponed until Jan. 22.

Lowell E. Jepson, former state senator, is likely to be the choice of the La Follette Republicans of Hennepin county for congress to oppose Frank M. Nye for the Republican nomination next year.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

George E. Foulkes, special agent of the treasury department, made a seizure in Minneapolis of valuable furs, which it is alleged had been brought from Montreal, Can., without the payment of duty. A broad sealskin stole and a muff of the same material worth about $225 were among the seizures.

The Charles Johnson business block, occupied by Lusk & Sigel, billiard hall and bowling alleys, and the Johnson barber shop, was destroyed by fire at Virginia. The blaze started in the basement and the origin is unknown. The loss is $20,000.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

Frank Frechette, a well known tug captain of Duluth, is dead. Captain Frechette had sailed the Great Lakes for twenty years as a tug captain. He was born in Michigan forty four years ago.

A. A. McGill, forty seven years old, mayor of Kelliher, died in the hospital at Bemidji following an operation which resulted in the discovery of a cancerous growth.

NEWS OF NOTED PERSONS

Governor Dix has asked for the immediate resignation of Dr. Alvah H. Doty as health officer of the port of New York, a position he has held since 1895. Dr. Doty's term expired last January; his removal was recommended recently by Charles N. Bulger, commissioner appointed by the governor to investigate.

That President Taft's visit to Ohio the last week in January will be in the nature of a homecoming, and will not be for the purpose of following in the trail of Senator La Follette or any one else opposing his renomination, was the statement of men who are active in the interest of Mr. Taft in his home state.

Dr. Mary Walker is in Washington preaching a crusade against collar buttons. She traces numerous cases of insanity among men to the pressure of collar buttons upon their necks.

Lillian Russell, the actress, is engaged to marry Alexander P. Moore, publisher of the Pittsburg Leader and a power in Western Pennsylvania politics.

Frank Gotch, the world's wrestling champion, defeated Alec Munro, the English champion, in straight falls at Kansas City.

Admiral Dewey is seventy-four. The admiral is in fine health, with his mind active and his physique robust.

POLITICAL NEWS.

Colonel Roosevelt branded the New York Post's story, attempting to create an issue of veracity between himself and George R. Sheldon, treasurer of the Republican national committee, as an "unpardonable piece of moral obliquity." The article as printed was a "deliberate and willful untruth," published in order to "work deception," the colonel says.

Senator Robert M. La Follette began his ten days' speaking tour of the Middle West states with two speeches in Ohio Dec. 27. In his opening address at Youngstown at noon and in his evening address at Cleveland the Wisconsin senator explained the principles of progressive Republicanism.

"If Roosevelt is put in the White House in 1912 we will never get him out again except feet first." This was the statement of Colonel Henry Watterson, editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, in commenting on the Republican situation throughout the country.

Reports have been frequent lately of instances in which small grain has mildewed when put in granaries with solid cement floors built directly on the ground. The trouble seems to be caused by the cement gathering dampness. This trouble can be overcome by laying the cement on forms which can be removed when the cement has hardened, or a plan recommended and seeming to have much in its favor is the laying of several tiers of tile horizontally on the area to be used as a floor and lay the cement on this, which would give ample circulation of air and would make the floor as completely vermin proof as would a bed of solid cement.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

THE THIEF RIVER FALLS NEWS

VOL XXIX THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN., THURSDAY, JANUDRY 11, 1912 NUMBER 2

COMPLY WITH STATE LAW

All Vehicles Must Carry White Light, Otherwise, If Smashed Into They Will Have No Recourse.

This Law Was Put Into Effect on Jan. 2nd, and Covers Minnesota, Don't Neglect It!

The McGinn Hardware company has an ad in this issue, advertising vehicle lamps, the very kind required for this.

Following is an outline of the law which was recently passed:

"Down in the body of the new automobile code that the last legislature passed, and which is now effective, there is imbedded, it has been discovered, a paragraph which will compel all vehicles other than motors that go out after dark to carry "a white light." A team driver under the new code will have to carry a light that will show both front and rear. If he does not, and the automobile runs into him, he is barred, under the new code, from recovering damages.

'All the vehicles in Minnesota must carry a white light,' is the literal import of the code as laid down. That every vehicle must carry such a light is the evident intent, rather than that a certain, specific white light, somewhere existent, must be used by all.

Severe upon automobile drivers, and requiring not only that two front lights be carried, but that a rear light be affixed that will shine upon the license number, the code is even more drastic than in its application to horsemen. Front and rear, the white light that every rig must carry, will have to show, to comply with the code. The law stops right there. So long as the light shows from both front and rear of a rig, the law does not care, seemingly, if it is held aloft in the hand, or swings from the crosstree of a mast with rigging.

Although it is doubtful if team drivers or horsemen generally have as yet had knowledge of it, the application of this paragraph is state wide. The driver of a horse or team who neglects to provide his rig with a 'white light,' showing front and rear, will be taking a chance from now on."

The Minnesota Dairyman.

On receipt of a copy of the "Minnesota Dairyman" for November and December, we note that a new deal was made whereby Mr. Roe, former owner, sold a major portion of the Dairyman's Publishing Co., to several gentlemen unknown to this publisher. W. F. Schilling is to continue as chief editor, Mr. Morley, of Owatonna, president of the Minnesota Dairymen's Association, and George P. Grant, now manager of the Jean du Luth Farm, are contribution editors, and Andrew French is business manager. We assure the public that these men are all well qualified for the responsibility which has been placed upon them, and it will be their only effort to fill the "Dairyman's" publication with reading matter which pertains to that great industry, and which will prove to be of the most value of the Minnesota farmer. To the many farmers in this vicinity who have not had the pleasure of seeing a copy of the "Dairyman" we wish to state that it is one of the most valuable papers anyone can get who is interested in dairy farming. Tells just how to care for the dairy cows to get best results, etc. It is edited and managed by people who know just what they are writing about. The subscription price is 50c per year in advance.

Marie Gilbertson spent a few days with her mother and sisters in this city last week. Marie is teaching in the schools at Larimore, N. Dak., and returned to her work Saturday night.

LAYING PIPE.

Thief River Connecting Up East Side With Business Portion.

Thief River Fall, Minn., Jan. 5.—(Special to the Herald.)—The water department is laying a ten-inch water main in the bed of the Red Lake river, to connect the east side with the water system in the business section. For several years the east side has had less than ample fire protection and it is the determination of the council to place the property owners living there on the same basis as the rest of the city.

The new $50,000 auxiliary power plant will be ready to connect with the old power house Feb. 1. One unit of 250-horse power will be installed immediately and the second soon afterwards. The new power plant is situated at the foot of Second street. The fire department will also be stationed in the power house and all city property, so far as possible, will be concentrated there.—Ex.

PIONEER DIES

Old Resident of Warren Dies of Heart Failure. Had Been Chief of Police for Twenty Years.

Last week we made note of the death of Eugene Dady, of Warren, but this week we are enabled to give the public the particulars regarding the pioneer's death.

Mr. E. Dady was born in the state of Vermont, and when a boy at the age of 10 years he enlisted as a soldier in the Civil War. Mr. Dady was one of the early settlers of Warren and for four years he served as sheriff of Marshall county. The deceased was married to the wife who survives him on July 6th, 1882.

Eugene Dady, one of the early and well known pioneer residents of this city, was called suddenly into the presence of his Maker late in the afternoon on New Year's Day. News of his demise spread rapidly throughout the city and proved a shock to all, as he had been seen on the streets during the day attending to his duties as city marshal, the same as he had continuously for more than twenty years past. He had gone to his home about four o'clock in the afternoon as was his custom and attended to his chores about the house. Entering the house he had gone into the bedroom, evidently with the intention of doing his toilet as usual, and there dropped dead on the floor. Mrs. Dady had gone to visit with Mrs. A. P. McIntyre during the evening, hence no one was at home at the time, and when she returned shortly after nine o'clock she was horrified to find the body of her dear husband lying prostrate on the floor in the bedroom. Screaming, she ran from the house and notified the neighbors and the doctor was immediately summoned. But the slender thread of life had been cut. Quietly, silently and beautifully in the performance of his every day duties, Mr. Dady had been called from the land of the living to the better life beyond.

Mr. Dady leaves a wife and two boys to mourn his death, Howard Dady, who lives at Oaks, N. Dak., and Jeremiah Dady, who is employed in Fargo. The deceased was quite well known in this city. The funeral was held Wednesday Jan. 4th, from the Presbyterian church.

WAS GOOD GAME

Waterloo was Reversed Friday Night Lincoln High School Team Defeated All Star City Team.

First Score was 10 to 1; Final Being 22 to 1; A Good Practice Game for High School Team.

Last Friday evening the local All Star team and the High School team had a very interesting game of basket ball, which resulted in victory for the latter team. But, nevertheless, the citizens made the boys hustle for the scores which they did get.

The fact that the city team has never had any practice is a handicap, but with considerable practice, we predict that a real interesting game could be arranged for some future date. The one great trouble with the city team is the lack of staying quality. their wind gives out after about five or ten minutes of play and they are ready to quit. "Give them practice and they will be perfect."

The high school has very good material for an excellent team, but we would advise Coach Wayne Richardson to give them plenty of hard practice on the art of shooting baskets, which is their weakest point.

The crowd which turned out was not so large as it should have been, owing to the fact that the weather was very cold. The score after the first half stood 10 to 1 in favor of the high school, the final being 22 to 1. The city team was successful in getting a free throw in the first half, otherwise, it would have been a case of "white wash," which would have looked bad.

It is expected that the High School team will play a game at the local gymnasium with Ada on Saturday, Jan. 13, providing this cold weather does not continue.

Mrs. E. C. Cooke returned home last Saturday after an extended visit with relatives in Minneapolis, Fertile and Crookston.

A COMING ATTRACTION

The Next Attraction at the Auditorium Coming Jan. 18, 19 and 20. Recommended by Governor.

Bruno Warweek, Assisted by Mrs. Louisa Warweek and Co. Prestidigitation and Illusionist.

Manager Wm. Smith of the Auditorium has secured a good attraction to be presented at the local playhouse three nights, beginning January 18th, and giving an entire change of program each evening.

Bruno Warweek, assisted by Mrs. Louisa Warweek and an excellent company.

The play comes to our city highly recommended by those who have had the pleasure of seeing it. The company on January 1st, 2nd and 3d played an engagement at the Lyric theatre in Minneapolis and is also given a good recommendation as being a first class play by Governor Adolph Eberhart.

Manager Smith states that this company is one of the best that has ever appeared in this city and the prices are put down low enough to enable every one to attend; the prices are: children under 12 years of age 10c, adults 35c and 50c.

Last week a crew of men were put to work getting things in shape for the laying of a new water main across Red Lake river. The men now have a channel cut and in a matter of a few days the main will be put together and let to the bottom of the river.

SERIES OF DAMS.

Grand Forks Club's Contention Anent Red River Navigation Difficulty.

Grand Forks, N. D., Jan. 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—That Red river navigation problem will be solved when a series of dams are constructed to conserve the water supply, is the contention of the navigation commission of the Commercial club, which will present extensive evidence on that point when Maj. Shunk of the war department holds a hearing here Jan. 18. Maj. Shunk also will hold hearings at Thief River Falls and Crookston to consider problems of the Red Lake River. The Grand Forks hearing is for the Red Lake and Red rivers combined.

The hearings which will be held are looked upon with particular importance at this time, in view of the fact that Congressman Helgeson of North Dakota has introduced a bill providing an appropriation for extensive improvement work on the stream.—Ex.

COUNTY SCHOOLS

Superintendent E. A. Mostue Gives Interesting Interview About Pennington County Schools.

A happy New Year:

A new year with new problems and new possibilities is upon us. May we grasp the golden opportunities given and reap a full year's share of profits, yea, even so in educational achievements. It is encouraging to know that with every task a full measure of power and energy is given to perform it.

Our schools will open again generally after Christmas vacation this week. We have had a very profitable school year so far. Teachers are doing good work and the attendance has been very good. It is to be hoped that the weather will not seriously interfere with the work of the schools during the winter months.

All schools excepting a very few, have been visited up to date. Notes have been taken of the wants and requirements for the schools and the work. Much might be said along this line, but let me admonish our school officers to encourage their respective teachers in their work and extend a helping hand of co operation in the arduous work. This can be done in many ways, which will tell for the betterment of the school.

This office has a few copies left of the Legislative Manual for 1911. Through the courtesy of Hon. D. P. O'Neil, our representative in the legislature, each school district is provided with a copy for its library. Some of these districts may not have been provided yet. If so, will the school clerk, of such districts kindly make your wants known. The Manual is an elegant volume and should be found in every school.

Attention is called at this time to the notices for Teachers Examination, which will be published this week. The examinations will be held Feb. 8, 9 and 10. On the 8th will be held the examination for 1st grade and on the 9th and 10th the second grade subjects. The examinations will be held in the Lincoln building, every teacher wanting to take the examination must be present at 8 o'clock, and must bring along ink, pen and pencil.

Quite a number of pupils in the rural schools succeeded last year in the state high schools examinations held. The number of certificates secured goes to show that the scholars in our rural districts can attain the same proficiency in the subjects as those in the graded and high schools.

This work must be encouraged and the teachers planning this kind of work last year are commended for their success. Can we not do even better in this respect this year? We had four graduates from our rural schools last year. How about the prospects this year? Will the teachers who consider possibilities of the kind kindly confer with this office. Everything will be done to facilitate the work of rural school graduation.

Will teachers who intend to have a high school examination in their school inform me of the number of applicants and kind of studies in which to be examined not later than Jan. 20th. The state high school examinations for rural schools will be held, for high and graded schools, Monday and Tuesday, Jan. 29th and 30th. Subjects: Senior History, Senior Geography, Higher Algebra, Solid Geometry, History of England, Physical Geography. In high, graded and rural schools, Monday and Tuesday, March 18th and 19th. Subjects: Arithmetic, English Grammar, U. S. History, Geography. For the same schools, on Friday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, May 24th, 27th, 28th and 29th.

The teaching of agriculture and manual training is about to become a permanent feature of the instruction in our public schools. School district No. 165 has taken up the instruction in it's school, Prof. Otto Olson in charge. It would be a pleasant surprise for our teachers and school officers to pay this school a visit and to note the kind of work done and the interest taken by the scholars. This school is one of the associated schools with district No. 18, Thief River Falls.

The County Superintendent acknowledges with gratitude the valuable assistance given him by the county press in giving space for these articles pertaining to our work in the county. Thank you.

Respectfully submitted,
E. A. Mostue.

THE MAIL ORDER HOUSE

A Story From the Walker Pilot Exposes Mail Order Business. How They Do Business.

Highly Colored Pictures of Bogus Articles Appeal to Public—Sometimes!

"A settler brought in a jag of wood Saturday on a set of toy bobsleds. 'Bob' sled is the appropriate name all right as the runners were bobbed off way up in the shoulders and the half cord of wood they were hauling looked like putting a man's work on a boy. We asked the settler why he preferred a two-and-half foot-runner and he replied that he did'nt but that was what the catalog house sent him.

He sent in his money for a set of sleds and when they arrived at the depot with a foot and a half chewed off the ends he couldn't afford to send them back. We ventured to remark that the runners were made short so as to get a picture of the sleds in the catalog. 'They certainly did look nice in the catalog' said the settler. 'All painted red with a cute yellow stripe running along the length of the runner and a shoe as thick as a boarding house steak.' 'They probably shrunk in transit,' we told him. 'Yes, that seems to be the case,' he replied. 'A neighbor of mine sent away at the same time for a set of harness and all he got was a halter.' Moral: Catalogs ain't always just what they are."

Last week the Northwestern Drainage company sent out a crew of men to do the necessary repair work on dredge No. 3 near Turgergon and get it in shape for spring work. The gasoline storage tanks have been about all filled and the teams are now busy hauling repairs.

Officials of the Canadian department of agriculture put the damage to sacked wheat in the western provinces at $2,000,000 annually.

Some one has found out that eating popcorn during the entire journey will prevent car sickness. Incidentally it will please the "newsie."

Missouri does not excel in some lines of production, but she holds the banner for the biggest mules and corncobs produced in the country.

If one is located in a section where broom corn does well it is a paying crop, the price per ton of good quality product being about $240 per ton.

Anaheim, Cal., is the center of an extensive celery raising district, from which 1,000 cars of the vegetable will be shipped during the present season.

New Zealand has twenty-four sheep for each inhabitant. Farmers of the United States would be better off than they are today if, as a country, we could make as good showing.

Sand and gravel are usually viewed as sort of plebian stuff in nature's economy and the business world, but it took $21,037,630 in 1910 to buy what was used in building and other purposes.

The Danes are the greatest buttermakers of continental Europe, and in the United States buttermakers of this same nationality take most of the prizes for the manufacture of gilt edged butter.

A law has been recently passed by the Florida legislature prohibiting the shipment out of the state of green or unripe oranges. The law was passed primarily in the interest of the grower, but will benefit the consumer also.

During the winter months, when severe colds are frequent, it is well to have handy a bottle of turpentine, camphor and sweet oil mixed to rub on to the neck and chest when a severe cold is contracted. Often such an application made before a doctor can be summoned will head off many a severe cold and possibly pneumonia.

The pruning of the sugar orchard maple may be done any time from the middle of July up to the 1st of December, but if done in the other months of the year the trees will suffer much from loss of sap. The worst time in all the year to do the job is in the latter part of February, just before the sap starts or while it is flowing heavily.

A chap down in Florida is out after suckers with a vengeance, claiming to send to any inquirer the secret of controling sex in farm animals in return for a money order or draft for $2. The greatest medical experts and anatomists have been and are today absolutely in the dark in regard to the influences which determine sex, one secret nature has withheld from the prying human intelligence.

The husking records have gone glimmering again. Bert Van Houten of Fremont county, Ia., excelling all previous records about ten days ago by husking 254 bushels and 50 pounds in ten hours. In a contest some two weeks prior to this performance he was defeated in a competitive husking contest in which he husked 230 and his rival 231 bushels. The new record also surpasses by three bushels the record made by Claude Wilson of Silver City, Ia.

Among the most striking figures which have been compiled in connection with the products exported during the past ten years are those having to do with live stock and meat. Statistics show that in 1901 there were exported from the United States 700,000 head of farm animals and 1,280,000,000 pounds of beef and pork. In 1910 the export of the meat animals had fallen to 188,000 head, while the exports of beef and pork were but 370,000,000 pounds.

The gospel of a better agriculture has been thoroughly preached in Ohio during the past year. Thirteen special trains, equipped with demonstration paraphernalia and lecturers, have made trips over the leading railroads. The campaign resulted in forty-eight days of instruction being given in practically every county in the state, while 3,300 miles were traveled by the special trains. Instruction of the most practical kind was given in soil fertility, selection of seed corn, wheat and sugar beet culture, poultry keeping, hog raising and horticulture. It is estimated that the lectures were heard by 40,000 people.

If soot bothers in stove or furnace pipe it can be readily burned out by throwing a little metallic zinc dust on the fire when it is hottest. If there is considerable soot in the pipe the safest way, however, is to take it down and rap it out.

From the standpoint of the average dairyman it is poor policy to use a thirty dollar sire and equally inadvisable to use one that costs $3,000, but many a man has realized handsome returns on an investment of $300 in a bull of good breeding to head his herd.

Many a good piece of roast beef is practically spoiled so far as juiciness and toothsomeness go by not starting it in a hot oven. The reason for this is that the juices largely escape into the pan before the outside of the meat is seared. The same principle applies to a boiling piece of beef that is not intended for soup stock, as boiling water cooks the outside quickly and causes the meat to retain its juices.

Some folks have a natural aversion to eating rabbits, but notwithstanding this prejudice against them they are remarkably clean and strictly herbivorous animals, and their flesh is sweet and good. They make a fine dish stewed as one would prepare veal or mutton, with dumplings, and are good stuffed and roasted, while if they are cut in pieces, parboiled a few minutes and fried they are very toothsome.

Some grocers are beginning to see the wisdom of classifying the eggs they sell at retail, marking those strictly fresh that are such and labeling as storage eggs those that have been kept for a considerable time. This is simple honesty to the consumer, enabling him to know what he is getting and to get just what he pays for, while it recognizes the superior value of fresh eggs and enables the producer to realize for them what they are fairly worth.

ICE GETTING THIN.

Individuals or companies that have apples in storage would do well to keep close track of the markets and not be led to hold their stocks too long for a high price. Prices which have prevailed on retail markets for some weeks past have been so high as to greatly reduce consumption of this fruit. The result of this situation is that the total supply of apples available is fast approaching the point where they will be adequate to meet consumptive demands. It follows from this inevitably that price tendencies will be downward and not upward whenever the point mentioned is reached. Should present supplies be kept in storage for several months longer the law of supply and demand would in all probability tend to operate more vigorously and prices would tend to slump more violently. In view of the above it would be far better to market apples in the very near future at good prices than to hold them several months and encounter a serious slump in prices at a time when stock on hand exceeded the demand.

A BEFOGGED MORAL SENSE.

A prolific source of many millions of bad eggs that get through to the consumer and upset his stomach at breakfast is indicated in a case which was brought to the writer's attention not long ago. The individual in question lives on a farm, and the merchants in the town near which she lives have noticed that her big flock of hens seem to quit laying from May until October, but from that time on during the winter shell eggs out at a great rate when the prevailing prices are twice or more what they were during the summer months. These eggs are marketed in lots of six or seven dozen at a time every other day, but never two baskets to the same grocer in succession. It is the consensus of opinion on the part of the grocers who get these eggs that she is by all odds the worst offender against the pure food law which prohibits the marketing of stale eggs that there is in the territory tributary to the town.

HOME SUPPLY OF ICE.

In putting up the home supply of ice there is no need of an elaborate structure. However, two or three general principles should be observed. In the first place, the building intended for storage purposes should be so situated that there will be good drainage. Another point to keep in mind in packing is to allow about fifteen inches' space between the ice, as it is piled, and the walls. Other things being equal, the ice will keep better the larger the pieces are. For commercial use it is rarely cut until it has attained a thickness of twelve to fourteen inches, while for refrigerator cars it is often twenty inches. Of material for use in the packing sawdust gives best results, but where this is not available chaff, hay cut short or even shredded corn fodder will answer the purpose. The space above the ice should be kept well ventilated.

The record price for the sale of real estate was established the other day in New York city when a parcel of land at the corner of Broadway and Thirty-fourth street, containing 1,154 square feet of soil, sold for $1,000,000. This was at the rate of $866.55 per square foot.

It is an interesting fact in connection with the habits of domestic animals that horses and sheep will paw through snow to get at the grass beneath, but that cows will not do so. Another is that in case of a storm sheep will go into the teeth of the wind, while cattle will turn tail and run with it.

BOOTS AND DOCTOR BILLS.

There never was a man with so strong a constitution but continued disregard of the laws of health would undermine and destroy it. We have in mind just such a case which came to our notice the other day. The young fellow in question for years took no pains to guard himself from exposure, thinking nothing of wading into the river in the spring of the year when repairing fences or of exposing himself in sleet or rain storms without putting on dry clothing afterward. He thought he could keep this up, and it seemed as if he could. But today he has symptoms of tuberculosis and is making regular visits to a doctor. It is to be hoped the disease can be headed off, but if not it can only be viewed as the direct result of carelessness. The outdoor life on the farm is most favorable to physical health, but perhaps in no other occupation is there greater exposure when one is overheated, and great care should therefore be exercised. Water tight footwear and rubber coats cost quite a bit, but they are a good deal cheaper than doctor bills.

AN IMPROVEMENT ON SERUM TREATMENT.

A Missouri farmer, H. R. Rust, who lives near Hardin, has discovered what he contends is an important fact in connection with the serum treatment of hogs for cholera. In addition to the use of the serum, which is being furnished at cost by a number of state experiment stations, he states that at the same time the serum is injected an injection should also be made of blood from a hog affected with the disease at the time it was drawn. He contends that if the serum is used alone it renders a hog immune but for a limited time, while if an injection of blood is also made the hog contracts the cholera at once and the serum injected at the same time counteracts it, with the result that the animal is rendered cholera proof for the rest of its life. Mr. Rust has a farm of 1,300 acres and within the past year claims to have given 10,000 hogs this double or simultaneous treatment and that his losses from the disease have not been more than 3 per cent.

CARE OF THE BROOD SOW.

Most of the trouble that sows have at farrowing time is due to their not receiving the right kind of ration during the weeks preceding the birth of their pigs. The difficulty does not seem to be due to any intention on the part of the owner to scrimp the ration, but rather to feeding a ration that is not well balanced. Corn is a tiptop ration to give to a steer or hog that is being fattened for market, but it should form a very small part of the ration for the brood sow. What she needs rather are feeds that will give her bone and muscle forming elements. These are most readily secured in skimmilk, bran, oats, gluten meal, barley, clover and alfalfa. Besides these feeds, which will form the basis of the ration, the sows should be given as much cob charcoal, wood ashes and fresh water as they will consume. The above ration, coupled with comfortable quarters, should insure good health for the sows and give thrifty and vigorous little pigs at farrowing time.

OUR OWN POTASH.

Some capitalists over in Germany, aided and comforted by the imperial government, sought to monopolize and set their own price on phosphate shipped to the United States. With this situation as an incentive the department of agriculture has been making some investigation, and, while the preliminary work is not yet finished, enough facts have been gathered to make clear that we have vast deposits of phosphate in our own country, more than enough to supply our needs for generations to come. Florida, Kentucky, Tennessee and Idaho are states in which deposits are located. In this case, as in many another, necessity is the mother of invention or discovery.

A CONDITION—NOT A THEORY.

Tillers of the soil and especially those interested in the production of wheat would do well to realize the meaning of the figures showing exports of wheat for the past few years. Figures compiled show that ten years ago the exports of wheat from the United States were sufficient to feed 30,000,000 people, while last year the amount of wheat exported was barely enough to feed 11,000,000 people. At this rate the balance of trade in wheat will be against us in a half dozen years. Two things are responsible for this decrease in exports—an increase in our population, but, far more than this, a rapid decrease in the productive capacity of wheat producing lands.

THE KING ROAD DRAG.

D. W. King, inventor of the road drag that usually bears his name, condensed in a recent address what he considers the most important points to keep in mind when operating the drag. He states that a two horse drag is better than one requiring four horses, that a light drag is better than a heavy one, that the road should be dragged when wet, but not sticky; that weeds should not be dragged from the side to the middle of the road, that mudholes should be filled with mud, that there is no need of digging trenches at the side of the road and that if the road drag is properly handled the road can be given the proper grade without the use of the machine grader.

NORWAY.

The parliament of Norway, in 1901 granted municipal suffrage to all women who in the country districts pay taxes on an income of 300 crowns (about $75), and in the cities on one of 400 crowns; and they were made eligible to serve on councils and grand and petit juries. After the strenuous efforts on the part of women the parliament, rather the storthing of 1907, by a vote of 96 to 23, conferred the complete franchise on all who possessed the municipal. This included about 300,000 of the half million women. They were made eligible for the storthing and at the first election in 1909 one was elected as alternate or deputy and last year took her seat with a most enthusiastic welcome from the other members. In 1910, by a vote of 71 to 10, the tax paying qualification for the municipal vote was removed. In 1911 a bill to abolish it for the full suffrage was carried by a large majority in the storthing, but lacked five votes of the necessary two-thirds. It will pass next year. More than twice as many women as voted in 1907 went to the polls in 1910 at the municipal elections. Last year 178 women were elected to city councils, nine to that of Christiania. This year 219 were elected and 379 alternates to fill vacancies that may occur.

DENMARK.

The Christmas holiday in Denmark is observed in a most charming manner and it will be interesting to know that in no other country, except possibly in Sweden, do people go in for such merriment, eating and feasting as just in Denmark. Christmas eve of course is the great time for rejoicing in Denmark. No Christmas dinner is complete without the "risengrod"—rice porridge boiled in milk and served with a cupful of sweetened beer, butter and cinnamon. Hidden in the rice is an almond and the lucky person who finds it receives a special gift. Either a goose or turkey follows the risengrod and the sweet consists of a tart with prunes. Then comes the event of the festival, the exhibition of the Christmas tree. The doors of the largest rooms in the house, which have been jealously guarded for days by the women folk, are flung open to show the historic tree, blazing with lighted candles, gay with decorations and laden with gifts. Young and old then form a ring around the Christmas tree and dance. Christmas hymns are sung and the tree is despoiled of its presents. Games similar to those enjoyed in Sweden pass the time merrily until the sleepy eyes of the children give warning that the night is far advanced, when with hymn and song the rejoicings are brought to an end.

The recent storms along the western coast of Denmark were terrible and the wreckage along the coast testifies to the awful loss of life and property on the North sea. All kinds of articles from wrecked ships were thrown upon the shore and near Ringkjobing fourteen dead bodies were picked up in the course of only a few days.

A Wadena grocer, being short of strictly fresh eggs, sent to Minneapolis for a few cases of the cold storage variety. In unpacking the cases he came upon an egg marked with his own name and address and dated July 2nd, 1901. It was a case he had sold to the cold storage people ten years ago. Verily there is much truth in the saying that chickens come home to roost. —Fergus Falls Journal.

Another Big Athletic Event Has Been Arranged Which will Be Pulled Off At the Lyceum.

Ludvig Monson of Holt vs. John E. Bren of Warren; Both Men Are Good Athletes.

The management of the Lyceum has arranged another big athletic event to be put on Friday night at the Lyceum theatre Jan. 12 at 11 o'clock sharp.

The match will be between Ludvig Monson, champion of Holt; and John E. Bren, champion of Warren. Both men have recently won some hard matches. Bren of Warren wrestled last week with A. Nordland of Hallock, and defeated him. Monson wrestled here with Kline three weeks ago, and defeated him after 45 minutes of hard wrestling, and broke three of his ribs. The bout was stopped and awarded to Monson. Bren's weight is 160 pounds and Monson's 164. The matter of 4 pounds in weight will be no handicap; and it will be one of the best matches of the season.

A special stage is being built for the match, which is about in the center of the house. This will enable the audience to see from any seat in the house.

Preliminaries of the bout are being arranged which will be very interesting. The main bout will begin at 11 o'clock. Wm. Smith will referee the matches. Admission 50c for any seat in the house.

Last Lecture on Socialist Course.

RALPH KORNGOLD.

In the large list of new and effective writers and speakers on Socialism and kindred, Ralph Korngold occupies a prominent place. At the age of 18 he was employed on one of the largest newspapers in Holland and was a contributor to the leading magazine of that country. As a lecturer he has established a reputation as a speaker of rare virility and power. The Herald of Quincy, Ill. said:

'Those who want to hear a man speak as if he were connected with a galvanic battery, and who unites showers of sparks and bursts of blue flame while he talks, ought to hear him. He is a live wire and carries his own dynamo.'

He will deliver the last lecture of the Socialist Lyceum Course at the Auditorium on Wednesday evening, Jan. 17th.

COUNCIL HAS MEETING

City Council Met Tuesday. Meeting Called to Order at 8:30 p. m. All the Fathers Present.

H O Klomme Acted as Attorney, Ira C Richardson Being Unable to Attend on Account of Illness.

The City Fathers met Tuesday evening after one week of rest. All members were present and promptly respond ed to the roll call.

The first up before the the city board was Wm. Smith, chairman of the Athletic Association, in regard to getting the Auditorium gymnasium for the association. F. O. Nicial, treasurer of the association, also addressed the council, stating a few facts as to what the equipment would be. After considerable discussion it was decided that the rent be fixed at five dollars per month, the council reserving the power to raise the rent at any time they see fit to do so,

The next appointment was that of city physician, which resulted in the election of Dr. Vistaunet. E. Melby was re-appointed as street commissioner. Fire Warden—re-appointed Paul Meddrigh. Leonard Peterson, our present superintendent of the water and light department, is to continue as superintendent,

C. L. Severson's application for sexton at the cemetery, was accepted and approved. His duty is to look after the cemetery and see that it is kept in first class shape.

Ben Christianson was appointed, by resolution, as city assessor. Health commissioner, Dr. O. F. Mellby Akre, Gullrude and Roth were appointed to constitute the board of health.

Arrangements were made whereby the fire department will occupy the new fire hall. The building in which the fire apparatus is now kept is not warm enough; it requires a large quantity of fuel to keep the chemicals and engine from freezing up. The change will be made in a few days. The city clerk's bonds were approved and here's hoping that W. H. Quist will give the city the excellent service his predecessor did.

The change in the Auditorium management was not so satisfactory to the public as might have been. O. Jacobson was appointed to take the place of Wm. Smith. Mr. Smith has been a very capable manager and has made the Auditorium a paying proposition for the city. We hope the Auditorium will be run on the same plan by the new manager.

All political meetings are to have use of the Auditorium for the sum of $10 per meeting.

Following is a report of the police department for 1911 by ExChief Andrew Lang: Drunks, 172; assaults, 2; disorderly, 5; total number of arrests 179, arrested by Lang, 53; by Chittick, 90; by Farr, 29; by Kelley, 3; by McGinty, 2; by Ford, 1; by LaBree, 1. Number of lodging accommodations, 34; fines and costs, 144; costs, 2; jail sentences, 19; hard labor, 13; sentence suspended, 1; total, 179.

The council adjourned until 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon when the matter of fixing certificates was taken up.

HOW DO YOU FEEL AFTER MEALS?

Are there any bad after-effects of a hearty meal; any feeling of discomfort?

If so, then you are suffering from indigestion, which, if neglected will end in dyspepsia, with its train of misery.

Your stomach needs help; something taken at meal times, that will give it a capacity to digest the food.

Those having Monterey cypress hedges on their premises would do well to postpone trimming them until after the 1st of April. A number of these hedges with which the writer is acquainted have been virtually killed out by doing the job in the winter.

Bones can be converted into fertilizer by those who have no mill suitable for grinding them by placing the bones in layers and covering them with wood ashes, keeping the mass moist. In about two months the bones will be reduced so that they can be easily broken.

Any reader of these notes who is planning to put up a supply of ice for the first time would do well to write to the agricultural department for farmers' bulletin No. 475, which has been lately issued and bears on the subject of icehouse construction in an exhaustive and practical manner.

The simple minded congressman still seems to be pinning faith to the annual distribution of seeds to his individual constituents. To make this farce possible the department of agriculture is now asking for bids for the furnishing of 200,000 pounds of vegetable seeds and 50,000 pounds of flower seeds.

All too many men who really believe they have been called to preach seem to stupidly ignore the cold, bald fact that any minister who does not take the pains to pay his debts contracted on week days hasn't a message that is worth a copper to deliver to his parishioners when they gather at kirk on Sunday morning.

There are in Germany 28,141 co-operative societies of one kind or another, having a membership of 4,579,740. Half of the number of organizations are credit and mutual loan societies, 2,205 are consumers, and 3,584 are agricultural producers' societies. Of the latter class 3,000 cover dairying and farming.

Both cottonseed and linseed meal are very concentrated or rich foods and on this account should be fed sparingly. While as high as five pounds of the former feed constitute a day's feed in some sections of the south, in the north dairymen usually feed between one and two pounds a day, while steers being fitted for market are fed from two to three pounds daily.

The best complexion dope on earth is not stuff that can be dusted out of a shaker or squeezed out of a tube, but nutritious food stowed away in the stomach—milk, beef, eggs, cereals, fruit—which make new blood and enrich the old. The complexion this kind of treatment results in is more than skin deep, doesn't show in one's wrinkles or brush off on your best fellow's coat sleeve.

The farmers in several New England states are growing restive under a state of affairs existing at present resulting from laws which protect deer for the benefit of the few city sports when they themselves must in many cases furnish free forage for the animals during the closed season. It would seem from the farmer's standpoint not only an imposition, but a game of graft.

In a number of north central states a good many pairs of the Hungarian and ring necked pheasants were turned loose a year or more ago under the direction of the state game wardens. For any readers who may not be aware of the fact it will not be out of place to state that in most instances these birds are to be protected for a period of years and that it is a violation of law to shoot them at any time during the year.

The Kansas state board of health has adopted a rule which provides that when eggs that have been in cold storage two weeks or more or have been packed in any preserving substance are sold at wholesale or retail they shall bear a label stating the length of time they have been in storage. This would seem to be simple justice to the strictly fresh egg and should give Kansas hens some incentive to lay eggs during the winter months.

The value of beet sugar and its byproducts for the past year was $90,000,000, while the value of cane sugar was $45,000,000. Consumers of sugar paid during the same time for the protection of the home sugar industry in duties on the vast quantity of sugar imported more than the combined value of the domestic output. This, taken together with the fact that a great majority of the beet sugar factories over the country are owned by the American Sugar Refining company, does not put the consumer in a religious frame of mind when he planks down his dollar for eleven or twelve skimpy pounds of sweetening.

A fellow might be pardoned for trading jackknives "unsight and unseen," but if he knows which side his bread is buttered on he will draw the line to the use of this method when it comes to getting a wife or a piece of land. Hardly a day goes by for the country as a whole but some unsuspecting victim is sending his good hard cash to some promotion company for land which could never produce a crop, owing to the absence of water or the opposite condition—so much water that the soil could never be drained. It is a bit expensive to travel hundreds of miles before buying a piece of land, but it is the only safe or sensible thing to do.

PLANT IMPORTATION.

So inadequate are the federal laws governing the importation of horticultural products in this country that practically every country in the world that has diseased plants, shrubs or trees which cannot be marketed at home can send them here. Here would seem to be an opening for some ambitious statesman who wants to promote his own political welfare and really serve his country to make a mark for himself. The existing situation is an insult and outrage on American horticultural interests, and there is urgent need that it should be righted at the earliest possible moment.

PHEASANT PROPAGATION.

Much success has attended the efforts to introduce the Chinese or Mongolian pheasant in southern and western states, in particular on the Pacific slope, where the climate is greatly modified by nearness to the ocean. Within the new year several hundred pairs of the common quail or Bob White are to be shipped from Oklahoma to western Oregon, where an attempt will be made to propagate them. Climatic conditions will be favorable, the birds are naturally hardy, and there would seem to be no good reason why they ought not to multiply rap-

FEED THE BIRDS.

During these days of deep snows in northern latitudes those who appreciate the service rendered by the birds that have the hardihood to spend the winter, or a part of it, in the north can do them a kindly turn by putting out food for them. The birds will eat portions of scraps from the table and in some cases wheat or cracked corn, but there seems to be nothing that they relish more than a piece of beef suet. This can be placed on a shelf or hung securely in a tree out of the snow, and the birds can have access to it whenever they like.

THE CORN HUSKER.

As an incentive to the fellows who manage to husk forty or fifty bushels of corn a day it may be said that one of those Iowa lads who negotiated 231 bushels of corn in ten hours was kept busy for several days after his feat reading appreciative letters from pretty girls, who have a natural admiration for physical prowess. They didn't propose exactly, but some of them gave him to understand they would like to make his acquaintance.

GAMBLING HOUSE IS RAIDED

Fifty-three Persons Captured by Minneapolis Police.

In the biggest single gambling raid ever conducted in Minneapolis a squad of police overpowered the doorkeeper in the rooms of the "Senate Whist club," rushed through three doors and captured fifty-three men seated about twelve poker tables. Every man caught in the place was playing and all had poker chips in their possession, according to the men who made the raid.

The raid was effected by unusual strategy after three hours of constant watching by members of the squad, and six patrol wagon loads of prisoners, all accused of being found in a gambling house, were taken to Central police station.

URGES STATE EXPANSION

Louis W. Hill Guest at Duluth Banquet.

State development was the keynote of L. W. Hill's address at the Commercial club's banquet at the Spalding hotel at Duluth, at which he was guest of honor. The president of the Great Northern railroad held out alluring prospects of great expansion of the agricultural resources and declared that Minnesota was just awakening to the wonderful possibilities which can be hers for the effort. Mr. Hill strongly urged co-operation of the people to the end that the development of Northern Minnesota may progress more rapidly.

WITH THE MERCURY THIRTY-TWO BELOW

Sixteen Persons Injured in Railroad Wreck.

The southbound train on the Minnesota and International railway was wrecked at Farley, north of Bemidji, at 1 o'clock in the morning. The day coach and sleeper were overturned. Sixteen persons were injured, four seriously, and Huston Byrd, a stockman from Pineville, W. Va., died a few hours after the accident.

The temperature was 32 degrees below zero and in the intense cold the passengers who had been in the day coach and sleeper suffered intensely. Some of those who were in the sleeper had on only undergarments and practically all were without outer wraps. The wreck occurred in the woods and this made the work of rescue more difficult.

The train was two hours late and was running at high speed when it struck a switch that evidently had not been set right or had been affected by the cold. The engine and the two first cars passed safely, but the day coach and sleeper left the rails.

NINE PERSONS ARE INJURED

Fire Destroys Tenement Building at Minneapolis.

Two children and seven firemen were injured, fifteen persons only partly clad escaped over roofs and down ladders, sixteen others were driven into the street and property valued at $25,000 was destroyed in a fire that consumed all save the outer walls of a three-story brick double tenement and business building at Minneapolis.

One of the children overcome by smoke is in a serious condition. All the injured firemen were able to resume their duties. Sub-zero weather hampered the efforts of the fire fighters. Families living in the adjoining building were driven out.

FINDS BANKER NOT GUILTY

Judge Instructs Jury to Bring in an Acquittal.

Hans Mo of Sleepy Eye, president of the State bank of Cobden and cashier of the State bank of Sleepy Eye, was acquitted in the Brown county district court at New Ulm on a charge of aiding R. M. West, former cashier of the State bank of Cobden, who pleaded guilty of embezzling more than $12,000, and of suppressing evidence desired by the state.

Attorneys Albert Hauser and Frank Clague asked for a directed verdict and Judge A. R. Pfau so instructed the jury.

Grain Receipts at Duluth.

The total amount of domestic grain and flaxseed moved through the port of Duluth in the year 1911 was 50,425,000 bushels. During the year 1910 the total was 53,725,000. The largest amount in any one of the last twenty-seven years was in 1907, when total receipts were 88,409,000 bushels.

Bren Indictment Upheld.

Judge Charles S. Jelly, in district court at Minneapolis, sustained the validity of the indictment returned by the December grand jury charging J. D. Bren, former acting university treasurer, with failing to account for public funds. The Bren case was set for Feb. 13.

A large force of revolting Moroccan tribesmen attacked the town of Sefrou. The garrison of the town, which is under the command of French officers, offered a gallant defense, beating off the fanatical tribesmen again and again, although they were far outnumbered. When the tribesmen finally retired they left fifty of their number dead on the field.

Reports from the coal mining districts indicate that the United Kingdom will be tied up by one of the greatest strikes in history on March 1. A minimum wage scale will be demanded in addition to a number of other minor concessions.

A large number of children, with their teachers, were killed or maimed by the collapse of the building of a private school at Seville, Spain.

Three thousand employes of the city tramway at Tokio are on a strike and traffic is almost completely tied up.

MISCELLANEOUS NEWS.

The government paid last honors to "Fighting Bob" Evans with all the impressive ceremonial of the largest military funeral held in Washington in recent years. More than 1,000 men, representing both branches of the military service, formed the funeral escort. President Taft, Admiral George Dewey, General Nelson A. Miles, practically all the cabinet members, and representatives from all foreign nations accredited to the United States were present at the funeral services.

Documentary evidence that the price of meat was fixed and the business apportioned on a noncompetitive basis by the packers at their weekly meetings was introduced by the government at the trial of the ten Chicago packers before United States District Judge George A. Carpenter.

Only thirty-five lynchings, known to be such beyond doubt, occurred in the United States in 1911. In previous years the number has been much larger, forty-seven having been recorded in 1910 and fifty-seven in 1909.

Byproducts yield 97 per cent of the profits of the packing business, according to figures given by William D. Miles, formerly general manager of the Armour Packing company of Kansas City, who concluded his testimony in the trial of the ten Chicago packers charged with criminal violation of the Sherman law.

Comptroller of the Currency Murray announced that forged notes, which caused the failure of the Albion National bank of Albion, Mich., amounted to $144,098. The notes, according to the announcement, were placed in the bank by its cashier.

James J. Hill believes that 1912 will be a quiet year, but he says "there are almost 100,000,000 people in this country and there is no group of men capable of arresting their development and progress permanently."

Alaska products for the year just ended reached a total of $38,000,000, an increase of more than $6,000,000 over the preceding year.

THE DEATH RECORD.

Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans, known as "Fighting Bob" to an admiring nation, died suddenly at his home in Washington, aged sixty-five. Acute indigestion ended the career of one of the most popular officers in the navy. He was ill less than two hours.

It took one-half million Christmas trees to meet the demands of the holiday season just passed in New York city.

The amount of butter fat a cow produces depends on the amount of milk as well as upon the quality of the milk.

The pen of White Leghorns belonging to an Englishman, Thomas Barron, still leads by a good margin in the international egg laying contest which is being conducted at the Storrs Agricultural college in Connecticut. Two New Jersey breeders hold second and third places, while an Illinois breeder comes fourth.

It is estimated that in the state of Pennsylvania alone the damage to the chestnut growing interest as a result of the chestnut blight has up to the present time amounted to $15,000,000. The state legislature recently appropriated $275,000 with which to fight the pest, and at present some fifty specialists are engaged in a campaign to check its spread.

Statistics recently collected show the horse population of the world to be 111,000,000. Of this number there are 11,000,000 in Asia, 28,000,000 in North America and 43,000,000 in Europe.

With prime mink pelts worth all the way from $7 to $12 apiece it is not surprising that a good many boys and men have their traps out and make regular trips of inspection during the winter months.

Some six months before the child is old enough to be affected by evil influences of whatever kind is the time to begin his instruction in morals, and with most kids of average intelligence and perception this is while they are still at breast or bottle.

It's a pretty good citizen that never makes a kick when he comes to pay his taxes. However, assessors and treasurers are but human, and it is a good plan to look into the charges which a fellow has to pay for living in a civilized and orderly society.

One who keeps close tab on the butter situation states that within the past few weeks thousands of tons of this commodity, bought during the summer of 1910 and held through the disastrous slump which came a few months later, have been put on the market at prices ranging from 28 to 30 cents or about 8 cents below the price paid for western extras.

That the average flock of hens do not have the dust bath privileges that they would like is plainly indicated in the avidity with which they will get on to a pile of ashes or pick out a dry spot of mellow earth in some sheltered spot most any time during the winter months. This dust bath is one luxury the hens should not be denied, is easily provided and will do much toward keeping them free from vermin.

President Taft helped stow away a fifty dollar prize pie that was presented to him by a lady friend eighty-four years old. This is how it was made: Two pints of apples cut in squares, half a pound of sugar, a pint of water and a teaspoonful of grated nutmeg. The crust of this prize winning culinary creation was made of two pounds of flour, a pound of butter and half a pound of lard. Do you notice that shortening?

That there is still a good sized nigger in the wood pile somewhere in the transit of apples between producer and consumer is shown in the prices paid growers in central and eastern states for apples the past season—in some cases as low as 27 cents a bushel—and the price now being paid by the chap who eats 'em—from 3 to 5 cents apiece. Any one who will locate this Ethiopian and chase him out of the wood pile will confer a favor on his fellows.

While the usual time for using the King road drag is just following rains during the open weather of the spring, summer or fall, there is no time when better work can be done with one of these drags than during pleasant winter weather when there is no snow on the ground and when the surface of the dirt roads has been softened and mellowed by warm weather. Especially is such work with the road drag to be urged when the roads froze up rough and rutty.

It will be a very natural mistake for the farmer in the northern part of the corn belt to make this year to select larger ears of corn for seed than will mature in an average season. The past season was one of unusual length between frosts, there being 165 days instead of 120 days, as is often the case. This made possible the ripening of huge, deep kerneled ears, seed from which it would be decidedly unsafe to use next year for any considerable portion of the field crop.

The calla lily is a favorite plant with many and reaches its highest perfection during the winter months when it has had a couple of months' rest during the summer and is put in a well drained pot and fertilized generously. While prepared fertilizers give good results, pulverized cow or sheep manure is excellent. A liquid made by soaking some of the fertilizer in water for a few hours should be applied at least once a week. The calla being a warm country plant should be given plenty of sunlight and should not be allowed to get a chill.

Catalpa seeds for spring planting may be kept through the winter nicely by mixing with sand, putting in a box and burying just below the surface in a dry place until spring. In the preparing of nuts for seed it is well to reproduce in a general way the conditions which are to be found during the winter months in the wood lot where nut trees grow—a covering to take the place of leaves and yet sufficient exposure so that they will be subject to frost, but not to alternate thawing and freezing, as would be the case where the nuts are entirely exposed.

There may be some readers of these notes that do not know how to best prepare the grapefruit for the table. While the fruit may be cut in halves, the seeds removed and served at once with plenty of sugar, a much more satisfactory way is to prepare them the night before. After cutting them at right angles to the seed axle the central seed core should be removed by snipping the tough membranes or walls with a sharp pair of scissors. The membranes should also be cut where they join the rind. Two or three tablespoonfuls of sugar should then be put in the center and scattered over the cut surface. By morning the fruit will be properly sweetened and most appetizing.

While there may be exceptions in two or three states, in a majority if one person chops down a bee tree on the premises of another he is liable to prosecution for trespass to the extent of the value of the tree.

The word "fizzle" is not properly applied to those who would and cannot reach a given standard, but those who could do better than they do, but will not. No blame attaches in the former case, but much does in the latter.

Weather records kept at many points in the country show the November just past to have been the coldest in twenty years. If further proof of this were needed all a fellow would have to do would be to look over his fuel expenses for the month.

The English walnut crop in California was abundant the past season, growers receiving from 12½ to 15 cents per pound for their product. The record for production of a single tree is held by a Mr. Root of Elsinore, who has gathered 400 pounds from his celebrated big tree.

The latest proposal along the line of daring agricultural achievement is a redemption of the sun and drought cursed wastes of the Sahara desert through a planting of the spineless cactus. Dollars to doughnuts if such an enterprise were put afoot there would be all kinds of suckers that would bite on the bait and buy large tracts of these arid wastes.

An excellent substitute for butter fat in the milk given the growing calves is linseed meal. This is best prepared for use by scalding a little of the meal with hot water and adding to the warm milk. A small quantity—not more than a tablespoonful—should be given to start with, but this may be increased in the course of three or four weeks to a good sized handful twice a day.

A Missouri feeder, a son of the lately deceased millionaire farmer, David Rankin of Tarkio, is an enthusiastic believer in corn silage as an ideal ration with alfalfa for fattening steers. At present he has some twenty carloads of steers in his yards. His experience, covering several years, convinces him that ensilage is both the cheapest and best ration that the corn belt cattle feeder can have.

Studies of the root system of a number of kinds of cultivated plants show that they penetrate to a far greater depth than is generally supposed. It has been found that potatoes send roots down from two to three feet, that corn penetrates to a depth of from five to six feet in humid sections and to a depth of eight feet in drier country. The roots of mature alfalfa attain a length of from twenty to fifty feet.

As a result of experiments that have been conducted at the government laboratory at Wausau, Wis., it has been found possible to make paper from jack pine, hemlock and spruce. In the past spruce alone has been used, but the experiments conducted show that a pulp made of the three has been found satisfactory. Similar experiments conducted a short time before at Lebanon, Ore., show that excellent paper may be made from the otherwise worthless jack or black pine.

At the national apple show held the latter part of November at Spokane, Wash., the sweepstakes prize of $500 for the best car was won by Messrs. Knapp & Orcutt of Moscow, Ida., on a car of Wagoners, which also won a first prize of $300 in its class; R. H. Wright of Chelan, Wash., won first and $300 on Spitzenburgs, Winesaps and Ganos; Houston Bros. of Talent, Ore., a like prize on Newtown Pippins, and U. S. Simmons of Wenatchee, Wash., first on a mixed car.

An unprecedented and widespread epidemic of hog cholera has been causing thousands of hog raisers to market their stuff of late, whether ready for market or not, at prices that barely pay for the corn that has been fed them. However, if one feels that his drove will be reasonably safe from an attack of the disease and has growing shotes he can well afford to feed them and wait for a better market, which is bound to exist when the present flood of stuff being shipped is cleaned up.

An eastern firm at planting time last spring offered $50 for the heaviest yield of silage corn per acre, one condition of the contest being that a variety of corn they sold should be planted. The prize was won by a lady living in Lenawee county, Mich., who on one acre raised 70 tons and 800 pounds of fodder. The piece of land on which this was grown had been a hen yard and hog lot. The corn was drilled in seven inches apart in rows, a little phosphate was hoed in about the hills after the corn was up, and the patch was carefully cultivated.

North Carolina is carrying out a plan of good roads building that is not only deserving of the widest publicity, but of being copied in other states where the materials used are available. The type of road referred to is made of sand and clay, both of which materials are at hand. The highway is first given the convex shape by the use of the grader, so as to insure drainage, and where needed and possible the land immediately adjoining the road is drained. A layer of clay is then applied on the surface, and on top of this is spread a layer of sand, which gradually works into the clay and gives a firm and fairly durable roadbed. By using convict labor these sand-clay roads are built at a cost of about $250 per mile, while macadam roads cost about $5,000 per mile.

BOOTS AND DOCTOR BILLS.

There never was a man with so strong a constitution but continued disregard of the laws of health would undermine and destroy it. We have in mind just such a case which came to our notice the other day. The young fellow in question for years took no pains to guard himself from exposure, thinking nothing of wading into the river in the spring of the year when repairing fences or of exposing himself in sleet or rain storms without putting on dry clothing afterward. He thought he could keep this up, and it seemed as if he could. But today he has symptoms of tuberculosis and is making regular visits to a doctor. It is to be hoped the disease can be headed off, but if not it can only be viewed as the direct result of carelessness. The outdoor life on the farm is most favorable to physical health, but perhaps in no other occupation is there greater exposure when one is overheated, and great care should therefore be exercised. Water tight footwear and rubber coats cost quite a bit, but they are a good deal cheaper than doctor bills.

AN IMPROVEMENT ON SERUM TREATMENT.

A Missouri farmer, H. R. Rust, who lives near Hardin, has discovered what he contends is an important fact in connection with the serum treatment of hogs for cholera. In addition to the use of the serum, which is being furnished at cost by a number of state experiment stations, he states that at the same time the serum is injected an injection should also be made of blood from a hog affected with the disease at the time it was drawn. He contends that if the serum is used alone it renders a hog immune but for a limited time, while if an injection of blood is also made the hog contracts the cholera at once and the serum injected at the same time counteracts it, with the result that the animal is rendered cholera proof for the rest of its life. Mr. Rust has a farm of 1,300 acres and within the past year claims to have given 10,000 hogs this double or simultaneous treatment and that his losses from the disease have not been more than 3 per cent.

CARE OF THE BROOD SOW.

Most of the trouble that sows have at farrowing time is due to their not receiving the right kind of ration during the weeks preceding the birth of their pigs. The difficulty does not seem to be due to any intention on the part of the owner to scrimp the ration, but rather to feeding a ration that is not well balanced. Corn is a tiptop ration to give to a steer or hog that is being fattened for market, but it should form a very small part of the ration for the brood sow. What she needs rather are feeds that will give her bone and muscle forming elements. These are most readily secured in skimmilk, bran, oats, gluten meal, barley, clover and alfalfa. Besides these feeds, which will form the basis of the ration, the sows should be given as much cob charcoal, wood ashes and fresh water as they will consume. The above ration, coupled with comfortable quarters, should insure good health for the sows and give thrifty and vigorous little pigs at farrowing time.

OUR OWN POTASH.

Some capitalists over in Germany, aided and comforted by the imperial government, sought to monopolize and set their own price on phosphate shipped to the United States. With this situation as an incentive the department of agriculture has been making some investigation, and, while the preliminary work is not yet finished, enough facts have been gathered to make clear that we have vast deposits of phosphate in our own country, more than enough to supply our needs for generations to come. Florida, Kentucky, Tennessee and Idaho are states in which deposits are located. In this case, as in many another, necessity is the mother of invention or discovery.

A CONDITION—NOT A THEORY.

Tillers of the soil and especially those interested in the production of wheat would do well to realize the meaning of the figures showing exports of wheat for the past few years. Figures compiled show that ten years ago the exports of wheat from the United States were sufficient to feed 30,000,000 people, while last year the amount of wheat exported was barely enough to feed 11,000,000 people. At this rate the balance of trade in wheat will be against us in a half dozen years. Two things are responsible for this decrease in exports—an increase in our population, but, far more than this, a rapid decrease in the productive capacity of wheat producing lands.

THE KING ROAD DRAG.

D. W. King, inventor of the road drag that usually bears his name, condensed in a recent address what he considers the most important points to keep in mind when operating the drag. He states that a two horse drag is better than one requiring four horses, that a light drag is better than a heavy one, that the road should be dragged when wet, but not sticky; that weeds should not be dragged from the side to the middle of the road, that mudholes should be filled with mud, that there is no need of digging trenches at the side of the road and that if the road drag is properly handled the road can be given the proper grade without the use of the machine grader.

PASTOR RUSSELL BIDS FAREWELL TO CHINA

Chinese Quietness and Courtesy Examples to Christendom.

The Pastor Did Not Advise Chinese to Become Identified With the Sects of Christendom—Told Them That the God of the Bible Is All-Loving and Ever-Merciful and Not a God Who Would Torture Them or Their Ancestors.

PASTOR RUSSELL

Hong Kong, China, Jan. 21st.—The Foreign Missions Investigation Committee of the International Bible Students Association spent several days in Hong Kong, Canton and vicinity. For efficiency they divided, some giving more attention to one and others to another phase of missionary interest. Pastor Russell's address to the Chinese in Hong Kong in their fine City Hall Auditorium was both helpful and encouraging. He directed special attention to the words of St. Paul, applicable to humanity in general and at the present time specially to the Chinese: "The whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together until now—waiting for the manifestation of the sons of God."—Romans viii, 22.

China's war experiences in recent years have been severe trials, particularly to a people of their temperament—peace-preferring, gentle, courteous to each other and to foreigners. He had been told that their courtesy of manner arose, not from love and sympathy, but from law and custom centuries old. He could not judge the heart, but had sincerely wished that some of the favored race of so-called Christendom possessed in a larger degree some of the admirable traits of the Chinese—their respectful demeanor, their courtesy, civility and energy.

The God of All Grace.

It shall not be my mission, said Pastor Russell, to urge you to become identified with any sects of Christendom, nor to recommend to you any of their creeds. Nevertheless, in all of those creeds there is more or less of the most wonderful truth that ever came to the ears of humanity; but, alas! in a darker period it became so mixed with human tradition as to be today dishonoring to God and offensive to the intelligence of many. I can readily see reasons why you have not been more influenced by Christianity. Very properly your heads and hearts refused adherence and worship to One whom you were told had foreordained the eternal torment of your ancestors and all mankind except a favored few.

I may never again have the opportunity of addressing you; let me, therefore, tell you now of another Christianity (of which probably you have never before heard) from the same Bible used by the missionaries here and confessed by all to be God's Message, but a very different Message from that which my brethren here confess.

"Waiting For the Sons of God."

My text declares that the relief for the groaning creation waits for the manifestation of the sons of God. Jesus, as the pre-eminent Son of God, died for our sins and ascended to the right hand of Divine Majesty, where He is waiting; and meantime the groaning creation must wait also for the same thing—for the manifestation of the sons of God. Here is a matter which seems to have been for a time hidden under the rubbish of the Dark Ages—the fact that God not only foreordained Jesus, the great Son of God, to be the world's Messiah to deliver them from sin and death, but that He foreordained also the selection of a special class from amongst mankind to be the Redeemer's associates and joint-heirs in His Kingdom.

Surely all will admit with me that no god of any people has ever manifested such a love and interest in his creatures as has the God of the Bible—the God of Christianity. It is the Love of God which constrains us—draws us (not the threat of eternal torture, which has no foundation in the Bible). And His exceeding great and precious promises work in our hearts both to will and to do His good pleasure.

It is my understanding of the Scriptures that the time for making our "calling and election sure" to this Kingdom class is now very short. It therefore behooves all who desire this glorious relationship with Messiah to "give all diligence" and to "run with patience the race set before us" in the Gospel, looking unto Jesus, the Author of our faith.

The Non-elect Also Exhorted.

The wonderful blessings of our day, which make it so different from any other Epoch in the world's history, have reached even here to China, and what we already see appears to be only the beginnings of wonderful things. Evidently Divine Power has within the past century been lifting the veil of ignorance and superstition. We are just on the threshold of the New Dispensation. The Church (the elect sons of God) is about complete. The manifestation of the sons of God for the aid of the groaning creation is at hand, and Messiah's Kingdom is about to be ushered in. The blessings of the present are only a foretaste of those glorious blessings for the world of mankind.

VOL XXIX THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN., THURSDAY, JANUARY 18, 1912 NUMBER 3

NEW R. R. PROJECTED

Backus-Brooks Interests to Build From International Falls to Thief River Falls.

Thief River Falls Will Make Fine Distributing Point for a Paper Mill.

Building of a new railroad from International Falls to Thief River Falls, a distance of 160 miles, is announced as under contemplation by the Backus-Brooks company.

It is intimated that concern's railroad interests are being bonded for $3,000,000 with this project in view, and that preliminary surveys have already been made, with the object of beginning work at as early a date as possible.

The line would be an extension of the Minnesota, Dakota and Western, which now skirts the Rainy river for 22 miles to Loman and is operated as a logging road by the International Lumber Company, a Backus-Brooks subsidiary. From Loman it would pass through Koochiching, Beltrami, Marshall and Red Lake counties, to Thief River Falls, practically making a cross railway, for the northern portion of the state. It would open up for development an entirely new heavily timbered country, with a territory varying from 20 to 50 miles on either side at present unserved by any railroad.

At Thief River Falls it would connect with the Great Northern and the Soo line, thus affording another outlet for the Backus-Brooks paper and lumber products.

A further railroad enterprise given out as in view by the company is the building of an extension south from Loman to connect with the Great Northern's Deer River line. This also would pass through a virgin timber country.—Crookston Times.

HELPS FARMERS

Demand for Prison Made Machinery Increases and Output for Next Year Will Be Large.

For the coming year the state manufacturing plant at Stillwater will place on the market 1,100 binders, 3,200 mowers and 1,500 hayrakes. These machines are nearly all made and it is expected that all will be sold next summer. The state board of control has fixed the price so that the profit to the state from the sale will be $21,756.

The output of twine for the coming crop season will be 17,000,000 pounds. Last year 13,541,000 pounds were sold, the receipts being $941,641. The twine department netted the state a profit of $50,000 last year.—Ex.

Shevlin Died Monday.

Tom Shevlin, the millionaire lumberman died Monday, January 15, at his winter home in Pasadena, California. Mr. Shevlin holds large lumber interests in the northern part of this state, and was majority owner of the Crookston Lumber Company. His death was not sudden as he had been sick for several months. He was quite well known in Thief River Falls as he had made frequent visits to the city.

Mr. Shevlin was a prominent business man of Minnesota. He was 62 years of age January 3rd, 1912.

Richard Olson went down to Rochester to undergo an operation. Some time ago Mr. Olson had the misfortune to break his ankle and since that time he has been lame and goes to Rochester in hopes of having his foot straightened.

ATHLETIC CLUB MAKES PROGRESS

Two Hundred Members Wanted by Feb. 1st---Gymnasium to be Equipped by That Date---Best Equipment Obtainable Ordered Through Local Dealer.

Membership Committee Busily at Work---Initiation Fee One Dollar---Will Be Raised in a Short Time---Save Your Money---Join Now!

Are you one of the two hundred? The directors of the City Athletic Club are making every effort to secure two hundred members for the organization before Feb. 1. Already about fifty of the young men of the city have joined and a membership committee, composed of Wm. Smith, Dr. G. W. Booren, F. C. Niclai, R. J. Jordan, J. G. Furnbaugh, Hans Angell, Harry Schuster, F. A. Gobler and Frank Effinger, is busily engaged in running the list up to the two hundred mark. Little opposition is expected in the soliciting of prospective members, for no citizen loyal to the city or interested in clean, healthful, athletic exercise and sport can well afford to pass up the opportunity of joining the organization as a charter member. The membership fee has been set at one dollar until the two hundred mark has been reached. It will then be raised to a figure considerably larger in order to relieve those who first joined from paying for the entire equipment.

An order through a local dealer for a first class gymnasium equipment has been made. The consignment will consist of the best grade apparatus that money can buy. Parallel bars, horizontal bar swinging trapeze, flying rings, punching bag, boxing gloves, Indian clubs, dumb bells, chest weights, etc., are a few of the pieces listed in the shipment. It is expected that the greater part of the order will arrive within the next ten days and the directors plan to have the gymnasium in working order by February first.

Several hundred keys have been ordered, one of which will be given to each member so he may come and go to the gymnasium as he pleases. It will be impossible, at first, to have an attendant in the room at all times, but arrangements are being made to have a competent athletic instructor on hand during certain hours each week to put the boys through some of the rudiments of athletic stunts.

The ball is started. Let's all put in a little might and help give this city one of the finest athletic clubs to be found in any small city in the country. It can be done easily. You can help by joining. Let your slogan be—"I'm one of the two hundred."

MC INTOSH WINS

Commercial-Normals Lose by a Wide Margin, the Final Score Being 67 to 8.

Following is what the McIntosh paper has to say about the game with the Commercial Normal:

The McIntosh basketball teams won a great victory over the Thief River Business Normal and the Fosston girls last Saturday evening at the gymnasium at McIntosh. The girls' game was well played by both teams, but the local team had the better of the bargain, as they were able to find the basket easier. The Fosston girls put up a strong fight in the second half and made the game very exciting, but the score piled up by the home team in the first half was hard to beat. The game ended with a score of 14 to 5 in favor of the home team.

The boys played a splendid game and outclassed the visiting team in every respect. The Thief River Business Normal came here expecting to win a victory, as they had thrice defeated the Thief River High School and the game between the Thief River High School and the McIntosh High School at Thief River was a very close one. But the local team has had a number of weeks' practice since that time and hence put up a great deal better fight than was expected. The score was 67 to 8 in favor of McIntosh.

The Lyceum had a fine program last Saturday and Sunday, when they had the privilege of showing the "Buffalo Bill" Wild West pictures. Both nights the house was filled and an empty seat could not be found, many people waiting in the lobby. The pictures show the great show from beginning to end and it was an attraction worth the money.

WILL MAKE TOUR

Symphony Orchestra Will Play In Sixty Cities, Including Thief River Falls.

Enough bookings already have been made to insure the extension of the St. Paul Symphony Orchestra tour to the Pacific Coast. Louis W. Hill, president of the orchestra association, now is confident that the orchestra will play in nearly sixty cities of the Northwest in making the tour to the coast via Great Northern points, returning over the Northern Pacific. Gertrude O'Hanlon, the young woman who now is on the road making the bookings for the spring tour of the orchestra, has arranged all the dates for the first week's engagement of the orchestra.

Following are the cities in which engagements probably will be secured:

St. Cloud, Brainerd, Bemidji, Thief River Falls, Winnipeg, Man., and other large cities enroute.

The tour will start March 24th and will last six weeks. There will be fifty members of the orchestra and a quartet of soloists, besides the conductor, Walter Rothwell and Manager Edmund Stein, who will make the trip in a special train of the Great Northern Railway. All lovers of music in the various towns the orchestra will visit already have begun writing to the St. Paul office for particulars of the Symphony Orchestra.

The County Commissioners' proceedings for January 2nd and 3rd are in this issue. Proceedings for December appear in supplement form.

A BIG MEETING

The Hearing on the Condition of the Red Lake River was Held by Col. Shunk at the Auditorium.

The public hearing on the condition of the Red Lake River was held at the Auditorium Tuesday, January 16th. The meeting was conducted by Col. Francis Shunk, of Washington, D. C. At this meeting it was shown and proved that the log jam had nothing to do with the low stage of water in Red Lake River. According to reports from the Government survey the water in Red Lake was the lowest in 1911 that it has ever been in years, and that the flow into the river was very small compared with former years.

A statement was made that fish were dying, and the water is so filthy that the farmer's stock refuses to drink it. The cause of the fish dying is the low stage of water, on account of there being no current in the river. When the river froze over the fish began to die for want of air.

Several attacks were made against the local lumber company. People stated that the log jams were the cause; the logs at the outlet or mouth of the river belong to the companies down the river and a large part of the Thief River Falls Lumber company's logs are all the way from eight to ten miles down the river. If the log jams hold back the water, it is certain that if the flow into the river from the lake was the same as in former years it would soon make a channel around the jams or over the top of logs.

The settlers along the river can not look for any relief until the spring breakup. A motion was made by Andrew Trovaton, the county treasurer of Pennington county, and seconded by D. N. Winton, that Red Lake river be improved and a retaining dam be put in at the outlet. This motion carried and it is expected that the Government will take some action as soon as possible. The farmers along the Red Lake river are in a critical situation and some provision must be made for them very soon.

Three parties, representing the township of Hickory, made statements in regard to the condition of the river at the present time. E. L. Quist made a short talk in behalf of the city and the farmers. D. N. Winton had profiles and blue prints furnished by the city engineer of Bemidji on the condition of the Red lake and river.

Prof. Chandler of the geological survey gave talks on the condition of other rivers and his report showed that last season was an exceptionally dry season and the rainfall was not so great as in former years.

Quite a number of the farmers along the river were represented at the meeting and all had statements to make in regard to the condition, all of which were of interest to the listeners. The meeting adjourned after all statements had been heard.

Col. Shunk held a meeting at Crookston on Wednesday and at Grand Forks on Thursday of this week.

Lecture Was Beneficial.

The lecture on "Happiness" delivered by Frederick S. Attwood last Tuesday evening, was most pleasing in every way. Those who heard the Blind Optimist have nothing but warm words of praise for the man and his message. Mr. Attwood, almost without effort, gives out those precious gems of thought that are so helpful to every mind. The humor introduced is rich and true, and very applicable to the subject.—Grand Forks (N. D.) Evening Times.

Mr. Attwood will appear at the Auditorium on January 26th under the auspices of the K. of P. lodge. No admission will be charged. This is a great chance for the public to hear a great speaker.

CROOKSTON WINS

The Fastest Basket Ball Game of the Season at the Local Gymnasium Saturday Night.

Freshman Team Defeated Commercial Normal Team by Score of Sixteen to Eight.

One of the fastest games of the season was witnessed by a large crowd Saturday night at the Lincoln school gymnasium when the Crookston high school basket ball team and the Lincoln high school team "clashed." This is the first game of the season for the visiting team and they certainly play a nice clean game and very fast.

The local boys took the lead in the first half of the game, the score standing 16 to 9 at the close; in the second half Crookston took the lead and the final score was 21 so 23. The lineup is as follows:

Crookston		Thief River Falls
Lytle	forward	Carter
Frost	forward	Brude
Hougon	center	Fossum
Roemer	guard	Adolphs
Chesterman	guard	Boydon
Gronvold	guard

At the end of the first half Crookston made a few changes which appeared to strengthen their team considerable. Gronvold played guard, Lytle center, Chesterman forward. Following is what the Crookston Times says about the game:

"The Crookston high school basket ball team beat Thief River Falls at that place Saturday evening with a score of 23 to 21. The team did not expect to win, as this is the first game the local team has played and Thief River Falls has played several this season. At the end of the first half the score was 16 to 9 in Thief River Falls' favor. The team was royally entertained while there and cannot say enough in praise of the Thief River team.

Summary: Crookston—field goals, Lytle 6, Frost 2, Roemer 2, and Chesterman 1. Foul goals, Frost 1. Thief River Falls—Carter 3, Adolphs 5, Fossum 1. Foul goals, Adolphs 3. Time of halves, 20 minutes each. Referees, Richardson and Smith."

IN all the history of brewing beer has been considered one of the most healthful drinks, on account of its purity.

When the Pure Food bill was before the United States senate in 1905, Senator McCumber said:—

"I believe that we manufacture in this country the purest beers that are made on the face of the earth, and the fact that the brewers' associations are all in favor of this bill is proof that they are satisfied that they make a pure article."

WHITE SEAL BEER

Is the proud accomplishment of years of close devotion to the art of brewing. "Just a little better" has always been our aim and to insure its perfect purity we are painstaking to the last degree.

If you drink beer you want White Seal beer, or else we are badly mistaken. Try a case and see. Ask your dealers about it.

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

Walter J. Smith, state treasurer, handled $18,616,339.72 of state funds in 1911, of which he disbursed $17,378,955.11 for various purposes. He started out with a cash balance of $3,977,038.91, but had no such sum for the beginning of 1912, as the drain on the treasury has been unusually heavy. Interest bearing certificates to the amount of $1,100,000 were taken up and retired, thereby reducing the bonded indebtedness by that amount.

Declaring that there are 200 families of negro men with white wives in Minneapolis, Dr. Albert E. Jenks, professor of anthropology of the University of Minnesota, at a meeting of the anthropological section of the American Association for the Advancement of Science at Washington, declared that intermarriage between white and negro should be stopped. He also declared that negro immigration should be prohibited.

By stipulation between the executors of the estate of Mrs. Marie M. Owsley and the officials of the state the value of her real property, mostly in ore lands in Minnesota, is $2,742,585. The attorney general and state auditor agree to the valuation on this basis, and the inheritance tax will be $120,728.70, the largest amount ever paid on real property in this state. Mrs. Owsley died about a year ago at Tiverton, Va.

At a meeting of the state game and fish commission D. L. Durkin, Detroit, was sworn in as a member of the commission to succeed Joseph A. Wessel, Crookston, and officers elected for the ensuing year. George J. Bradley, Norwood, was elected president; E. L. Ogilvie, St. Paul, first vice president; D. L. Durkin, second vice president; O. J. Johnson, Glenwood, secretary, and H. A. Rider, executive agent.

Total carlot receipts of freight in Minneapolis by all railroads were 3,706 greater last year than in 1910. The gain in shipments was 2,606 cars. In 1911 321,037 carlots were received; in 1910 317,331. In 1911 289,504 carlots were sent out and in 1910 the shipments were 286,908 carlots.

The Duluth demurrage bureau receipts show 415,422 cars handled in 1911, as against 405,044 cars in 1910, a gain of 10,378. There were 36,539 cars handled in December, as against 34,810 for the month a year ago. These figures do not include iron ore cars.

An increase of $10,231.47 in receipts of the United States internal revenue service for Minnesota for December is shown in the monthly report. The collections for December, 1911, were $141,653.52, as compared with $131,440.05 for 1910.

The great flour mills of Minneapolis ground heavily during 1911 and have sent the production figures to within a short distance of the 16,000,000 line, thus turning out, in barrel measurement, a total that is very close to the highest record.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

Mrs. Caroline A. Huntington, wife of Professor Huntington of Carleton college, died at her home in Northfield of neuralgia of the heart. She was seventy-seven years old. In the twenty-seven years that her husband has been an instructor at Carleton Mrs. Huntington took an interest in the college work and taught a Bible class for the girls of the school.

Rev. Father Alexander de Aschoberg, S. J., is dead at Mankato after a brief illness of heart trouble. He was a descendant of a German family of ancient nobility, his birthplace being Muenster, Wesphalia, Germany, and the date of his birth June 18, 1848. He had been a resident of Mankato for three years.

David Gallinger, seventy-two years old, died at his home in Denmark, Washington county, from heart trouble. He was a pioneer and respected resident of Washington county and a brother of J. H. Gallinger, United States senator from New Hampshire.

George H. White, sixty years old, assistant engineer of the Milwaukee road from 1878 to 1884 and from 1906 until his death, and first professor of engineering in the Worcester Polytechnic institute from 1884 to 1901, is dead at Minneapolis.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

The farm home of John Gilbertson of Pohlitz, Roseau county, was destroyed by fire and his thirteen-year old son was burned to death. The fire was caused by the explosion of a hanging lamp. The family fled with bare feet through the snow and bitter cold to the barn, where they remained until dawn. Mrs. Gilbertson was badly burned about her face, hands and back.

The charred body of Theodore Schuster, laborer in a Rushmore blacksmith shop, was found in the ruins of the burned building. It is supposed that the shop caught fire in some manner while Schuster was asleep. Schuster recently had received a check for $100 from a brother in Germany to pay his expenses back to the old country.

P. J. McAlpine, former city water and light collector of Two Harbors, who was found short $14,000 in his accounts and who repaid about $[illegible], including his bonds, pleaded guilty to larceny in the second degree and was sentenced to an indeterminate term at hard labor in the penitentiary.

ABOUT THE STATE

News of Especial Interest to Minnesota Readers.

COMPANY HELD RESPONSIBLE

State Railroad Commission Recommends Criminal Prosecution for Disaster at Odessa.

Placing blame on the railroad company for "winking at" its employes who violate train rules and on the employes for violating them the state railroad and warehouse commission filed with the attorney general a report on the wreck of the Columbian limited on the St. Paul road and recommended criminal prosecution.

At least nine men were guilty of a violation of rules which resulted in the death of ten persons and the maiming of eighteen, the commission holds.

Wearied, too, with the claims advanced by numerous roads that the cars of their finest trains are of all steel construction the commission recommends a system of government inspection of the construction of cars, rails and all steel work used in the manufacture of cars.

"The increasing number of accidents caused by broken rails," the commission's report says, "and switches, and the imperfect condition of certain portions of equipment, make it very apparent that the interests of both the public and the railway companies will be best subserved by having such inspection."

Three of the guilty employes, says the report, knew that they were violating the rules. "The practice of violating rules," the commissioners say, "taken in connection with certain admissions made at the hearing, shows that the railroad company should be charged with knowledge that their rules are frequently disobeyed and the commission cannot refrain from condemning this condition." The block in which the wreck occurred is twenty miles long and is declared too long for practical operation, so employes are compelled to "take a chance," and their acts have been winked at by higher officials.

WRECK ON GREAT WESTERN

Three Coaches Derailed and Five Persons Injured.

Five persons were injured and 100 others badly shaken up when Chicago Great Western passenger train No. 42, bound from Minneapolis to Rochester, was ditched by a broken rail and crashed into an embankment ten miles north of Red Wing.

The two engines pulling the train and the first two cars passed over the broken rail safely, but the dining car, parlor car and smoker were derailed and crashed into the high bluff. Had they left the track on the other side the cars would have toppled down a fifteen-foot embankment into the Cannon river.

All three coaches that left the track were badly smashed and are almost a total loss. Although coal fires were burning in all the cars they were extinguished before the fire could spread.

WINONA STRIKE STILL ON

Federal Court Refuses Petition of Motormen to Interfere.

The striking street railway motormen at Winona have received word of the denial by Judge Willard of the federal court at Minneapolis to issue an order requiring the company to show cause why the striking men should not be reinstated.

An international officer of the motormen's union is expected and further efforts will be made to end the strike.

Most of the cars now are in operation and there has been no trouble for over a week.

Spectacular Minneapolis Fire Does $175,000 Damage.

While the mercury was hovering around 22 degrees below zero Minneapolis experienced a fire loss of more than $175,000, the most disastrous conflagration since the destruction of the Syndicate block nine months ago, when the loss aggregated more than a million dollars. The Waterman-Waterbury building, owned by James J. Hill, was completely destroyed and with it the Continental hotel and saloon, owned by the Schlitz Brewing company. The fire was spectacular.

Bones can be converted into fertilizer by those who have no mill suitable for grinding them by placing the bones in layers and covering them with wood ashes, keeping the mass moist. In about two months the bones will be reduced so that they can be easily broken.

Any reader of these notes who is planning to put up a supply of ice for the first time would do well to write to the agricultural department for farmers' bulletin No. 475, which has been lately issued and bears on the subject of icehouse construction in an exhaustive and practical manner.

The simple minded congressman still seems to be pinning faith to the annual distribution of seeds to his individual constituents. To make this farce possible the department of agriculture is now asking for bids for the furnishing of 200,000 pounds of vegetable seeds and 50,000 pounds of flower seeds.

All too many men who really believe they have been called to preach seem to stupidly ignore the cold, bald fact that any minister who does not take the pains to pay his debts contracted on week days hasn't a message that is worth a copper to deliver to his parishioners when they gather at kirk on Sunday morning.

There are in Germany 28,141 co-operative societies of one kind or another, having a membership of 4,579,740. Half of the number of organizations are credit and mutual loan societies, 2,205 are consumers, and 3,584 are agricultural producers' societies. Of the latter class 3,000 cover dairying and farming.

Both cottonseed and linseed meal are very concentrated or rich foods and on this account should be fed sparingly. While as high as five pounds of the former feed constitute a day's feed in some sections of the south, in the north dairymen usually feed between one and two pounds a day, while steers being fitted for market are fed from two to three pounds daily.

The best complexion dope on earth is not stuff that can be dusted out of a shaker or squeezed out of a tube, but nutritious food stowed away in the stomach—milk, beef, eggs, cereals, fruit—which make new blood and enrich the old. The complexion this kind of treatment results in is more than skin deep, doesn't show in one's wrinkles or brush off on your best fellow's coat sleeve.

Officials of the Canadian department of agriculture put the damage to sacked wheat in the western provinces at $2,000,000 annually.

Some one has found out that eating popcorn during the entire journey will prevent car sickness. Incidentally it will please the "newsie."

Missouri does not excel in some lines of production, but she holds the banner for the biggest mules and corncobs produced in the country.

If one is located in a section where broom corn does well it is a paying crop, the price per ton of good quality product being about $240 per ton.

Anaheim, Cal., is the center of an extensive celery raising district, from which 1,000 cars of the vegetable will be shipped during the present season.

New Zealand has twenty-four sheep for each inhabitant. Farmers of the United States would be better off than they are today if, as a country, we could make as good showing.

Sand and gravel are usually viewed as sort of pleblan stuff in nature's economy and the business world, but it took $21,037,630 in 1910 to buy what was used in building and other purposes.

The Danes are the greatest buttermakers of continental Europe, and in the United States buttermakers of this same nationality take most of the prizes for the manufacture of gilt edged butter.

A law has been recently passed by the Florida legislature prohibiting the shipment out of the state of green or unripe oranges. The law was passed primarily in the interest of the grower, but will benefit the consumer also.

During the winter months, when severe colds are frequent, it is well to have handy a bottle of turpentine, camphor and sweet oil mixed to rub on to the neck and chest when a severe cold is contracted. Often such an application made before a doctor can be summoned will head off many a severe cold and possibly pneumonia.

The pruning of the sugar orchard maple may be done any time from the middle of July up to the 1st of December, but if done in the other months of the year the trees will suffer much from loss of sap. The worst time in all the year to do the job is in the latter part of February, just before the sap starts or while it is flowing heavily.

A chap down in Florida is out after suckers with a vengeance, claiming to send to any inquirer the secret of controlling sex in farm animals in return for a money order or draft for $2. The greatest medical experts and anatomists have been and are today absolutely in the dark in regard to the influences which determine sex, one secret nature has withheld from the prying human intelligence.

The husking records have gone glimmering again, Bert Van Houten of Fremont county, Ia., excelling all previous records about ten days ago by husking 254 bushels and 50 pounds in ten hours. In a contest some two weeks prior to this performance he was defeated in a competitive husking contest in which he husked 230 and his rival 231 bushels. The new record also surpasses by three bushels the record made by Claude Wilson of Silver City, Ia.

Among the most striking figures which have been compiled in connection with the products exported during the past ten years are those having to do with live stock and meat. Statistics show that in 1901 there were exported from the United States 790,000 head of farm animals and 1,280,000,000 pounds of beef and pork. In 1910 the export of the meat animals had fallen to 158,000 head, while the exports of beef and pork were but 370,000,000 pounds.

The gospel of a better agriculture has been thoroughly preached in Ohio during the past year. Thirteen special trains, equipped with demonstration paraphernalia and lecturers, have made trips over the leading railroads. The campaign resulted in forty-eight days of instruction being given in practically every county in the state, while 3,200 miles were traveled by the special trains. Instruction of the most practical kind was given in soil fertility, selection of seed corn, wheat and sugar beet culture, poultry keeping, hog raising and horticulture. It is estimated that the lectures were heard by 40,000 people.

Statistics recently collected show the horse population of the world to be 111,000,000. Of this number there are 11,000,000 in Asia, 28,000,000 in North America and 43,000,000 in Europe.

With prime mink pelts worth all the way from $7 to $12 apiece it is not surprising that a good many boys and men have their traps out and make regular trips of inspection during the winter months.

Some six months before the child is old enough to be affected by evil influences of whatever kind is the time to begin his instruction in morals, and with most kids of average intelligence and perception this is while they are still at breast or bottle.

It's a pretty good citizen that never makes a kick when he comes to pay his taxes. However, assessors and treasurers are but human, and it is a good plan to look into the charges which a fellow has to pay for living in a civilized and orderly society.

One who keeps close tab on the butter situation states that within the past few weeks thousands of tons of this commodity, bought during the summer of 1910 and held through the disastrous slump which came a few months later, have been put on the market at prices ranging from 28 to 30 cents or about 8 cents below the price paid for western extras.

That the average flock of hens do not have the dust bath privileges that they would like is plainly indicated in the avidity with which they will get on to a pile of ashes or pick out a dry spot of mellow earth in some sheltered spot most any time during the winter months. This dust bath is one luxury the hens should not be denied, is easily provided and will do much toward keeping them free from vermin.

President Taft helped stow away a fifty dollar prize pie that was presented to him by a lady friend eighty-four years old. This is how it was made: Two pints of apples cut in squares, half a pound of sugar, a pint of water and a teaspoonful of grated nutmeg. The crust of this prize winning culinary creation was made of two pounds of flour, a pound of butter and half a pound of lard. Do you notice that shortening?

That there is still a good sized nigger in the wood pile somewhere in the transit of apples between producer and consumer is shown in the prices paid growers in central and eastern states for apples the past season—in some cases as low as 37 cents a bushel—and the price now being paid by the chap who eats 'em—from 3 to 5 cents apiece. Any one who will locate this Ethiopian and chase him out of the wood pile will confer a favor on his fellows.

While the usual time for using the King road drag is just following rains during the open weather of the spring, summer or fall, there is no time when better work can be done with one of these drags than during pleasant winter weather when there is no snow on the ground and when the surface of the dirt roads has been softened and mellowed by warm weather. Especially is such work with the road drag to be urged when the roads froze up rough and rutty.

It will be a very natural mistake for the farmer in the northern part of the corn belt to make this year to select larger ears of corn for seed than will mature in an average season. The past season was one of unusual length between frosts, there being 165 days instead of 120 days, as is often the case. This made possible the ripening of huge, deep kerneled ears, seed from which it would be decidedly unsafe to use next year for any considerable portion of the field crop.

The calla lily is a favorite plant with many and reaches its highest perfection during the winter months when it has had a couple of months' rest during the summer and is put in a well drained pot and fertilized generously. While prepared fertilizers give good results, pulverized cow or sheep manure is excellent. A liquid made by soaking some of the fertilizer in water for a few hours should be applied at least once a week. The calla being a warm country plant should be given plenty of sunlight and should not be allowed to get a chill.

Catalpa seeds for spring planting may be kept through the winter nicely by mixing with sand, putting in a box and burying just below the surface in a dry place until spring. In the preparing of nuts for seed it is well to reproduce in a general way the conditions which are to be found during the winter months in the wood lot where nut trees grow—a covering to take the place of leaves and yet sufficient exposure so that they will be subject to frost, but not to alternate thawing and freezing, as would be the case where the nuts are entirely exposed.

There may be some readers of these notes that do not know how to best prepare the grapefruit for the table. While the fruit may be cut in halves, the seeds removed and served at once with plenty of sugar, a much more satisfactory way is to prepare them the night before. After cutting them at right angles to the seed axle the central seed core should be removed by snipping the tough membranes or walls with a sharp pair of scissors. The membranes should also be cut where they join the rind. Two or three tablespoonfuls of sugar should then be put in the center and scattered over the cut surface. By morning the fruit will be properly sweetened and most appetizing.

While there may be exceptions in two or three states, in a majority if one person chops down a bee tree on the premises of another he is liable to prosecution for trespass to the extent of the value of the tree.

The word "fizzle" is not properly applied to those who would and cannot reach a given standard, but those who could do better than they do, but will not. No blame attaches in the former case, but much does in the latter.

Weather records kept at many points in the country show the November just past to have been the coldest in twenty years. If further proof of this were needed all a fellow would have to do would be to look over his fuel expenses for the month.

The English walnut crop in California was abundant the past season, growers receiving from 12½ to 15 cents per pound for their product. The record for production of a single tree is held by a Mr. Root of Elsinore, who has gathered 400 pounds from his celebrated big tree.

The latest proposal along the line of daring agricultural achievement is a redemption of the sun and drought cursed wastes of the Sahara desert through a planting of the spineless cactus. Dollars to doughnuts if such an enterprise were put afoot there would be all kinds of suckers that would bite on the bait and buy large tracts of these arid wastes.

An excellent substitute for butter fat in the milk given the growing calves is linseed meal. This is best prepared for use by scalding a little of the meal with hot water and adding to the warm milk. A small quantity—not more than a tablespoonful—should be given to start with, but this may be increased in the course of three or four weeks to a good sized handful twice a day.

A Missouri feeder, a son of the lately deceased millionaire farmer, David Rankin of Tarkio, is an enthusiastic believer in corn silage as an ideal ration with alfalfa for fattening steers. At present he has some twenty carloads of steers in his yards. His experience, covering several years, convinces him that ensilage is both the cheapest and best ration that the corn belt cattle feeder can have.

Studies of the root system of a number of kinds of cultivated plants show that they penetrate to a far greater depth than is generally supposed. It has been found that potatoes send roots down from two to three feet; that corn penetrates to a depth of from five to six feet in humid sections and to a depth of eight feet in drier country. The roots of mature alfalfa attain a length of from twenty to fifty feet.

As a result of experiments that have been conducted at the government laboratory at Wausau, Wis., it has been found possible to make paper from jack pine, hemlock and spruce. In the past spruce alone has been used, but the experiments conducted show that a pulp made of the three has been found satisfactory. Similar experiments conducted a short time before at Lebanon, Ore., show that excellent paper may be made from the otherwise worthless jack or black pine.

At the national apple show held the latter part of November at Spokane, Wash., the sweepstakes prize of $500 for the best car was won by Messrs. Knapp & Orcutt of Moscow, Ida., on a car of Wagoners, which also won a first prize of $300 in its class; R. H. Wright of Chelan, Wash., won first and $300 on Spitzenburgs, Winesaps and Ganos; Houston Bros. of Talent, Ore., a like prize on Newtown Pippins, and U. S. Simmons of Wenatchee, Wash., first on a mixed car.

An unprecedented and widespread epidemic of hog cholera has been causing thousands of hog raisers to market their stuff of late, whether ready for market or not, at prices that barely pay for the corn that has been fed them. However, if one feels that his drove will be reasonably safe from an attack of the disease and has growing shotes he can well afford to feed them and wait for a better market, which is bound to exist when the present flood of stuff being shipped is cleaned up.

An eastern firm at planting time last spring offered $50 for the heaviest yield of silage corn per acre, one condition of the contest being that a variety of corn they sold should be planted. The prize was won by a lady living in Lenawee county, Mich., who on one acre raised 70 tons and 800 pounds of fodder. The piece of land on which this was grown had been a hen yard and hog lot. The corn was drilled in seven inches apart in rows, a little phosphate was hoed in about the hills after the corn was up, and the patch was carefully cultivated.

North Carolina is carrying out a plan of good roads building that is not only deserving of the widest publicity, but of being copied in other states where the materials used are available. The type of road referred to is made of sand and clay, both of which materials are at hand. The highway is first given the convex shape by the use of the grader, so as to insure drainage, and where needed and possible the land immediately adjoining the road is drained. A layer of clay is then applied on the surface, and on top of this is spread a layer of sand, which gradually works into the clay and gives a firm and fairly durable roadbed. By using convict labor these sand-clay roads are built at a cost of about $250 per mile while macadam roads cost about $5,000 per mile.

BOOTS AND DOCTOR BILLS.

There never was a man with so strong a constitution but continued disregard of the laws of health would undermine and destroy it. We have in mind just such a case which came to our notice the other day. The young fellow in question for years took no pains to guard himself from exposure, thinking nothing of wading into the river in the spring of the year when repairing fences or of exposing himself in sleet or rain storms without putting on dry clothing afterward. He thought he could keep this up, and it seemed as if he could. But today he has symptoms of tuberculosis and is making regular visits to a doctor. It is to be hoped the disease can be headed off, but if not it can only be viewed as the direct result of carelessness. The outdoor life on the farm is most favorable to physical health, but perhaps in no other occupation is there greater exposure when one is overheated, and great care should therefore be exercised. Water tight footwear and rubber coats cost quite a bit, but they are a good deal cheaper than doctor bills.

AN IMPROVEMENT ON SERUM TREATMENT.

A Missouri farmer, H. R. Rust, who lives near Hardin, has discovered what he contends is an important fact in connection with the serum treatment of hogs for cholera. In addition to the use of the serum, which is being furnished at cost by a number of state experiment stations, he states that at the same time the serum is injected an injection should also be made of blood from a hog affected with the disease at the time it was drawn. He contends that if the serum is used alone it renders a hog immune but for a limited time, while if an injection of blood is also made the hog contracts the cholera at once and the serum injected at the same time counteracts it, with the result that the animal is rendered cholera proof for the rest of its life. Mr. Rust has a farm of 1,300 acres and within the past year claims to have given 10,000 hogs this double or simultaneous treatment and that his losses from the disease have not been more than 3 per cent.

CARE OF THE BROOD SOW.

Most of the trouble that sows have at farrowing time is due to their not receiving the right kind of ration during the weeks preceding the birth of their pigs. The difficulty does not seem to be due to any intention on the part of the owner to scrimp the ration, but rather to feeding a ration that is not well balanced. Corn is a tiptop ration to give to a steer or hog that is being fattened for market, but it should form a very small part of the ration for the brood sow. What she needs rather are feeds that will give her bone and muscle forming elements. These are most readily secured in skimmilk, bran, oats, gluten meal, barley, clover and alfalfa. Besides these feeds, which will form the basis of the ration, the sows should be given as much cob charcoal, wood ashes and fresh water as they will consume. The above ration, coupled with comfortable quarters, should insure good health for the sows and give thrifty and vigorous little pigs at farrowing time.

OUR OWN POTASH.

Some capitalists over in Germany, aided and comforted by the imperial government, sought to monopolize and set their own price on phosphate shipped to the United States. With this situation as an incentive the department of agriculture has been making some investigation, and, while the preliminary work is not yet finished, enough facts have been gathered to make clear that we have vast deposits of phosphate in our own country, more than enough to supply our needs for generations to come. Florida, Kentucky, Tennessee and Idaho are states in which deposits are located. In this case, as in many another, necessity is the mother of invention or discovery.

A CONDITION—NOT A THEORY.

Tillers of the soil and especially those interested in the production of wheat would do well to realize the meaning of the figures showing exports of wheat for the past few years. Figures compiled show that ten years ago the exports of wheat from the United States were sufficient to feed 30,000,000 people, while last year the amount of wheat exported was barely enough to feed 11,000,000 people. At this rate the balance of trade in wheat will be against us in a half dozen years. Two things are responsible for this decrease in exports—an increase in our population, but, far more than this, a rapid decrease in the productive capacity of wheat producing lands.

THE KING ROAD DRAG.

D. W. King, inventor of the road drag that usually bears his name, condensed in a recent address what he considers the most important points to keep in mind when operating the drag. He states that a two horse drag is better than one requiring four horses, that a light drag is better than a heavy one, that the road should be dragged when wet, but not sticky; that weeds should not be dragged from the side to the middle of the road, that mudholes should be filled with mud, that there is no need of digging trenches at the side of the road and that if the road drag is properly handled the road can be given the proper grade without the use of the machine grader.

The amount of butter fat a cow produces depends on the amount of milk as well as upon the quality of the milk.

The pen of White Leghorns belonging to an Englishman, Thomas Barron, still heads by a good margin in the international egg laying contest which is being conducted at the Storrs Agricultural college in Connecticut. Two New Jersey breeders hold second and third places, while an Illinois breeder comes fourth.

It is estimated that in the state of Pennsylvania alone the damage to the chestnut growing interest as a result of the chestnut blight has up to the present time amounted to $15,000,000. The state legislature recently appropriated $275,000 with which to fight the pest, and at present some fifty specialists are engaged in a campaign to check its spread.

We agree with the Duluth Herald when it comes to having twelve months of school—8 hours a day and 6 days a week. It is just as necessary for the children to have three months' vacation a year, as it is for a person to eat. POLITICAL NOTES

FROM OUR EXCHANGES ABOUT THE CONGRESSMAN-AT-LARGE

Alvah Eastman, whose friends are urging him to become a candidate for congressman-at-large, is receiving strong support from many parts of his district and if he does not win out the Independent has a guess coming.—Foley Independent.

The nice things they are saying about Alvah Eastman these days, certainly makes it look bad for any possible opponents he may have for congressman-at-large, — Walker Pilot.

Alvah Eastman, editor of the St. Cloud Journal Press, has announced himself as a candidate for congressman-at-large on the Republican ticket. Mr. Eastman is an able man and has always been a good booster for northern Minnesota. Yet he is big enough and broad enough to represent the whole state with credit if chosen for this position.—Warren Sheaf.

The long expected announcement of the candidacy of Editor Alvah Eastman, of the St. Cloud Journal Press, for the Republican nomination for congressman-at-large is at last made public.

Mr. Eastman is the only active candidate now in the field for this position and the Pioneer Journal predicts that he is so strong throughout the state that there is little danger of anyone else entering the race with any show of success.—Wadena Pioneer.

Alvah Eastman, editor of the St. Cloud Journal-Press, announced, on January 10th, his candidacy for the Republican nomination for congressman-at-large for the state of Minnesota. It is certain that Mr. Eastman will be supported by the majority of the newspapers of the state. He has been encouraged by a number of them to enter the race and has now done so. Mr. Eastman is a man who will do the fair thing by the people of the state. He states: "I should consider it a high honor to be the nominee of the Republican party of Minnesota, and have decided to be a candidate for congressman-at-large, actuated by the hopes of being of service to the people of the state."

MATCH LASTS QUICK

While Men Were on the Mat in First Round, It Promised to Be a Fine Match.

Monson Won First Fall After Twenty-Five Minutes of Hard Wrestling.

The wrestling match at the Lyceum theatre Friday evening was a good contest while it lasted. Ludwig Monson of Holt defeated John Bren after twenty-five minutes of hard wrestling, both men being evenly matched, and the match from the start looked as though it would be a good bout. Bren's weight is 160 pounds and he is a very clever athlete. He gave Monson all kinds of chances to get holds, but Monson did not seem to have any desire to take any chances with him.

Bren was the cleverest man of the two, but he was not in first class condition physically, so could not come back after the first fall. Monson had his opponent outclassed for weight, played the safe game all the time and did not give Bren much of a chance.

The Lyceum was well filled with enthusiastic sportsmen and the wrestlers were applauded for every good move they made. The big new elevated stage which has been built purposely for wrestling matches is a first class affair, one being able to see perfectly from any seat in the house.

The preliminary wrestling match between Oscar Cerny and Oscar Eggerude was on the order of a rooster fight, both boys seeming to be afraid of each other. The first fall was won by Cerny in fifteen minutes. The second round was a draw. The boys "monkeyed" around and the referee called it and his decision was a draw.

An exhibition match was pulled off after the first fall of the big match between "Curly Butch," Rolland's butcher, and Monson, which was a good exhibition. Monson threw him in about 10 minutes.

School Notes.

The enrollment of children up to December 22nd was as follows in the several schools: Lincoln High School—boys, 80; girls, 148. Knox—boys, 137; girls, 128. Central—boys, 195; girls, 177. Washington—boys, 154; girls, 176. Total, 1,195. It might be stated that the enrollment in the high school is now 239 and in the whole system quite a little above 1200.

The high school enrollment at Crookston is 265, not very much above that of Thief River Falls. The local school is increasing much more rapidly in numbers than the down river high school.

Gymnastics are held every day for all high school students. These exercises are carefully planned and give the children vigorous and valuable bodily exercise. The big gym is of more service in thus providing a place for the conservation of the health of the students than it is for a playground.

From foot to block a hog loses approximately one-sixth in weight, depending upon type, condition and feed.

While it takes a lot of them, the English sparrow makes an excellent potpie. Indirectly, too, putting sparrows in pies is an aid in safeguarding other useful birds about one's premises.

Dynamite is a mighty good agency when used with caution in the clearing of stumps from land, but it has lately been demonstrated quite conclusively that it is a woefully inadequate means of settling disputes between capital and labor.

Some idea of the prolificacy of the rat tribe is got from some figures that were kept in a campaign that was waged against them some time ago on an English estate of 2,000 acres. During a given period 31,981 rats were killed, but notwithstanding this killing there were plenty left to insure the propagation of the species.

The postoffice department at Washington seems to take an entirely reasonable and consistent attitude when it holds that patrons of rural mail routes shall not be given service unless they show some inclination along the line of keeping the roads in passable condition, which the rural carriers have to traverse in getting to their places.

While the early genealogy of the rat is shrouded in some obscurity, the rodent seems to have originated in China. It is said to have made its first appearance in England in 1738, in Paris in 1750 and in California in 1849. It scatters the germs of bubonic plague, cholera, hookworm and pellagra and in spite of all the warfare waged against it multiplies prodigiously.

Whatever the size or shape of the hog house, provision should be made for letting in a generous amount of light. It is very desirable if the arrangement of windows can be such that light will shine on some portion of the floor of the structure during the greater part of the day. Sunlight is a first rate germ destroyer and is a great aid in keeping the hog house dry and sweet and healthful.

According to figures lately compiled Texas produces more turkeys than any other state in the Union. The high prices that have prevailed during the past two or three years have served to greatly increase the raising of these big birds. From some points in southwest and west Texas from 3,000 to 4,000 birds are shipped to northern and eastern points daily during November and December.

From the standpoint of the maintenance of soil fertility—and this, after all, is the only true basis for determining whether a given type of agriculture is good or not—it can only be viewed as a misfortune when, as is the case just now, beef and pork are both so low that the feeder does not feel like running the risk of feeding them high priced corn, but instead markets his grain in the raw.

A fellow has a good prospect of grief and disappointment ahead when he swaps the old farm, whose productive capacity he is sure of, for a stock of merchandise, a hotel or livery barn of decidedly uncertain value and of the conduct of which he knows little or nothing. We have known of just such cases as this where in the windup the victims didn't own anything except their clothes and with so little credit left that they could scarce get trusted for a week's board.

One of the interesting as well as quite remarkable fruit records of 1911 was made by a 1,200 acre orchard of seven-year-old Elberta peach trees located in Pike county, Ark. The gross returns are placed at $300,000 and expenses at $100,000, leaving a net profit of $200,000 from a tract of land that was bought for $5 an acre eight or nine years ago. The tract in question was a cut over timber tract, the surface soil being gravelly loam and the subsoil a red clay. The season's output of fruit was 250 cars that averaged $1,500 per car.

The other day a Minnesota farmer who for some time prior had not had any confidence in the stability or soundness of banks as places of safe deposit went upstairs in his house to get some $1,500 which he had worked hard to accumulate and which he had concealed just beneath the floor. On removing the piece of floor he found not the bills that he had placed there in the past with such a feeling of security, but a nicely rounded bunch of greenish white fuzz and scraps inclosing a cozy rats' nest. This fellow has learned his lesson, but by mighty expensive instruction.

The stains that gather so quickly on the inside of the coffeepot may be easily removed by boiling in it a fairly strong solution of baking soda. If one treatment doesn't do the business, repeat.

One of the latest baits recommended for catching wall eyed pike is strips of orange peeling. It seems to be the bright color of the bait rather than any value it possesses for food that attracts the fish.

The Northwestern Greening is a late and none too prolific bearer, rots quickly if bruised and has none too good a texture, but it has when full ripe a twang and spiciness that are surpassed by not more than two or three other varieties.

A fellow's real patriotism—interest in the welfare of his community and country—is not measured by his fine buildings, bursting cribs and mows and sleek animals, but by the pains he takes to inform himself of the important issues of his time and to cast his vote on election day.

The Colorado blue spruce is a beautiful tree in its native habitat on the hill slopes and in the valleys of the Rockies, but it is even more thrifty and beautiful if given the special care possible when set as an ornament for lawn or park. From the standpoint of vigor, symmetry and color effect no conifer surpasses it.

A good many folks who make light in a general way of the danger of one's contracting tuberculosis from dairy cows afflicted with the disease are not at all anxious to have their own children use the milk from such animals. It is merely a case in which a trouble is not so bad provided it is "on" somebody else, say over in the next county.

Mowing the lawn in the middle of October may improve the looks of it for a brief time, but unless there is a good mulch of well rotted manure applied to enrich the soil and protect the roots of the grass from winter thawing and freezing the practice is not advisable. Grass needs a rest just like folks, and it's a pretty good plan to do no cutting after Sept. 20.

There is no tool that gives as good results in freshly cleared land and is as economical in operation from the standpoint of both horsepower and patience as the disk harrow. This holds both in getting the land in shape for a crop and tending it while growing. The advantage of the disk for the purposes mentioned is appreciated by any one who has operated one of the old break pin cultivators on a rooty field.

If the housewife has a small sized fish to bake she will find an easy as well as a very satisfactory way to do it to cut the fish along the backbone so as to lay it open and then cover it nicely with the stuffing which one prefers, a breadcrumb dressing seasoned with sage and onion being excellent. This method of baking not only keeps the fish moist and tender, but gives a brown crust to the covering which is very appetizing.

Some one has figured out that if every boy in the country would eat five apples a day for the next three months it would require all the apples which have been produced in the country this year and would insure a fair price to the growers. Another thing about this boy-apple combination is that it is just as good for the boy as it is for the apple market. Five apples a day will merely keep the average boy's digestive organs in good working order.

A point that the dweller in the well watered central and eastern states should keep in mind on going into the dry country west of meridian 100 degrees is that, while one acre of pasture in his native section will keep a steer or five head of sheep, it requires from eight to fifteen times as much land in the dry belt to furnish a like amount of forage. This is not said to the detriment of the land of the short grass, but simply for the information of the settler who may not be aware of the fact.

Many newly set family orchards that we know, like many boys and girls, need some attention just now if they are going to develop into anything symmetrical and valuable later on. As regards these young trees they should have their rangy, sprawling tops cut back so as to give a sturdier and more shapely head or frame, while cross or ill shaped limbs should be taken out entirely. This work is done easily now, while the trees are in the formative stage, while the results secured are in every way more satisfactory than if the job is postponed

Feats of Archery.

In the days when the buffalo was found in vast herds on the western plains there were Indians who, while riding at a gallop, could send an arrow through a buffalo's body. Remarkable as this archery was, yet it did not equal that reached by the archers of ancient times. It is of record that the MacRaes of Gairlock, Scotland, were such skillful archers that they could hit a man at the distance of 500 yards. In 1794 the Turkish ambassador at London shot an arrow, in a field near that capital, 415 yards against the wind and 482 yards with the wind. The secretary of the ambassador, on hearing the expressions of surprise from the English gentlemen present, said the sultan had shot 500 yards. This was the greatest performance of modern days, but a pillar, standing on a plain near Constantinople, recorded shots ranging up to 800 yards. Sir Robert Ainslie, British ambassador to the sublime port, records that in 1798 he was present when the sultan shot an arrow 972 yards.—New York Press.

Mark Twain's German Coffee.

German coffee must have given Mark Twain a pain, judging from the following recipe which he gave for its concoction:

Take a barrel of water and bring it to a boil; rub a chicory berry against a coffee berry, then convey the former into the water. Continue the boiling and evaporation until the intensity of the flavor and aroma of the coffee and chicory have been diminished to a proper degree; then set aside to cool. Now unharness the remains of a once cow from the plow, insert them in a hydraulic press, and, when you shall have acquired a teaspoonful of that pale blue juice which a German superstition regards as milk, modify the malignity of its strength in a bucket of tepid water and bring up the breakfast. Mix the beverage in a cold cup, partake with moderation, and keep a wet rag around your head to guard against over excitement.

Clever Crows.

In a garden a dog was eating a piece of meat in the presence of four covetous crows. They evidently said a great deal to one another on the subject, and now and then one of them tried to pull the meat away from the dog, which he naturally resented. At last a big, strong crow succeeded in tearing off a piece, with which he returned to the tree where the others congregated. A long powwow now ensued, which ended in all four crows flying down to the dog, the leading crow dexterously dropping the small piece of meat within reach of his mouth. The dog immediately snapped at it, unwisely letting go the big piece, which was seized by two crows and carried to the tree, where it was devoured with much fluttering and hilarity, while the cheated dog walked away with every appearance of discomfiture.—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

A Notorious English Spendthrift.

Among the customers at Long's, the famous hotel in Bond street, was the last Marquis of Hastings, the most notorious of mid-Victorian spendthrifts. Hastings, according to one who knew him well, "gambled so that not even the Bank of England, backed by the Rothschilds, with the mines of the Transvaal as additional supports, could have withstood the strain."

Yet even he protested at Long's when charged 2s. 6d. for a whisky and soda. The proprietor declared that this had always been the charge. "About time it was altered, then," retorted the marquis. Just before his death Hastings remarked to a friend: "I've made a pretty hash of my life. About all the good I've ever done was to bring down the price of a whisky and soda at Long's."—London Express.

Henley and Stevenson.

W. E. Henley once met Robert Louis Stevenson and found his friend distressed because he was not a Voltaire or a Dumas, though he had an equipment which ought to have made him their peer. Stevenson put his "failure" down to the weakness of his lungs. "Perhaps you are right, Louis," said Henley. "I've always felt that if I had not been a blessed cripple I could have taken the earth in my hand and hurled it into the sun."

COMPANY HELD RESPONSIBLE

State Railroad Commission Recommends Criminal Prosecution for Disaster at Odessa.

Placing blame on the railroad company for "winking at" its employes who violate train rules and on the employes for violating them the state railroad and warehouse commission filed with the attorney general a report on the wreck of the Columbian limited on the St. Paul road and recommended criminal prosecution.

At least nine men were guilty of a violation of rules which resulted in the death of ten persons and the maiming of eighteen, the commission holds.

Wearied, too, with the claims advanced by numerous roads that the cars of their finest trains are of all steel construction the commission recommends a system of government inspection of the construction of cars, rails and all steel work used in the manufacture of cars.

"The increasing number of accidents caused by broken rails," the commission's report says, "and switches; and the imperfect condition of certain portions of equipment, make it very apparent that the interests of both the public and the railway companies will be best subserved by having such inspection."

Three of the guilty employes, says the report, knew that they were violating the rules. "The practice of violating rules," the commissioners say, "taken in connection with certain admissions made at the hearing, shows that the railroad company should be charged with knowledge that their rules are frequently disobeyed and the commission cannot refrain from condemning this condition." The block in which the wreck occurred is twenty miles long and is declared too long for practical operation, so employes are compelled to "take a chance," and their acts have been winked at by higher officials.

WRECK ON GREAT WESTERN

Three Coaches Derailed and Five Persons Injured.

Five persons were injured and 100 others badly shaken up when Chicago Great Western passenger train No. 42, bound from Minneapolis to Rochester, was ditched by a broken rail and crashed into an embankment ten miles north of Red Wing.

The two engines pulling the train and the first two cars passed over the broken rail safely, but the dining car, parlor car and smoker were derailed and crashed into the high bluff. Had they left the track on the other side the cars would have toppled down a fifteen-foot embankment into the Cannon river.

All three coaches that left the track were badly smashed and are almost a total loss. Although coal fires were burning in all the cars they were extinguished before the fire could spread.

WINONA STRIKE STILL ON

Federal Court Refuses Petition of Motormen to Interfere.

The striking street railway motormen at Winona have received word of the denial by Judge Willard of the federal court at Minneapolis to issue an order requiring the company to show cause why the striking men should not be reinstated.

An international officer of the motormen's union is expected and further efforts will be made to end the strike.

Most of the cars now are in operation and there has been no trouble for over a week.

The Waterman-Waterbury building, owned by James J. Hill, was completely destroyed and with it the Continental hotel and saloon, owned by the Schlitz Brewing company. The fire was spectacular.

Believed New Elections Will Be Followed by the Franchise for Women—Ideal Holiday Weather Marks the Christmas Season in Norway—Woman Suffrage Making Considerable Headway in Denmark.

SWEDEN.

The American Review of Reviews, in an article in its December number entitled "The World Movement for Woman Suffrage," says:

"Sweden gave municipal suffrage to taxpaying widows and spinsters in 1862. At that time and for many years afterward not one-tenth of the men had a vote. Then came the rise of the Liberal party and the Social Democracy, and by 1909 the new franchise law had been enacted, which immensely increased the number of men voters, extended the municipal suffrage to wives, greatly reduced the tax qualifications, and made women eligible to all offices for which they could vote. At the last election thirty-seven were elected to the councils of thirty-four towns, eleven in the five largest. The Woman Suffrage association is said to be the best organized body in the country, its branches extending beyond the Arctic circle. It has over 12,000 paid members and has held 1,550 meetings within a year. In 1909 a bill to extend the full suffrage to women passed the Second chamber of the parliament unanimously, but was defeated by four to one in the First chamber, representing the aristocracy. This year the Suffrage association made a strong campaign for the Liberal and Social Democratic parties and a large majority of their candidates were elected. The Conservative cabinet was deposed and the king has called for a new election of the First chamber. As its members are chosen by the provincial councils and those of the five largest cities, and women have a vote for these bodies and are members of them, they will greatly reduce the number of Conservative members of the upper house. On the final passage of a suffrage bill the two chambers must vote jointly and it seems assured of a majority. It looks as if Sweden would be the next country to enfranchise women."

A rumor regarding the recall of the Swedish officers who went to Persia to help train the Persian army has recently appeared in the Helsingfors Dagblad. The recall should, according to the rumor, have been ordered by King Gustav himself at the polite request of the Russian government. This is all that is known at present, except that when last heard from the Swedish officers were in Baku, which would indicate that they were actually on their way to Persia. Inasmuch as German, French and British army officers have many times been engaged by smaller countries to give military instruction the fact that twenty Swedish officers have been engaged by the Persian government to give military instructions to its army is not looked upon as anything unusual in Sweden or other European countries.

The Lund University Male Chorus gave a concert in Copenhagen recently. Several members of the royal family were present. The Danish newspapers were profuse in their praise of the singing and seemed to vie with each other in giving the singers a send off. The Politiken said: "They were applauded as only the irresistible are applauded. Swedish male singing is and remains a national specialty which we Danes only can admire, never attain. Its organ strains, its crescendos and diminuendoes, its peculiar lyric ring, must create beauty, must make an impression."

The Crown Princess Margareta, herself an enthusiastic sportswoman, has in several ways evinced her interest in Swedish sport. The revised hymn book for the church of Sweden is now ready for the press and the revision committee has given it over to the ecclesiastical department for publication. The new book will have 636 hymns. About seventy hymns of the book of 1819 have been omitted and about 200 new ones, not found in the edition of 1819, have been added in the new book.

NORWAY.

Holiday weather, the real ideal Northern winter, was a feature of this year's Christmas in Central and Southern Norway. The old fashioned "yule spirit," upheld in Norway as perhaps in no other country with the exception of its brotherland, Sweden, prevailed to the fullest, and hundreds of sons and daughters from the land of the Far West spent the ever popular "Julafton" with friends and relatives, in many cases a father, mother or sweetheart, and the reminiscences which were brought forth were both pathetic and joyful. "Yuletide" and "New Year's" mean worlds of good things to the men of the North and they celebrate the period with a thoroughness and sacredness that makes itself felt throughout all the world.

Great scientific knowledge is expected to be gained from the new wireless telegraph station established at Green Harbor and recently the Aftenposten at Christiania contained an interesting account of the first message which was received in that city. A part of the telegram read: "There are 150 persons wintering at Spitzbergen, among whom are six women and two children, one being only one year old. All are doing well." The fact that wireless messages can now be sent to Europe from Spitzbergen, one of the most northernmost points in the world where civilized human beings dwell, means wonderful things to the advancement of civilization.

They have at last been placed under arrest and predictions are that it will go hard with them.

DENMARK.

Women's suffrage has been gaining no little headway in Denmark. Her parliament in 1908 gave the municipal suffrage to women on the same terms as exercised by men—that is, to all over twenty-five years of age who pay taxes. Property owned by husband or wife or in common entitles each to a vote. At the first election 68 per cent of all the enfranchised women in the country and 70 per cent in Copenhagen voted. Seven were elected to the city council of forty-two members and one was afterwards appointed to fill a vacancy, and 127 were elected in other places. Women serve on all committees and are chairmen of important ones; two are city treasurers. There are two Suffrage associations whose combined membership makes the organization of that country in proportion to population the largest of its kind in the world. They have 314 local branches and one of the associations has held 1,100 meetings during the past year. The lower house of parliament has passed a bill to give women the complete franchise, which has not been acted on by the upper house, composed mainly of the aristocracy. The prime minister and the speakers of both houses are outspoken in their advocacy of enfranchising women, but political considerations are holding it back. All say, however, that it will come in the near future. Iceland, the faraway Arctic dependency of Denmark with its own parliament, gave municipal suffrage in 1882 to all widows and spinsters who were householders or maintained a family, or were self supporting. In 1902 it made these voters eligible to all municipal offices and since then a fourth of the council members of Reykjavik, the capital, have been women. In 1909 this franchise was extended to all those who pay taxes. A petition signed by a large majority of all the women in Iceland asked for the complete suffrage and during the present year the parliament voted to give this to all women over twenty-five years of age. It must be acted upon by a second parliament, but its passage is assured and Icelandic women will vote on the same terms as men in 1913.

SCHOOL NOTES

With the exception of some frozen pipes, the schools suffered none from the recent cold spell. The janitors spared neither fuel nor energy in maintaining a comfortable temperature in the buildings throughout the very cold weather.

The Talk of the Town.

The great sale at the E. & E. Clothing Co. which opened last Saturday is the most talked of sale ever held in this city or Pennington county. Preparations for this great sale had been made to receive a large number of people, but when the crowd of eager buyers had come to the I. L. Erickson's Store last Saturday the entire force of 25 clerks and the management found themselves almost overpowered. There was hardly standing room, and it was with difficulty that the people could be waited upon.

Mr. Erickson tells us, the opening day was the largest single days business in the Store's history. Mr. Erickson declares that they did an ordinary months business on the opening day. Notice the advertisement on the last page in this paper. Sale closes Saturday Jan 27th.

TOTAL LOSS BY FIRE

Langseth Merc. Co.'s Store Totally Wrecked ---Fire Supposed to Have Started in Basement --- Was Insured.

One of the Greatest Fires Seen in This City For a Number of Years---Firemen Had Long, Cold Fight.

Langseth Mercantile Company's store totally destroyed by fire last night; one of the biggest fires in Thief River Falls for years; fiiremen work all night, wet and cold; residents on second floor barely escape with clothing which they wore; unable to save anything.

At seven o'clock Wednesday evening fire was discovered in the Langseth Mercantile Co's. store on LaBree avenue and 3rd street. The alarm was immediately turned in, and the firemen responded very rapidly; but when they arrived (not five minutes after the alarm) the fire had made great headway, the interior of the grocery and hardware departments being a mass of flames.

No great trouble was had in making hose connections, four streams of water were put on the blaze. It looked as though they would not be able to save the frame structure, but after the water had been put on from 7:15 to 11:00 o'clock the firemen had it well under control. It was 3 o'clock before all blazes were extinguished and a few of the firemen were obliged to stay for the rest of the night.

Four special men were appointed by the Company to watch their interests; the clothing department was not touched by the fire but thoroughly drenched by the water and well smoked.

There is no portion of the building which was not wrecked in some manner. The Langseth store was one of the city's land marks, being built in the early days, when the country surrounding Thief River Falls was thickly settled by the "Red Skins", Langseth Brothers being the founders in the early days, and it has since been one of the largest department stores in the city.

Families occupying the second floor of the building were unable to save anything. As we go to press we are unable to get full particulars. At 9 o'clock this morning the firemen were still at work. Next week we will furnish a complete statement of all particulars.

ASKS FOR GOV. AID

Northwestern Development League To Ask for Aid From Government. To Give Information to Foreigners.

The latest move of the Northwest Development League is to ask the federal government to collect, publish in different languages and distribute to foreigners as soon as they arrive on our shores, all the information possible about the states having vacant lands, about their products and the opportunities awaiting a family willing to work and having only small means.

To accomplish this the league is backing a bill introduced in the United States Senate by Senator Brown of Nebraska, which amends the act to regulate the admission of aliens into the United States and makes it obligatory on the part of the General Immigration Commissioner to give this information to foreigners when they are admitted to the United States. The League is asking Congressman Pray of Montana to push the bill in the house and to introduce one making an appropriation to carry the provisions of the act.

The Secretary of Commerce and Labor is understood to be favorable to the proposition and willing to make a success of the campaign if the bills are passed.

Another clause in the amendment makes it lawful for agents of states and territories to have access to aliens at the port where foreigners are admitted and gives them the privilege, under certain regulations, of presenting the claims of such states and territories either in writing or orally that the aliens may learn first hand where they go to farm.

"Many of these immigrants were farmers in the old country and would go to farms instead of to cities if they had some information from a reliable source when they first come to the country," says the Secretary of the league. "The trouble is they do not get the information until after they become acquainted in some city and are stripped of the means to start—on lands. Many of them have the resources when they arrive but spend their last dollar before they discover that it would have been possible for them to have secured land. Then they are hopelessly bound to the city and it is hard for them to get again as much as they had when they arrived."

Letter of Thanks.

We wish to thank our many friends and patrons of Thief River Falls and surrounding country for the generous manner in which they have patronized our great Sale during the past 10 days. The business that has been done exceeded by many thousands of dollars our highest expectations. There must be a reason for this enormous business, as you can readily see, the people took advantage of our many bargains. If you haven't attended this great sale, better step in tomorrow, and take advantage of our great offerings.

Sale positively closes Sat. night Jan. 27th at 10 p. m.

Sincerely Yours,
The E. & E. Clothing Co.

ANOTHER MATCH

Another Match Has Been Arranged for. To Be Pulled Off Tonight at the Lyceum Theatre.

The promoter of the wrestling matches has made arrangements for a good fast bout to be put on tonight between Ludvig Monson and Otto Norland of Bronson. This, it is assured, will be a good, fast match and a wrestle to the finish.

The promoter requested the publication of the following statement:

"Owing to misfortunes in the last two matches, two good emergency men heve been arranged for, to wrestle best two out of three falls. Messrs. Monson and Norland are also signed up to wrestle to a finish or receive no money, accidents excepted. This will assure everyone that they will get their money's worth and no one can leave the house and say they have been Faked."—The Promoter.

Good preliminaries have been arranged for, and are to start at 10:30 p. m. sharp. The big elevated stage recently built enables everyone to see perfectly from any seat in the house. Stage seats are 75 cents and any other seat in the house may be had for 50 cents.

Catch as catch can, best two out of three falls. Norland is a little bit the heavier of the two men. Monson is very clever and has won several bouts in this city, so the public may bank on him as being a good man. Both men have been devoting their entire time to wrestling and are able to put on a good match, which they will do. Wm. Smith will referee.

COUNCIL MEETING

Wm. Smith Gave a Good Report on the Managem ent of the Auditorium Before a Large Crowd.

Wm. Smith, in an address to the council Tuesday night at which he had personally invited the business men and all other interested citizens, answered the article which appeared id the Press last week, comparing receipts of the Auditorium under his managment with those of his predecessor.

Mr. Smith began his address with a citation of accounts of the former manager, the city clerk, by request, verifying the figures. According to this, in all cases but one the receipts for ticket sales and the amount deposited varied from $3 to $10 and more. This, he said, might be accounted to expense. In nearly all cases the receipts were not deposited until after due, sometimes as late as one month after the attraction had played. It was noted that in a few instances no certificates of deposit could be found.

As a statement of his own accounts, Mr. Smith produced a balance sheet which he had printed at the time he took the duties of manager. This sheet showed the name of the attraction, the number of tickets at each different price received from the city clerk, with the ticket seller's receipt for the same; the number of tickets sold at each different price and the number of tickets returned to the city clerk, with the clerk's receipt for the same. Every complimentary ticket issued, and to whom issued, was accounted for. This balance sheet was sworn to by Mr. Smith. The bank's certificates of deposit were also produced.

No action was taken by the council, however, as this was a special meeting, called for the transaction of other business.

MAY FLY HERE

J. J. Ward, (Jimmy Wilson) Who Spent Boyhood Days at Crookston, Visits Friends There.

Is Booked for Entire Coming Season, but Could Fly at T.R.F., Crookston and St. Hilaire in May.

The Crookston Times gave out the following story.

J. J. Ward, the noted aviator, who spent his boyhood in Crookston, has just returned to Chicago for a conference with the company, which has booked him for flights during the entire season, beginning June 1st. Prior to that time he will return to Crookston, where he is known as "Jimmy Wilson," give an exhibition flight here and make a cross-country flight to St. Hilaire and Thief River Falls, his parents now residing at St. Hilaire and operating a restaurant.

Ward wore $2,000 worth of diamonds when here and, and spent the evening with boyhood friends in the new Elks club rooms. He stated this would be his last year of flying, as he intended to take up the work of designing and manufacturing aeroplanes after this year.

While no deal was closed for a flight here, at Thief River Falls and St. Hilaire in May, he made an offer that none of the towns can afford to pass up. Because of his boyhood days having been passed here, and his desire to give his parents and old-time friends an opportunity to see him in action, he is willing to make the flight for the bare expense of shipping his machine here and bringing his men here.

Thus a great opportunity is presented for three simultaneous market days for the three towns, or some special day, and there could be no question as to the crowds which such an exhibition would attract. The matter is being taken up by the business men of the three places. Thief River Falls has already signified its willingness to do its share, and Crookston, without question, should close the deal at the earliest possible moment before Ward changes his mind.

Ward promises an exhibition that will raise the hair of his spectators. The aviators which have been seen in this section have only traveled 25 or 30 miles per hour. Ward's machine is speeded up to 75 miles per hour and when conditions are right can negotiate 90 miles an hour easily and a duck's flight will be duplicated here if conditions warrant great speed. He will also do some very fancy work such as has never been seen in the Northwest.

On Monday of the next week Frank Jackson who lives on the east side, made an inquiry and purchased the team, at a consideration of $145. The for sale notice cost the advertiser 20c. He got immediate results for 20c. and we would suggest that if you have a want, for sale or any kind of a notice, have it inserted in the NEWS want ad column, and you are sure to get results.

FOR SALE—One yoke of oxen with harness; weight four thousand pounds; 8 years old; well broke. Will be sold cheap if taken at once. Inquire at this office.

"Hope to Hear Him Again."

The artist who paints with color and brush or fingers the chords of harmony and symphony upon the musical instruments depends largely upon the mechanical ingenuity and cleverness of physical motion, but he who paints a story in paraphrase and words must needs possess the larger and finer resources of an energetic and productive brain power. Such an artist is Mr. Fred S. Attwood, the Blind Optimist, who entertained a large audience here Monday evening. His lecture on "Happiness" was most cleverly woven in humor and pathos from beginning to end, and his critical audience was probably never before so well pleased with a lecture given here. Among the many pleasing and highly instructive features of the lecture were the elegance of diction and the perfect enunciation of the speaker's word's, while his illustrations and sequels bring the attentive listener into close sympathy and clear understanding of the subject in hand. About a hundred and fifty people were present and many expressed the hope of an early return date.—Canby, (Minn.) News. Mr. Attwood will be at the Auditorium in this city, Friday, January 26th. No admission will be charged. Be sure to attend.

First Class.

At the Lyceum theatre the first part of the week appeared Cardinal & Cardinal, presenting "The Basking Italians," consisting of high class music, buck and wing dancing, waltz clog dancing and harp solos. This act is one of the best that the management of the Lyceum has secured, it is an act that surpasses the majority of acts on the vaudeville circuit.

The pictures that have been shown at the popular play house are all of the latest and best that can be secured. The shows which are being put on are well worth the price of admission. The illustrated songs are also of the best.

C. Locken and D. B. Backe went up to Holt last Friday on business.

TIME IS EXTENDED

The Following Letter Received in Regard to Making Proof on Land East of Here.

Time Has Been Extended to Eight Years Instead of Six Yeare as Stated Before.

Department of the Interior,
United States Land Office,
Crookston, Minn. Jan. 23, 1912.
The News,
Thief River Falls, Minn.
Gentlemen:—

Under the date of Jan. 20 1912, the Commissioner of the General Land Office forwards to us a copy of his letter of the same date addressed to Congressman Steenerson, relative to the statutory life of entries in the "Eleven Towns." This ruling considerably modifies the construction heretofore placed on the regulations governing entries in this area and we desire to give the matter such publicity as will correct wrong impressions:

This letter is as follows:

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, Jan. 20, 1912.
Hon. H. Steenerson,
House of Representatives.
My Dear Mr. Steenerson:

I am in receipt of your letter of the 16th inst., asking for information relative to the statutory life of homestead entries made under the act of February 20, 1904, (33 Stat. 45), for ceded Red Lake Indian Reservation lands, it appearing that there is considerable uncertainty among such entrymen, by reason of the two acts extending the time within which the installment payments might be made.

One of these extensions was granted by the act of March 26, 1910, (36 Stat. 265), which allowed two years additional time. You will probably remember that sometime after the passage of this act, the matter was taken up personally by the commissioner with Senator Nelson and yourself, and your attention was directed to the fact that the act would probably fail to afford relief to many of the very persons in whose behalf it was enacted, who had made entries during the first sale, and even with the two years additional time, would still be in default in their installment payments. It was then stated that the act would be construed by this office to grant two years additional time from its date, thus extending the time, within which paymnts might be made, to March. 26, 1912, and letters subsequently written by this office are doubtless the basis on which the local officers have advised entrymen that the statutory life of their entries will expire on March 26 1912.

The first extension act affecting these lands was that of June 21, 1906, (34 Stat. 325, 326), which applied, with some exceptions, to ceded Indian Reservation lands generally in Minnesota. The instructions thereunder general in nature, and it was stated that the extension of time for making payments involved a corresponding time in which to make final proof: However, in the case of the Red Lake lands, an extending of time to make proof did not necessarily follow, as, while it was required that the installment payments be completed within five years from the date of sale, proof was permitted to be made within six years from date of sale, consequently, the extension of time to make payment simply made the time, within which payment might be made, identical with the statutory life of the entry.

Construing the act of March 26,

To this the Danish committee answered: "Since strong antagonism has appeared between our views and those of Mr. Roberts, with regard to what is good art and what is suitable for exposition between the two countries, we regret to state that we must discontinue the negotiations about the Danish art exposition in Brighton in 1913."

THE INVESTIGATIONS OF FOREIGN MISSIONS

Pastor Russell, Gen. W. P. Hall and Others Reach Singapore.

In His Public Address Pastor Russell Declares, In the Words of St. Paul, "Of a Truth I Perceive That God Is No Respecter of Persons"—Various Beliefs Dissected.

PASTOR RUSSELL

Singapore, January 28.—Pastor Russell's text for today was, "Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons, but in every nation he that feareth Him and worketh righteousness is accepted of Him." (Acts x, 34, 35.) A brief report of his excellent address follows:—

Never before have I seen so cosmopolitan a city as Singapore. The swarms of Chinese, Malays, Hindoos, Javanese, Siamese, Singhalese, Burmese, Afghans, Madrassi, Tamils and many other nationalities are here interspersed by representatives of practically every nation in the world. The sight of these commingled peoples, only a few of whom know of, worship, or in any wise acknowledge "the Only True God, and Jesus Christ whom He hath sent," stirs my heart, and my head as well.

We recognize the clear statements of the Apostle that "Without faith it is impossible to please God (Hebrews xi, 6); and "How shall they believe in Him of whom they have not heard?" (Romans x, 14) and also the commission: "This Gospel of the Kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness."

Tried and Found Wanting.

A considerable class of very good people by their creeds tell us that if God had foreordained the heathen to salvation He would have seen to it that the Gospel was preached to them; and that their not hearing the Gospel signifies that God "passed them by" as "non-elect;" that the "elect" are to be found only amongst those who have been favored of God and who accept that favor and are "sanctified."

Another class of people by their creeds, which no longer truly represent them, tell us that they believe as above, only that they add another condition, namely, that "the elect," in order to be of "the elect," must be brought to a knowledge of water baptism—complete immersion—and must obey this teaching.

Another theory held denies that there is "election," and denies that any quantity of water is necessary, although it does recommend a little. This theory declares God's love for the heathen, but says that He made faith in Jesus' sacrificial death a condition of salvation and that the responsibility for the heathen's not knowing, and consequently their going to eternal torment, rests with Christians themselves. They say that God did His part in providing the Savior, and that the carrying of this knowledge is wholly dependent upon Christians. One would think that with this view few Christians would be able to sleep a single night.

Some dear people, holding the views last mentioned, have started a "Men and Religion Forward Movement." They propose to use about two million dollars in starting the movement and thereby to collect a fund of thirty million dollars (six million pounds). Dear people! How I love them for their zeal, even though it be as the Apostle said, "not according to knowledge." (Romans x, 2.) If they could stand in Singapore's streets and journey with us a little the eyes of their understanding would be opened. They would begin to figure out that the sum they expect to spend in converting the world would be little over half a penny per soul! The United States Government statistics show that a century ago the numbers of heathen were six hundred millions and that today the number is double.

A Better Hope Found.

Some, repudiating the creeds of the past as no longer tenable, fault the Bible with being the basis for those creeds and abandon it with the creeds.

Let us, on the contrary, declare that the difficulty with the creeds of the past has been that they divided up the Word of God amongst them, and that each creed has a certain amount of gold as well as a large accumulation of dross. It would be too serious an undertaking for finites to put all the creeds into a crucible and separate the gold from the dross. Let us take the easier, the simpler method, to which all Christian people should be willing to accede, namely: to wholly cast aside our creeds and go back to the Word of God—to the Bible—to the utterances of Jesus, the Apostles and Prophets.

St. Paul's declaration is that the Word of God is sufficient that the man of God may be fully furnished. (II Timothy iii, 17.) His further suggestion is that we "rightly divide the Word of Truth," and that "it is able to make us wise unto salvation." Let us follow this course and allow God's Word to be its own interpreter—allow one passage to throw light upon another, and thus let us reject none of the Divine testimony, but, bringing the whole together, find therein the Wisdom of God, the Justice of God, the Love of God, the Power of God unto salvation, to every one that believeth.

CHARGED WITH JEWEL THEFT

Scion of Noble English Family Arrested at Minneapolis.

Wilfred Stuart Sheldon-Dickason, said to be the scion of an English noble family, whose social ambitions have carried him into the homes of the best families of Minneapolis for the last nine months, is locked up in the Mill City Central police station charged with the theft of diamonds and jewelry valued at $2,950 from Mrs. Olga von W. Haskell, well known in St. Paul and Minneapolis society.

Arrested with him on suspicion of knowing something of the disappearance of the jewels is George Haskell, son of Mrs. Haskell and of W. E. Haskell, now of Washington, D. C., formerly owner of the Boston Herald and still earlier owner of the Minneapolis Times and at one time with his father of the Minneapolis Journal.

Dickason strenuously denies knowledge of the diamonds or jewelry. For five weeks he has been the guest of the Haskell family at their home and remained there until a few days ago. The jewels were missed ten days ago and a quiet search instituted.

DYGART GOES UP FOR LIFE

James T. Dygart, thirty-two years of ago, pleaded guilty in district court at Anoka to a charge of murder in the second degree for the killing of Mrs. Walter Bolton and her cousin, Frank S. Rhodes, at the Bolton farm in Anoka county on Sept. 11 last.

His attorney, John P. Nash of Minneapolis, said that his client wished to have the charge changed from first degree murder to the lesser charge, to which he would plead guilty. The prosecutor consented and the court accordingly passed sentence of life imprisonment in the state prison at Stillwater.

Judge Giddings, after questioning the prisoner, said he regretted that the law recently had been so amended that capital punishment had been abolished. Dygart inquired whether the law could not be "changed back." Asked if he would prefer to have it so, he said he would "just as soon."

Former University President Will Not Enter Politics.

Dr. Cyrus Northrop, former president of the state university, will not permit the use of his name for political honors. In a statement given out at Minneapolis he announced his definite decision not to be a candidate, either for governor or for congressman at large from Minnesota. The statement, beyond which he would say nothing, follows:

"I am very greatly obliged to all the friends who have given me advice on the subject of my being a candidate for congressman at large or for governor—and I thank them all, whether their advice has been for or against my being a candidate; but I have decided the matter and shall not be a candidate for either position."

ORE ROAD MEN SUMMONED

Officials of Range Railroads Ordered Before Steel Trust Probers.

Officials of the Duluth and Iron Range and the Duluth, Missabe and Northern railroads, the lines in the Lake Superior region owned by the steel trust, have been summoned to appear before the house committee of inquiry into the United States Steel corporation.

Representative Stanley, chairman of the committee, announced that the inquiry for some time will be directed into the transportation charges for the shipment of ore, which, it is contended, are exorbitant and greatly to the disadvantage of independent shippers.

ATTACKS WIFE AND RESCUER

Minneapolis Man Runs Amuck With Revolver.

Anton Anderson shot and seriously wounded his wife, Carrie Anderson, at Minneapolis. Anderson also put two bullets into Benjamin Johnson, who rushed to the rescue of the woman. Both are now at the city hospital, where it is said they will recover, while Anderson is being held at the North Side station.

No motive for the shooting is known. Anderson was sent to the Rochester insane asylum a year ago and was released as cured last spring.

Mayor Dumas of Cass Lake, Minn., Again Indicted.

The grand jury in the federal district court at Fergus Falls has returned a joint indictment against Dr. Dumas, Martin Behan and Mike Davis, charging them with "conspiring to commit an offense against the United States government," the crime being the alleged attempt to rob the Puposky (Minn.) postoffice.

Vicious Dog Bites Eight.

Eight persons were bitten at St. Paul by a large St. Bernard dog before the police of Central and Rondo stations, in which districts the canine was on a rampage, succeeded in capturing it. None of the persons attacked was severely injured, but the majority had their Sunday clothing torn to shreds.

GEN. HALL AND PARTY IN THE PHILIPPINES

Pastor Russell Speaks to Crowds In Manila.

Foreign Missions Investigation Committee Given Every Means For Noting Civil and Missionary Activities Amongst the Filipinos—Pastor Russell Tells Auditors That Christ's Kingdom, When Established on Earth, Will Exercise Autocratic Power.

Manila, Jan. 14th.—Gen. W. P. Hall, second in command of the U. S. Army and at one time Military Governor of the Philippines, is here in company with Pastor C. T. Russell, Prof. F. H. Robison, Dr. L. W. Jones, Mr. J. T. D. Pyles, Mr. E. W. V. Kuehn and Mr. R. B. Maxwell, the special Committee of Foreign Missions Investigation, appointed by the International Bible Students Association. They were heartily welcomed and given every facility for noting civil and missionary activities amongst the Filipinos. Pastor Russell gave two addresses today to large audiences, chiefly Americans. We report his address from the text, "Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth, as it is done in heaven." He said:—

Many of us have learned to appreciate a Republican form of government as the very highest type of civil administration. Nevertheless, the Bible teaches that Messiah's reign will be that of a Monarchy; not only so, it will be a very exclusive and aristocratic Monarchy. Additionally, it will be most autocratic—theocratic. At first, in alarm, we are ready to say, Would not that be a most dangerous condition of things? Ordinarily yes, but when I shall describe the nature of the Kingdom and its personnel, all your fears will assuredly vanish.

Scripturally, the Kingdom is described as Earth's Fifth Universal Empire. I remind you of the Divinely inspired dream of King Nebuchadnezzar, as interpreted by the Prophet Daniel. The great image of Daniel ii, 31 was described as representing the four successive Universal Empires of earth—Babylon, Medo-Persia, Grecia and Rome. No fifth Universal Empire has been possible; hence the failure of Napoleon and of Papacy to accomplish their intentions.

The Pastor declared that the present governments of Europe represent the ten toes of Nebuchadnezzar's image, and expressed the belief that very soon they will be smitten in a great time of trouble, as outlined in this prophecy. The trouble will entirely sweep away all present human governments, and the Kingdom of Messiah will gradually, during a thousand years, fill the whole earth.

This, in Nebuchadnezzar's vision, was pictured in the stone, taken out of the mountain without hands, miraculously, which smote the image in its feet and then became, itself, a great Mountain or Kingdom, and filled the whole earth.

Anticipating thoughts in the minds of his hearers, Pastor Russell claimed that Christendom has been astray for some time on this point; that it has declared Christ's Kingdom as already existing. The kingdoms of Europe unitedly are called Christendom, which means Christ's Kingdom. But alas! said the Pastor, how untrue! The kingdoms claim upon their coins to be reigning by the grace of God, yet the Bible says that they are "kingdoms of this world," and that the great ruler is "Satan, the Prince of this world."

The Church Is the Kingdom.

The Pastor claimed, however, that the Church is the Kingdom of Messiah in an embryotic state. It is the Kingdom of heaven suffering violence, as Jesus said. (Matthew xi, 12.) The King suffered violence, His Apostles suffered violence, and all of His faithful followers since then have suffered violence. This lesson, to endure violence as good soldiers, is one of the tests of loyalty upon the called and chosen, who, proving faithful, may become joint-heirs with Jesus in His Messianic Kingdom.

As the glorified Jesus is to be the Great King, the Great Priest and the Great Judge of the world during the thousand years of His glorious reign, so the elect Church, gathered from every nation, people, kindred and tongue are to be under-priests, under-kings and subordinate judges. The Kingly Office will be for the ruling, controlling and subduing, with authority and power; the Priestly Office will be exercised for the blessing, encouragement, instruction and assistance of all who will avail themselves of the glorious privileges of that time to become perfect men and to attain everlasting life.

The title of Judge is a comprehensive one; it includes the giving of a trial as well as the passing and execution of the sentence at the close. The trial Day for the world will be a thousand years long. (See II Peter iii, 7, 8.) St. Paul says, "God hath appointed a day in which He will judge the world in righteousness." He also advises us, "Know ye not that the saints shall judge the world?"

BOOKS WIDELY TRANSLATED

Selma Lagerlof, Swedish Writer, Becoming Known All Over the Civilized World—Bergen Takes Large Amount of Stock in American Steamship Company—Denmark Artists Will Not Exhibit at English Exposition.

SWEDEN.

There is no author of recent times whose literary products have proven so universally popular as those of Selma Lagerlof and her name is on every one's lips in Sweden and is becoming known all over the civilized world. The new novel by Miss Lagerlof, announced for publication early last fall in an edition of 10,000 copies, enjoys the distinction of being completely sold out before a single copy was off the press. The name of the story is "Liplocrona's Home" and it is a story of Swedish life through and through. August Bonnier, the publisher, has announced another edition even before the first is ready for delivery. Selma Lagerlof is more widely read at present than any other Swedish author, Strindberg included, and her books have been widely translated. She was awarded the Nobel prize in literature last year and no one will deny that she did not justly deserve this honor, which was perhaps after all the greatest recognition that her countrymen had in their power to give her. Her books have been translated into not less than sixteen different languages.

Doctor Nordenskjold, a Swedish Antarctic explorer, in a recent description of the climate of the South polar regions, declares that the Antarctic summer is beyond comparison the coldest in the world. At the station of the Swedish Antarctic expedition, latitude 64-22 south, the mean temperature for the three summer months was 28 Fahrenheit, or almost as cold as Stockholm in winter. Antarctic winters, however, are not so cold as in Northern Continental regions, such as Siberia, although the temperature is at least as low as that of most Arctic islands and stretches on the coast at the same distance from the North pole. The mean average temperature of the Antarctic regions is presumably the lowest in the world.

The German city of Erfurt has, according to recent reports, a most interesting and highly valuable collection of Swedish coins in its possession. The coins date back to "Swedish times" in Germany and naturally are of great historic value. These coins, which are in the possession of a jeweler in Erfurt, show scenes from the Thirty Years' war. On one side of a number of them is shown the face of King Gustavus Adolphus, and others again show the king as he fell on the battlefield of Lutzen. It is believed that these coins were placed in circulation in Erfurt during the time that Axel Oxenstierna was rector of the University of Erfurt.

GLOTFELTER AGAIN CHOSEN

Re-Elected President of Minnesota Agricultural Society.

The delegates to the State Agricultural society's annual meeting, in the quietest session for many years, elected by acclamation its officers for the coming year and adjourned without the semblance of argument over anything.

President Glotfelter was nominated for re-election by C. R. Wilkinson of Lake Elmo and J. J. Furlong of Austin, who had been mentioned as a candidate against him, seconded the nomination and moved to make it unanimous. Mr. Glotfelter responded with a brief speech, in which he promised to make the 1912 state fair better than any before.

Following are the officers chosen: President, C. W. Glotfelter, Waterville; first vice president, Eli S. Warner, St. Paul; second vice president, E. J. Stillwell, Minneapolis; manager, Robert Crickmore, Owatonna; manager, C. P. Craig, Duluth.

KELLOGG STANDS NO CHANCE

Said Attorney General Opposes His Appointment.

Frank B. Kellogg of St. Paul has been eliminated from consideration as a successor of the late Justice John M. Harlan of the United States supreme court, according to an authoritative statement, regardless of the decision that may be reached relative to the appointment of Judge William C. Hook of the Eighth judicial district. The impression is current in Washington that Attorney General Wickersham is opposed to the elevation of Mr. Kellogg to the supreme bench.

Mr. Wickersham favors the appointment of Secretary of Commerce and Labor Nagel. Mr. Nagel, however, is sixty-two years old and President Taft has adopted a policy of not naming appointees more than sixty years old to the bench.

FIVE LITTLE ONES PERISH IN FLAMES

Cremated When Family Home Is Destroyed by Fire.

Five children burned to death and the father, Irwin Carlisle, seriously injured is the result of a fire at Motley, a small town twenty-three miles west of Brainerd.

The family residence caught fire at 9:30 p. m. and the father ran to the second floor to save the children there. As he reached the upper landing the floor collapsed and he fell with the timbers, but escaped death.

Mrs. Carlisle and her twin daughter Pearl, aged thirteen years, were saved, but Myrl, aged thirteen; Millie, aged eleven; Pansy, aged nine; Ida, aged five, and Bessie, aged two, died in the flames. The house was totally destroyed.

The injured man was taken to a Brainerd hospital, where, unmindful of his own severe burns, he mourns over the loss of his children.

The Carlisle dwelling was a simple two-story frame house, situated about two blocks from the downtown district and in the heart of the little village. An overheated stove is believed to have started the fire. The temperature was about 25 degrees below zero and a strong wind was blowing. Under these conditions the house burned as readily as it would had oil been poured over it.

IN RACE FOR GOVERNOR

Three Minnesota Progressives Enter the Contest.

Lieutenant Governor Sam Y. Gordon of Browns Valley and William E. Lee of Long Prairie, both progressive Republicans, have announced themselves formally as candidates for the Republican nomination for governor. Nathaniel J. Holmberg of Renville made a tentative announcement of his candidacy for the same place. Mr. Gordon gave out his announcement at temporary headquarters in the West hotel, Minneapolis, and Mr. Lee telegraphed his from Long Prairie. Mr. Holmberg gave his statement over the long distance telephone, saying he will run if progressive Republicans demand his candidacy.

CANDIDATE FOR RE-ELECTION

Governor Eberhart Declares Himself at Sioux City, Ia.

Governor Eberhart of Minnesota announced his candidacy for re-election while spending a few hours in Sioux City between trains. He anticipates no great trouble in again being returned to the office, maintaining that his record should accomplish that end.

Regarding state politics in Minnesota Governor Eberhart said that the entire state delegation will easily be for President Taft at the national election unless unexpected developments should present themselves.

Cold Fatal to Aged Man.

Joseph Thompson, seventy-six years of age, was found dead from cold beside the stove in his home at Winona. Neighbors, becoming suspicious that something had happened to the old man, told an officer of his strange disappearance. The policeman discovered the aged man, who had evidently been trying to build a fire.

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

Farmers' institutes at various points in the state this month are well attended, according to reports received by A. D. Wilson, head of the extension division at the College of Agriculture of the University of Minnesota. "The attendance has been from forty to 200 each day," said Mr. Wilson. "The cold weather has affected the attendance somewhat, but the results are entirely satisfactory."

Minnesota ranks thirteenth in land area and nineteenth in population among the states and territories of the United States, according to a census bulletin just issued. Over one-half of the entire land area of the state is in farms, the proportion of farm land showing a gradual increase from the northern to the southern part of the state.

Chief of Police Ellis E. Walsh of Virginia has received written instructions to close every gambling place and to keep them closed; also to begin a strong campaign against illegal liquor sales. The Virginia police and fire commission controls the police system and the officers and men are subject to the instructions of that body.

James A. Tawney of Winona will become a citizen of Minneapolis March 1, when he will assume the presidency of the Republic and Dominion Fire and Marine Insurance company, a new Minneapolis corporation engaged in a general fire and marine insurance business in the United States and Canada.

On Jan. 1, 1912, Minnesota was drawing interest from $18,585,364.77, invested in securities ranging all the way from school district bonds to bonds of Eastern states. From 3½ to 4½ per cent is being paid, according to the report of the state board of audit.

The lower house of congress has passed a resolution authorizing the construction of a bridge across the Mississippi river at Minneapolis.

Alvah Eastman, editor of the St. Cloud Journal Press, has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination of congressman-at-large.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

Dr. Edward S. Wood, an eye and ear specialist, and for more than twenty-five years a resident of St. Paul, is dead. Dr. Wood was in his fifty-first year. He had been ill for nine months with stomach trouble and a complication of other disorders. Dr. Wood was well known all over the Northwest.

Henry Willis Phelps, eighty-two years old, well known railroad contractor and for thirty-five years a resident of Minneapolis, is dead.

Mrs. Winifred Carroll, widow of the late Dennis Carroll and pioneer resident of St. Paul, is dead, aged eighty-five.

Fred N. Hendrix, one of the best known Minneapolis attorneys, is dead after a long illness, aged fifty-eight.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

Beginning with soap and towels, easily carried, and extending their operations to electric lights, water faucets, stopcocks, chair cushions, wire, telephone pay stations, cigar stands and plumbing connections, thieves have in the last year stolen hundreds of dollars' worth of property from the Minneapolis courthouse and city hall. They have taken away the brass handles from the front doors of the building, and they have brought their depredations to a climax by running away with a 1,000 pound radiator.

As a result of the inquest into the death of Andrew L. Anderson, who died after engaging in a prizefight at Spooner New Year's day, Bert Caldwell, Anderson's partner in the restaurant business and his second at the prizefight, was placed under arrest. An autopsy showed that Anderson's skull was fractured on the right side.

Jonas Koski, who was one of two men wounded by Jack Drexler, after he had shot Alex Pakala dead during a Christmas morning quarrel in the Pakala saloon at Virginia, died in a Duluth hospital from his wounds. Drexler will now be charged with a double murder.

Did we hear someone say January thaw?

Do not complain of your wife's extravagance with a cigar in your mouth.—Erskine Echo.

There are some office seekers who really have more sense than they are generally given credit for. Just notice how they have all withdrawn from the field since Alvah Eastman came out for congressman-at-large.—Walker Pilot.

And still they come. William Henry Eustis, of Minneapolis, has announced himself as a candidate for the nomination as congressman at large. Those whose memory is good will recollect that Eustis qualified for membership in the "also ran" club some years ago when he was defeated for election as governor.—Norman Co. Herald. So Alvah Eastman is to have an opponent.

POLITICAL NOTES

Alvah Eastman, the St. Cloud editor, is a candidate for the Republican nomination for Congressman-at-large. He is a man well qualified for the position.—Norman County Index.

Alvah Eastman, editor of the St. Cloud Journal-Press has announced his candidacy for the republican nomination for congressman-at large. Mr. Eastman has the endorsement of the newspaper men throughout the state and his nomination and election is conceded. Come to to think about it, Mr. Eastman is not favored by Col. R. A. Wilkinson, formerly chief counsel for the great Northern railroad, now a farmer. It is barely possible that Alvah can pull through notwithstanding the opposition of Col. Wilkinson.—Roseau County Times.

Alvah Eastman, the able, affable and aggressive editor of the St. Cloud Journal-Press, the leading daily paper of the sixth congressional district, announces his candidacy for congressman at-large, and the Eastman talk has been so generally satisfactory to both factions of the party that it looks as though the St. Cloud editor would get away with the nomination without serious opposition. In the opinion of this paper Mr. Eastman combines all the qualities of an ideal candidate; he is safe and sane and progressive all the time and at the same time. His nomination will be as good as a certificate of election. 'Rah for Eastman!—Osakis Review.

Editor Alvah Eastman, of the St. Cloud Journal Press, has announced his candidacy for congressman at large. Mr. Eastman would be a valuable man for Minnesota to send to Washington.—Twin Valley Times.

Editor Alvah Eastman, of St. Cloud, has made announcement of his candidacy for the position of congressman at large, and if there is any opposition it isn't united enough to make any noise at present. This is an instance where the man did not seek the office, but rather Mr. Eastman was inclined to consider lightly the suggestion of his candidacy, until it became so general that he could no longer well ignore it, and this support comes from both the "stand pat" and "progressive" element.—Hubbard Co. Clipper.

In a letter from Morlan Bishop he states that the University Band will give concerts in Brainard, Crookston, Fargo and Grand Forks during their Easter vacation this year. As a number of the Thief River boys are members of this band they would like very much to give a concert at this place considering a reasonable guarantee can be secured for their expenses.

Harvey Wilson who lived in this city a number of years ago, with his family on the east side of the river, passed away January 1st at his home in Kelliher, Minn. The cause of his death was Brights disease and had bothered him for a number of years. The friends in this city extend their sympathy to the bereaved family.

Hauls C. P. Trains.

For the past week the Soo Line has been hauling long and heavy trains belonging to the Canadian Pacific. These trains are being moved over this line on account of the congestion on the C. P. road. All are coast to coast trains. In the course of a week or ~~two~~ work will commence in the hauling of these trains from Duluth. It is stated that by going over this line considerable time can be saved, as the Soo has the fastest freight trains known. It is not known how long this work of hauling will continue as there is a large amount to be done

With the assurances made to President Gomez by leaders of the veteran movement that agitation would cease and that the veterans loyally would support the administration in bringing all Cubans together in patriotic accord and in removing the faintest excuse for American intervention there appears to be no doubt that the crisis in Cuban affairs has been passed successfully.

Notice to the Public.

When I came to Thief River Falls to open a business, I came with the very best of intentions. I saw lots of room for my line; I met with the best of people. I did not look to get any trade which belonged to someone else, but to get some of my own. As customary, I went out and got little acquainted. I had several parties inform me that there were many billiards players in the city who would appreciate a good billiards table. I installed one; it is there for you; it is a good one, 4½ X 9—and I would now appreciate the billiard trade. Any MAN who will take the trouble to cut out this ad and present it to us will be presented with a choice cigar. This is not considered a gift to the man but a favor to us and to get acquainted. We have a large large line of cigars, tobacco, soft drinks and cigars.

Yours very truly,

BREN SHORTAGE IS SETTLED

Bonding Company Makes Payment to State University According to Agreement.

A check for $14,310.70, in settlement of the liability of the United States Fidelity and Guaranty company on the bond of J. D. Bren, former acting treasurer of the state university, was handed to John Lind, president of the board of regents, by Wilson & Force, the company's agents. Mr. Lind turned the paper over to Controller George H. Hayes and it was by him transmitted to the state treasurer.

"The amount paid," said Mr. Lind, "is about $200 less than the total of claims against Bren, but those were items from which the board would have relieved Bren, if there had been no trouble. They represent funds for various student activities, such as a fund raised for an organ and Gopher funds. The settlement was made on the advice of the public examiner and the county attorney that it was better to take what we got than jeopardize the whole amount by a suit."

THOMAS H. SHEVLIN IS DEAD

Minneapolis Lumberman Expires at Pasadena, Cal.

News has been received at Minneapolis of the death of Thomas H. Shevlin, the millionaire lumberman, at his winter home at Pasadena, Cal.

Mr. Shevlin, who has been seriously ill for many months from a general breakdown, had gone there some weeks ago to escape the rigorous Minnesota climate and his death was not entirely unlooked for.

Mr. Shevlin had been a conspicuous figure in Minnesota business and political circles for twenty-five years.

He became a member of the Hall & Ducey Lumber company, then a big Minneapolis concern, upon his marriage to the daughter of the senior partner, Stephen C. Hall, and out of that concern grew the present internationally operating Shevlin-Carpenter company.

Mr. Shevlin at one time had an ambition to become United States senator and in 1906 he was recognized as the practical dictator of the Republican state convention at Duluth, which nominated A. L. Cole for governor.

Mr. Shevlin was a native of New York state and was sixty years of age. His gifts to the University of Minnesota and Minneapolis institutions have made him prominent throughout the state.

DEATH MYSTERY IS SOLVED

Minneapolis Woman and Child Killed by Carbon Monoxide.

Carbon monoxide, an odorless, tasteless and deadly gas, is held responsible by physicians for the death of Mrs. Edith Phillips of Minneapolis and her four-months old daughter Grace. In the death of the woman and child, according to physicians and scientists at the University of Minnesota, there is a lesson for housewives who use gas stoves and heaters, or who use hard coal in stoves.

The bodies were found in the bedroom of the Phillips flat by the husband and father, Jay R. Phillips, a Minneapolis fireman. Mrs. Phillips was lying half on the bed, half on the floor. On the bed lay the dead baby.

Dean George Frankforter of the college of chemistry at the university, made the following statement as to the probable cause of death:

"Carbon monoxide is a colorless, odorless, tasteless gas. It results from incomplete combustion of carbon. When a gas of any substance containing carbon is burned in a room where the supply of oxygen has been partly removed, the flames produce monoxide instead of dioxide."

LIES ON DYNAMITE TO DIE

Stick Is Lighted and Ely Man Is Blown to Pieces.

Dan Szikora, a laborer residing at Ely, ended his life when he deliberately laid down on a lighted stick of dynamite. A man named Siren, who was chopping wood, heard the explosion and found Szikora had been literally blown into fragments. Szikora had recently injured his hand and it is thought that brooding over this may have led him to kill himself.

Poultrymen of Mountain View, Cal., claim to have developed a breed of chickens that have red, white and blue feathers, and they call it the "Patriot."

The general traits and feeding habits as well as needs of chickens, ducks and geese are so different that it is quite impossible to get the best results from all three classes when they are housed in the same quarters.

A good idea of the returns that are at present being received by the owners of California grape ranches is shown in the receipt of $7,000 for the product of thirty acres of Thompson seedless by a grower living not far from Modisto.

It would be an interesting study to trace the causes of the deterioration of the human race from the time that the "German" of Caesar used to bathe in the rivers in midwinter to the present, when many take soapstones to bed with them when it is 10 above zero and have five quilts for a covering.

To prevent damage to orchard trees by the few rabbits that may have escaped gun or trap a few limbs of poplar or alder should be scattered on the runs where the rodents enter the orchard. They are fond of the bark of both of these and will usually strip it off before touching the trunk of the fruit trees.

At the southern corn show, which was held recently at Atlanta, Ga., the first prize for yield in the boys and girls' corn growing clubs was awarded to a Miss Hyanie of Raymond, Coweta county, Ga., who is credited with having grown an average yield of 133 bushels per acre. The next best yield was secured by a boy who reported 130 bushels per acre.

Owing to their heavy natural coat of wool, breeding ewes do not require the same degree of protection during the winter as do brood sows, but their housing should be so arranged that they can have a dry bed in which to rest during the day and sleep at night and will be sheltered from direct winds and sleet or rains. If these conditions are provided they should be allowed to range at will during the day and will be much the better for the exercise which they get.

From figures recently published by the census bureau appear abundant reasons why turkeys for the gracing of the Thanksgiving and Christmas tables have been from 20 to 30 cents a pound instead of from 12 to 18 cents, as used to be the case some years ago. These figures show that in 1910 there were 3,668,769 turkeys on the farms of the country, while in 1880 there were 6,594,095. If this movement should continue for another ten years we won't be able to touch a turkey with a ten foot pole.

The Colorado experiment station has tried a number of methods of exterminating prairie dogs and other grain eating pests and has found the following dope the most satisfactory: To sixteen quarts of corn or other small grain add one ounce of strychnia sulphate, one teaspoonful of sirup and one quart of boiling water. Stir the grain until all of it is moistened and then distribute in the places desired where poultry or other stock cannot get at it. The same bait is excellent for pocket gophers, the grain being inserted in the runways.

An interesting feature in connection with an international egg laying contest which is being conducted at the Storrs Agricultural college in Connecticut is that all of the pens of laying hens are housed in the open or in fully ventilated quarters, care being taken only to see that no direct drafts strike the fowls while roosting at night. It was thought by some that if the Leghorns and like breeds were given these conditions that they would do mighty little laying. But it is turning out that to date at least these very hens are shelling out the most eggs.

A friend who tried most all combinations of feeds for his flock of hens finally caused them to get down to business by cutting out a good deal of the corn which they had been getting and substituting in place of it bran, skimmilk and tankage, the kind that is put up at the packing houses as a feed for hogs and poultry. When the hens had been on this ration for a short time they surpassed in egg production any previous record. The better results secured were not due to the fact that the latter ration was particularly expensive, but simply to the fact that it was a ration that gave the biddies the food elements they needed in egg production.

A good many people get into all kinds of trouble by trying to maintain an angel's food type of living on a gingerbread or corn bread salary. It is the same kind of folks who sport an automobile when they could hardly pay for a Shetland pony outfit.

Potato raisers in the United States will have to take a back seat, for here comes a report that a trucker in Alaska cleared $3,700 from three acres planted to spuds. It is quite likely, in the absence of definite evidence to the contrary, that the sale price was the important factor in determining the return from this tract.

It is estimated that as a result of extensive drainage projects which have been started in southern Louisiana 9,000,000 acres of the most fertile land in the world will be rendered productive and that the annual value of the crops that can be raised on these redeemed lands will be worth hundreds of millions of dollars.

Those Medicine Hat blizzards usually strike the states east of the great continental divide the same week that the folks living in this blast stricken area get word from their friends spending the winter in California about having green peas and new potatoes for dinner and home grown roses or other flowers on the sitting room tables.

A scientific study of the fungous diseases which attack potatoes tends to greatly strengthen the practice of importing seed from sections considerably north of the point where the planting is to be done. In the case of securing new seed corn experience has proved it generally unwise to ship it from any distance either north or south, but that it can safely be brought from points east or west for a distance of from 200 to 300 miles.

The difference between the grade of butter known as "western extras," which is now topping the market at close to 40 cents, and the poorer grade of uncertain pedigree, which is rank and loud and sells for not more than half as much, is just a matter of dirt and carelessness. The dirt gets into the milk while it is being taken from the cows and by being handled in dirty utensils, and carelessness is pretty thoroughly mixed in with the dirt.

It is a fact doubtless not generally known that for many years prior to the early seventies the postal rate on merchandise used to be 8 cents a pound, or just half what it is today. At about that time some one supposed to be financially interested in the express companies got this rate changed to 16 cents a pound, and here it has stuck ever since. It would be interesting to know the number of millions of dollars that this one simple change in postal rates has extorted from the people of the country in the interval since.

Professor Bolley of the North Dakota Agricultural college, who has achieved a national reputation in connection with his discoveries in regard to the causes and cure for flax wilt and his discovery of the formaldehyde treatment to prevent smut in small grain, urges rotation of crops for the simple reason that it tends to insure soil sanitation. He explains the meaning of this phrase by saying that rotation of crops tends to hold in check the various fungous pests that do great damage where the same crop is grown on a piece of land during successive years.

The individual gas heating and light plant for the country or town home is a mighty nice thing, but often very dangerous. An Illinois farmer installed one not long ago, and the other day when he was away from the house the plant exploded, wrecking his home and killing his daughter and sister and severely injuring his wife and other children. The gas plant was in the basement. The top of the container became loose and filled the basement with gas, which spread to and was ignited by an open fire in the kitchen above. As before stated, a gas plant is a nice thing, but, like a Jersey bull, it will bear close watching.

A group of American and Canadian capitalists will shortly establish in Brazil the largest beef producing plant in the world. The syndicate has bought 9,000,000 acres of land of the Brazilian government on which cattle can range the year around without danger from freezing or storms. The project will be started with the largest number of cattle it is possible to buy, and its capacity is placed at 500,000 head. The headquarters of the company will be Sao Paulo, 250 miles north of Buenos Aires. Murdo McKenzie of Colorado, a former president of the National Stockmen's association, will head the company at a salary of $50,000 a year.

Announcement has been made recently of the discovery of half a dozen lemon trees in the citrus fruit belt in southern California that bear fruit of an almost completely seedless type. The owner of the ranch on which these trees are located is not sure of the exact origin of the scions from which the trees in question developed but believes they were from stock imported from southern Europe. The seedless lemon produced by these trees is of good size, full of juice and of excellent quality. A seedless lemon is one that has been long sought and it is predicted that within a few years this seedless variety will supplant the common kind, just as some years ago the navel orange took the place of the seeded fruit.

A POTATO SPECIALIST'S WORK.

Probably no one man has done or is doing so much for the potato industry of the country as Professor C. L. Fitch, who is the potato specialist of the Colorado Agricultural college. He made an exhaustive study into the origin of American varieties of potatoes as a foundation study which would help him in the work he had in hand of improving Colorado varieties. His findings, which of necessity are in large measure of a general character, are helpful, not only to potato growers in Colorado, but in other sections of the country as well. Among a number of interesting facts which Professor Fitch has demonstrated perhaps the most important is that a fungous growth called rizoc is responsible chiefly for the tendency in potatoes to "run out." The spores of this pest live on the mature potato in its place of storage during the winter and are visible as brown specks or spots on the surface, but do not usually injure the interior texture or quality of the tuber. These germs or spores are planted with the pieces of seed in the spring and shortly spread by fine thread and netlike growth to the new and tender shoots that grow from the seed piece. As a result these are either killed outright or greatly or slightly weakened, and on those stalks that do live through the season only runty tubers are produced of a low vitality. Mr. Fitch asserts that most alfalfa land, as well as land on which potatoes have been grown for a number of years is likely to be more or less infested with this rizoc; hence, treating the seed with the formalin solution does little good. In his opinion, the selection of clean seed and having the soil well drained and giving the growing crop deep and thorough cultivation are the best methods of reducing damage from rizoc to a minimum. The addition of fresh manure is not advisable on land which is to be used for growing potatoes. Soil which contains a good deal of sand is freest from rizoc, and it is for this reason that it is so well suited to growing them. Relative to the selection of potatoes for seed, Professor Fitch recommends those that are comparatively short and flat for the variety, not pointed or teated, shallow eyed and without prominent yokes or yoke points; for most varieties recessed a little at the stem, and if of a red or pink variety, light in color for the variety. In the selection of the seed, they should be medium sized and taken from a lot that is of uniform size and shape.

THE WAY OF BAD EGGS.

The other day a New York firm which in the past has been doing a pretty heavy business in "rots and spots" was handed a fine of $500 and costs for selling rotten eggs in a liquid form. This is but one of a number of instances in which the chaps who make the final disposition of the trash that is taken in by the uncomplaining country merchant from their crooked customers have been salted heavily for violating the recently enacted pure food law. New York is the great egg market of the country, and many of the commission men doing business there have notified their correspondents in western states that they want no more rotten eggs, that they can't sell them and if they should attempt to do so would likely have to go to jail for it. This is wholesome news indeed, for it will put a little more stiffness in the country merchant's backbone and give him the courage necessary to notify his patrons that he can use no more rotten eggs for the very good reason that he can't in turn load them off on some dealer in the larger market. When this notice has been given the rotten egg nuisance will have been chased into its hole—the farms and poultry yards of the country. And when the keepers of poultry can get nothing from the home merchant for addled eggs they will quit taking them to market and will forthwith set about correcting the conditions which produce rotten eggs. When these conditions shall have been corrected eggs will sell for much better prices and sellers of fresh eggs will get somewhere near what they are fairly worth.

THE HIRED MAN'S VIEWPOINT.

In an article contributed a short time ago to a northern country weekly paper by a bright hired man several suggestions were made that were decidedly timely and which, if heeded by farm proprietors, would do much not only to solve the "hired man problem," but also to simplify the dairy business and some other problems that the farmer has on his hands just now. The correspondent in question states that hired men do not kick so much on the wages they receive as on the hours which they are asked to put in on so many farms, beginning at 4:30 or 4:45 in the morning with milking the cows and, after a hard day's work in the field, winding up the day at between 8 and 9 o'clock at night with these same cows. He rightly contends that if these cows were given the care which they ought to receive and which it would pay their owner to give them they should be milked at intervals of twelve hours apart, instead of fifteen and nine. Another excellent point he makes is that the average hired man is just human enough that he appreciates courteous and cordial treatment from his employer, and that if so treated he will do enough more and better work to make good interest on the investment of such treatment.

IN all the history of brewing beer has been considered one of the most healthful drinks, on account of its purity.

When the Pure Food bill was before the United States senate in 1905, Senator McCumber said:

"I believe that we manufacture in this country the purest beers that are made on the face of the earth, and the fact that the brewers' associations are all in favor of this bill is proof that they are satisfied that they make a pure article."

WHITE SEAL BEER

Is the proud accomplishment of years of close devotion to the art of brewing. "Just a little better" has always been our aim and to insure its perfect purity we are painstaking to the last degree.

If you drink beer you want White Seal beer, or else we are badly mistaken. Try a case and see. Ask your dealers about it.

Of itself cornmeal served in various forms is not a balanced ration for man, but it is a great heat producer, and if served with beef, beans or eggs it is both cheap and economical.

Many an alarm clock is kept in the house and wound up regularly as a sort of conscience satisfier. That is, the winding of it at night seems to make a justification for oversleeping in the morning.

Buckwheat cakes light and nicely baked and served with crisp bacon or breakfast sausage surely do tickle the palate, but a too steady diet of them is rather tough on the stomach and consequently on one's health. They are best sandwiched in with other rations.

Scalding water, fresh air and sunshine are three of the most valuable aids in the maintaining of a clean and healthful environment for and a healthy condition in the farm animals, and they are three aids that many a farmer appreciates to a pitifully meager degree.

Fresh meat is quite too high to be feasible as a ration for the hens, but if one lives in a rabbit country the poultry will greatly relish the rabbit meat. Skin and draw the rabbit and hang up just high enough so the hens will have to jump to reach. The exercise and fresh meat combined should set them to laying if they have been loafing.

The increasing scarcity of fur bearing animals is in no case better shown than in the prices paid for mink pelts now and a few years ago. The same large, dark, prime pelt that was selling fifteen years ago for $1.40 now fetches $7. In the same period prime skunk skins have advanced from 65 cents to $1.75 and muskrat from 11 to 40 cents.

The potato crop for the season past totaled 282,000,000 bushels, and, while this yield was about 12 per cent below the five year average, owing to the higher prices prevailing it netted the growers $213,000,000, which was about 14 per cent above the return for the crop on a five year basis. At present a good many potatoes are being imported and are paying a duty of 25 cents per bushel.

In some sections of the west where homesteaders are settling on the big cattle ranges they seem to have adopted the motto of "free range, free beef," and have been enjoying a toothsome supply of fresh beef by killing steers now and then that happened to stray on their ranches. Naturally the cattlemen object to this procedure and in some instances have appealed to state authorities for protection. It was not so very long ago when it was the homesteaders who were the suppliants.

There is no condition to be found on the farm that will play greater hob with farm animals in a shorter time than housing them under such conditions that they will not have an abundance of fresh air by night or day. The stable in which cattle or sheep are quartered may be steamy and warm, but the air in such a place may be so bad and so lacking in oxygen as to nearly extinguish a lantern. Fresh air doesn't cost anything, but it's mighty expensive business not giving the farm animals all they want of it.

Modern business inflicts much injustice at times upon those less favorably situated in the economic scale and is also responsible for the practice of much dishonesty of one kind and another; but it has also had some most wholesome influences. Among these is a great curtailment of the drinking of intoxicating liquors among practically all railway employes and the workers in many other industries where employers insist on efficiency and sobriety. Many of these same companies have entirely forbidden the use of cigarettes by employes while on duty simply because they take from a man's mental alertness and power of concentration.

The chief causes of loss in the operation of many a farm dairy are two—failure to apply the Babcock test for quantity and quality of milk to ascertain which cows are really paying for the keep or making a profit and, secondly, failure to adjust the grain ration of the cows to the amount of milk that they are giving. With cows giving milk containing about 3 per cent of butter fat a good rule is to feed three pounds of grain daily for each five pounds of milk produced. From this it will be seen that in many a dairy herd cows may be fed either more or less grain than they ought to get in both instances to a loss and disadvantage.

In latitudes liable to frozen drainpipes it is well during the coldest weather to put some salt on the sink strainers and pour a quantity of hot water through. If the pipes are nearly clogged this will tend to clean them out, while if they are stopped up the salt will help to melt them out.

It is rather a strange coincidence that for the three winters past, including the present, the lowest temperatures through the north central states have been recorded between the 5th and 7th of January, temperatures of from 20 to 30 degrees below zero having been registered in this brief interval.

Perhaps in no case does the proverb "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure" apply with greater force than in the case of the flock of poultry. It is both cheaper and easier to take the simple necessary precautions to insure the health of the flock than to correct matters after a disease gets a foothold, for after poultry get sick the simplest and often the cheapest cure is to knock them on the head and bury them.

A disease which has been prevalent among the cattle and horses of eastern Oregon for the past year and a half and had been dubbed the "walking sickness" has been lately diagnosed as plain hydrophobia, following a recent investigation into the malady by the state bacteriologist, Professor Pernot. A curious feature of the disease seems to be an attempt on the part of affected animals to follow moving objects. Invariably the disease has been fatal.

On Dec. 27 a good many people gathered on a farm near Raymondville, Tex., to witness the dynamiting of five acres of land, the treatment being given for the purpose of increasing its productive capacity. Holes were bored forty feet apart over this tract and to a depth of five feet, and in these the charges of dynamite were placed and exploded. It is claimed by those who were in charge of the experiment that this treatment will increase the capacity of the soil to hold moisture and will make possible more perfect subdrainage.

The wheat producing territory of the world is so distributed that there is not a month in the year but the harvesting of the cereal is in progress somewhere. It begins in January in Australia and Argentina and for the remaining months is carried on successively in East India and upper Egypt, lower Egypt, Asia Minor and Mexico, Algeria, central Asia and China, southern France and the southern United States, southern Europe and the central United States, northern central Europe, England, Canada and the Dakotas, Norway, Sweden and north Russia, Peru and South Africa, and winds up in December in Burma and Argentina.

The brown or corn bread that is the natural complement of a ration of pork and beans is said to have been first made by a Boston baker in 1746 in an effort to find a cheaper substitute for the white bread, which had become a luxury owing to the high price of wheat. While it was designed originally as a ration for the poorer classes, it took so well that it became highly prized by both rich and poor. The following is said to be the recipe for this original brown bread: Take two cupfuls of Indian meal, two cupfuls of rye or wheat flour, two cupfuls of sour milk, one cupful each of sweet milk and molasses, two teaspoonfuls of soda and two of salt. Steam three hours in a covered tin inside a large covered vessel, then half an hour more with the inside cover off.

The fine quality of many a big churning in co-operative creameries is ruined through the addition to the cream of a single mess of filthy cream slipped into the gatherer's tank by some careless or dirty patron. Where such a mess of cream is stirred into a large vat of cream and is allowed to ripen before churning the contamination is spread to the whole mass, and when this churning of butter gets to market the price may be knocked from 2 to 4 cents a pound because of the rankness which has been imparted. Level headed creamery managers and their buttermakers should have their drivers keep close tab on these dirty patrons, with orders to refuse dirty cream or that from the milk of cows too far advanced in their period of lactation for their milk to be sweet and usable. If these precautions were taken thousands of dollars would be saved for the patrons of co-operative creameries in the course of a year.

If the California Fruit Growers' exchange has a pretty effective monopoly in the handling and marketing of citrus fruits, as contended by some market papers that are decidedly partial to jobbers and middle men as a class, it is a situation that these latter people are chiefly and directly responsible for. Time was, and that but a few years ago, when, to use an agricultural figure, the jobbers and commission men as well as the railroads "played horse" with the orange and lemon growers of California. It took the latter quite a while to get wise to what ailed them; then they got tired, later fighting mad, organized, and the Fruit Growers' exchange is the result. The same provocation and much the same results in co-operative effort along the marketing line are to be noted in half a dozen or more other fruit growing lines. It is simply a case where the middlemen have killed the goose that laid the golden egg.

A BIG HORSE FEEDING TEST.

Probably the largest experiment in horse feeding ever conducted was the one recently concluded at Fort Riley, Kan., under the supervision of Dr. Campbell, who is connected with the State Agricultural college. Nine hundred and thirty-seven horses were used in the test, and these were divided into fifteen different lots and fed as many different rations. Every meal for every one of these horses was weighed and mixed in the right proportions during a period of 140 days. The purpose of the experiment was to find, if possible, a grain ration that would take the place of oats and give as good results, also to test the feeding value of different hays and to determine the effect of different grain rations upon the health of the horses. When the feeding tests were concluded several things were made clear: First, other feeds can be substituted for oats as a ration for work horses, with as good results and much cheaper. It was proven conclusively that oats alone were a better grain for work horses than corn alone, but more expensive. Horses that were fed oats alone gained on an average sixteen pounds a head, while a like number that were fed corn alone lost twenty-nine pounds apiece in the same time. When corn was fed with the proper amount of alfalfa of the right quality it was found to give just as good results as oats and, besides, was fully 50 per cent cheaper. Alfalfa hay, properly fed, proved to be a more valuable roughage than either timothy or prairie hay and cheapened the cost of the daily ration from 25 to 40 per cent. A ration consisting of six parts of corn, four parts of oats and four parts of bran, together with timothy hay, was rated as the best ration that could be given a horse, though not the cheapest. An old idea was exploded in the experiment—namely, that horses fed oats have more life than those given a ration of corn.

A SCHOOL OF HORTICULTURE.

As a result of co-operation on the part of the business men of Lewiston, Ida., and Clarkston, Wash., a school of horticulture has been established at Livingston that will be quite unique in its scope and purpose. Instead of furnishing instruction primarily to young people, as is so largely true of the average agricultural college, the school in question will be attended most largely by owners of fruit ranches in the vicinity and their wives and daughters. Among the subjects studied will be fruit growing, nursery practice, the growing of small fruits and vegetables, insects and their treatment, plant diseases and other subjects arising from the agricultural conditions to be found in the valley; also soil physics and soil chemistry. The business men of the two cities came to the conclusion that the fruit industry of the valley was retarded because of a lack of trained men, and the school just established has definitely in view correcting this difficulty. That a high grade of instruction will be given is indicated in the choice of Professor Thornber, previously in charge of the horticultural departments of the South Dakota and Washington state agricultural colleges. Lectures will be given in the forenoons of five days in the week, while the laboratory work will be largely done in the nearby orchards. Professor Thornber believes there is a real need for the school and is enthusiastic about its future.

SENSIBLE MONTANA.

Beginning with Jan. 1 the good people of Montana will be able to know a bit about the pedigree of the eggs they have for breakfast. At that date regulations became effective relative to the sale of eggs, which state authorities say will be strictly enforced. Under the regulations eggs will be classified as fresh eggs, ranch eggs and case eggs. Eggs offered for sale as fresh that are more than seven days old will be considered misbranded. Ranch eggs are those that have not been preserved or the age of which is unknown. All eggs that have been kept in cold storage or that have been preserved in any way are known as case eggs, and the containers of such eggs must have plainly marked thereon in letters not less than two inches high the month and the year in which the eggs were placed in storage. Any eggs of the above class not plainly labeled are considered misbranded. The law imposes heavy penalties for violation and makes it incumbent upon both the merchant and eating house proprietor to specify plainly the class to which eggs he sells belong.

CORN IN LOUISIANA.

A very interesting change that is going on in those portions of the south where cotton has been the staple crop for generations past is clearly shown in the rapid increase in the production of corn in the state of Louisiana during the past few years. A few years ago the cotton boll weevil made its appearance in the state, and cotton growers seemed to be threatened with bankruptcy. But being compelled to devote cotton land to the growing of corn and other crops has really been a blessing in disguise. Figures that have been compiled show that the production of corn has increased from 19,516,400 bushels in [illegible] to nearly 100,000,000 bushels in 1911. In the year 1910 Louisiana corn was sold to Europe and Texas for the first time, and the surplus for the past year has been close to [illegible] bushels.

THE NEWS

1910, as granting two years additional to the time already allowed by law, within which the installment payments might be made, and as proof and payment, as the law then stood, were required to be made the same time, and within six years from date of sale, the said act necessarily carried with it an extension of time of two years, within which proof need be made on entries affected thereby, and in all such cases the statutory life of the entry would be eight years from its date, so as to afford relief in those cases where such relief is necessary, manifestly it does not follow that the statutory life of any entry is shortened by reason of said act.

To summarize: Though an entryman may be in default, as the law stands, as to his installment payments, and his entry be subject to cancellation for that reason, any entryman under the act of Feb. 20, 1904, would be allowed eight years from the date of his entry, within which to submit final proof, in the absence of any other objection.

The foregoing will also be responsive to your letter of the 17th instant, and the communication therein enclosed from Mr. E. A. Mostue, dated Jan. 13, 1912, is herewith returned.

Very Respectfully,
(Signed) S. V. Proudfit,
Assistant Commissioner.

FOREIGN NEWS.

An unprecedentedly heavy Socialist vote, which probably reached four millions, and heavy Socialist gains proved, as expected, the feature of the 1912 elections to the German reichstag, held throughout the empire. The election was marked also by the disastrous rout of the Radicals and far smaller inroads into the Clerical and Conservative majority of the last reichstag than was anticipated.

The Spanish cabinet, of which Jose Canalejas y Mendes was premier, has resigned. This action was the result of a divergence of views with King Alfonso as to the advisability of commuting the death sentence of one of the rioters who murdered a judge and wounded several court officials in the town of Cullera, province of Valencia, last September.

A severe naval action occurred Jan. 7 in the Red sea when seven Turkish gunboats and an armed yacht were destroyed by Italian warships. The action occurred outside the bay of Kunfida, a small walled town with a garrison and two forts about 500 miles north of Aden on the east coast of the Red sea.

Coal dealers of the United Kingdom are reaping a rich harvest as a consequence of the ballot of the coal miners, which unofficial reports state to be largely in favor of a nationwide strike for a fixed minimum wage. The dispute affects about 900,000 men.

Twenty-six Moros were killed while attempting to ambush a body of American troops on the island of Jolo. In the course of the fighting Lieutenant McGee of the Second cavalry was shot twice and one American soldier was wounded.

The Russian steamer Russ foundered during a gale in the Black sea, with all her passengers and crew, totaling 172 persons.

MISCELLANEOUS NEWS.

A state supreme court decision handed down in New York city holds that many sections of the New York direct primary law passed at the last session of the legislature are unconstitutional and directs that the official ballot for the March primary shall be prepared without regard to the new law. The matter will be carried to the court of appeals.

Between $300,000,000 and $400,000,000 in cash and securities were removed intact from the vaults of two of the financial institutions whose quarters were destroyed in the fire that gutted the Equitable Assurance society building in New York city. The vaults of the Equitable Trust company alone yielded $300,000,000.

Resistance to the government's order for their disarmament has cost the Moros the lives of nearly 1,000 warriors, according to army officers arriving at San Francisco from the Philippines on the transport Sherman. The task of subduing the natives, they said, turned out to be more serious than the army anticipated.

Orders of the interstate commerce commission restoring and reducing freight rates on lumber from the Northwestern states to the Mississippi valley and east to what they were before Nov 1, 1907, were approved and upheld by the supreme court of the United States. The United States circuit court for Minnesota had enjoined enforcement of the orders.

A letter showing alleged collusion between Swift & Co. and Armour & Co. in bidding for the annual meat contract of the old soldiers' home at Togus, Me., Nov. 6, 19[illegible], was introduced in evidence by the government in the trial of the ten Chicago packers charged with criminal violation of the Sherman law.

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

Giving money to children to get the fathers and mothers to come to town to trade is a novel method adopted by the village of Pine Island. A gala day had been planned by the business men of the place and the principal feature was the offer made by the State bank to give a bright new "quarter" to each child under twelve years of age who would be in town at that time. Exactly 475 quarters were handed out. Naturally many parents were on hand to take care of the children and improved the opportunity to do a little shopping.

One machine gun company for each Minnesota national guard regiment is an increase in the militia force in the next few months decided upon at Washington, where Adjutant General F. B. Wood has been for a week consulting with war department officials. A free allotment of three machine guns has been obtained by General Wood.

Wilfred Stuart Sheldon-Dickason, accused by Mrs. Olga von W. Haskell of having stolen jewels belonging to her daughter Celia, was dismissed in the Hennepin county district court by Judge William Hodgson because a case had not been made out against him.

Wolf bounties aggregating $3,117 were paid last week to various counties upon the warrants of the state auditor. Otter Tail county collected the most, $966 for 120 grown wolves and twenty-two cubs killed in 1911.

A new mark for Faribault county real estate was set when Frank Hynes purchased Elmer Merrill's forty acres two miles west of Dolavan for $140 an acre.

Owen Morris of St. Paul was elected grand master of the Masonic grand lodge of Minnesota at its annual session at St. Paul.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

General William Smith, retired paymaster general of the United States army, who died last week at Pelham Manor, N. Y., enlisted as paymaster in the Civil war from St. Paul in 1861. In 1864 he returned to St. Paul, serving as paymaster there until the end of 1866. He again returned in 1867. This time he served as paymaster for seven years. He came to Minnesota from Vermont, where he was born March 26, 1831.

Harry L. Thom, professor at the state agricultural college, is dead at St. Anthony Park. Professor Thom was thirty-one years old and was well known in national guard circles, having been a member of Company B, Thirteenth Minnesota. He enlisted in Minneapolis, arriving in Manila about Sept. 1, 1898, serving throughout the Filipino insurrection, returning with his regiment in 1899.

Mrs. Jannette Buell Ladue, wife of former Senator Jay Ladue, is dead at Luverne of pneumonia. She had been a resident of Minnesota since 1858. She was born at Labanon, N. Y., Dec. 31, 1831, and was married to Mr. Ladue at Mayville, N. Y., Dec. 10, 1851. In 1858 Mr. and Mrs. Ladue came to Minnesota and located at Rochester where they lived until 1885, when they removed to Luverne.

Edward A. Dackins, who was born in Wales in 1833 and who located in Blue Earth county in 1856, is dead at Mankato as a result of injuries received a year ago while visiting in California, when he fell and broke his hip. He was one of those who went to the relief of New Ulm at the time of the Indian massacre in 1862 and distinguished himself for bravery.

Struck down by paralysis in the full vigor of womanhood, Jessie A. Forester, principal of the Douglas school at Minneapolis, for twenty-five years a teacher in the schools of Minneapolis, died in her office in the school building.

Frank Fowler, sixty-two years old, a member of the firm of Fowler & Pay and a prominent manufacturer and business man of Mankato, is dead at San Diego, Cal., where he recently went for his health.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

Leaving the home of a widow whom for more than an hour she had been consoling over the recent death of her husband, Mrs. Matthew A. Loeffler of St. Paul returned home to find the lifeless body of her sixteen-year-old son hanging from a rope in his bedroom doorway. Coroner Jones pronounced the case a suicide, but the mother steadfastly refuses to place credence in his verdict, averring it was an accident.

Ingvold Olson, twenty years old, was smothered to death in a wheat bin at Minneapolis. Olson was changing grain from one bin into another. He made a misstep, could not get a foothold on the slippery bin and went through the spout into a lower bin, where he was covered with wheat and smothered.

Amy Anderson, a domestic, lost her life in a fire that destroyed the Clifton hotel at Two Harbors. Others had narrow escapes. The loss is estimated at $5,[illegible].

LEGISLATION IS RESPONSIBLE

Department of Justice Official Blames Lumber Interests of Minnesota for White Earth Troubles.

A charge that legislation passed presumably for the benefit of the White Earth Indians of Minnesota has actually resulted "in the disintegration of that great and valuable Indian reservation and the property rights and effects of a large majority of the several thousand Indians concerned in the ownership thereof" is contained in a statement filed with the house committee on expenditures in the department of the interior by M. C. Burch, an officer of the department of justice. The statement of Mr. Burch is couched in strong language and will be used as the basis for the public hearings that will be begun in Minneapolis in a few days by Representatives Graham of Illinois and George of New York, acting for the house committee above named.

Mr. Burch recites the history of the White Earth Indians, stating in substance that they have been made the victims of injustice through legislative enactments since the passage of the Nelson act in 1889. He places the blame for the troubles of the Indians on the lumber interests of the state. There are several chapters of the statement, among them one headed "The First Grab for Pine," another entitled "The Saturnalia," still another that appears under the caption "The Tragedy of 1898," and another headed "A Two-Edged Fraud—The Mille Lac case." Speaking of the Nelson act, Mr. Burch says:

"While apparently every safeguard known to legislators at that time was inserted in the Nelson act for the protection of these Indians, it is plain that the longing eyes of the lumbermen and the land grabbers were early directed to the magnificent timber and fine agricultural lands of these reservations."

FARMER MURDERS HIS WIFE

Confesses Crime and Says He Had Been Drinking.

Fred Wagner, a farmer, aged forty-five, shot and killed his wife, aged forty, on their farm four miles west of Winsted. Wagner was arrested and, according to officials, has confessed. Wagner, according to the officials, said he had been drinking and that he and his wife quarreled. He was unable to give any other explanation for the shooting.

The murder was reported by the hired man. A constable from Winsted went at once to the farm, where he found the body of the woman on a bed. Wagner was in the house and did not resist arrest.

LOST WOMAN DIES IN FIELD

Victim of Freezing Found Near Intended Destination.

Miss Mary Thuet, aged twenty-three, who came to this country from Germany a year ago and who was working in Graceville, was frozen to death. She went from Graceville to Collins and from there started to walk to the home of her aunt, Mrs. Max Fischer, a distance of two miles. She became lost and walked about in a field until exhausted. Her body lay in the field a quarter of a mile from the Fischer place. Her parents live in Germany.

EIGHT TIMES UNDER KNIFE

Prominent Minneapolis Man Dies Following Operation.

J. E. Rogers, forty-three years of age, proprietor of the Rogers hotel and the Unique theater, identified with a number of other business enterprises and one of the most widely known men in Minneapolis, died at St. Barnabas hospital in that city from shock following an operation for intestinal adhesion. It was the eighth time in as many years that Mr. Rogers had been under the surgeon's knife.

Lind Heads Wilson Club.

The first public move toward getting the Minnesota Democratic delegation for Governor Woodrow Wilson was launched at Minneapolis when a number of Democrats met at the assembly hall in the courthouse and organized a Wilson club. Former Governor John Lind, who took a leading part in the meeting and was elected president of the club, declared that he was going into the campaign hands and feet.

Accident Fatal to Lawyer.

Christian Henningsen, aged sixty-seven, prominent lawyer and business man of Stillwater, was almost instantly killed at the Omaha freight depot while directing and assisting his workmen in the removal of plate glass from a freight car. Mr. Henningsen was standing outside the car when the big crate of glass, weighing over three tons, slipped and fell upon him. He died a few minutes after the accident.

STATE CONTROL OF POLICE

Hennepin County Attorney Would Deprive Cities of Power.

Creation of a state police board and removal of the police of all Minnesota cities from control by city authorities was proposed in a resolution presented to the State Association of County Attorneys, in session at St. Paul, by County Attorney James Robertson of Hennepin county.

The proposed police board would have three members, to be named by the governor, chief justice and attorney general, who would give their entire time to the board's work. They would conduct civil service examinations and appoint men to serve in any city as the local officers might request. Cities would be prohibited from appointing or maintaining their own police and the policemen assigned to each city would be under control of the sheriff of the county. Each city would contribute $50 a month for support of the state board and would also pay the officers assigned to it, but the board would fix their compensation. The resolution was adopted.

FILE MINNESOTA RATE CASE BRIEF

Attorneys Lay Large Document Before Supreme Court.

Probably the largest brief ever filed with the supreme court of the United States was required by former Attorney General Simpson of Minnesota and his associates in telling the court in printed form their side of the famous Minnesota rate cases.

The case will come up for oral argument along with rate cases from half a dozen other states on Feb. 19.

Associated with Attorney General Simpson were Lyndon A. Smith, now attorney general; Edward T. Young and Thomas D. O'Brien.

It was contended that strangulation of the state's power to regulate intrastate business would not extend the federal power to cover intrastate commerce and that if the decision of the Minnesota federal court annulling Minnesota state rates stands intrastate commerce must go unregulated.

It was argued that the state rates would not be confiscatory of the railroad property if the income was figured on the property the railroads had contributed to the public service or in the money invested therein or what the facilities were worth.

Figuring on the basis of what it would cost to acquire the rights of way and build new roads was denounced as unfair. The old rates enforced by the railroads would be confiscatory if figured on such an improper basis, it was argued.

Commission Row Threatened.

Fire originating in the basement of G. L. Bradley & Co.'s store at Minneapolis did $60,000 damage and threatened commission row. A. N. Bearman, Samels Bros. and the Gamble-Robinson company, commission merchants, sustained a part of the damage. The building, a three-story structure owned by T. B. Walker, was damaged about $20,000.

Man Frozen to Death.

The frozen body of Frank Blato was found in the woods near Brookston, St. Louis county. The man was overcome by the cold while trying to reach a cedar camp several miles from the place where he was found.

Child Is Scalded to Death.

Edna, the three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Betcher, Jr., of Hay Creek township, Goodhue county, fell into a kettle of boiling water and was so badly scalded she died a few hours later.

BRYAN SAYS HE IS NEUTRAL

Asserts He Never Declared Wilson Most Available Man.

Tampa, Fla., Jan. 21.—William J. Bryan was honor guest at a banquet given by the Woodrow Wilson club here. Mr. Bryan made no reference to the Watterson-Wilson-Harmon controversy. When asked as to his opinion he said that he would give his views on the incident in the next issue of the Commoner.

Mr. Bryan declined to discuss the presidential situation, but reiterated his statement that he had never said he thought Mr. Wilson the most available man for the Democratic nomination.

OHIO RIVER ON A RAMPAGE

Ice Gorge at Louisville Breaks and Much Damage Results.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 21.—Under pressure from the Upper Ohio and her tributaries the ice gorge here broke and the immense pack, which rested on the river bottom and jammed the channel of the Ohio from shore to shore for miles above the falls, began to move down stream, sweeping the banks and crushing coal barges and floating property. Several barges were sunk.

The river has been rising at the rate of a foot an hour.

VOTES FOR SWEDISH WOMEN

SWEDEN.

Women henceforth, according to a recent Stockholm dispatch, are to take a full and equal share with men in the political life of Sweden. The speech from the throne at the opening of the Swedish riksdag on Jan. 16, delivered in person by King Gustaf, contained the announcement that a bill was to be introduced enfranchising women and making them eligible at the elections to the riksdag on the same conditions as men. Every Swede over twenty-four years of age and not under any legal disability has the right to vote for members of the riksdag. This forms an important chapter in the history of Sweden and it is a step which will attract the attention of the entire world. It is the belief of old and experienced statesmen that the new arrangement will work to the best interests of the country. Women have for a long time been seeking the right of suffrage and now that they will receive it some important reforms may be looked for in Sweden. It was not such a long time ago that women of Sweden were denied due recognition, but that time is past.

It is interesting to note the progress of the Socialists in Stockholm. Municipal slaughter houses, for instance, are to open Feb. 1 at Enskede. The Socialist party was, it is reported, chiefly responsible for bringing about the establishment of municipal slaughter houses and this success will lead them to agitate for municipal bakeries, laundries and other establishments. One notable fact is that the old time parties are now passing legislation that a few years ago was considered Socialist doctrine, at least so the Socialists themselves contend.

Not so long ago a Social-Democrat was elected a member of the council of Katarina congregation in Stockholm. When objection was raised to his holding office on account of the religious indifference of Social-Democrats, the newly elected member replied that it had been ascertained that a large number of people within his party had need and interest in religious matters as well as he himself had.

NORWAY.

The growth of Norwegian Lutheran church bodies in America is an interesting item. The following information was gleaned from an Eastern Lutheran church review recently: The two leading bodies representing the Norwegian Lutherans of this country are the United church and the Norwegian synod. The former has an enrollment of 561 ministers and 170,088 communicants, and the latter has 367 ministers and 91,450 communicants. The former has, besides its fine theological seminary, three colleges and five academies; and the latter has, in addition to its handsome seminary in St. Paul, two colleges, eleven academies, and a very prosperous woman's college, all either directly or indirectly connected with it. A matter of very great importance has been a revived interest during 1911 to continue the effort at union between the two bodies. The former attempts had failed; but it was to the sorrow of both bodies, and at their respective conventions new committees were appointed to continue the conferences. This was done at the recommendation of both former committees. It is earnestly hoped by many that the much desired union may become a possibility in the near future—a union based on faith and practice, and not on mere sentiment. These two bodies have shown special activity in raising funds. The United church began the establishment of a pastors' annuity fund of $100,000 in 1909. On July 1, 1911, there was on hand $105,110, which has since been augmented by more than $1,000. An annual fee of $5 is contributed by 431 pastors and professors, which, in addition to a third of the profit made by the Augsburg publishing house and the income from the endowment, will place at the disposal of the synod for annuities about $20,000 per year—an excellent solution to a vexed problem. The old Norwegian synod completed an unusually successful effort at raising a fund of $250,000 for Luther college at Decorah, Ia., its leading institution. J. J. Hill made a conditional offer of $50,000 in 1909. The sum of $200,000 was stipulated as the amount to be raised within two years. When Nov. 11, 1911, was reached, Dr. Stub, after a quiet but effective canvass of fifteen months, announced that the mark had been overshot by $36,000.

A good deal of comment has been aroused in the Norwegian press by the fact that Queen Maud recently made some Christmas purchases in London. One of the leading Norwegian merchants writes in the Aftenposten (Christiania) as follows: "Is there no one to speak frankly on the subject that the queen does not make her purchases in the country, but orders everything abroad? It is not a matter of the actual purchases so much as the example which she gives as the first lady in the land and which will then be followed by many prominent Norwegian ladies." The Aftenposten, hitherto regarded as a loyal journal, adds by the way of comment: "The above facts arouse dissatisfaction and one feels compelled to see therein a neglect of Norwegian industry and trade. All the inhabitants of Norway consider it their duty to do everything in their power to further national interests and one would wish to find the first woman in the country at their head."

Latest statistics show that Christiania's population is 249,693. This proves that the population of the city is gradually on the increase.

DENMARK.

Says a Copenhagen dispatch: A party of actors and actresses, while preparing to enact a thrilling drama for the benefit of the spectators at cinematograph shows, have had a remarkably narrow escape from being the unwilling victims of a tragedy in real life. They had hired a steamer at Lemvig and had arranged to have a fictitious shipwreck, in the course of which their vessel was to be stranded and they were to be heroically rescued after confronting apparently unparalleled dangers and suffering. Much to their alarm, however, they were forestalled by reality. They had been cruising about for a couple of hours, during which time the cinematograph operator had been taking pictures of the usual incidents of life on the ocean waves, when the forces of nature thought it was time to give them a taste of the real thing. And the real thing proved to be no joke. A tremendous storm arose and for ten hours the steamer drifted about at the mercy of the wind and waves. The gallant ship was upon the point of foundering, in reality, when help arrived in the shape of a boat from Lemvig, where fishermen had grown anxious at the failure of the steamer to return to port. The actors and actresses were rescued in the nick of time and fifteen minutes later the steamer sank.

Mr. Steenerson introduced the following bill which was referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and grounds ordered to be printed, to authorize the acquisition of a site and the erection of a Federal building at Thief River Falls, Minn.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, that the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to acquire, by purchase, condemnation or otherwise, a suitable site in the city of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, and to cause to be erected thereon a suitable building, with fireproof vaults, heating and ventilating apparatus, and approaches complete, for the accommodation of the postoffice and other Government offices in said city at a total limit of cost, including site, of $75,000.

SCHOOL NOTES

The practical nature of the Short Course in the high school is exemplified in one case, wherein Oscar Stenvik, a student from Torgerson in the town of Reiner, is making a set of heavy bobsleds. The material used is oak and the ironing is being done in the blacksmith shop. This set will be stronger and more serviceable than any offered for sale down town at $35, and will not cost him more than $15 for material. A wise combination of book, laboratory and shop work constitutes this short course.

Last week was the beginning of the second semester and the new program was put in operation in the high school. Several new subjects have been introduced and a number of changes inaugurated.

Mr. Haskin has completed some needed improvements in his agricultural recitation rooms. New shelving and tables admit of more satisfactory recitation work.

Preference is given the short course boys in the blacksmith shop. The boys are taught in classes of six.

Parents ought to scrutinize every item on the monthly reports, which will be distributed next Monday. Inquiry ought also to be made of teacher or superintendent as to failure or misunderstanding of the records.

The proposed 1912 convention of the Northwestern Minnesota Teachers' Association, called to meet at Crookston in February, has been postponed until fall, when it will convene at Thief River Falls. Good hotel accommodations are essential in the entertainment of such a body, as all the meetings have been attended by at least 750 people.

State high school board examinations were offered this week in six subjects. Next week a teachers' examination for certificates will take place at the Normal room in the Lincoln. County Superintendent E. A. Mostue will have charge of the latter.

Some of the local teachers will attend the Bemidji teachers' meeting next week. The North Central Association meets in the neighboring city at that time.

For Sale.

PATRONS MEET

Patrons of the Local Creamery Hold Meeting at the Antlers Club Rooms Saturday.

Invitations Issued to Business and Professional Men to Attend Dinner at Zion Church.

Last week invitations were issued to the business and potessional men of this city requesting them to attend a dinner at the Zion Church dining room with the "soil tillers." Dinner was served to no less than 150 guests and was relished and appreciated by every one. All of the guests left with a "full feeling."

In the afternoon a meeting was held in the Antlers Club rooms, at which time the secretary of the association, Peter Engelstad, read the annual report showing that last year was a most prosperous season. The report showed that they had paid out approximately $80,000 to patrons for butter fat. The creamery has just recently undergone an overhauling and was enlarged considerably. New machinery was installed and the capacity was doubled.

Prospects for the current year look most promising, and there is no doubt that the receipts for the owners of dairy herds who patronize this creamery will reach $100,000 this year. Pennington county is noted for its dairying and is fast becoming one of the leading counties for this production. The farmers are continuously bettering their herds, building silos, and raising fodder, which is the finest feed for the winter months.

BOOSTING MOVEMENT

Beltrami County Expects to do Big Line of Boosting for Their County Soon.

Why Don't Pennington County do Something in this Line. It Pays to Advertise.

The following taken from the Bemidji Sentinal tells how the Commercial Club will do some big advertising for their town and county.

"The Bemidji Commercial Club is endorsing the printing and distribution of from 30,000 to 50,000 copies of an up to date booklet which will be printed at once, and which will contain much valuable information concerning Beltrami county, its agricultural, dairying and general farming interests, commercial and business importance, together with statistical data and a business directory of every city and village in the county, as well as all business individuals, firms and corporations. The Commercial Club decided upon endorsing the issuing of these booklets, at a meeting of the club held Tuesday evening, when the matter was thoroughly discussed and decisive action taken. The booklet will be profusely illustrated with late photographs of scenes, etc., and the whole book will be neatly printed and handsome in every respect. The Marcum Printing Co. will print the booklet and do the soliciting of subscriptions for the same."

We of Pennington County could do the same thing or something similar. Our county is so new that few people know about where we are, and we can safely boast of the best county in this state. It would pay to get the name "Pennington County" before the people of this state as well as others.

Pennington county has room for a large number of settlers where they can raise available crops.

THIEF RIVER GIBSON GIRLS

Gave Favored Young Gentlemen Time of Their Lives and Footed Bills.

Cosy Corners Numerous and in Great Demand All Evening.

The following account of a swell social function at Thief River Falls was kindly furnished the Times by one of the favored, who with an inspiration born of a mental picture of one of Thief River's Gibson girls and reminiscent flavors from the big feed which cost him nothing. Here is his pen picture of the time he had:

"Ever since the 'Old Man of 1911' handed the 'Girl Cupid' the arrows of destiny for 1912, the young men of Thief River Falls and vicinity have been more than alert to society's demands.

"Friday evening was the first realization of their fond dreams, when 'Ladies Gallant call for 'Gents Beautiful'. The call was issued for a dancing party on Friday evening, January twenty-sixth, to be given at the Antler's Club rooms.

"Seventeen lucky Romeos tripped the light fantastic and banqueted ROYAL at 17 Thief River Falls most charming Juliet's expense. The dance hall was decorated in a very artistic 'Kozy-Korner' manner, yellow and white being the color schemes. Dancing was enjoyed by all until the night turns into day when the Drum Majoress, of Alexandrias Rag Time Band, led the march to the hall of EATS.

"The dining room was just as Nifty as you might expect, from the hands of these entertainers so Fair. Small tables were arranged around the room, each table having it's individual 'tallow burner and shade for De-light.'

A scrumptious little banquet was served in courses, while the orchestra made everyone there glad that they were there, by the melodious strains of music up to date. At each gent's place were favors, of cigars (to smoke) and yellow tulips or daffodils (real) to wear.

"After the tables were cleared away and the smoke of the souvenirs had settled, some local talent favored us with a few musical selections which were most entertaining. All then adjourned to the dance hall again and shuffled feet until the strains of 'Home, Sweet Home' were forced upon our ears, this causing the conclusion of one of the prettiest and nicest social functions that has been given for many a moon in Thief River Falls.

"On any other occasion, if a chair had been knocked over on entering the house, a fellow would have had to 'coo coo' nine times more, to make good There will be plenty of chance for recollections of a time that was a time on the part of the seventeen gents, and it will mean great planning to return the complement to those Gibson models.

"Many long distance calls were answered and sent the following morning telling of their good time, which proves again that it was a big event.

By one who was there and had a Peach of a Time."—Crookston Times

Swell Clothing.

A young man concluded that the home merchant did not advertise a very good line of clothing so he sent to a mail order house to get something strictly up to-date. When the suit arrived he found in the pants' pocket a note reading thus: "Should this fall into the hands of a good looking young man who desires to correspond with a young lady of sweet disposition, kindly address," etc. The young man promptly sent a letter to the address and a few days later received a reply as follows: "Sir, my wife is in receipt of a letter from you in her name. She says that twenty years ago she wrote that note. She is now my lawful wife, the mother of eleven children. If you do not quit writing to her I will make a trip to your town and make, etc." Moral: Trade with your home merchants.—Little Falls Transcript.

WAS A BIG EVENT

Local Sports last Week Witnessed One of the Greatest Athletic Events.

Monson Is Victorious Over Norland at the Lyceum Theatre Last Thursday Evening.

Last Thursday night the lovers of good athletic sport had the opportunity of witnessing one of the fastest wrestling matches ever pulled off in this city. The match took place at the Lyceum theatre a week ago tonight, between Otto Norland of Bronson and Ludvig Monson of Holt, both men up to the time of this big match had been devoting their entire time to wrestling and were in the finest of shape for this match. Monson had wrestled here several times before and has won all of the matches of late, Otto Norland has never appeared here before but he proved himself well qualified to put up a good match.

The first fall was awarded to Monson after 59 minutes of hard wrestling, the holt which Monson used was his old favorite "the scissors hold," with a hammerlock which he applied very carefully on his opponent and was successful in landing him after very nearly one hour. The first round was a very exciting one and the crowd was very enthusiastic as both men did some very clever work.

The second round was not quite as long as the first as it took Monson just 22 minutes to secure a holt with which he could land his victim, in this fall he used a Toe Holt and Half Nelson. Norland resisted this terrible holt for a long time but finally gave away. Monson, in the two falls used a double holt each time, both of which are very hard to resist. This match we can assure the public was the best, cleanest and fastest wrestling match which has ever been staged in this city and we are in hopes that more of this kind will be put on.

A challenge was received from Arthur Norland, brother of Otto Norland, stating that he would wrestle Monson for a side bet of twenty dollars. This match will be staged at the Lyceum three weeks from the previous match. Arthur Norland is a little lighter in weight than Monson, but is an "older head" at the game. This may be looked to as one of the coming big athletic events. Watch for hand bills.

From foot to block a hog loses approximately one-sixth in weight, depending upon type, condition and feed.

While it takes a lot of them, the English sparrow makes an excellent potpie. Indirectly, too, putting sparrows in pies is an aid in safeguarding other useful birds about one's premises.

Dynamite is a mighty good agency when used with caution in the clearing of stumps from land; but it has lately been demonstrated quite conclusively that it is a woefully inadequate means of settling disputes between capital and labor.

Some idea of the prolificacy of the rat tribe is got from some figures that were kept in a campaign that was waged against them some time ago on an English estate of 2,000 acres. During a given period 31,981 rats were killed, but notwithstanding this killing there were plenty left to insure the propagation of the species.

The postoffice department at Washington seems to take an entirely reasonable and consistent attitude when it holds that patrons of rural mail routes shall not be given service unless they show some inclination along the line of keeping the roads in passable condition, which the rural carriers have to traverse in getting to their places.

While the early genealogy of the rat is shrouded in some obscurity, the rodent seems to have originated in China. It is said to have made its first appearance in England in 1738, in Paris in 1750 and in California in 1849. It scatters the germs of bubonic plague, cholera, hookworm and pellagra and in spite of all the warfare waged against it multiplies prodigiously.

Whatever the size or shape of the hog house, provision should be made for letting in a generous amount of light. It is very desirable if the arrangement of windows can be such that light will shine on some portion of the floor of the structure during the greater part of the day. Sunlight is a first rate germ destroyer and is a great aid in keeping the hog house dry and sweet and healthful.

According to figures lately compiled Texas produces more turkeys than any other state in the Union. The high prices that have prevailed during the past two or three years have served to greatly increase the raising of these big birds. From some points in southwest and west Texas from 3,000 to 4,000 birds are shipped to northern and eastern points daily during November and December.

From the standpoint of the maintenance of soil fertility—and this, after all, is the only true basis for determining whether a given type of agriculture is good or not—it can only be viewed as a misfortune when, as is the case just now, beef and pork are both so low that the feeder does not feel like running the risk of feeding them high priced corn, but instead markets his grain in the raw.

A fellow has a good prospect of grief and disappointment ahead when he swaps the old farm, whose productive capacity he is sure of, for a stock of merchandise, a hotel or livery barn of decidedly uncertain value and of the conduct of which he knows little or nothing. We have known of just such cases as this where in the windup the victims didn't own anything except their clothes and with so little credit left that they could scarce get trusted for a week's board.

One of the interesting as well as quite remarkable fruit records of 1911 was made by a 1,200 acre orchard of seven-year-old Elberta peach trees located in Pike county, Ark. The gross returns are placed at $300,000 and expenses at $100,000, leaving a net profit of $200,000 from a tract of land that was bought for $5 an acre eight or nine years ago. The tract in question was a cut over timber tract, the surface soil being gravelly loam and the subsoil a red clay. The season's output of fruit was 230 cars that averaged $1,500 per car.

The other day a Minnesota farmer who for some time prior had not had any confidence in the stability or soundness of banks as places of safe deposit went upstairs in his house to get some $1,800 which he had worked hard to accumulate and which he had concealed just beneath the floor. On removing the piece of floor he found not the bills that he had placed there in the past with such a feeling of security, but a nicely rounded bunch of greenish white fuzz and scraps forming a cozy rats' nest. This fellow has learned his lesson, but by mighty expensive instruction.

MARKETING FRUIT IN OHIO.

The marketing end is just as important a part of the fruit growing business as any step which precedes it and is receiving much attention just now. In way of solving this problem the plan that has been evolved by the peach growers in the district adjacent to Port Clinton, O., is interesting and may be of value to fruit growers elsewhere. Briefly, the plan referred to is a disposal of the fruit at auction sales, which are held in the home markets. While two successful co-operative marketing companies had been in operation for about twenty years, the auction plan was not inaugurated until six years ago. At that time any peach grower not a member of either company was likely to fall a victim to the commission men who often got these growers to consign their fruit. Since the auction plan has become established the buyers have been compelled to buy outright. As fast as the fruit is picked it is sorted into three grades and taken in baskets to the auction station and sold to the highest bidder. Thereupon the grower is given a slip stating the number of bushels of each grade and the price of each and next receives in exchange for this a check on the local bank. There is no uncertainty about this plan, no delays, no telegrams stating "stuff not as represented" or anything of the kind. Now and then the grower receives less under this plan than he would by consigning to reliable houses, but he runs no risk, and the money in his pocket on the spot has a good sound.

A HERD OF WILD HORSES.

In the rugged and forbidding valleys of Okanogan county, Wash., which lies north of the big bend in the Columbia river, range today a most interesting group of some 5,000 wild horses. These are said to be the runty descendants of horses of good breeding and a much larger size that were brought west at the time of the gold discoveries in the fifties and sixties. These animals average about 700 pounds in weight, are remarkably swift and sure of foot, much like the bighorn sheep, and up to the present time have resisted practically all attempts at taming and bringing under domestication, being vicious and wild and showing no regard for their own lives when attempts have been made to subdue them. An interesting trait noticed in the stallions of this wild herd is their persistent attempts to coax to this wild life mares grazing on the nearest ranges. In many cases these efforts have been successful, with the result that more than one ranchman has unwillingly furnished new blood for this wild horde. However, a railroad is soon to run into the heart of the country ranged by these wild horses, and it is not likely they will long survive this encroachment of civilization.

REPAIRING TREE DAMAGE.

Doubtless more than one reader of these notes who has lately set out small fruit trees will find before spring that some of the trees have been girdled by mice or rabbits unless measures have been taken to protect the trunks. One of the best safeguards against damage by mice is a removal of all grass and weeds from about the trunk over a radius of two or three feet, for mice rarely do damage unless there be a shelter of some kind close to the trunk. In case damage is done, and the discovery of this should not be left until spring, it may be in part overcome by giving the wound a coat of linseed oil or white lead and tying on a poultice of moist clay or cow manure. If the tree is entirely or almost girdled it will be advisable in the long run to take it out in the spring or at once if conditions permit and set a new one in its place. With apple trees bridge or strip grafting may be done in cases where the girdling is complete, but one must be quite expert at such work to insure success.

IS BEARING FRUIT.

For the year ending Nov. 1 Iowa produced 2,783,684 pounds more butter than for the preceding year. In accounting for this increase Dairy Commissioner Barney attributes no small part of the gain to the work done by lectures and demonstrations on the dairy specials that were run over the main railroad lines of the state last winter. In these lectures emphasis was laid upon the need of testing each member of the herd for butter fat production, the importance of and what constitutes a proper ration and the necessity of grading up the dairy herd by the use of a first class sire. Much of this better dairy gospel work has been done in several of the states, and the practical good that has resulted it would be difficult to measure.

ABOUT CROWN GALL.

Crown gall is a disease of fruit trees that in some sections is causing a good deal of trouble. It is a fungous disease that makes its appearance in an enlargement and fibrous or hairy growth at the crown of the root. While many trees affected with the disease do not die, many others are practically ruined. The damage from crown gall may be reduced somewhat by a drenching of the base of the tree and adjacent roots with bordeaux mixture, but this only helps and does not repair damages. It has been found that the disease is contagious, may be carried from one tree to another with [illegible] or cultivator shovel and that it is [illegible] to set new trees in soil from which diseased trees have been removed.

IN all the history of brewing beer has been considered one of the most healthful drinks, on account of its purity.

When the Pure Food bill was before the United States senate in 1905, Senator McCumber said:

"I believe that we manufacture in this country the purest beers that are made on the face of the earth, and the fact that the brewers' associations are all in favor of this bill is proof that they are satisfied that they make a pure article."

WHITE SEAL BEER

Is the proud accomplishment of years of close devotion to the art of brewing. "Just a little better" has always been our aim and to insure its perfect purity we are painstaking to the last degree.

Poultrymen of Mountain View, Cal., claim to have developed a breed of chickens that have red, white and blue feathers, and they call it the "Patriot."

The general traits and feeding habits as well as needs of chickens, ducks and geese are so different that it is quite impossible to get the best results from all three classes when they are housed in the same quarters.

A good idea of the returns that are at present being received by the owners of California grape ranches is shown in the receipt of $7,000 for the product of thirty acres of Thompson seedless by a grower living not far from Modesto.

It would be an interesting study to trace the causes of the deterioration of the human race from the time that the "Germani" of Caesar used to bathe in the rivers in midwinter to the present, when many take soapstones to bed with them when it is 10 above zero and have five quilts for a covering.

To prevent damage to orchard trees by the few rabbits that may have escaped gun or trap a few limbs of poplar or alder should be scattered on the runs where the rodents enter the orchard. They are fond of the bark of both of these and will usually strip it off before touching the trunk of the fruit trees.

At the southern corn show, which was held recently at Atlanta, Ga., the first prize for yield in the boys and girls' corn growing clubs was awarded to a Miss Hyanie of Raymond, Coweta county, Ga., who is credited with having grown an average yield of 133 bushels per acre. The next best yield was secured by a boy who reported 130 bushels per acre.

Owing to their heavy natural coat of wool, breeding ewes do not require the same degree of protection during the winter as do brood sows, but their housing should be so arranged that they can have a dry bed in which to rest during the day and sleep at night and will be sheltered from direct winds and sleet or rains. If these conditions are provided they should be allowed to range at will during the day and will be much the better for the exercise which they get.

From figures recently published by the census bureau appear abundant reasons why turkeys for the gracing of the Thanksgiving and Christmas tables have been from 20 to 30 cents a pound instead of from 12 to 18 cents, as used to be the case some years ago. These figures show that in 1910 there were 3,608,769 turkeys on the farms of the country, while in 1900 there were 6,594,695. If this movement should continue for another ten years we won't be able to touch a turkey with a ten foot pole.

The Colorado experiment station has tried a number of methods of exterminating prairie dogs and other grain eating pests and has found the following dope the most satisfactory: To sixteen quarts of corn or other small grain add one ounce of strychnia sulphate, one teaspoonful of sirup and one quart of boiling water. Stir the grain until all of it is moistened and then distribute in the places desired where poultry or other stock cannot get at it. The same bait is excellent for pocket gophers, the grain being inserted in the runways.

An interesting feature in connection with an international egg laying contest which is being conducted at the Storrs Agricultural college in Connecticut is that all of the pens of laying hens are housed in the open or in fully ventilated quarters, care being taken only to see that no direct drafts strike the fowls while roosting at night. It was thought by some that if the Leghorns and like breeds were given these conditions that they would do mighty little laying. But it is turning out that to date at least these very hens are shelling out the most eggs.

A friend who tried [illegible] all conditions of feeds for his flock of hens finally caused them to get down to business by cutting out a good deal of the corn which they had been getting and substituting [illegible] that is put up at the [illegible] feed for hogs [illegible]. When the hens had been [illegible] short time [illegible] production [illegible] fact that the [illegible] larly expensive [illegible] fact that [illegible] gave the biddies the [illegible] they needed in egg production.

In latitudes liable to frozen drainpipes it is well during the coldest weather to put some salt on the sink strainers and pour a quantity of hot water through. If the pipes are nearly clogged this will tend to clean them out, while if they are stopped up the salt will help to melt them out.

It is rather a strange coincidence that for the three winters past, including the present, the lowest temperatures through the north central states have been recorded between the 5th and 7th of January, temperatures of from 20 to 30 degrees below zero having been registered in this brief interval.

Perhaps in no case does the proverb "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure" apply with greater force than in the case of the flock of poultry. It is both cheaper and easier to take the simple necessary precautions to insure the health of the flock than to correct matters after a disease gets a foothold, for after poultry get sick the simplest and often the cheapest cure is to knock them on the head and bury them.

A disease which has been prevalent among the cattle and horses of eastern Oregon for the past year and a half and had been dubbed the "walking sickness" has been lately diagnosed as plain hydrophobia, following a recent investigation into the malady by the state bacteriologist, Professor Pernot. A curious feature of the disease seems to be an attempt on the part of affected animals to follow moving objects. Invariably the disease has been fatal.

On Dec. 27 a good many people gathered on a farm near Raymondville Tex., to witness the dynamiting of five acres of land, the treatment being given for the purpose of increasing its productive capacity. Holes were bored forty feet apart over this tract and to a depth of five feet, and in these the charges of dynamite were placed and exploded. It is claimed by those who were in charge of the experiment that this treatment will increase the capacity of the soil to hold moisture and will make possible more perfect sub drainage.

The wheat producing territory of the world is so distributed that there is not a month in the year but the harvesting of the cereal is in progress somewhere. It begins in January in Australia and Argentina and for the remaining months is carried on successively in East India and upper Egypt, lower Egypt, Asia Minor and Mexico, Algeria, central Asia and China, southern France and the southern United States, southern Europe and the central United States, northern central Europe, England, Canada and the Dakotas, Norway, Sweden and north Russia, Peru and South Africa, and winds up in December in Burma and Argentina.

The brown or corn bread that is the natural complement of a ration of pork and beans is said to have been first made by a Boston baker in 1740 in an effort to find a cheaper substitute for the white bread, which had become a luxury owing to the high price of wheat. While it was designed originally as a ration for the poorer classes, it took so well that it became highly prized by both rich and poor. The following is said to be the recipe for this original brown bread: Take two cupfuls of Indian meal, two cupfuls of rye or wheat flour, two cupfuls of sour milk, one cupful each of sweet milk and molasses, two teaspoonfuls of soda and two of salt. Steam three hours in a covered tin inside a large covered vessel, then half an hour more with the inside cover off.

The fine quality of many a big churning in co-operative creameries is ruined through the addition to the cream of a single mess of filthy cream slipped into the gatherer's tank by some careless or dirty patron. Where such a mess of cream is stirred into a large vat of cream and is allowed to ripen before churning the contamination is spread to the whole mass, and when this churning of butter gets to market the price may be knocked from 2 to 4 cents a pound because of the rankness which has been imparted. Level headed creamery managers and their buttermakers should have their drivers keep close tab on these dirty patrons, with orders to refuse dirty cream or that from the milk of cows too far advanced in their period of lactation for their milk to be sweet and usable. If these precautions were taken thousands of dollars would be saved for the patrons of co-operative creameries in the course of a year.

If the California Fruit Growers' exchange has a pretty effective monopoly in the handling and marketing of citrus fruits, as contended by some market papers that are decidedly partial to jobbers and middle men as a class, it is a situation that these latter people are chiefly and directly responsible for. Time was, and that but a few years ago, when, to use an agricultural figure, the jobbers and commission men as well as the railroads "played horse" with the orange and lemon growers of California. It took the latter quite awhile to get wise to what ailed them, then they got first, later [illegible] organized, and the Fruit Growers' exchange is the result. The [illegible] much the same [illegible] effort along the [illegible] in half [illegible] other fruit growing lines. It is simply a case where the [illegible] killed the goose that laid the golden egg.

A BIG HORSE FEEDING TEST.

Probably the largest experiment in horse feeding ever conducted was the one recently concluded at Fort Riley, Kan., under the supervision of Dr. Campbell, who is connected with the State Agricultural college. Nine hundred and thirty-seven horses were used in the test, and these were divided into fifteen different lots and fed as many different rations. Every meal for every one of these horses was weighed and mixed in the right proportions during a period of 140 days. The purpose of the experiment was to find, if possible, a grain ration that would take the place of oats and give as good results, also to test the feeding value of different hays and to determine the effect of different grain rations upon the health of the horses. When the feeding tests were concluded several things were made clear: First, other feeds can be substituted for oats as a ration for work horses, with as good results and much cheaper. It was proven conclusively that oats alone were a better grain for work horses than corn alone, but more expensive. Horses that were fed oats alone gained on an average sixteen pounds a head, while a like number that were fed corn alone lost twenty-nine pounds apiece in the same time. When corn was fed with the proper amount of alfalfa of the right quality it was found to give just as good results as oats and, besides, was fully 50 per cent cheaper. Alfalfa hay, properly fed, proved to be a more valuable roughage than either timothy or prairie hay and cheapened the cost of the daily ration from 25 to 40 per cent. A ration consisting of six parts of corn, four parts of oats and four parts of bran, together with timothy hay, was rated as the best ration that could be given a horse, though not the cheapest. An old idea was exploded in the experiment—namely, that horses fed oats have more life than those given a ration of corn.

A SCHOOL OF HORTICULTURE.

As a result of co-operation on the part of the business men of Lewiston, Ida., and Clarkston, Wash., a school of horticulture has been established at Livingston that will be quite unique in its scope and purpose. Instead of furnishing instruction primarily to young people, as is so largely true of the average agricultural college, the school in question will be attended most largely by owners of fruit ranches in the vicinity and their wives and daughters. Among the subjects studied will be fruit growing, nursery practice, the growing of small fruits and vegetables, insects and their treatment, plant diseases and other subjects arising from the agricultural conditions to be found in the valley; also soil physics and soil chemistry. The business men of the two cities came to the conclusion that the fruit industry of the valley was retarded because of a lack of trained men, and the school just established has definitely in view correcting this difficulty. That a high grade of instruction will be given is indicated in the choice of Professor Thornber, previously in charge of the horticultural departments of the South Dakota and Washington state agricultural colleges. Lectures will be given in the forenoons of five days in the week, while the laboratory work will be largely done in the nearby orchards. Professor Thornber believes there is a real need for the school and is enthusiastic about its future.

SENSIBLE MONTANA.

Beginning with Jan. 1 the good people of Montana will be able to know a bit about the pedigree of the eggs they have for breakfast. At that date regulations became effective relative to the sale of eggs, which state authorities say will be strictly enforced. Under the regulations eggs will be classified as fresh eggs, ranch eggs and case eggs. Eggs offered for sale as fresh that are more than seven days old will be considered misbranded. Ranch eggs are those that have not been preserved or the age of which is unknown. All eggs that have been kept in cold storage or that have been preserved in any way are known as case eggs, and the containers of such eggs must have plainly marked thereon in letters not less than two inches high the month and the year in which the eggs were placed in storage. Any eggs of the above class not plainly labeled are considered misbranded. The law imposes heavy penalties for violation and makes it incumbent upon both the merchant and eating house proprietor to specify plainly the class to which eggs he sells belong.

CORN IN LOUISIANA.

A very interesting change that is going on in those portions of the south where cotton has been the staple crop for generations past is clearly shown in the rapid increase in the production of corn in the state of Louisiana during the past few years. A few years ago the cotton boll weevil made its appearance in the state, and cotton growers seemed to be threatened with bankruptcy. But being compelled to devote cotton land to the growing of corn and other crops has really been a blessing in disguise. Figures that have been compiled show that the production of corn has increased from 19,516,000 bushels in 1905 to nearly [illegible] bushels in 1911. In the year 1910 Louisiana corn was sold to Europe and Texas for the first time, and the surplus for the past year has been close to [illegible] bushels.

Official Paper of Pennington County

Tomorrow, February 2nd, is "Ground Hog" day. It is hoped that Mr. Ground Hog will not be deceived by the shadows of the many candidates for Governor of Minnesota and go back in his hole for six weeks more.

Last week the Plummer Pioneer reached our exchange table Saturday morning instead of Sunday as before. We note by an article in the editorial column that the publication day has been changed, which will assure the readers that they will get their papers before Sunday.

Through the columns of the Bemidji Sentinel we read an article headed "Railway Officials Aid in Boosting". The boosting movement is a large number of booklets which are being printed and will be distributed about this and adjoining states, telling of the wonderful opportunities in Beltrami county.

The editor of a newspaper in Ohio has found a definition for the word Newspaper. Thus it reads: "A newspaper is a thing that every person in town knows how to run except the editor. It is what should be open for roast on everybody except yourself and a few of your friends, for whom it should be a sweet-scented bequest of praise.

It is what you want to see the editor keep your name out of as soon as you have settled with the police justice the morning after. It is what no one forgets to condemn for its mistakes, but never remembers to praise for the good it accomplishes."—Ex.

SAYS A BLACKLIST EXISTS

St. Paul Man Criticises Treatment of Railway Mail Clerks.

Carl Vandyke of St. Paul, representing the Railway Mail Clerks' association of the Tenth division, which embraces Minnesota and other Northwestern states, appeared before the house committee on postoffices and postroads at Washington. He urged that provision be made in the postoffice appropriation bill now under consideration for increased salaries for railway mail clerks and an improvement in the working conditions. He charged that the present administration of the postoffice department had been harsh in its dealings with the employes in the railway mail service and that hours of labor had been imposed on the clerks that made their lives a burden.

Mr. Vandyke charged further that railway mail clerks who had complained of existing conditions had been blacklisted, and discriminated against in the matter of promotion.

MINISTER HANGS HIMSELF

Commits Suicide in Jail Following Brief Sentence.

Rev. R. T. Guernsey, pastor of the Baptist church of Long Prairie, committed suicide by hanging himself in a cell in the Todd county jail.

Rev. Mr. Guernsey was dismissed from his pulpit by the trustees of the church a week ago and was arrested and sentenced to imprisonment for ninety days on complaints filed with the county authorities by several parents. He had hanged himself by making a rope and noose of his bedclothing and tying one end to the bars of his cell door.

The dead man was about fifty-five years of age and had been a resident of Long Prairie for about a year. He was highly educated and a good platform speaker.

PRIEST AND YOUTH KILLED BY TRAIN

Freight Hits Gasoline Speeder Near Good Thunder, Minn.

An extra freight on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road crashed into a gasoline speeder on which were riding three men on their way from Good Thunder to Mapleton and dealt instant death to two of the occupants of the little car. The dead are: Father J. J. Culliton, thirty-three years old, pastor of St. Theresa's church, Mapleton, and Elmer Hanson, twenty-one years old, son of the section foreman, Mapleton.

John Hanson, section foreman, jumped and escaped with a slightly bruised leg. The accident took place about a mile out of Good Thunder.

Father Culliton, who served the mission at Good Thunder, had gone there early, as had been his custom, to say early mass. The services of the section foreman and his son were secured by the pastor in making the trip. Immediately after the completion of the services the return trip was begun in a blinding snow storm. No train was scheduled on the St. Paul road at the time and the little speeder was making excellent time against a stiff wind and driving snow, when a freight appeared rounding a curve only a few feet away.

OWSLEY HEIRS TO APPEAL

Case Involving $3,000,000 Estate Carried to Higher Court.

Heirs of the Owsley estate have filed notices of appeal from the decision of Judge of Probate Gilpin of Duluth and the now famous case, which involves a fortune of nearly $3,000,000, will be carried one step higher in the fight which ultimately may end in the supreme court.

Under the decision of Judge Gilpin, which has been appealed from, Dr. Frederick Owsley, whose wife left an estate of $2,700,000, was allowed a one-third interest.

In her will Mrs. Owsley provided that only $35,000 and a yearly income of $10,000 be set aside for her husband. The rest of the big fortune was to go to her children, a son, William E. Boeing of Seattle and Caroline E. Boeing Poole of Detroit, Mich. Dr. Owsley contested the will and the court upheld him.

MINNESOTA PIONEER DEAD

David L. Kingsbury Passes Away at St. Paul.

David Lansing Kingsbury, recorder of the Minnesota commandery of the Loyal Legion, assistant librarian of the Minnesota Historical society and early settler, died at his home in Merriam Park, a St. Paul suburb. Mr. Kingsbury had been confined to his house for two weeks from a complication of diseases arising from an affection of the stomach.

Last summer Mr. Kingsbury visited California. He became ill on his return home and it is believed that he never fully recovered. Mr. Kingsbury was sixty-nine years old.

POLITICAL NEWS.

William E. Glasscock, governor of West Virginia, called at the Outlook office in New York city to see Colonel Theodore Roosevelt and took part in a luncheon engagement with the former president. When the governor left he said that he still was of the opinion that Mr. Roosevelt should and would be nominated. "I think he will never be a candidate for the office," Mr. Glasscock said. "I am not authorized to speak for Colonel Roosevelt, nor am I attempting to do so, but it is my opinion that he will have to be nominated without being a candidate."

Within another month, probably earlier, the country will be stirred by a struggle between the friends of President Taft and the followers of ex-President Roosevelt for delegates to the next Republican national convention. President Taft's friends, thoroughly alarmed over the growth of the Roosevelt movement and the surprising strength developed by Senator La Follette, have determined to open headquarters at once and begin a nationwide quest for delegates.

Senator William S. Kenyon of Iowa has formally announced that he will support the candidacy of his colleague, Senator A. B. Cummins, for the Republican presidential nomination. It is the understanding that while Judge Kenyon lines up behind Cummins without mental reservation that he withdrew his pledge of support to President Taft with a great deal of reluctance.

Speaker Champ Clark in a public statement, declared that he was a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, standing on his own feet without leaning on any other candidate. The speaker appeals for the support of a representative delegation of "loyal Missouri Democrats," who will stand by him as long as he has a chance for the nomination.

"If Roosevelt is nominated he should carry Michigan by at least 100,000 votes," said Governor Chase Osborn at the Roosevelt national committee headquarters at Chicago. The governor said he believed Roosevelt would be a candidate if the people of the country demanded it.

The Taft forces won a decided victory in capturing the delegates from the Fourth Oklahoma district from the Roosevelt forces, who made a determined fight and pulled demonstration after demonstration for Roosevelt in attempting to stampede the convention.

Roosevelt headquarters for the Middle West have been opened at Chicago, from which will be sent forth literature and later on speakers, calculated to revive and create Roosevelt sentiment in Illinois and surrounding states.

Governor Herbert S. Hadley of Missouri, in a statement issued at Jefferson City, said he favored the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt as the Republican presidential candidate.

A national convention of Roosevelt boomers will soon be called by Colonel John O. Yeiser of Omaha, who has had charge in the West of the Roosevelt interests.

THE INVESTIGATIONS OF FOREIGN MISSIONS

Pastor Russell, Gen. W. P. Hall and Others Reach Singapore.

In His Public Address Pastor Russell Declares, In the Words of St. Paul, "Of a Truth I Perceive That God Is No Respecter of Persons"—Various Beliefs Dissected.

PASTOR RUSSELL

Singapore, January 28.—Pastor Russell's text for today was, "Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons, but in every nation he that feareth Him and worketh righteousness is accepted of Him." (Acts x, 34; 35.) A brief report of his excellent address follows:—

Never before have I seen so cosmopolitan a city as Singapore. The swarms of Chinese, Malays, Hindoos, Javanese, Siamese, Singhalese, Burmese, Afghans, Madrassi, Tamils and many other nationalities are here interspersed by representatives of practically every nation in the world. The sight of these commingled peoples, only a few of whom know of, worship, or in any wise acknowledge "the Only True God, and Jesus Christ whom He hath sent," stirs my heart, and my head as well.

We recognize the clear statements of the Apostle that "Without faith it is impossible to please God (Hebrews xi. 6); and "How shall they believe in Him of whom they have not heard?" (Romans x. 14) and also the commission: "This Gospel of the Kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness."

Tried and Found Wanting.

A considerable class of very good people by their creeds tell us that if God had foreordained the heathen to salvation He would have seen to it that the Gospel was preached to them; and that their not hearing the Gospel signifies that God "passed them by" as "non-elect;" that the "elect" are to be found only amongst those who have been favored of God and who accept that favor and are "sanctified."

Another class of people by their creeds, which no longer truly represent them, tell us that they believe as above, only that they add another condition, namely, that "the elect," in order to be of "the elect," must be brought to a knowledge of water baptism—complete immersion—and must obey this teaching.

Another theory held denies that there is "election," and denies that any quantity of water is necessary, although it does recommend a little. This theory declares God's love for the heathen, but says that He made faith in Jesus' sacrificial death a condition of salvation and that the responsibility for the heathen's not knowing, and consequently their going to eternal torment, rests with Christians themselves. They say that God did His part in providing the Savior, and that the carrying of this knowledge is wholly dependent upon Christians. One would think that with this view few Christians would be able to sleep a single night.

Some dear people, holding the views last mentioned, have started a "Men and Religion Forward Movement." They propose to use about two million dollars in starting the movement and thereby to collect a fund of thirty million dollars (six million pounds). Dear people! How I love them for their zeal, even though it be as the Apostle said, "not according to knowledge." (Romans x. 2.) If they could stand in Singapore's streets and journey with us a little the eyes of their understanding would be opened. They would begin to figure out that the sum they expect to spend in converting the world would be little over half a penny per soul! The United States Government statistics show that a century ago the numbers of heathen were six hundred millions and that today the number is double.

A Better Hope Found.

Some, repudiating the creeds of the past as no longer tenable, fault the Bible with being the basis for those creeds and abandon it with the creeds.

Let us, on the contrary, declare that the difficulty with the creeds of the past has been that they divided up the Word of God amongst them, and that each creed has a certain amount of gold as well as a large accumulation of dross. It would be too serious an undertaking for finites to put all the creeds into a crucible and separate the gold from the dross. Let us take the easier, the simpler method to which all Christian people should be willing to accede, namely: to wholly cast aside our creeds and go back to the Word of God—to the Bible—to the utterances of Jesus, the Apostles and Prophets.

St. Paul's declaration is that the Word of God is sufficient that the man of God may be fully furnished. (II Timothy iii, 17.) His further suggestion is that we "rightly divide the Word of Truth," and that "it is able to make us wise unto salvation." Let us follow this course and allow God's Word to be its own interpreter—allow one passage to throw light upon another; and thus let us reject none of the Divine testimony, but, bringing the whole together, find therein the Wisdom of God, the Justice of God, the Love of God, the Power of God unto salvation, to every one that believeth.

FARM ORCHARD AND GARDEN
BY F. E. TRIGG
CENTRAL POINT ROGUE RIVER VALLEY OREGON
CORRESPONDENCE SOLICITED

Of itself cornmeal served in various forms is not a balanced ration for man, but it is a great heat producer, and if served with beef, beans or eggs it is both cheap and economical.

Many an alarm clock is kept in the house and wound up regularly as a sort of conscience satisfier. That is, the winding of it at night seems to make a justification for oversleeping in the morning.

Buckwheat cakes light and nicely baked and served with crisp bacon or breakfast sausage surely do tickle the palate, but a too steady diet of them is rather tough on the stomach and consequently on one's health. They are best sandwiched in with other rations.

Scalding water, fresh air and sunshine are three of the most valuable aids in the maintaining of a clean and healthful environment for and a healthy condition in the farm animals, and they are three aids that many a farmer appreciates to a pitifully meager degree.

Fresh meat is quite too high to be feasible as a ration for the hens, but if one lives in a rabbit country the poultry will greatly relish the rabbit meat. Skin and draw the rabbit and hang up just high enough so the hens will have to jump to reach. The exercise and fresh meat combined should set them to laying if they have been loafing.

The increasing scarcity of fur bearing animals is in no case better shown than in the prices paid for mink pelts now and a few years ago. The same large, dark, prime pelt that was selling fifteen years ago for $1.40 now fetches $7. In the same period prime skunk skins have advanced from 65 cents to $1.75 and muskrat from 11 to 40 cents.

The potato crop for the season past totaled 282,000,000 bushels, and, while this yield was about 12 per cent below the five year average, owing to the higher prices prevailing it netted the growers $213,000,000, which was about 14 per cent above the return for the crop on a five year basis. At present a good many potatoes are being imported and are paying a duty of 25 cents per bushel.

In some sections of the west where homesteaders are settling on the big cattle ranges they seem to have adopted the motto of "free range, free beef," and have been enjoying a toothsome supply of fresh beef by killing steers now and then that happened to stray on their ranches. Naturally the cattlemen object to this procedure and in some instances have appealed to state authorities for protection. It was not so very long ago when it was the homesteaders who were the suppliants.

There is no condition to be found on the farm that will play greater hob with farm animals in a shorter time than housing them under such conditions that they will not have an abundance of fresh air by night or day. The stable in which cattle or sheep are quartered may be steamy and warm, but the air in such a place may be so bad and so lacking in oxygen as to nearly extinguish a lantern. Fresh air doesn't cost anything, but it's mighty expensive business not giving the farm animals all they want of it.

Modern business inflicts much injustice at times upon those less favorably situated in the economic scale and is also responsible for the practice of much dishonesty of one kind and another, but it has also had some most wholesome influences. Among these is a great curtailment of the drinking of intoxicating liquors among practically all railway employes and the workers in many other industries where employers insist on efficiency and sobriety. Many of these same companies have entirely forbidden the use of cigarettes by employes while on duty simply because they take from a man's mental alertness and power of concentration.

The chief causes of loss in the operation of many a farm dairy are two—failure to apply the Babcock test for quantity and quality of milk to ascertain which cows are really paying for the keep or making a profit and, secondly, failure to adjust the grain ration of the cows to the amount of milk that they are giving. With cows giving milk containing about 3 per cent of butter fat a good rule is to feed three pounds of grain daily for each five pounds of milk produced. From this it will be seen that in many a dairy herd cows may be fed either more or less grain than they ought to get in both instances to a loss and disadvantage.

Officials of the Canadian department of agriculture put the damage to sacked wheat in the western provinces at $2,000,000 annually.

Some one has found out that eating popcorn during the entire journey will prevent car sickness. Incidentally it will please the "newsie."

Missouri does not excel in some lines of production, but she holds the banner for the biggest mules and corncobs produced in the country.

If one is located in a section where broom corn does well it is a paying crop, the price per ton of good quality product being about $240 per ton.

Anaheim, Cal., is the center of an extensive celery raising district, from which 1,000 cars of the vegetable will be shipped during the present season.

New Zealand has twenty-four sheep for each inhabitant. Farmers of the United States would be better off than they are today if, as a country, we could make as good showing.

Sand and gravel are usually viewed as sort of plebian stuff in nature's economy and the business world, but it took $21,037,030 in 1910 to buy what was used in building and other purposes.

The Danes are the greatest buttermakers of continental Europe, and in the United States buttermakers of this same nationality take most of the prizes for the manufacture of gilt edged butter.

A law has been recently passed by the Florida legislature prohibiting the shipment out of the state of green or unripe oranges. The law was passed primarily in the interest of the grower, but will benefit the consumer also.

During the winter months, when severe colds are frequent, it is well to have handy a bottle of turpentine, camphor and sweet oil mixed to rub on to the neck and chest when a severe cold is contracted. Often such an application made before a doctor can be summoned will head off many a severe cold and possibly pneumonia.

The pruning of the sugar orchard maple may be done any time from the middle of July up to the 1st of December, but if done in the other months of the year the trees will suffer much from loss of sap. The worst time in all the year to do the job is in the latter part of February, just before the sap starts or while it is flowing heavily.

A chap down in Florida is out after suckers with a vengeance, claiming to send to any inquirer the secret of controlling sex in farm animals in return for a money order or draft for $2. The greatest medical experts and anatomists have been and are today absolutely in the dark in regard to the influences which determine sex, one secret nature has withheld from the prying human intelligence.

The husking records have gone glimmering again, Bert Van Houten of Fremont county, Ia., excelling all previous records about ten days ago by husking 254 bushels and 50 pounds in ten hours. In a contest some two weeks prior to this performance he was defeated in a competitive husking contest in which he husked 230 and his rival 231 bushels. The new record also surpasses by three bushels the record made by Claude Wilson of Silver City, Ia.

Among the most striking figures which have been compiled in connection with the products exported during the past ten years are those having to do with live stock and meat. Statistics show that in 1901 there were exported from the United States 750,000 head of farm animals and 1,289,000,000 pounds of beef and pork. In 1910 the export of the meat animals had fallen to 188,000 head, while the exports of beef and pork were but 370,000,000 pounds.

The gospel of a better agriculture has been thoroughly preached in Ohio during the past year. Thirteen special trains, equipped with demonstration paraphernalia and lecturers, have made trips over the leading railroads. The campaign resulted in forty-eight days of instruction being given in practically every county in the state, while [illegible] miles were traveled by the special trains. Instruction of the most practical kind was given in soil fertility, selection of seed corn, wheat and sugar beet culture, poultry keeping, hog raising and horticulture. It is estimated that the lectures were heard by [illegible] people.

A good many people get into all kinds of trouble by trying to maintain an angel's food type of living on a gingerbread or corn bread salary. It is the same kind of folks who sport an automobile when they could hardly pay for a Shetland pony outfit.

Potato raisers in the United States will have to take a back seat, for here comes a report that a trucker in Alaska cleared $3,700 from three acres planted to spuds. It is quite likely, in the absence of definite evidence to the contrary, that the sale price was the important factor in determining the return from this tract.

It is estimated that as a result of extensive drainage projects which have been started in southern Louisiana 9,000,000 acres of the most fertile land in the world will be rendered productive and that the annual value of the crops that can be raised on these redeemed lands will be worth hundreds of millions of dollars.

Those Medicine Hat blizzards usually strike the states east of the great continental divide the same week that the folks living in this blast stricken area get word from their friends spending the winter in California about having green peas and new potatoes for dinner and home grown roses or other flowers on the sitting room tables.

A scientific study of the fungous diseases which attack potatoes tends to greatly strengthen the practice of importing seed from sections considerably north of the point where the planting is to be done. In the case of securing new seed corn experience has proved it generally unwise to ship it from any distance either north or south, but that it can safely be brought from points east or west for a distance of from 200 to 300 miles.

The difference between the grade of butter known as "western extras," which is now topping the market at close to 40 cents, and the poorer grade of uncertain pedigree, which is rank and loud and sells for not more than half as much, is just a matter of dirt and carelessness. The dirt gets into the milk while it is being taken from the cows and by being handled in dirty utensils, and carelessness is pretty thoroughly mixed in with the dirt.

It is a fact doubtless not generally known that for many years prior to the early seventies the postal rate on merchandise used to be 8 cents a pound, or just half what it is today. At about that time some one supposed to be financially interested in the express companies got this rate changed to 16 cents a pound, and here it has stuck ever since. It would be interesting to know the number of millions of dollars that this one simple change in postal rates has extorted from the people of the country in the interval since.

Professor Bolley of the North Dakota Agricultural college, who has achieved a national reputation in connection with his discoveries in regard to the causes and cure for flax wilt and his discovery of the formaldehyde treatment to prevent smut in small grain, urges rotation of crops for the simple reason that it tends to insure soil sanitation. He explains the meaning of this phrase by saying that rotation of crops tends to hold in check the various fungous pests that do great damage where the same crop is grown on a piece of land during successive years.

The individual gas heating and light plant for the country or town home is a mighty nice thing, but often very dangerous. An Illinois farmer installed one not long ago, and the other day when he was away from the house the plant exploded, wrecking his home and killing his daughter and sister and severely injuring his wife and other children. The gas plant was in the basement. The top of the container became loose and filled the basement with gas, which spread to and was ignited by an open fire in the kitchen above. As before stated, a gas plant is a nice thing, but, like a Jersey bull, it will bear close watching.

A group of American and Canadian capitalists will shortly establish in Brazil the largest beef producing plant in the world. The syndicate has bought 9,000,000 acres of land of the Brazilian government on which cattle can range the year around without danger from freezing or storms. The project will be started with the largest number of cattle it is possible to buy, and its capacity is placed at 500,000 head. The headquarters of the company will be Sao Paulo, 250 miles north of Buenos Aires. Murdo McKenzie of Colorado, a former president of the National [illegible]kmen's association, will head the company at a salary of $50,000 a year.

Announcement has been made recently of the discovery of half a dozen lemon trees in the citrus fruit belt in southern California that bear fruit of an almost completely seedless type. The owner of the ranch on which these trees are located is not sure of the exact origin of the scions from which the trees in question developed, but believes they were from stock imported from southern Europe. The seedless lemon produced by these trees is of good size, full of juice and of excellent quality. A seedless lemon is an object that has been long sought, and it is predicted that within a few years this seedless variety will supplant the common kind, just as some years ago the navel orange took the place of the seeded fruit.

While there may be exceptions in two or three states, in a majority if one person chops down a bee tree on the premises of another he is liable to prosecution for trespass to the extent of the value of the tree.

The word "fizzle" is not properly applied to those who would and cannot reach a given standard, but those who could do better than they do, but will not. No blame attaches in the former case, but much does in the latter.

Weather records kept at many points in the country show the November just past to have been the coldest in twenty years. If further proof of this were needed all a fellow would have to do would be to look over his fuel expenses for the month.

The English walnut crop in California was abundant the past season, growers receiving from 12½ to 15 cents per pound for their product. The record for production of a single tree is held by a Mr. Root of Elsinore, who has gathered 400 pounds from his celebrated big tree.

The latest proposal along the line of daring agricultural achievement is a redemption of the sun and drought cursed wastes of the Sahara desert through a planting of the spineless cactus. Dollars to doughnuts if such an enterprise were put afoot there would be all kinds of suckers that would bite on the bait and buy large tracts of these arid wastes.

An excellent substitute for butter fat in the milk given the growing calves is linseed meal. This is best prepared for use by scalding a little of the meal with hot water and adding to the warm milk. A small quantity—not more than a tablespoonful—should be given to start with, but this may be increased in the course of three or four weeks to a good sized handful twice a day.

A Missouri feeder, a son of the lately deceased millionaire farmer, David Rankin of Tarkio, is an enthusiastic believer in corn silage as an ideal ration with alfalfa for fattening steers. At present he has some twenty carloads of steers in his yards. His experience, covering several years, convinces him that ensilage is both the cheapest and best ration that the corn belt cattle feeder can have.

Studies of the root system of a number of kinds of cultivated plants show that they penetrate to a far greater depth than is generally supposed. It has been found that potatoes send roots down from two to three feet; that corn penetrates to a depth of from five to six feet in humid sections and to a depth of eight feet in drier country. The roots of mature alfalfa attain a length of from twenty to fifty feet.

As a result of experiments that have been conducted at the government laboratory at Wausau, Wis., it has been found possible to make paper from jack pine, hemlock and spruce. In the past spruce alone has been used, but the experiments conducted show that a pulp made of the three has been found satisfactory. Similar experiments conducted a short time before at Lebanon, Ore., show that excellent paper may be made from the otherwise worthless jack or black pine.

At the national apple show held the latter part of November at Spokane, Wash., the sweepstakes prize of $500 for the best car was won by Messrs. Knapp & Orcutt of Moscow, Ida., on a car of Wagoners, which also won a first prize of $300 in its class; R. H. Wright of Chelan, Wash., won first and $300 on Spitzenburgs, Winesaps and Ganos; Houston Bros. of Talent, Ore., a like prize on Newtown Pippins, and U. S. Simmons of Wenatchee, Wash., first on a mixed car.

An unprecedented and widespread epidemic of hog cholera has been causing thousands of hog raisers to market their stuff of late, whether ready for market or not, at prices that barely pay for the corn that has been fed them. However, if one feels that his drove will be reasonably safe from an attack of the disease and has growing shotes he can well afford to feed them and wait for a better market, which is bound to exist when the present flood of stuff being shipped is cleaned up.

An eastern firm at planting time last spring offered $50 for the heaviest yield of silage corn per acre, one condition of the contest being that a variety of corn they sold should be planted. The prize was won by a lady living in Lenawee county, Mich., who on one acre raised 70 tons and 800 pounds of fodder. The piece of land on which this was grown had been a hen yard and hog lot. The corn was drilled in seven inches apart in rows, a little phosphate was hoed in about the hills after the corn was up, and the patch was carefully cultivated.

North Carolina is carrying out a plan of good roads building that is not only deserving of the widest publicity, but of being copied in other states where the materials used are available. The type of road referred to is made of sand and clay, both of which materials are at hand. The highway is first given the convex shape by the use of the grader, so as to insure drainage, and where needed and possible the land immediately adjoining the road is drained. A layer of clay is then applied on the surface, and on top of this is spread a layer of sand. This gradually works into the clay and gives a firm and fairly durable road. By using convict labor these [illegible] are built at a cost of [illegible] per mile, while macadam [illegible] about $[illegible] per mile.

AN INTERESTING EXPERIMENT.

Governor West of Oregon is sponsor for an experiment in the employment of convicts in permanent road building in the state that is not only unique, but commendable, both from the standpoint of the welfare of the convicts employed and the building of permanent highways at a minimum cost. The men—there are some thirty of them in the group referred to—are what the governor calls his "honor squad" and have been hired out to the contractor having in charge the building of the state highway to the famous Crater lake, in the southern part of the state. Their camp has been placed in a picturesque spot on the Rogue river, and here the men are today laboring contentedly and healthfully, with no one to look after them but the overseer who is superintending the work. The men are comfortably housed, well fed and receive 25 cents a day besides for the labor. The plan seems to offer a happy solution of the "bad man-good roads problem" and is deserving of the carefulest investigation by those who are interested not only in building permanent highways at a minimum cost, but, what is even more important, redeeming and fitting for citizenship the myriads at present confined in prisons, at once a source of heavy expense and usually a menace to society when released.

SOME CORNHUSKING.

Each fall as corn picking time rolls around much interest is shown in the husking records made in different parts of the corn belt. Within the past few weeks all previous records have gone a-glimmering. The last week in November a grueling husking contest was pulled off near Percival, in Fremont, the southwest county of Iowa. The contestants were Bert Van Houten, a resident of the county, and Earl Neely of Nebraska City, Neb. Spice was added to the contest owing to the fact that Van Houten had a short time before defeated Neely in a husking match and the further fact that each had wagered $500 that he could defeat the other. At the end of ten hours Neely had to his credit 231 bushels and fifty pounds of corn, while Van Houten had husked in the same period 230 bushels and thirty pounds. But if reports are correct these performances were put in the shade by Claude Wilson of Silver City, in Fremont county, who, without a pacemaker, husked 251 bushels and thirty-nine pounds of corn in ten hours, all ears thrown over the wagon being picked up and the corn being as free from husks as average corn. When one takes into account that seventy-five or eighty bushels is considered a very good day's work it can be the better appreciated what the above records mean.

ANOTHER SERVICE.

Birds, the little friends to which mankind is already heavily in debt for song and destruction of insect pests, are being put to a new and interesting use which it is believed will still further safeguard human life. Experiments which have been conducted by the federal department of mines show that birds, especially the canary, will droop or succumb almost immediately when introduced into a mine in which foul gases have been produced as the result of an explosion, while a healthy man may not feel the effects of the foul air for about eight minutes. The birds are to be used by those engaged in rescue work in mines, the birds being kept in cages and watched closely. If the birds are noticed drooping the rescuers take warning and either retrace their steps or put on their oxygen helmets.

HOME CURED BACON.

Those who relish home cured bacon will be interested in the following recipe: After the butchering all of the animal heat should be allowed to get out of the meat, and for best results it should not be allowed to freeze. Each piece to be cured should be rubbed with salt and allowed to drain overnight. All should then be packed in a clean barrel or large stone jar, the thicker pieces at the bottom. For each 100 pounds of meat there should be weighed out eight pounds of salt, two pounds of sugar and one ounce of saltpeter. This should be dissolved in four gallons of water and poured over the meat cold. The meat should then be weighted with a stone to keep it under the brine. In from five to seven weeks, depending upon the size of the pieces, the meat may be hung up and smoked.

COSTLY CARELESSNESS.

In the raising of hogs all too often the value of an excellent ration is largely or entirely offset by improper quarters. Especially is this true as regards the winter care of brood sows. A farmer with whom the writer was talking the other day in speaking of his past season's operations mentioned losing practically all his little pigs last spring, and in discussing this loss it developed that the trouble was not due to feeding the sows an improperly balanced (largely corn) ration, but to the fact that the shelter provided for the sows left them exposed to the dampness and cold, caused them to pile up, and dead little pigs were the result.

THISTLE EXPERT WANTED.

Directors of the Kansas experiment station are looking for some one to establish a thistle scholarship—that is, an endowment sufficient to pay the expenses of a student who shall devote a good share of his time to a study of the Russian thistle and, if possible, breed the spines off the plant.

Poultrymen of Mountain View, Cal., claim to have developed a breed of chickens that have red, white and blue feathers, and they call it the "Patriot."

The general traits and feeding habits as well as needs of chickens, ducks and geese are so different that it is quite impossible to get the best results from all three classes when they are housed in the same quarters.

A good idea of the returns that are at present being received by the owners of California grape ranches is shown in the receipt of $7,000 for the product of thirty acres of Thompson seedless by a grower living not far from Modisto.

It would be an interesting study to trace the causes of the deterioration of the human race from the time that the "Germani" of Caesar used to bathe in the rivers in midwinter to the present, when many take soapstones to bed with them when it is 10 above zero and have five quilts for a covering.

To prevent damage to orchard trees by the few rabbits that may have escaped gun or trap a few limbs of poplar or alder should be scattered on the runs where the rodents enter the orchard. They are fond of the bark of both of these and will usually strip it off before touching the trunk of the fruit trees.

At the southern corn show, which was held recently at Atlanta, Ga., the first prize for yield in the boys and girls' corn growing clubs was awarded to a Miss Hyanie of Raymond, Coweta county, Ga., who is credited with having grown an average yield of 133 bushels per acre. The next best yield was secured by a boy who reported 130 bushels per acre.

Owing to their heavy natural coat of wool, breeding ewes do not require the same degree of protection during the winter as do brood sows, but their housing should be so arranged that they can have a dry bed in which to rest during the day and sleep at night and will be sheltered from direct winds and sleet or rains. If these conditions are provided they should be allowed to range at will during the day and will be much the better for the exercise which they get.

From figures recently published by the census bureau appear abundant reasons why turkeys for the gracing of the Thanksgiving and Christmas tables have been from 20 to 30 cents a pound instead of from 12 to 18 cents, as used to be the case some years ago. These figures show that in 1910 there were 3,668,760 turkeys on the farms of the country, while in 1900 there were 6,594,695. If this movement should continue for another ten years we won't be able to touch a turkey with a ten foot pole.

The Colorado experiment station has tried a number of methods of exterminating prairie dogs and other grain eating pests and has found the following dope the most satisfactory: To sixteen quarts of corn or other small grain add one ounce of strychnia sulphate, one teaspoonful of sirup and one quart of boiling water. Stir the grain until all of it is moistened and then distribute in the places desired where poultry or other stock cannot get at it. The same bait is excellent for pocket gophers, the grain being inserted in the runways.

An interesting feature in connection with an international egg laying contest which is being conducted at the Storrs Agricultural college in Connecticut is that all of the pens of laying hens are housed in the open or in fully ventilated quarters, care being taken only to see that no direct drafts strike the fowls while roosting at night. It was thought by some that if the Leghorns and like breeds were given these conditions that they would do mighty little laying. But it is turning out that to date at least these very hens are shelling out the most eggs.

A friend who tried most all combinations of feeds for his flock of hens finally caused them to get down to business by cutting out a good deal of the corn which they had been getting and substituting in place of it bran, skimmilk and tankage, the kind that is put up at the packing houses as a feed for hogs and poultry. When the hens had been on this ration for a short time they surpassed in egg production any previous record. The better results secured were not due to the fact that the latter ration was particularly expensive, but simply to the other fact that it was a ration that gave the biddies the food elements they needed in egg production.

The orator was greeted by a good sized crowd of Republicans and Democrats, very few Socialists being present. This is the first lecture that has been heard in the Auditorium, that has not dealt with Socialism. ABOUT THE STATE

JUDGE WILLIAM LOCHREN DEAD

Prominent in State and National Affairs for More Than Half a Century.

Judge William Lochren, for many years a prominent figure in his profession and judge of the United States district court from 1896 to his retirement in 1908, is dead at Minneapolis. He had been in declining health for several years and his death was not unexpected. He suffered a severe sinking spell shortly before the end and physicians were hastily summoned. From that time his decline was rapid. His wife and son, William A. Lochren, were at his bedside.

Judge Lochren was born in County Tyrone, Ireland, in 1832. His parents emigrated to the United States the same year, settling in Vermont, where in 1854 young Lochren began the study of law. After his admittance to the bar in 1856 he came to Minnesota, locating at St. Anthony, now Minneapolis. On April 29, 1861, he enlisted in Company E, First Minnesota volunteers. Not long after the enlistment he was made a sergeant. He was with the regiment in all the battles of the Potomac for three years. His bravery and attention to military tactics won him promotion Sept. 22, 1862, when he was made second lieutenant. In July of the following year he was promoted to first lieutenant for his distinction in the campaigns. He acted as adjutant from the battle of Gettysburg until the middle of the following October. On Dec. 30, 1863, owing to ill health, he was compelled to resign, returning to Minneapolis. In 1868 he was elected state senator, city attorney of Minneapolis in 1877, district judge in 1882 and was commissioner of pensions under President Cleveland for three years beginning in 1893. On May 4, 1896, he was appointed judge of the United States district court for Minnesota, which position he held until his retirement March 31, 1908, at the age of seventy-six.

RECORDS WERE CHANGED

Testimony Given at Indian Land Probe at Minneapolis.

Charges of the changing of records on the tract books at the White Earth Indian agency, giving indications that certain individuals were favored, were made in testimony given by Edward B. Linnen, general inspector of the department of the interior, before the congressional Indian fraud inquiry at Minneapolis.

"The tract books, which are the land record books of the government at the agency," said Mr. Linnen, "bore notations in pencil and these notations were later covered in ink. I found that in a hundred or more cases there were pencil notations of the man's name opposite the description of the land. It indicated to me that the parties were chosen for certain pieces of land. When they later acquired the land, which was the most valuable on the reservation, the pencil notations were gone over in ink; that is, after the allotments were made.

"The best pieces on the reservation were indicated by estimates made for the government. It was the land that had the best estimates that in the tract book bore pencil notations, later gone over with ink. It is understood in the government land office or any other land office that any pencil or other notations look very suspicious."

ONE DEAD AND MANY INJURED

Two Street Cars in Rear End Collision at St. Paul.

George T. Heatherington, forty-eight years of age, was fatally injured, dying three hours later; Motorman Fred Swanson was critically hurt and a score of others sustained minor injuries when a Selby avenue car of the St. Paul street railway system ran away on the grade below the tunnel and crashed into a car ahead. Heatherington was badly crushed and was taken to St. Joseph's hospital, where he died of his injuries.

The left leg of Motorman Swanson of the car behind was cut off clean between the ankle and the knee. He was pinned down next to the stove, which set fire to the woodwork. He was rescued before he was burned and taken to the hospital.

The shock was terrific. The front vestibule of the runaway car telescoped fully four feet into the rear vestibule of the car in front.

OLD RIVER CAPTAIN DEAD

Peter J. Schneider Passes Away at Winona, Minn.

Captain Peter J. Schneider, eighty-two years old, the most widely known early day pilot of steamers on the Mississippi, is dead at Winona. Death followed a stroke of apoplexy, suffered a few days before, since which time he had been unconscious. Over half a century of his life was spent on the Mississippi in guiding boats up and down the channel. It was said of Captain Schneider that he knew the river, its treacherous currents and winding course better than any other man.

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

At least 100 civil engineers of Minnesota will make a trip to the Panama canal in February. Fifty-nine already have reserved accommodations, and it is expected that about as many will decide later to join the party. The trip will be under the mutual auspices of the Civil Engineers' Society of St. Paul, the Engineers' Club of Minneapolis and the Minnesota Surveyors and Engineers' society, and most of the tourists will be members of one of these societies.

With every room in the new capitol at St. Paul occupied, even to the committee rooms of the house and senate on the second and third floors, Governor Eberhart is now considering the advisability of partly remodeling the Mechanic Arts school building, to which the state will gain title about April 1, to take care of the departments and bureaus which will be crowded out of the new capitol when the legislature convenes.

The late John R. Watkins, head of the J. R. Watkins Medical company of Winona, whose death occurred a month ago at Kingston, Jamaica, left no will, according to a petition filed in the probate court at Winona. The widow, to whom he was married only last September, will receive one-third of the estate and the daughter, who is also the daughter-in-law of the widow, will receive two-thirds.

A state convention of Progressive Republicans, to be held in St. Paul early in February, was decided upon by the board of governors of the Progressive league at a meeting in Minneapolis. The convention will be held in the day of the evening Senator La Follette speaks at the St. Paul Auditorium. As soon as this date is fixed the call for the convention will be issued.

The state highway commission has decided to survey a number of routes proposed in Northern Minnesota for rural roads. These include the so called Brainerd and Moose Lake, Duluth and Moorhead, Deer River and Northome and Duluth and St. Vincent routes. All the proposed roads will be built under the provision of the Elwell law passed by the last legislature.

Because the 1911 potato crop of the United States is 16 per cent smaller than the year before, about 26 per cent smaller than in 1909, and the stocks in dealers' hands now are 32 per cent smaller than they were a year ago, government experts figure that Minnesota growers of the Irish spud will reap a harvest of about $20,000,000 for their 1911 crop.

Cities and villages in Minnesota were handed a jolt by the state supreme court when it held that railroad companies need not obtain franchises for entering or crossing streets within corporate limits before beginning work. The opinion was handed down in the case of the city of International Falls against the Minnesota, Dakota and Western railway.

St. Louis county board of commissioners has appropriated $265,000 for the building and improvement of roads in that division of the state in 1912. Ten thousand of this sum will be expended on the Miller trunk road, which is a fine automobile and general highway between Duluth and the Mesaba range.

The only paper in Minnesota printed and edited by Indians, the Pipestone Peace Pipe, has made its appearance and will be issued henceforth bimonthly. It will be devoted to news of the government Indian school at Pipestone and to general items of interest to Indians.

Governor Eberhart has appointed Charles H. Huhn of Minneapolis a member of the state pharmacy board to succeed E. A. Tupper of Minneapolis. Mr. Huhn is also chairman of the executive committee of the National Druggists' association.

As the result of a complaint from the Minneapolis Traffic association the interstate commerce commission has ordered railroads to reduce all of their present class rates from Minneapolis to Denver to equalize the rates from St. Louis to Denver.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

Mrs. Isabella Dailey, one of the earliest pioneers of Dakota county and whose family figures prominently in the affairs of the early days, is dead at her home in Red Rock. She was eighty-one years old. As the sister of Major and Duncan Kennedy, early Indian scouts and fighters, she saw much of the harships of the early days and went through the perils that attended the frequent Indian outbreaks.

Mrs. Barbara Stephen Dickey, sixty-five years old, a resident of Wayzata, Hennepin county, for forty-three years, is dead at Seattle, Wash., after a prolonged illness. She had gone to Seattle for the winter, hoping to regain her health.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

Smallpox has broken out among the attendants at the state hospital for the insane at Fergus Falls. Two of the attendants have been placed in the contagious ward and every precaution is being taken to prevent the spread of the disease to the inmates.

Frank Panta, twenty-seven years old, was found dead in the snow near his homestead a few miles from Brookston.

All too often it is the same horse that receives scant feed in the stall that is left without a blanket on the village street in cold weather. Probably the chap who owns him gets three square meals a day and when in town warms his shins by the grocery fire.

Texas raises the largest number of turkeys of any state in the Union, but Rhode Island raises the largest number of large birds—the forty pound milk and chestnut fed kind—which grace the president's holiday board and which fetch 40 cents per pound.

While many parents are loath to have their children wear glasses, the fact remains that glasses properly fitted and worn by children while they are in school will often correct eye defects so that they will not be needed in later years. Many cases of chronic headache while in school, as well as other ills, are traceable to weak eyes that should have the aid of glasses.

There is good reason for believing that much of the damage charged to wolves along the line of killing sheep and small calves is quite often not the work of wolves at all, but tramp dogs or those that bear a very respectable canine reputation during daylight hours. This seems to be proved by the fact that a good many so called wolf hunts do not result in scaring up any wolves.

Those in charge of the practical farm demonstration work which is being carried on under the supervision of the federal department of agriculture in a number of southern states credit the boys' corn clubs of Georgia with the increase of nearly two bushels per acre in the corn crop of the past year. It is estimated that this increase has added $7,000,000 to the value of the state's output of this cereal.

If there was ever a winter season when a man could thank his lucky stars that he has a silo it is the one we are just in the midst of. And it is the more appreciated by the fellow who has one when he sees his neighbor mining shock corn from drifts of snow all the way from two to five feet deep if he has been so lacking in forethought as to not make a compact stack of the fodder near the barn.

Roquefort cheese, which is held in high esteem by connoisseurs as a food delicacy, is produced in 510 dairies scattered throughout the department of Aveyron and neighboring districts in France. In 1909 4,000,000 cakes were exported, equal to 20,725,000 pounds, the production of which required 42,267,000 quarts of sheep's milk. The cheese is cured slowly in caves and fetches a fancy price on the market.

It is an odd streak of human nature which makes a good many folks who let bills run for a year feel offended when they are notified with a courteous statement from the persons to whom the obligation is due that they would like to have a settlement of the account. If there are injustice and imposition in such a situation at all the person who allows such an account to run is responsible for them, not the one who asks a settlement.

Not since the period of inflated currency just after the civil war has butter reached the price level at retail quoted recently. In some large market centers this retail price was 50 cents, which means that the fellow who owns the cows was getting from 40 to 42 cents per pound for his butter fat. The unusual price seems to be in part due to the excessive cold which has prevailed for weeks past through the northern dairy states and in part to shortage and high price of feeds. The result of the high prices is that a good many folk are doing without butter on their flapjacks, while others are giving butterine a tryout.

That man is mighty little short of a heartless fiend who lives in a latitude where blizzards and way below zero weather are common and will not provide shelter of some crude kind for his horses and cattle. A case was reported to the writer by the neighbors of a fellow of this stripe the other day, who not only does not give his stock any protection from storm or cold, but makes this matter frightfully worse by keeping them in a half starved condition. His neighbors should put a stop to this brutal business by making a united protest to the township trustees or county attorney. If there is a hot place or a mighty cold one in the hereafter reserved for anybody it ought to be for bipeds who have treated dumb brutes in this manner.

Within a few weeks the Carlsted brothers, living near Dassell, Minn., have been awarded the prize for growing the most bushels of corn per acre in a widely advertised interstate contest. Notwithstanding the fact that the average yield of corn for the Gopher State is only 29.3 bushels, these brothers produced an average yield of 108.8 bushels of shelled corn per acre from their field. The variety grown was the Minnesota No. 13, a type developed by the state experiment station, while the seed used in the production of the prize winning field was the result of very careful selection of breeding ears. Beginning with 1907, the field in question produced consecutively wheat, rye, barley, clover, corn. In 1909 it was given a dressing of barnyard manure and seeded to clover. It was spring plowed a year ago, harrowed and double disked—once three days after planting—was cultivated when two inches high and given three other cultivations later at intervals with a ten shovel riding cultivator.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

VOL XXIX THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 8, 1912 NUMBER 6

WOULD IT INTEREST?

Towns in Marshall, Polk and Pennington Counties to Make Arrangements With James Ward.

Ward Says: "I Would Like to Fly For the Folks at Home." Parents Live at St. Hilaire.

In our January 25th issue we printed a story from the Crookston Times which stated that Ward would fly for Crookston, St. Hilaire and Thief River Falls, sometime in May, providing the interest is great enough and the money could be raised. Now we would advocate that a number of towns along the Great Northern and Soo Line get together, make up a sufficient purse and have Ward fly over each of the towns. On taking a map we trace out the following trip: Up the Great Northern from Crookston to Warren, Argyle, Stephen and Hallock; thence across the country to Lancaster on the Soo Line; thence down to Bronson, Karlstad, Strandquist, Newfolden and Thief River Falls. After going over this city he could continue to St. Hilaire, Red Lake Falls and Crookston.

This Ward would do and it will be a splendid chance for the people of this country to see one of the greatest aviators of the age. The sum of money required of each town is not large. Ward has a national reputation and such flight, if made, will attract great attention to the Red River Valley and be a great advertisement to this section of the country.

A Busy Place.

L. O Laseson's book bindery is one of the busiest plsces in the city. Mr. Lasesson now has six people employed in his bindery in the McGinn block. The large ruling machine with which he does all kinds of rule work is busy very near all of the time and the work which he turns out on this machine is first class stuff. Since the bindery was established here some time ago Lewis has worked up a good business, his work being his best advertiser.

Some time ago a number of large books, "all tattered and torn," were received from the county seat of Marshall county to be rebound and put into respectable condition for regular service. It was but a matter of a few days until the books were taken back to Warren, appearing practically new in every respect.

SUNBEAM

From the Sunbeam.

Stephen Singer, the Kratka merchant, is up to Red Lake agency this week looking after his government contract to furnish the Indian supplies.

The Highlanding Creamery are having lots of trouble to get ice for the creamery, as the Red Lake River ice can not be used, even if the water was deep enough to cut it.

Walter McAndress received a telephone message from St. Hilaire Monday stating that his father was quite seriously ill, and him and Mrs. McAndress left for there at once.

We owe our readers that are not living on the Red Lake River an apology for devoting so much space to the log jam in Red Lake River, yet we feel that there is a question involved in which all the people are interested.

The young folks gave a very pleasant surprise party at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Walter McAndress on Monday evening, and it was a merry good time and a hearty welcome for all. A fine luncheon was served at midnight, and the party did not depart for their homes until the early morn.

THE LOCALS LOSE

McIntosh Walks Off With Honors by a Score of 36 to 17 Last Saturday Night.

Last Saturday the High School basket ball team went to McIntosh and played a game with that high school. The score was 36 to 17 in favor of McIntosh. People who witnessed the game say that our boys played all around the McIntosh boys, but they were unable to locate the baskets. The game was clean and very few fouls were called on either side.

On Lincoln's birthday, Feb. 12th, a "double header" game will be played at the local Gymnasium. In the morning of the 12th the Agricultural College of Crookston will play the Commercial Normal school and in the evening the High school team will play the Agricultural at the Gym.

These games promise to be whirlwinds, as the three teams have all been playing constantly and have the game down so they can demonstrate some of the fine points of the basket ball game. Come out and see some of the fastest games of the season, February 12th.

THE ROAD TAXES

Road Taxes to Be Paid in Cash in Any Town Where Majority of Voters See Fit.

That Sec. 1241 of Chapter 13, Revised Laws of 1905, Be Amended to Read as Follows:

Road taxes to be paid in cash.—Section 1241. That all road taxes be required to be paid in cash, in any town whenever a majority of the voters voting by ballot upon the question shall so determine. Such question shall not be voted upon unless a petition signed by at least ten voting tax-payers of the town, praying for the payment in cash of all road taxes, is filed with the clerk ten (10) days before such town meeting in which case the clerk shall specify in the notice of such meeting that such question will be voted upon. If such question is decided in the affirmative, all taxes thereafter assessed for the maintenance and repair of roads and bridges shall be paid in money and distributed as other town taxes. After an annual town meeting has voted the assessment of any road tax, the board may further assess the property of said town not to exceed five mills on the dollar, on the last assessed valuation thereof, and if they so assess they shall certify the same to the auditor for extension and collection, and before the same is collected they may pledge the credit of the town by issuing town orders, not exceeding the tax so assessed, to the expense of road and bridge work.

Sec. 2. This act shall be in force from and after its passage.

Note.—The sense of this amendment is to cause poll taxes as well as all other road taxes to be paid in cash.

Approved April 10, 1911.

OUR CITY DADS MET

And Quite a Few Things of Local Interest Taken Up—Bids Were Opened.

Committee of Firemen Met With Council and Made Application for Apparatus.

The city council met on Tuesday evening, February 6th. Probably the matter of greatest interest taken up at this meeting was the application for new fire apparatus. The chief of the fire department, with a committee of two, was before the council and explained the condition of the apparatus. It was asked that the hook and ladder truck be over-hauled, cleaned and painted. This the council will have done. A number of new shut-off nozzles will be ordered and the old ones will be laid on the shelf as relics of past service. The city clerk was instructed to correspond with the Duluth fire department and see at what figures a hose wagon could be bought.

Bids were opened at this meeting for the city printing and the Thief River Press designated as the official paper of the city:

Thief River Falls News, 40 cents per folio for first insertion and 20 cents for subsequent insertions. This included everything of a legal nature; Thief River Falls Times, 10 cents first insertion and 5 cents for subsequent. This was for council proceedings, notices, etc.; for the publication of liquor licenses, 35 cents for first and 17½ for subsequent insertions; Thief River Press, 8 cents per folio for publishing everything of a legal nature. This bid is very, very low, and the paper that has the honor of being the official paper may be proud of it. This can be well termed as "a stone around the publisher's neck." He may as well pay the city for the privilege of doing the work.

At the Auditorium.

Ralph Parlette Orator, Press Humorist, and Platform Philosopher, will be at the Auditorium tomorrow evening. Below is what the State University of Indiana says:

Here probably, the highest priced course in the State was conducted the past year. Parlette closed this course June 1st, and the Committee report: "He was a complete success in every particular. Mr. Parlette, with his sparkling wit, homely philosophy and pleasing manner of delivery, held the attention of one thousand people on a desperately hot night. His ideas of wealth and of an earthly paradise were presented in a way that struck his hearers with unusal force—a force carrying conviction. Those who heard the relation of his wonderful satiric dream of the future, the masterstroke of his lecture, will not soon forget it. Behind every one of his jokes was a lesson deep as the heart of humanity. As in the case of the best of Riley and of Holmes, the lightness of the exterior served only to heighten the effect of the whole."

Basket Ball Game.

The Commercial Normal will meet the boys from the Crookston Agricultural School at the High School Gymnasium on Monday afternoon, February 12. The Crookston boys play a clean and fast game. The Commercial Normal team has practiced faithfully during the past week and with the new line-up hope to carry off the honors.

Modern Woodmen of America

Woodmen will learn something to their advantage by addressing H. Stevens, Lock Drawer 899 Fargo, N. Dak. 6-8

Some Boosting.

Real estate men of this city got together last week and made arrangements to have 1,000 books printed advertising the country surrounding Thief River Falls. The booklet is to consist of 16 pages and cover, with a large number of illustrations showing various farms near the city.

The real estate men are paying this among themselves at a cost of about $300, including everything. The booklet will be printed at the W. P. Sharp job printing establishment and it is assured that the job will be first class. L. O. Lassesson will do the binding and the public knows that he delivers the goods.

Taking everything into consideration, this will be a good big booster for the city as well as the land men.

ERIE

From the Eleven Towns.

Eddie Hyland, of Deer Park, was here over night Tuesday, visiting his brother Theodore and family.

Judging from the demand for good cows in this vicinity, the farmers are beginning to realize there is money in milk and cream.

The Ramsey wedding dance and supper at the home of Peter Renslo, in Deer Park, Saturday night, was attended by nearly all the young people of this vicinity and a jolly good time is reported by all.

Frank A. Zavoral is assisting his son Frank Jr. in getting out timber on his burned over claim in Beltrami county this week.

At the annual business meeting of the Eklund Free Church, held Monday, Ole O. Sundsdahl was elected secretary; Hans H. Fjeld, treasurer, and Oscar Thoreson as trustee in place of M. Lysbakken, whose term had expired. Rev. H. Bjornson is retained as pastor for the ensuing year.

The Trnka family, of Star, among the first settlers in this vicinity, have sold their two farms and a part of their stock and machinery, and yesterday loaded a car with their remaining effects and have gone to their new home at Beaulieu, Mahnomen county. The Trnka family were highly respected in the neighborhood and will be missed by their many friends and neighbors, who join with the Eleven Towns in wishing them prosperity in their new location.

Vaudeville Act.

A big vaudeville bill has been arranged for to take place at the Lyceum Theatre, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, February, 8, 9, and 10. The vaudeville team is Burnison and Taylor, presenting their protean comedy play entitled "Graham's Valet", in two scenes.

This act is one of the best that the Webster Booking agency has and Mr Webster terms this act as being very good, and is sure that it will more than please the patrons of the popular little play house. The Lyceum have been putting on some excellent new features in the line of late and up to date pictures. Remember this act, Thursday Friday, and Saturday.

MONSON DEFEATED

Ludwig Monson was Defeated by Al Betcher, of McIntosh in Two Straight Falls.

Both Men Were Weighed Before Entering the Ring, Monson Tipping the Scale at 171½, Betcher 155.

Tuesday evening at the Lyceum Theatre one of the prettiest wrestling matches ever pulled off in this city took place, when Al. Betcher of McIntosh defeated Ludvig Monson of Holt. The men weighed themselves before entering the ring, Monson weighing 171½ and Betcher 155. Both men were in their wrestling costumes. There was a difference of 16½ pounds in their weights and Monson looked like a house alongside of his little opponent.

This is the first match which Monson has lost during his many matches in this city. Monson is a younger man at the wrestling game than Betcher. It was a case of pounds against years of experience, which proved that experience goes farther than pounds. Monson was aware of the fact that he was up against a "snag" after he had been on the mat about two minutes.

Betcher is small, but quick and slippery. His muscles are very well developed, he has had a number of years of experience and is well versed in the game; he has wonderful strength for a little man.

The first fall was won by Betcher after 6 minutes and 45 seconds. The hold which he used was a straight "full Nelson". Monson showed great strength as he resisted the hold for very nearly a minute but gradually yielded to the "little giant."

The second fall lasted quite a bit longer and was more exciting, both men acting very quickly. Monson secured the toe hold but Betcher immediately broke it. The latter did considerable talking and joshing with the boys at the ring side and it looked as though he was playing horse with Monson. The second fall took 37 minutes and was secured with a half hammer lock.

Preliminaries between Guy Larson and Oscar Cerney: Larson got the first fall in 1 minute—Cerney the last two in two and one minutes respectively.

Every seat in the Lyceum was filled and a good many bought standing room. This was the biggest crowd that has ever turned out to a match, and the match is a big advertisement for the Lyceum. Watch for date of next match.

When the Fire Bell Rings

The first thought that comes to a man when he sees his property burning is of the Insurance.

He remembers that he once took out a policy; but whether it is still in force—well that is more than he knows.

Imagine his feelings when, on looking it up, he finds that it expired a week or so before.

To guard against such a misfortune insure at the Citizens.

We never allow a policy to expire without letting you know a few days before, and if anything should prevent our notifying you, we renew without your orders.

Insure with us and then forget all about it. That's safe, for we have a system that won't let us forget.

Call us up by phone today.

The Minnesota Editorial Association will hold forth at Minneapolis next week.

The Socialists are taking a joy-ride, but they don't know where they are going.—Bede's Budget.

Last Friday, February 2nd, was Groundhog day, and the sun shone so brightly on the light loose snow that Mr. Hog was blinded and unable to see his shadow, so we will have an early spring after all.

The Red River Valley News has installed a new power press. After 33⅓ years of faithful service, the Washington hand press is replaced by a Whitlock pony drum power press. Bro. Osborn, this will be a great saving on the "arm strong stunt."

Feb. 3, 1912, volume 1, No. 3, is the first issue of the Daily Virginian we have had the opportunity of seeing and we were rather surprised and also pleased with the appearance of it. The Daily Virginian is a "peach" of a looking sheet and the citizens of the city of Virginia should do all they can to support it. Here is wishing you great success, Bro. Cuppernell.

NORTHWEST EXPO

Will Be Held in the City of Minneapolis November 12 to 23, 1912.

Seven states have again combined to hold a great exposition to show the products of their soil, mines, lakes, rivers, forests and factories after the harvests are over and the state and county fairs have made the collection of the finest products in the world available.

The Northwest Products Exposition, as it will be called, will be held in Minneapolis November 12 to 23. The seven states which will participate are Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Washington and Oregon.

To make this exposition possible the business men of Minneapolis will erect a building of solid steel, brick and concrete with a great exposition floor 250 x 125—as large as Madison Square Garden, New York City.

At a cost of $10,000.00 the Civic and Commerce Association of Minneapolis and the St. Paul Association of Commerce have bought space from the Northwest Development League for the seven states, where their official exhibits will be installed.

The Northwest Products Exposition will be almost twice as large in extent as the "Land Show" held in St. Paul and it is the hope of the officers of the Northwest Development League that it will be a better exposition in every way, as they have almost ten full months to prepare for it, whereas they had but a little more than three months to organize the St. Paul show.

"The Products Exposition can only be likened to a miniature world's fair," said President Penwell in speaking of the outlook. "The Northwest states have learned that it is necessary to advertise in a very graphic way to attract settlers who would otherwise go to Canada or the southwest."

Will A. Campbell, secretary of the league and manager of the exposition, is leaving for the west and will spend much time in the field, but will also open an office in Minneapolis March 1st.

For Sale.

Two very choice corners, one on 3rd street and Horace avenue, with a frontage of 194 feet on 3rd street, also the Lyceum building on LaBree avenue. This is the best located property in the city. For particulars inquire of D. Cavanagh.

Supplement to Thief River Falls News, Feb. 8, 1912

Talked About by Everybody.

Last Saturday, February 3rd, the Co-Operative store company of Thief River Falls opened a sale of their entire Stock. From all indications, the opening must have been the largest and most successful sale ever held by any department store in Pennington county. Mr. Sternberg tells us that, in all his years as a sales manager, never yet has he seen so many eager buyers as he has at this sale. Great preparations had been made to receive a large number of people, but when the doors opened last Saturday morning, the entire force of 65 clerks, including the managers, found themselves overpowered.

From early morning until late at night there was hardly standing room. During no former sale has there been anything like the crowd at this sale, and the manager, Mr. Jensen, tells us that the opening day of the sale exceeded by thousands of dollars their expectations.

Saturday will be Farmers' day at this great sale. There will be great bargains offered on this day than ever before and the management requests the public to do their buying early in the day, owing to the large crowds in the afternoon and evening. For bargains read the advertisement on page five.

An error in the page ad we wish to correct. In bargains form 10 o'clock to 11 o'clock. The last line under the 95c head should follow bargains from 1 o'clock to 2:00 p. m, under the 5c head.

NORWAY.

The Norwegian women have for some time been enjoying the equal right of suffrage with men, but now the question arises, or rather did arise some time ago, as to whether women should have the same voice in the state church of Norway as the men. It is well known that Bishops Bang and Bockman have for a long time been opposing this movement most vigorously. In spite of this, however, the government has decreed that women shall have the same right in the church as men. The decree has met with a storm of opposition among the conservative church people and many members of the clergy are looking forward to the results of such a decree with a great degree of apprehension. Among those who have been especially protesting is Bishop Erichsen, who publicly claims that the next movement will be to allow the women of the country to enter the ministry, which he and many others regard as being directly in opposition to the doctrines of the bible. However this may be, it is not likely that many women of Norway will seek the pulpit. It has been evinced so far that, even though the Norwegian woman is enjoying the full right of suffrage on an equal footing with her fellow citizens of the opposite sex, that she does not willingly become an office seeker and hitherto there were not over fifty officeholders among women in the entire country. So far there has been only one woman who has been a member of the Norwegian storthing.

✣ ✣ ✣

According to recent statistics there are more women than men in Norway. Final official figures of the census taken in December, 1910, show a total population of 2,391,782, the women exceeding the men to the extent of 80,000. The rural population was 1,702,554, there being 20,000 more women than men. The city population was 689,229. Of the rural districts, rather "amts," as they are called in Norway, Nordland contained the largest population, 153,000, those following being South Bergenhus with 146,000, Hedenmarken with 126,000 and Akershus with 125,000. Finmarken foots the entire list with only 30,000 people. Christiania has a population of 241,834, Bergen almost 77,000, Trondhjem 45,000, Stavanger 37,000, Drammen 25,000 and Fredrikstad and Christiansand have 15,000 each.

✣ ✣ ✣

The so called Spitzbergen conference held its annual meeting in Christiania about a fortnight ago, when delegates from Sweden, Denmark, Russia and Norway were present for the purpose of discussing at length questions of interest relative to telegraph and transportation facilities of Spitzbergen and conferring also regarding the international complications which often arise regarding this island.

✣ ✣ ✣

Large quantities of fish are this season being exported from Vardo to Russia and during the past three months 14,500,000 kilograms of salted fish and 500,000 kilograms of fresh fish have been exported to various cities in Russia. Not in a decade has the fishing industry in Vardo and vicinity been yielding such large returns.

✣ ✣ ✣

The Norwegian Temperance association held its annual convention in Christianrand during the early part of the month. There were about 500 delegates present and questions relative to the reform of the liquor laws and the liquor elements were discussed and planned for the coming year.

✣ ✣ ✣

The Northern Textile company's plant in Christiania was totally destroyed by fire about two weeks ago.

DENMARK.

The Politiken (Copenhagen) says: A Russian fugitive, who has just arrived in the city, tells some shocking stories regarding conditions among the peasantry in Russia. The fugitive, who has resided in Finland for a number of years, arrived at Copenhagen via Stockholm. He says the terrible conditions prevailing among the peasantry in Southeastern Russia are seldom if ever published in the Russian papers, but the fact of the matter is that the peasants are starving on the River Ural owing to not having received any assistance from their government. They are even selling their children to the Chinese nomads in the government of Saratov. The fugitive also claims that many people in that part of the empire have died from hunger and typhoid fever and that fearful epidemics are prevalent among the children.

✣ ✣ ✣

A big Danish company has been formed to develop the Danish West Indian Island of St. Thomas, in view of the opening of the Panama canal. The company, which has a capital of $270,000, will deepen the harbor of St. Thomas so that it will be capable of holding the largest ocean steamers. It also will build modern docks and machine shops, coaling stations and storehouses. The company, which represents English and French capital, intends to ask the Danish parliament to give it full control in the management of the harbor.

✣ ✣ ✣

It has now been definitely settled that King George and Queen Mary of England, accompanied by Dowager Queen Alexandra, are to pay a visit to Copenhagen some time next August, when they will be the guests of King Frederick and Queen Louise.

It is primarily a food—a food beverage. The little alcohol there is in it (developed in the process of brewing) is wholesome, and satisfies the natural craving of an over-worked people for a mild stimulant.

WHITE SEAL BEER is rich in food values. It contains about the same amount of nutrition as milk, but in a form much easier to digest, more quickly assimilated, and is therefore much more healthful.

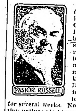
PASTOR RUSSELL TOURING INDIA.

Preaching Daily to Many of the Heathens.

Foreign Missions Investigation Committee, of Which the Pastor Is Chairman, Visit Travancore District, Where They Spend a Week Prosecuting Their Work.



Travancore, India, Feb. 4.—The Foreign Missions Committee of the International Bible Students Association has reached here. Pastor Russell, Chairman of the Committee, is widely known in this District. His coming has been a topic of interest for several weeks. Not only are Christian natives alert to meet him, but their heathen countrymen are also interested. Mohammedans have been inquiring, Has Pastor Russell any special message for us? The arrangement is that the Pastor shall spend a full week in this District and be at Madras next Sunday. In his address the Pastor said:

I have chosen as my text on this occasion the Message of the angels at the birth of our Redeemer—"Fear not! Behold, we bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be unto all people." (Luke ii, 10.) I feel that I am not entirely a stranger to many of you, nor you to me. For a considerable time I have seen regular reports sent in from this District to the International Bible Students Assn., of which I have the honor of being President. These reports in turn are published to the Bible Students all over the world. We want you to know of the Christian love of these children of God of various nationalities who are represented by the Committee before you.

The Father of Mercies.

Two days ago, on the Island of Ceylon, my attention was drawn to the tomb of the good Bishop Heber. Immediately to my mind came his words:

What though the spicy breezes
Blow soft o'er Ceylon's Isle,
And every prospect pleases,
And only man is vile!

From childhood I had sung those words, and finally found myself on Ceylon's Isle. But I am not so sure but that the dear Bishop exaggerated a little the vileness of the human types of this vicinity. Poverty, indeed, I see on every hand, and, if vileness be measured by our great Creator by lack of wealth, then certainly you are vile in comparison to some more wealthy. But can we really believe that this is the Divine standard? Shall we not rather believe the words of Jehovah, "Man looketh upon the outward appearance, but God looketh upon the heart"?

I am not here to flatter you—to say that poverty is a proof of purity of heart. On the contrary, it is my duty as a minister of Christ to declare that there is none righteous, no, not one. But I may say to you that, admitting that all men have sinned—some in ways more peculiar to one nationality and some to another—it is ours to point out the need of an Atonement for sin and the fact that "the Blood," sacrifice, "of Jesus Christ our Lord, cleanseth us from all sin"—"Neither is there salvation in any other."

Now Look at Our Text.

Note its terms of a blessing intended of God for every creature. Two thousand years before the angels uttered those words God gave the same Message of hope and joy to Father Abraham. Let those of this audience who are Mohammedans, as well as others, call to mind the promise to which I refer. It was the promise with the oath. God, foreknowing that the fulfilment of the promise would be long delayed, made oath to it, so that all who trust in Him might have the consolation of that promise. And what is the promise? God said to Abraham, "In thy Seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed."

The Divine Purpose looked down to Messiah and saw in Him the real Seed of Abraham through whom eventually Divine Power will be exercised and Divine Grace be shed abroad amongst men. However, according to the Scriptures, the Messiah, the Deliverer, is composite—composed of numerous members. Each one of these members must be tested and proven in respect to his loyalty to God and to the principles of righteousness before he can attain to his glorious reward of the divine nature.

But mark you well the selection of this special class does not involve the "non-elect" in eternal torment nor in any eternal disaster. On the contrary, the gathering of the "elect" should be regarded as an assurance on God's part of the fulfilment of His larger promise, that through these saintly ones, great blessings are to be showered upon Abraham's natural seed, yea, and upon all the families of the earth.

The blessing of the world will be Restitution (Acts iii, 19-21). If, as the Evolutionists tell us, the Bible theory that man was created in God's image is wrong and he is really the offspring of an ape, then Restitution would be the worst thing that could possibly come to mankind. But the Bible is quite right, [illegible] that man was created perfect and upright—in the image and likeness of God, and that restitution [illegible].

Sixty-third Anniversary of the Birth of August Strindberg, Famous Author—Norwegian Women to Have Same Right in Church as Men—Russian Fugitive at Copenhagen Tells Shocking Story of Conditions Among His Countrymen.

SWEDEN.

Stockholm papers recently devoted columns of space to the famous author, August Strindberg, whose sixty-third birthday anniversary was observed on Jan. 22 throughout the entire country. In five of Stockholm's theaters plays of which he is the author were given. In the evening there was a parade with banners, torches and music, the marchers passing in review in front of his residence. The author, who has just recovered from a long and serious illness, watched the parade from his balcony. It is estimated that more than 50,000 persons were gathered in the vicinity. As a protest against the judges who awarded the Nobel prize for literature, and who are regarded as too old fashioned and conventional to acknowledge his genius, a national fund is to be raised for Herr Strindberg. It is well known that one of the disappointments in the author's life has been the fact that hitherto he has not been awarded the Nobel prize for literature. The author has also of recent years encountered much financial difficulty and the national fund, which is now being raised in his behalf, will certainly be welcomed by him and his many friends.

That the United States will occupy a very prominent part in the Olympian games at Stockholm next summer is very certain. Recently influential members of the American Olympian games committee have been negotiating with the government at Washington to secure an American man-of-war to visit Stockholm on that occasion. The committee has also requested that the American schoolship Newport, which is at present cruising in European waters, also be permitted to anchor in Stockholm harbor during the fortnight when the great games are to be in progress. It is believed that in the event that the government will decide to send a warship to Stockholm for this occasion that all the American participants in the games will make the journey across the Atlantic in this vessel. Stockholm papers state that hitherto there is no country which has evinced so much interest in the coming Olympian games as the United States. Sportsmen and athletes generally predict that the Americans will capture some of the leading prizes.

In a letter to the London Times the prominent British author and critic, Edmund Gosse, states that new principles should be placed in vogue hereafter relative to the distribution of the Nobel prizes by the Swedish academy. The criticism submitted amounts to practically the same as that which came from France and may not have been imbued on the basis of prejudice, for both England and France have had their great men liberally remembered by the Swedish academy. There appears to be no criticism from the pen of Edmund Gosse relative to the awarding of the Nobel prize to Maurice Maeterlinck, the famous Austrian author and playright. At a recent meeting of the British committee of the British Academy of Sciences, however, it was unanimously declared that now is the time for the Swedish academy to apply the principles which were adopted by resolution in January, 1902. The International Authors' association has been advised of the decision.

The National Anti-Emigration society has been busily engaged the last few weeks in seeking to learn the direct causes for emigration. A committee has been appointed for the purpose of making a thorough study of the conditions of the laboring men of the country, with a view of determining the real cause as to why so many hundreds of people are continually seeking their fortunes in the Western countries, preferably America. A number of the members hold that one reason why so many laborers leave the country is owing at first hand to the comparatively small wages that are being paid them. Secondly, during the past few years the work of the Socialists has been stirring Swedish labor from one end of the country to the other, and while it may be claimed that the Socialists have succeeded in organizing Swedish labor in a measure there organizations have also been productive of breeding much dissatisfaction among the ranks of labor.

NORWAY.

The Norwegian women have for some time been enjoying the equal right of suffrage with men, but now the question arises; or rather did arise some time ago, as to whether women should have the same voice in the state church of Norway as the men. It is well known that Bishops Bang and Bockman have for a long time been opposing this movement most vigorously. In spite of this, however, the government has decreed that women shall have the same right in the church as men. The decree has met with a storm of opposition among the conservative church people and many members of the clergy are looking forward to the results of such a decree with a great degree of apprehension. Among those who have been especially protesting is Bishop Erichsen, who publicly claims that the next movement will be to allow the women of the country to enter the ministry, which he and many others regard as being directly in opposition to the doctrines of the bible. However this may be, it is not likely that many women of Norway will seek the pulpit. It has been evinced so far that, even though the Norwegian woman is enjoying the full right of suffrage on an equal footing with her fellow citizens of the opposite sex, that she does not willingly become an office seeker and hitherto there were not over fifty officeholders among women in the entire country. So far there has been only one woman who has been a member of the Norwegian storthing.

According to recent statistics there are more women than men in Norway. Final official figures of the census taken in December, 1910, show a total population of 2,391,782, the women exceeding the men to the extent of 80,000. The rural population was 1,702,554, there being 20,000 more women than men. The city population was 689,229. Of the rural districts, rather "amts," as they are called in Norway, Nordland contained the largest population, 153,000, those following being South Bergenhus with 146,000, Hedenmarken with 126,000 and Akershus with 125,000. Finmarken foots the entire list with only 30,000 people. Christiania has a population of 241,834, Bergen almost 77,000, Trondhjem 45,000, Stavanger 37,000, Drammen 25,000 and Fredrikstad and Christiansand have 15,000 each.

The Politiken (Copenhagen) says: A Russian fugitive, who has just arrived in the city, tells some shocking stories regarding conditions among the peasantry in Russia. The fugitive, who has resided in Finland for a number of years, arrived at Copenhagen via Stockholm. He says the terrible conditions prevailing among the peasantry in Southeastern Russia are seldom if ever published in the Russian papers, but the fact of the matter is that the peasants are starving on the River Ural owing to not having received any assistance from their government. They are even selling their children to the Chinese nomads in the government of Saratov. The fugitive also claims that many people in that part of the empire have died from hunger and typhoid fever and that fearful epidemics are prevalent among the children.

The country auction sale sort of fills the place with the men which the neighborhood sewing bee does with the women folk. On the showdown, however, the bee is ahead of the sale in that some sewing gets done along with the visiting.

It takes something more in the way of encouragement to make hens lay when it is below zero than picking corn off the ear in the shade of a barbed wire fence. Treatment anywhere near approaching this is calculated to freeze the genial current in a hen's circulatory system. Anyway, it stops egg production.

In all latitudes where the Lombardy poplar will live there is nothing in the tree line that excels it as a windbreak. It has the advantages of growing quickly, being tall and occupying a minimum amount of ground space. In the Hood river valley, which is renowned as an orchard section, this poplar is very generally used for windbreak purposes.

A couple of farm lads we read of the other day had trained the old family tabby so that she was of a good deal of help to them in hunting rabbits. She would promptly run down any rabbit hole the boys put her into and was better than a ferret in that she did not stay in the hole if no rabbit was there. Here is a suggestion for other members of the not overworked feline tribe.

A whole lot of supposedly honest folk who would be shocked if you would suggest they might take money from a neighbor's purse or property from his premises nevertheless consider it a clever bit of business if they can get a ride on the cars for nothing or exact excessive damages from a railroad or other corporation. Fundamentally the two latter instances are just as dishonest as the former, yet are winked at in the popular mind.

While it is of somewhat rare occurrence, one now and then runs across a case in which men are called upon to do things about the house usually considered as among a woman's duties to such an extent that it amounts to a positive imposition on the man, as well as a serious handicap to his own efficiency as a worker. We believe a man should be considerate and helpful touching the heavier work about the house, so far as his time permits, but because he is willing to help he ought not to be imposed upon.

Recently a patent has been granted to an inventor in Germany for a device in which a wire is used instead of a toothed saw in cutting timber. The device consists of a smooth steel wire which encircles the tree, the ends of which are fastened to the arms of a power machine in such a way that the wire is pulled back and forth quickly. The friction causes intense heat, with the result that a smooth groove is burned through the trunk of the tree. In operation this machine will cut a tree through in about one-half the time required to saw it by hand.

It is estimated that if the cost of hauling produce to market could be reduced by means of better highways from 23 to 11½ cents per ton the farmers, gardeners and ranchmen of the country would be saved the enormous sum of $250,000,000 annually. In some of the European countries which have good roads the hauling cost is but 10 cents per ton, while on some roads leading into London where motor trucks are in use the hauling cost has been reduced to as low as 4 cents per ton. If the "dollar" argument is needed to give the good roads movement a boost it would seem to be furnished in the figures quoted.

Grafting wax will be needed before long in the orchard work. An excellent wax is made by taking four pounds of resin, two pounds of beeswax and one pound of rendered tallow. The three ingredients should be melted carefully together but should not be allowed to boil. The liquid should be poured while hot into a pail of cold water and worked while submerged with greased hands, so that the mass will cool evenly. When cooled the wax should be taken from the water and pulled until it has a fine grain. The wax should then be molded into balls and put in a cool place. This wax is good for all purposes. However, it can be made softer by the addition of a little more tallow or tougher by increasing the amount of beeswax called for in the above recipe. The writer has found that an excellent way for keeping the wax soft in cold weather is to place it in an old [illegible] on an old soapstone, which can be heated occasionally.

We noticed that while Mr. Miller was talking to one of the two men who accompanied him he actually smiled. Think of a man smiling in this condition and a large number of people who are well physically going around "grouchy", a smile a rare thing with them.

WEEK'S SUMMARY

What Has Happened in the Local Field of Sport During the Week, and What Will Happen.

One of the Biggest Wrestling Matches In History of City Will Be Put On Friday Night.

The first big event occurred Monday when the Commercial-Normal basketball team came in contact with the Crookston Agricultural School team. This was a very well played game, clean and free from rough playing. The first half was very even and it looked as though the Commercial-Normal would play the visiting team off its feet, although the A. C.s at the end of the first half were 1 score in the lead the final score being 13 and 14 in favor of the visitors.

At the beginning of the second half the Crookston team put in three fresh men while the locals played with the same lineup, as follows:

C. N.		A. C.
Jacobson	F	Bergh
Olm	F	Sisler
Carlson	C	Saterstrom
Swanson	G	Sandby
Linde	G	Cornelius

A. C. substitutes: Hawley, Nelson and Johnson, all of whom played the last half. The Commercial-Normal made 8 free throws while the A. C. made 7. The game was very well played throughout, both teams playing very hard and fast.

A fair sized audience was assembled and cheers went up for both teams when good plays were made. Fifteen minute halves were played.

HIGH SCHOOL WINS

The Lincoln High School team was successful in winning the game from the Agricultural College of Crookston last Monday night by a score of 38 to 25. The local boys played a splendid game throughout and they displayed great strength and clever team work, playing the visitors off their feet. The visitors had a splendid team but playing two games was too much for them The game with the Commercial-Normal was a hard one and to play two games so close together would take a good, husky to team stand it

This was a very clean game—12 fouls were called on the home team and 8 on the visitors. The lineup is as follows:

H. S.		A. C.
Carter	F	Berge
Brude	F	Sisler
Fossum	C	Saterstrom
Adolphs	G	Hanley
Boydon	G	Landby

Iverson played guard for a short time with the local boys. The A. C. team used all the substitutes they had: Johnson, Cornelius and Nelson. Schwartz and Richardson each refereed a half.

SENIOR GIRLS ENTERTAINED

The Senior girls proved themselves royal entertainers. After the game in the evening they prepared very elaborately for the entertainment of the visiting team, the Commercial-Normal and the High School boys. The visitors expressed themselves as very highly pleased with the way in which they were treated. Musical numbers were rendered by the Liberty Band and a number of cornet solos were rendered by Mr. Schwartz of Crookston, leader of the A. C. Band.

THE WRESTLING MATCH

Will be put on at the Auditorium Friday night, Feb 16. These wrestling matches have outgrown the seating capacity of the Lyceum theatre and the promoter of the matches has found it necessary to stage this match at the Auditorium. This promises to be the best match the public has seen up to date, although it is expected that in the

R. L. RIVER RAISES

Sudden Raise in Lowell Township is Mystery to the Neighborhood.

Crookston Times: The report reached this office just before going to press of an unusual raise of the Red Lake river beginning about three miles west of the city. The water has already risen about two feet above the ice and is gushing like a geyser through the cracks. John Hanson drove across to visit a neighbor and on his return had to come around by the city.

The cause of the sudden rise seems to be a mystery to those on the ground and may be explained by the possibility of the river freezing to the bottom some place below where it forces itself through the ice. The waterworks people released a smal amount of water from their pond above the dam Sunday, but it is not thought that it was sufficient to cause the raise reported.

THE DITCH BONDS

County Commissioners Decide Hereafter Property Benefitted Must Stand Expense.

At the regular February meeting of the Beltrami county board of county commissioners which began Tuesday and adjourned yesterday morning, the board decided that hereafter in the construction of ditches the property thus immediately benefitted must stand the expense and that there would be no more bonding the county for this line of work. Commissioner L. O. Myhre, from the town of Liberty, introduced the ditch resolution which follows:

MYHRE'S RESOLUTION

"Whereas we believe that the establishment of Judicial and County ditches in this county has been of great benefit to the county but realizing that the total bonded indebtedness of this county has been greatly increased by the issuance of bonds in payment of such ditches, and so we have almost reached the limit of bonded indebtedness allowed by law

"Now therefore, be it resolved that this board will not in case proceedings are instituted after this date for the establishment of additional ditches, issue bonds in payment therefore it shall purport on their face to be general obligations of this county but that any and all bonds hereafter issued, where such ditch proceedings instituted after this date, shall expressly state that they are secured only upon the property benefitted by such ditch or ditches, and that the full face and credit of the property benefitted by such ditch or ditches, and none other shall be pledged as security for the payment of such bonds.

"This resolution was seconded by commissioner Fellows and carried." —Bemidji Sentinel.

O. A. Norman came in from the town of Hickory last Wednesday and brought with him the hides of three very large wolves which had been killed in that township. They were sold to Kruse Bros. at a fancy price.

Mrs. Frank Bourque accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. W. B. Fuller, went down to Fargo Tuesday where the former will undergo an operation.

A meeting of the Commercial Club will be held Friday of this week. Everyone who is interested is requested to attend.

Esther M'Grin returned to this city Monday afternoon after spending a few days with her parents at Warroad.

Fred Nodal spent Sunday with friends at Crookston.

Deputy Register of Deeds [illegible] Hamery spent Sunday with parents and friends at Red Lake Falls.

KOOS TO LEAVE

Elected to Superintendency of the City Schools at Glencoe.

Supt. L. V. Koos returned this morning from a visit to Glencoe, Minn. During his stay of a few hours at Glencoe he considered and accepted an election to the superintendency of the city schools, which means that Supt. Koos' connection with the Red Lake Falls city schools will terminate at the end of the present school year.

The people of Red Lake Falls will regret to learn that Mr. Koos is to leave. During the four years of his work here he has brought the city schools to a high state of efficiency. In this work he has had the enthusiastic co-operation of the people of the district, who have being encouraged by the excellent results of the industrial work and other advancement, made liberal provision to aid in the accomplishment of improvement in school work. These people will regret to lose so efficient a leader in educational work.

However, Mr. Koos' friends will congratulate him on his promotion, for an election to the Glencoe superintendency must be counted a promotion. The Glencoe high school is one of the oldest high schools of the state and one of the best —Red Lake Falls Gazette.

Questions for Farmers to Answer.

1. When should I begin the work on this year's crop production?
2. What can I do now so that I will have less to do next spring and summer?
3. How many bushels of grain am I going to sow this year?
4. Have I that many bushels?
5. Will my seed grow?
6. Will a small seed produce as good a plant as a large one?
7. Do I not have enough weeds on my farm without planting more when I sow my small grain?
8. Is my machinery ready for spring work?
9. Would it be a good idea to plant a little more crop this year?
10. When am I going to clean and grade my small grain seed?
11. When statistics prove that cleaned and graded seed, planting only the large grain, produces four bushels per acre more than ordinary seed, can I afford not to clean and grade my seed.

The agricultural department of the Thief River Falls high school wishes to announce that it will be more than glad to test any samples of small grains or seeds that will be given them.

Small grain is usually planted without being tested at all, disregarding the fact that its germinating ability is often very poor. A farmer may plant three bushels of oats per acre year after year, thinking that he is always seeding at the same rate per acre. The rate of planting may vary from one and a half bushels to three bushels per acre.

The department will also be glad to test milk or cream samples for anyone bringing them in.

Lyceum Bill.

The Lyceum has another good act booked for Thursday Friday and Saturday of this week. A bright spot on any bill, a little different from the rest, is the "Boston Von" Company, presenting their laughable farce, "The Professor's Reception." Fifteen minutes of laughing also some good singing and dancing.

This is a good comedy sketch, out of the ordinary, clean, wholesome and refined, a scream from start to finish, properly dressed and presented in the real spirit of vaudeville. Remember the time, the date and the place, be sure to attend as this is an opportunity of a life time.

BEAR IS THROWN

Wrestling Bruin Which Appeared in Bemidji Meets Defeat By 250 Pound Chicago Man.

The trick bear which appeared at the Brinkman theatre here, several months ago, and which later escaped from the opera house at Thief River Falls and wandered alone on the prairie for two days and which was advertised as the "wrestling bear which no man can throw," met defeat on a Chicago stage this week.

The manager of the bear has offered a standing reward of $50 to any one who would throw Bruin and that's what caused the trouble in Chicago. Charles Yellonski, a meat packer more than six feet tall and weighing 250 pounds, is the Chicago man who proved more than a match for the wrestling bear but his ability won him nothing but a cell in the police station. Yellonski threw the bear in a small theatre on Halstead street after a dozen other men had failed.

When he demanded his reward, he declares, the owner of the bear and the employes ordered him out. Yellonski refused and loudly demanded the $50 offered by the owner. The proprietor of the theatre called a policeman and had him arrested for causing a disturbance in a show house.—Bemidji Sentinel.

Graves Still Hunting.

Chief of Police Stencill of Valparaiso, Ind., will undertake to find a wife for A. M. Graves, who writes that he is a friend of Theodore Roosevelt and a graduate of a college at Middletown, Minn. In his letter to the chief of police he says he will deed his wife a 12-room house, the finest yoke of oxen in Minnesota and a farm of 160 acres. The woman who weds him must in turn give him $700.00 with which to cancel a mortgage on the farm. Stencill says he will find Graves a bride in Valparaiso—Duluth Herald.

A. M. Graves is well known here, and the people of this city have read considerably about him through the daily papers, also what a hard time he is having to secure a bride. His wife died about a year ago.

Bores Into Rail.

Italian engineers have discovered a destructive insect that bores into steel rails and seems to have the digestion of an ostrich. The rails of a railway line in Italy became extremely rusty so quickly recently that the engineers examined the rails with microscopes.

They found in the steel numberless worm-shaped creatures, a dirty gray color and about a third of an inch in length. Its head has two horns shaped like a snail's, but very sharp, strong and with a thread like a screw. With these horns he bores into the steel with great rapidity. It was concluded that the insect lived on the fine powdered iron.

MAIL ORDER BUSINESS

Upheld by an Osage, Iowa, Man Who Does Not Like to See Them Knocked by Newspapers.

Believes They Should Be Patronized and Tries to Explain Where You Save Money by Buying "Junk."

The Clearbrook Journal published a lengthy letter from a fellow by the name of N. A. Jacobson, at Osage, Iowa, that begins like this:

"In last week's Clearbrook Journal I saw a piece from a paper at Thief River Falls (The News invented the article!) knocking the mail order houses, and I frequently see in local papers articles knocking the mail order houses. Now I would like to ask the merchants and you editors a few questions which I should very much like to hear answered through your papers.

"Question No 1. If I can buy better coffee from Sears-Roebuck or Montgomery Ward for 21c a pound than I can buy from a local store for 30c, why should I not send for it?

"Question No. 2. If I can buy a better suit or just as good for $15 that my local merchant charges from $20 to $25 for, why should I not send for it?"

There were a hundred and one just such questions as the two which we have stated and we can not find room to print all of them. The writer of the letter admits that he is a patron of the mail order houses. He deserves the sympathy of his local merchants when he says that he can get 30c coffee for 21c per pound. It is very evident that he is a judge of coffee, nit. For no mail order house sells coffee—it is merely stuff. When you buy from your local merchant, you know that if you are not satisfied with your purchase he will gladly refund your money. You also have an opportunity to examine the goods before you make the bargain. This can not be done by the pages of a mail order catalogue, which any man knows.

Now as to getting a 20 or 25 dollar suit of clothes for 15 dollars that is remarkable—but show us a man who has done this—one thing is sure, the mail order houses have a lot of old run down patterns which can be bought for $10 if a man is foolish enough to buy them, but a person could never get value received from such "cheap trash" as that.

The writer of the letter admits that he has done business with Montgomery Ward & Co., and feels very well satisfied, of course if he desires to be a mail order customer, that is his business.

The newspaper is to defend the welfare of the local people and their respective busjnesses and that is what we intend to do, and do not propose "to plug" for anything that will pull business from our local merchants.

Hotel for Warren.

The commercial club of Warren is agitating the building of a $25,000 hotel at Warren, on the site now occupied by Mr. Lindquist's hotel. The intention is to organize a stock company. About $15,000 has already been subscribed and no trouble is anticipated in raising the necessary amount.

Miss Kohler, County Superintendent of Schools of Becker County, spent a few days visiting her sister, Miss Katherine of the High School faculty of this city, last week.

James Powers, representing the Fairbanks Morris Co., of Minneapolis, and who makes his headquarters at Detroit, was in the city Monday between trains, on a business mission.

IDENTIFIED BY SECRETARY

Signature of Congressman Steenerson's Application for Indian Land.

Testifying before the congressional subcommittee sitting at Minneapolis to investigate alleged frauds in the White Earth Indian reservation, Fred Dennis, former secretary to Congressman Halvor Steenerson, identified the signature to an application for a 160-acre allotment of the reservation as Mr. Steenerson's. He said he had been a witness to the signature April 22, 1905, the date the application was made by Mr. Steenerson.

Testifying further, however, he said that the congressman had made the application under protest and only after the Indians had assured him that they would feel hurt did he not make it. He also said that Mr. Steenerson did not believe his application would be received favorably in the interior department and that, if it were, he immediately would sell the land and build a hospital for the Indians with the proceeds.

Almost in direct contradiction to this testimony was that of Chief White Cloud, a Chippewa, who swore that he and other full blooded Indians had resisted Mr. Steenerson's application. Indeed, he went further by testifying that Mr. Steenerson had never been adopted by the Chippewas and that, therefore, he had no legal right to make application for the allotment.

PRISONERS FOR TWO YEARS

Plight of Aged Couple In Southern Minnesota.

Held prisoners two years on their farm by their twin sons, near middle age, both of whom were demented, was the experience of M. O. Ladsten and his wife, who live eight miles north of Mabel. That they were virtually in captivity became known when Sheriff Hexrud and four deputies went to the farm and brought all four of the family to Preston for examination as to their sanity.

Both sons, who are thirty years old, were found to be demented. They will be taken to the state hospital at Rochester. The aged parents, who had been completely under their sons' domination, appeared intelligent and sound of mind.

AGED MAN AND TWO CHILDREN PERISH

Flames Consume Farm Residence Near Yucatan, Minn.

Two children and their grandfather were burned to death, the former's father was probably fatally burned and two others in the home were seriously injured when the farmhouse of Ole Ambroson near Yucatan was destroyed by fire. The origin of the fire is unknown.

The dead are: Christopher Ambroson, aged eighty-six; Clara Ambroson, aged seven; Oscar Ambroson, aged ten. Ole Ambroson is in a critical condition and probably will die, while Albert and Mrs. Ole Ambroson sustained severe burns.

Three of the family had retired for the night in upper rooms when flames suddenly broke out there. Other members of the family were in the kitchen downstairs and were only apprised of the fire when two of the boys leaped down the stairway closely followed by flames and smoke. Mr. and Mrs. Ole Ambroson made desperate efforts to rescue all the children and the grandfather, but were unable to save the three named.

News of Especial Interest to Minnesota Readers.

INDIANS SAID TO BE DESTITUTE

Witness at Congressional Probe Tells of Conditions on the White Earth Reservation.

Destitution of Indians on the White Earth reservation was the subject of testimony before the sub-committee of congress, sitting at Minneapolis. Instances of disease, poverty and bad living conditions were introduced. The Indians are said to be without lands and it is charged that they have been left homeless and penniless because of frauds practiced.

B. F. Carr, a timber cruiser who testified ten days ago, was again called. During his work, he said, he had become acquainted with the conditions of the Indians. Telling of their sufferings this winter, he said:

"The Indians on the timber portion are very poor, mostly squatters at Round Lake. At the government school there were twenty-one pupils who were given a meal a day at the school, all they got all day. The teachers told me that after the meal was over the squaws would come and beg for food.

"In a shack 12x14, one story high, I found nine grown people and seven children living. The beds were straw on the floor. In the summer they can live on fish, but in the winter mostly rabbits and in some instances muskrats are the customary diet.

Large Percentage Diseased.

"There are a great many sick. Consumption is prevalent. I found many almost dead from the disease. I have seen Indians dying, several in a house, with no one there to give them any attention, old and young alike. The doctor on the reservation told me there were 65 per cent diseased. That was last fall.

"If you could visit every house between Round Lake and Pine Point in this section you would find from two to three and ten or twelve in every house, mostly old women. The women, some eighty years old, do the work.

"They gamble and play away everything they have, not only money but clothes.

"I should recommend that the government should give each family three or four acres and make them work it and raise their food. The old people should be taken care of in a hospital. It's a shame to let these old people suffer in this way. The young people go out and work and leave the old ones to eke out their own existence."

Injunction Against Iron Company Results in Closing Two Mines.

The Oliver Iron Mining company, a steel corporation subsidiary, has laid off about 800 men at the Hull-Rust and Sellers Rust mines at Hibbing on account of injunction proceedings which have been brought by Elizabeth H. It is primarily a food—a food beverage. The little alcohol there is in it (developed in the process of brewing) is wholesome, and satisfies the natural craving of an over-worked people for a mild stimulant.

WHITE SEAL BEER is rich in food values. It contains about the same amount of nutrition as milk, but in a form much easier to digest, more quickly assimilated, and is therefore much more healthful.

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

Minnesota has a land area of 80,858 square miles and a total population of 2,075,708, or an average population per square mile of 25.7 people, as compared with 21.7 in 1900. The average population of what the census bureau calls "continental" United States is 30.9 to the square mile. Ramsey county has the greatest density of population, 1,298.3 persons to the square mile, and Cook county the least, having 1.12 square miles of land for each of its inhabitants.

Gross earnings on the Duluth, Missabe and Northern railroad were $5,234,253.31 less last year than in 1910, due largely to the material decrease in the iron ore business for that season, according to a report filed with the state tax commission. Similarly the earnings of the Duluth and Iron Range road, also a subsidiary of the steel corporation, fell $1,433,127.50 lower than the 1910 gross receipts for the same reason.

When the state's business for January was closed Minnesota had a balance in all its funds, except the revenue fund, of $2,586,726.32, and an actual cash balance of $2,003,904.36, due to the fact the revenue fund is overdrawn $582,821.86 at the expense of the others, according to a report prepared by State Treasurer Walter J. Smith.

Minnesota people are not drinking so much beer as formerly, according to figures announced by the United States internal revenue department. The receipts of the department since July 1, 1911, were $1,131,728.58, a decrease of $253,888.05 from that of the corresponding seven months of the previous fiscal year.

Payment of $14,310.70 received from the bond company which stood behind I. D. Bren, former acting treasurer at the state university, was made by the university regents into the State treasury last week and accredited to the university fund. The regents also remitted $60,000 on account of January collections in fees.

The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad will build 120 new locomotives, will also buy ten from the American Locomotive company and will put between $3,000,000 and $3,250,000 into new motive power, very largely for service in this territory and on the Puget Sound extension of the road.

Butter made in some of the creameries in the southern part of the state is being retailed to the fancy trade in New York city at from 60 to 70 cents a pound, according to advices received by Fred W. McIntosh, secretary of the dairy and food department of Minnesota.

The carpenters of Little Falls have organized, and will make a demand for 45 cents an hour after March 1. No organization has been in existence prior to this time and wages paid have been varied.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

N. [illegible] Eckern of N. Schoen & Son company, died of heart failure at Ortonville. He was born in Sweden on May 21, 1843. He came to the United States in 1869, took a homestead in Brown county, this state, and lived at New Ulm, Glencoe and Granite Falls until 1879, when he removed to Ortonville.

John Bitzer, pioneer and Civil war veteran, is dead at Waconia, aged seventy-five years. Dropsy, complicated by heart trouble, was the cause of death. He was a powerful man, weighing nearly 300 pounds. Mr. Bitzer was one of the detachment that captured Jeff Davis at the close of the war.

Oliver P. Carter, sixty-five years of age, a Civil war veteran, a charter member of the Minneapolis chamber of commerce, senior member of the grain firm of Carter, Sammis & Co., and widely and favorably known over the Northwest, is dead at Minneapolis.

Joseph G. Miller, a former member of the state railroad and warehouse commission, is dead at [illegible]. He was elected with Ira B. Mills and C. F. Staples when the first set of commissioners was elected in 1901. Mr. Miller was forty-eight years old.

Joel B. B[illegible], one of the founders of Minneapolis, is dead at Los Angeles, Cal. Mr. B[illegible] came to Minnesota in 1851, settling at St. Anthony, now Minneapolis. He was [illegible] six years of age.

NORWAY.

The Norwegian government has appropriations amounting to 100,000 crowns which will be utilized for the further purchase of water power. Last year the government purchased the water power of the Tvelte river in Bjoreld for 16,000 crowns; the water power on the Skjonheim estate in Ullensvang for 6,000 crowns and also the water power of the Usteely and Bardu rivers. In this way the government is gradually buying up and harnessing the water powers of the country, thus giving ample opportunity for inviting manufacturing interests to locate in Norway.

At the annual Holmenkollen event this month there will also be a balloon contest in which balloonists from Sweden, Denmark and Germany will participate. The meet has been much advertised and several thousand persons from all over the country are expected to attend. The Holmenkollen event is an annual affair, which includes contests in horse racing on the ice, ski jumping, skating, etc.

The London Times in a recent issue contains a very interesting article entitled "The Home of the Ski," in which the author gives an account in detail regarding the progress of the ski sport as it is conducted in Norway at the present day. The article is richly illustrated and contains many points of rare interest regarding this form of winter sport in Norway.

✣ ✣ ✣

It appears that the conditional opening of the pulpits of Norway to women at this time was largely due to a request made last summer by Miss Anna Shaw, an American lady, who toured in the country last summer, giving lectures on women's progress in the suffrage movement.

✣ ✣ ✣

A promising young Norwegian singer, Miss Magnhild Rasmussen, recently made her debut at the opera in Mannheim, Germany, as "Senta" in "The Flying Dutchman." Her success was phenomenal, according to German musical critics who see in her a coming opera star of the first magnitude.

✣ ✣ ✣

Jachim Hansen exported last year more than one million crowns' worth of mackerel to New York. A paper published in New York in the interest of the fishing industry, known as "The Fishing Gazette," refers to Hansen as Europe's "mackerel king."

✣ ✣ ✣

The storthing will in all likelihood make an appropriation of at least 1,000,000 crowns for the so called America Line, the establishment of which has now come to be regarded as a national undertaking so far as Norway is concerned.

✣ ✣ ✣

The Norwegian Teachers' association, a national organization, has now more than 1,100 members. The association will this year hold its annual meeting in Christiania.

✣ ✣ ✣

A new professor of religion and another one as professor of the "riksmaal" is to be appointed at the University of Christiania.

✣ ✣ ✣

The National theater has on its program the vaudeville piece entitled "Abekatten," one of Heiberg's latest and most popular productions.

The customs receipts for the year of 1911 amounted to over [illegible] crowns.

DENMARK.

A daring Danish woman explorer, Mme. Demant-Hatt, a graduate of Copenhagen university, has come back from Lapland with a deep liking for Lapps, the picturesque nomads of Arctic Europe, who for thousands of years have retained their ancient customs, mode of life, dress and language. They abstain from intermarriage with outsiders and in their simple life keep aloof from most of the influences of civilization. Though a woman of extremely refined habits Mme. Demant-Hatt has faced the Northern hardships with the Lapps themselves for various periods, one extending to fifteen months, following them on their long wanderings, sharing their narrow tents, drinking ten to twenty cups of coffee at a sitting and partaking of sundry very "fresh" dishes. Official Paper of Pennington County

In countries new or old, love never should grow cold.

The Agricultural school of Crookston defeated the Stephen High school by a score of 24 to 35 last week at Crookston.

The Plummer Pioneer has increased the size of its paper from six to seven columns, which assures us that the editor is doing a good business.

The smoke from the gasoline of an automobile contains deadly carbon monoxide. It is fatal if breathed in a proportion of two parts monoxide to one-thousandth part of air. Beware of it in a closed garage.—Ex.

We failed to see Old Glory waving over the Auditorium on Lincoln's birthday. Are we to ascribe this to a lack of patriotism in the city administration or to a possible intention to replace the Stars and Stripes by the red flag?

A man who has made a happy home for his wife and children, no matter what he has not done in the way of achieving wealth and honor, if he has done that, he is a grand success. If he has not done that, and it is his own fault, though he be the highest in the land, he is a most pitiable failure. We wonder how many men, in a mad pursuit of gold, which characterizes the age, realize that there is no fortune which can be left to their families as great as the memory of a happy home.—Waubun Forum.

HOW IT IS DONE

Catalogue Houses Scheme to Make People Pay for Goods That They Refuse to Accept.

A station agent, living a short distance from Fergus Falls, was discussing freight matters with a representative of the Journal the other day and made some remarks that are worth consideration.

"The mail order houses," said he, "make the railway men more trouble than all the other business men combined. They send out their catalogues, offering things at prices that look cheap, and obtain numerous orders for goods, but you would be surprised at the number of articles that are refused when they arrive. Almost every day articles come in, and the purchasers, on coming to secure them find they are of inferior quality, and order them back. This is where the railway man's trouble begins. The mail order houses, particularly one of the well known Chicago concerns, make it a practice to claim that they never received the goods in return and to try to make the purchaser pay for them. The purchaser comes to us and tells us that he has a letter from the mail order concern saying that the goods were not received and that he is liable for them, and then we have to get busy and begin tracing them. Tracing a piece of freight is a slow process, and while it goes on the purchaser calls on us every little while and wants to know if we have found it. It generally requires several weeks and perhaps a month or two for us to prove delivery of the returned goods."

The man who buys his goods at home can see what he is getting and in nine cases out of ten he gets better value than he does by patronizing the outside concerns.—Ex.

Girls' Tomato-Growing Contests.

Through the kindness of the Minneapolis Tribune, a number of tomato-growing contests for the girls of Minnesota will be inaugurated, to be under the direction of the Agricultural Extension division of the State University. The work will be framed along the lines so successfully used by the U. S. Department of Agriculture among the girls of the South. The contests will be limited to two in number in any one county, and are to be backed by civic leagues, women's leagues, etc., in the respective communities wishing to take up such work. Fourteen prizes, ranging from $10 for first honors down to $1 each for the last six places, will be available for each contest. Girls between the ages of 10 and 18 years are eligible. Each contestant who completes the work as directed will receive a neat gold-plated emblem. Seeds and full information and instructions will be furnished free. Write the Extension Division, University Farm, St. Paul, for details.

"To the Victor Belongs the Spoils."

Tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. Perl W. Mabey, six members of the Ladies' afternoon bridge club will entertain at a luncheon in honor of their more fortunate sisters, who by their skillful playing have carried off high honors during the series of games just completed. The affair promises to be quite an affair, but modesty on the part of the writer forbids a full account. Those to be entertained are Mesdames Stebbins, Arpin, Bryant, Mellby, Melgaard, Penney, Shaw and Barrett.

The record price for tame hay on the Kansas City market was registered the other day, when $23.50 per ton was paid for a carload of hay shipped from Rupert, Ida.

Roughly speaking, it takes a depth of from twelve to fifteen inches of snow to make one inch of water. Again, one inch of rainfall will moisten the earth to the depth of about twelve inches.

Switzerland has 2,100 dairies, which employ on the average four people each. Of the total number of dairies 1,400 are engaged in the production of Ementhal cheese, a brand that constitutes a large share of the cheese exports of the little country.

Probably the highest price ever bid for a calf was $6,000, which a Wisconsin breeder bid at auction the other day for a month old calf of the famous Dolly Dimples, a prize winning Jersey that is owned on the Ames stock farm near Boston and rated as one of the most valuable cows in the world.

The Japanese sugar cane, which has lately been introduced into some sections of the south, gives promise of being a valuable forage crop.—While it will produce more sirup than any other cane, its chief value is for forage, as the stalks are small. However, the variety is hardy, grows to twelve or thirteen feet in height and produces many stalks to the hill. It yields from fifteen to twenty-five tons of green forage per acre.

The Black Giant is the name of a breed of poultry that is making a good record in several eastern states, few if any having as yet been brought west of Pennsylvania. The cock birds weigh nine or ten pounds and the hens from seven to eight. Unlike some other black feathered breeds, they are yellow skinned and have black legs free from feathers. The breed is hardy and easily kept. The Black Giants are favorites in several eastern markets for caponizing and usually top the market in this class.

One breeder of Jersey cattle whom the writer is personally acquainted with is following a plan in the improving of his herd of some forty or fifty fine cows that has much to commend it. Recently there was shipped to him by the owner, on terms that were mutually satisfactory, a prize winning $1,000 Jersey bull, with which some thirty of his cows are to be mated. This arrangement will cost the owner of the herd mentioned a snug sum, but there is little question that it will pay him a handsome return on the investment.

During the closing days of 1911 grapes were taken from cold storage in some eastern markets that had been shipped from California six weeks before and held there during the interval. They were found in prime condition—practically as good as when put in storage—but the other important feature connected with the experiment was that when put on the market finally these grapes brought more than twice as much as they would had they been sold at the time of shipment from the west. The experiment is likely to have quite an effect upon the grape growing business.

Dynamite is queer stuff, and there are a whole lot of things about it that are difficult to understand. Unlike a good many other substances, there does not seem to be much uniformity in the laws which govern its ignition and explosion. Often the slightest jar or the application of heat to it is sufficient to set it off. In a case related to the writer the other day a chunk of the stuff fell off a wagon on which it was being hauled and a few minutes later was run over by a disk pulverizer without exploding. Again, a chunk of it put in a fire will burn quietly without exploding. We would not advise making this experiment, however.

The writer had the pleasure last winter of spending a day aboard a dairy special which made some eight or ten stops on a given line of road. He was fully persuaded at the close of the day that no farmer living within a radius of twenty miles of the town where the stops were made and who was at all interested in the subject of dairying could afford to miss the practical and instructive lectures and demonstrations which were given. If such a dairy special should during the coming weeks make a stop within reasonable distance by team or trolley of any readers of this department it would be decidedly to their advantage to attend and get all the information possible out of the men in charge of the train.

A Philadelphia surgeon has lately discovered that the inside membrane of hens' eggs can be successfully used as a substitute for human skin in grafting operations. The new skin formed by this method is finer than the old, but strong and healthy.

For folks who hibernate in latitudes where the mercury is likely to slip down to 20 or 30 below zero there is absolutely no investment that gives more generous or immediate returns than that put into a thirty-five cent soapstone. In the comfort which it yields it pays for itself every night it is used.

It is an interesting fact shown in immigration statistics that, while the vast majority of Italians who emigrate from their native land to the western world come to the United States, just as large a per cent of the Spanish peasants go to South American countries. During the past year 230,000 people left Spain, 8,000 of these arriving in Buenos Aires in a single fortnight.

That this "watermelon stealin'" business is getting to be serious is shown in the discussion of the subject by a speaker before the recent meeting of the Western Fruit Jobbers' association held in St. Louis. Some one has suggested giving each melon a paper jacket, which would prevent the melons from being exposed to view and thus reduce the temptation to steal them.

If you would live long drink generous amounts of sour milk or buttermilk. Scientists have discovered that the family of bacteria that produce lactic acid—that is, cause the souring process in milk—have the power to destroy or neutralize another group of germs that are said to be responsible for the imperfect digestion of food in the intestines, which in turn is said to be the chief cause of old age decline.

Illinois produced last year more corn than any other state in the Union, but the largest average yield per acre—38.3 bushels—was grown in Connecticut, not usually considered in the list of corn producing states at all. It is evident that the farmers of those rocky little New England homesteads are on to some secrets of corn raising that the owners of the big farms of the central western states would do well to get next to.

Baguio, in the Philippine Islands, is said to be the wettest place in all the territory at present under the control of the United States. Meteorological records kept there show that in four days of last July 88.14 inches of water fell, thirty-four inches of this enormous amount falling in a period of twenty-four hours. This place is the health resort of the island, and the "water" cure is said to be a favorite method of treatment.

Surveys are being made for a scenic highway around Crater lake, in southern Oregon, which is conceded to be one of the world's wonder spots, but which as yet has been visited by comparatively few people on account of its inaccessibility. A proposed automobile road from Medford, a station on the main line of the railroad, some sixty miles away, and the building of the scenic drive around the lake will afford to lovers of the beautiful in nature an opportunity of viewing one of her masterpieces.

Between meridians 100 degrees and 120 degrees, which includes practically all of the dry country of the western half of the United States, it is estimated that there are 300,000,000 acres of fertile land capable of producing a crop of twenty bushels per acre of winter wheat every other year. This means that if one-third of this vast area were producing on the above basis the increase in the country's wheat crop as a result would be 1,000,000,000 bushels yearly, which is a good deal more wheat than the country has ever produced in a single crop.

Folks who are paying 30 cents a pound for the cheapest grade of coffee wonder why there was not a drop in price when the import tariff tax was removed some time ago. The reason there was not is due to the fact that the Brazilian coffee trust, backed by the government, slapped on an export duty equal to our import tax which had just been removed. As a still further aid in maintaining prices the output of coffee is so regulated that in times of big crops enough of the surplus is removed from trade channels so that the price can be kept up on the remainder.

A reader of this department who lives at Reed City, Mich., in a recent letter calls attention to the interesting fact that as a result of investigations which have been carried on it is now contended that fruit raising can be carried on in Michigan over a much wider area than was formerly supposed. In support of this statement our correspondent calls attention to the fact of the clearing of one 3,000 acre tract not far from where he lives, all of which is to be set to fruit trees as soon as cleared. He also speaks in high terms of a fruit and land show that was held a short time since in Grand Rapids, where choice fruit put up in the western box fashion was on display. In this connection it may be added the Michigan fruit grower has a distinct advantage over his western competitor—namely, nearness to good markets. When he will take as much pains in the care and spraying of his trees and in the packing of his fruit he will receive correspondingly satisfactory prices for his stuff.

AN ILLINOIS INQUIRY.

A reader of these notes who lives near Edinburg, Ill., not far from Springfield, writes stating that he lives on a sixty acre farm especially well suited for a dairy farm and makes inquiry as to the wisdom of going into the dairy business. He states that he knows practically nothing of the dairy business, wants to know how many cows a sixty acre farm would support, whether it would be better to sell milk or cream and what would be a reasonable estimate of the amount of milk a cow would give per day during the year and what per cent of it would be cream. While it would be impossible in the limits of such an article as this to give a novice in the dairy business as full directions as he desires, nevertheless a few suggestions may be made that will prove helpful.

A suggestion which our correspondent makes in his letter is excellent—namely, visiting and inspecting for himself some of the most successful dairy farms in the section in which he lives. Here he can make inquiries as to a hundred and one details knowledge of which would be helpful to him if he is going into the dairy business, while the visual impressions he will take away with him from a shipshape dairy farm will be a decided advantage to him. Were we in our correspondent's place we would secure ten or a dozen tested grade cows of the breed which seems to be most numerous in the section in which he lives. He might handle more, but this would do for a start. These cows will cost all the way from $50 to $20 apiece, depending upon their ability to deliver the goods. And in this connection it is well to remember that it is far better in the long run to pay $100 for a cow that the other fellow would rather keep than $40 or $50 for one that he is quite willing to sell.

The "reasonableness" of an estimate as to how much milk a cow would give would depend quite largely upon the amount paid for her and also upon the feed and care given her. A cow that gives 5,000 pounds of 5 per cent milk in a year will produce 250 pounds of butter fat, approximately equal to 312 pounds of butter, worth at an average of 30 cents per pound, $93. Subtracting cost of feed, about $38, leaves a net return of $55 per year. A Holstein to give the same return would have to produce not far from 9,000 pounds of milk containing 3 per cent of butter fat. While she would give more milk, her feed bill would also be larger. If one is willing to pay the price he can reasonably expect as good results as these or better. While the writer is not acquainted with the local conditions, it would be his offhand judgment that selling the cream would be the better proposition, for, while he might not get any more for it than he would for the whole milk, he would have the skimmilk left on the farm for his hogs, calves and chickens, which would be natural byproducts of his dairy operations. If there is not already a silo on our friend's farm he should have one or two, depending upon the number of cows he will ultimately keep. If he does not have them already he should subscribe for a couple of good dairy papers and by reading them carefully and making inquiries of his neighbors who are most successful in the dairy business he will gather information which will be most helpful to him. If he can so arrange it it would give him a good return on the money invested if he would take a short course in dairying at the state agricultural college.

A COSTLY FIASCO.

If some of the would be statesmen that are representing or misrepresenting us down at Washington would get their hands off the political wires long enough to pass a law which will provide for the rigid federal inspection of all imported nursery stock at port of entry and the immediate destruction of all consignments found diseased or infested with the eggs or nests of destructive insects they would confer an inestimable benefit upon the vast horticultural interests of the country. Secretary Wilson is authority for the statement that the United States is practically the only civilized country having horticultural interests of any importance which does not require rigid inspection of imported nursery stock. For lack of the protection which such laws would have given our orchards are infested with various imported scale insects, while the brown tailed moth is another pest which has been imported into the country largely through lack of federal inspection laws and which is doing untold damage to orchards and shade trees in eastern states. It may not be impertinent to inquire how long this fiasco that Secretary Wilson refers to is going to continue.

$2,500 A YEAR NET.

An Iowa farmer who bought a quarter section farm five years ago at $80 an acre has in the meantime kept an accurate account of all receipts and expenditures. He finds that besides keeping his family in comfortable circumstances he saved $2,500 a year in cash. He figures that there has been an average increase in the value of his land per year of $5 per acre which, added to his net receipts, means that his income from the place has been net $3,200 every year. [illegible] this is a good deal better than owners of 160 acre farms [illegible], but it shows what can be done [illegible] be interesting to know [illegible] this farmer [illegible] with the farm operations.

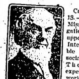
PASTOR RUSSELL IN CALCUTTA

Investigation of Missions In India In Progress.

Juggernaut and the Ganges Visited Investigation Committee Go Next to Benares, Burning Ghats, Agra, Etc Pastor Russell Addressed Large Audiences In Calcutta.



PASTOR RUSSELL

Calcutta, Feb 18.—The foreign Missions Investigation Committee, appointed by the International Bible Students Association, is here. The Committee expedite their work by each member giving special attention to a different feature of the investigation. This is their third week in India and they have already traveled nearly two thousand miles. They are keenly interested in the heathen and in the Bible, but they declined to give in advance any hint of what their report will be as respects the missionary work here.

Pastor Russell, Chairman of the Committee, preached twice to-day to large and attentive audiences in our finest auditorium. One of his addresses, from Jeremiah ix, 23, 24, we report. He said:—

Your "City of Palaces" greatly impresses me, as doubtless it does all who visit it. But as I look at its splendor I am reminded of that portion of my text which declares, "Let him that glorieth glory in this, that he understandeth and knoweth Me, that I am the Lord, which exerciseth loving kindness, judgment and righteousness in the earth." Wherever we go we perceive that man, by virtue of his creation, is a worshipper.

I stopped enroute at Juggernaut; the very name called up the stories of my childhood which so greatly aroused my sympathies for the poor heathen. Missionary reports told of how in ignorance the natives would throw themselves before the great Car of Juggernaut, feeling it an honor to thus sacrifice their lives. And now, here am I on the Ganges River, of which in childhood I heard so much that thrilled my heart with sympathy—how mothers threw their babes into the Ganges, not because they had no sympathy with their offspring, but because they desired to sacrifice to and propitiate their gods.

"Now We Know In Part."

Now that I am here I do thank God that, although the heathen have not been converted to a true knowledge of the great Jehovah, they have, nevertheless, come under the strong hand of the British Government, which, whatever its defects, seeks at least to protect its subjects from the extremes of their own ignorance and superstition.

St. Paul wrote, "Now we know in part; but then we shall know even as also we are known." (I Cor. xiii, 12.) Alas! How every true Christian must realize how his own knowledge of God and that of his forefathers has so slightly exceeded the knowledge of the heathen, that he found it difficult to "glory" in his understanding of God. Only those who are adherents to the declarations of the Bible that "God is Love," that His mercy endureth ever, that He is like a pitying father, that He is a God of All Grace, the Father of Mercies, whose loving kindness we cannot measure only such have the assurances which enable them to offset the horrible theories of our creeds formulated in a darker past, and which told us more horrible things respecting our God and His treatment of mankind than our poor heathen brethren ever imagined.

But now the better day is dawning! We are seeing the glorious outlines of the Divine character in the Divine Plan as never before! Our hearts first led the way and rebelled against the dictum of our fallacious reasoning. And now, in God's due time, when nature is yielding up her secrets and chemistry is making the world anew, behold the key to the Divine Word is thrust into our hands, unlocking its mysteries and explaining its parabolic symbols to our astonished faith!

Knowing Our God.

Our Redeemer declared, "This is life eternal, that they might know Thee, the only true and living God, and Jesus Christ, whom Thou hast sent." Evidently the great Teacher had in mind the thought of our text—not merely a knowledge about God, but an acquaintanceship with Him, such as can come only through a fellowship of spirit and an understanding of the Divine Program.

In our blindness of the past, assuming that all the people would be consigned to an eternity of torture, we published in our missionary reports that ninety thousand every day go down into death, into Christless graves and to an eternity of eternal torture.

Now we perceive a change in fairer lines. Now we perceive that for a thousand years the Elect, on the heavenly plane, [illegible] unto the angels [illegible] and reign with Christ [illegible] for the blessing of the nonelect, for their uplifting from conditions of sin and imperfection back to the glorious heights of the image of God in the flesh.

It is therefore ordered, That said petition be heard at a meeting of said Board to be held at office of the County Auditor in the city of Thief River Falls in said County, on Friday, the 29th day of March, 1912, at 2.00 o'clock P. M., at which time and place this Board will hear all persons interested, and their evidence and arguments, for and against the granting of said petition.

It is further ordered, that notice of said hearing be given by the publication of this order in the newspaper known as Thief River Falls News and by the posting of copies thereof in three of the most public places in each of the above specified districts, and by mailing copies of this order to the clerks of each of said districts, according to law.

To the Hon. Board of County Commissioners, Pennington County, Minn.

Gentlemen:

We offer to purchase the issue of $112,800.00 worth of Ditch Bonds now being offered by your Board, which are to be made payable as follows:

First five years only the interest to be paid each year, and the remaining fifteen years the interest and one-fifteenth of the total to be paid each year until the full amount is paid.

It is understood that if our bid is accepted that we have the option to accept Thirty-two Thousand Dollars of additional bonds on Ditch No. 38 on the same terms.

Respectfully submitted,

Week's Summery, from 1st page

near future some big men will appear here before the season closes.

The match is to be between Al Betcher, of McIntosh, weighing 155 pounds, and Geo. Buckner, of Donaldson, weighing 130 pounds. Betcher recently wrestled with Monson, of Holt, and was victorious over the latter. He has been using the local gymnasium as his training quarter and has been doing some strenuous working out, so as to enter into this match in first class condition.

Mr. Buckner has been wrestling at least one match a week during the winter and he is in the best of condition. Buckner holds the championship over a great number of men of his weight and is a very clever wrestler. This match promises to be the best we have ever seen.

Good preliminaries by local men are to start at 10:30 p. m. sharp. The main bout will start at 11:00 o'clock sharp. Tickets are on sale at the Mulry & Effinger pool room and will also be on sale after 7:30 p. m. at the Auditorium Friday night. Admission 50c, 75c and $1. Remember the date, also remember that this is to be a fast match.

TWO GAMES AT PLUMMER

Last Tuesday night a double header game was pulled off at Plummer. The Commercial-Normal met Erskine and defeated them by a score of 28 to 9. Thief River Falls Athletic Association met Plummer and was defeated by a score of 13 to 5.

Both of the games were well played but owing to the small hall at Plummer the local boys were handicapped to a great extent. Plummer has a good bunch of entertainers. The people were very enthusiastic and they turned out, this giving their team better support.

After the games a dance was given, music being furnished by the Red Lake Falls orchestra. At midnight a fine supper was served at the Plummer Hotel, the visiting teams feeling highly pleased with the treatment they received.

The lineups are as follows.

Commercial-Normal		Erskine
Jacobson	F	Narvison
Olm	F	Walker
Carlson	C	Sterneson
Linde	G	Dussell
Swanson	G	Rustwold

Substitute forward, who played last half for Erskine, was Cronquist.

T. R. F. Athletic Ass'n		Plummer
Chittick	F	Pahlin
McCrum	F	Rice
Erickson	C	Paterson
Schuster	G	Hemly
Mussey	G	Hagen

The Plummer city team and the T. R. F. Athletic team now have a game each and it is expected that in the near future the "rubber" will be pulled off.

For bargains see Page 5. The Great Sale at the Co-Operative Store will positively close Saturday night.

ATHLETIC CLUB

Equipment Arrived Last Week for the Gymnasium and Was Immediately Installed.

Members Are Requested to Turn Out and Show What They Can Do —More Members Wanted.

We are glad to announce that the city gymnasium is ready for use. The bulk of the apparatus arrived last week and was immediately installed ready for use. The order consisted of only first class apparatus and from the varied assortment it appears that one may find an opportunity for exercise of any description.

Every day this week many of the members have turned out for a work out in the gym. The cabinet bath seems to be the popular dish after a good sweat. It is perhaps the best imitation of a Turkish bath that one can obtain in a town of this size.

J. P. Curtis is distributing the keys at his drug store on La Bree avenue. To get a key it is only necessary for a member to show his ticket and deposit a quarter, which will be returned to him when he gives up his key. This is merely a protective measure to warrant the careful use of keys by the members.

One last effort is to be made before March 1st to secure the 200 members. Because of the delay in securing the apparatus the officers of the club deemed it best to not push the campaign too strongly. It is possible, however, to see that the club is a reality and that it is actually open for business. A year's membership ticket, if bought before the first of March, will cost only $1.00. Beginning at that date, a higher figure will be installed.

An exhibition of swell features will be booked in the near future for members only.

Each and every member is requested to turn out and show what he can do. The members are also requested to take good care of the apparatus and see that it is kept in good shape. If you have a friend who is not yet a member, kindly try and have him join, as it is a good thing for the young or old.

Without Light and Water.

Word was received from Warren Friday that the municipal water and light plant had given notice that the light would be turned out and that the water in the mains would be shut off.

The 400 foot artesian well has gone dry on account of a cave-in of sand and clay. The city is in darkness and many persons are without water for cooking and drinking purposes. Draymen and farmers were busy yesterday hauling water, which was sold to consumers who for the last ten years have depended upon the city water mains for their supply.

In case of fire Warren would be in a sorry plight, as the river has frozen to the bottom. The city council, at a special session, ordered everything possible done to bring about normal conditions.

Mr. Myers was in Thief River Friday.

HELD A MEETING

East Siders Get Together and Deal With Sewer Question—Petition Circulated Immediately.

Monday evening a meeting was held in the Knox School by the east side people in regard to the getting of a sewer system established on the east side of the river. A large number of enthusiastic citizens were present at this meeting and all but a few were in favor of having a system established.

D. P. O'Neill was elected chairman of the meeting, with T. L. Melgaard as secretary. Considerable time was spent in discussing the proposition. A number of the people present gave short talks on the subject, and most every one could see the need of such a system. It seems as though every person living on the east side can see the great need of sewers in the Knox school at least. All of the schools on the west side have them and it is no more than right that the children of the east side be granted the same privilege.

A petition was drawn up by the secretary and was immediately signed by all but a few of the members present. The petition was circulated by Andy Smith Tuesday morning and by "Herb" Fuller in the afternoon and a number of signatures appeared on the petition.

A committee was appointed to look up certain questions on this proposition and another meeting was called for Friday evening at 8 o'clock, at which time reports of the committee will be heard.

In Municipal Court

Saturday the manager of the Lyceum Theatre swore out a warrant for two of the young boys of this city, complaint being disorderly conduct in the Theatre. The boys were brought before Municipal Judge N. W. Tarrant. After they had told their story, the case was dismissed and the boys released, and it is expected that they will not let it happen again.

Last week two persons from Crookston hired a team and rig from C. H. Newbury & Son. After they had had the rig for four days, they returned it broken and in very bad condition. The men refused to pay the damages and took the train for Crookston the same day. Geo. Newbury immediately swore out a warrant for their arrest. Sheriff LaBree rounded them up in short order and brought them back to this city and took them before Judge Tarrant. They were very glad to pay the damages and all costs.

SUNBEAM

From the Sunbeam.

The weather has moderated a little the past week, and we think that the extreme cold weather is about done for this winter.

It looks today as if we were going to get a thaw, and we hope to see it melt snow enough along Red Lake River so the stock can get water, as the present conditions are becoming desperate.

With a new blacksmith and machine shop and a new meat market that are going to be put in at Highlanding this spring, it would seem like we had ought to get a doctor and a drug store to locate here the coming year, as it would certainly be a good location.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter McAndress returned home from St. Hilaire on Monday evening, as Mr. Martin McAndress, who has been very seriously ill, is now on the way to recovery, which fact we are pleased to note, as he is a personal friend of ours.

Simon Solberg, of McIntosh, who bought the Frank Jeffers farm a short time ago, was up here this week and moved up a gasoline saw rig, which he will saw poplar logs into lumber with. He will also put in a meat market this spring at Highlanding.

MUSICAL CONCERT

Hallowell Concert Company, Finest Musicians in Country, to Appear at Auditorium March 3rd.

The great Hallowell Concert company will play at the Auditorium here Sunday afternoon, March 3rd, under the auspices of the Antlers Club. The club is making a valiant effort to refurnish the club rooms and to increase the comfort of the rooms. It will be remembered that the fire last year raised havoc with the furnishings of the club. The entertainment planned will be, without the slightest doubt, the most refined and classy that has ever been undertaken in this city.

The Hallowell Concert company has a world-wide reputation and the music lovers of Chicago unhesitatingly say that it is the finest musical organization that ever appeared in their city. Each member of the company is a star, many of them holding diplomas from the best eastern and foreign music schools. Each of them has at some time been associated with some of the greatest bands and orchestras of this country. There is no question but that they will render the most excellent musical offering to which the people of this city have ever been treated. For nine years this collection of all stars has been together and this year they are making their ninth annual tour of the United States.

A wide and varied musical program has been submitted to the club for its approval. The numbers will consist of standard overtures, characters and descriptive music, popular and standard selections. Artists of no mean ability will render solos during the afternoon.

It was possible for the Antlers club to secure the Hallowell Concert company and give the people such a golden opportunity to hear the finest traveling musical organization only upon the promise of a most flattering and secure guarantee. The manager of the company, however, guarantees to give satisfaction or accept no money. The audience, he says, may be the judge. It is hoped that the house will be full of good critical judges. Buy a ticket and be one of the jury, and if you are pleased, give your verdict. The concert will begin promptly at 3 p. m. Sunday, March 3rd, in the Auditorium.

Signs of Spring.

A large crowd of boys were congregated on the corner of Main avenue and 4th street Sunday, enjoying an exciting game of marbles.

Bert Davis is sporting a new spring lid. "Where did you get that hat?"

Last Saturday quite a number of automobiles were seen on the streets. The people were all taking joy rides.

Melting snow and running water are also good indications of spring weather.

We are all anxiously awaiting the return of the first Robin Red Breast, which is a sure sign.

BUSH - LAMBERT

Roy Lambert Springs Surprise on His Friends by Taking Unto Himself a Bride.

Last Thursday at the home of the bride's parents occurred the marriage of Miss Gladys Bush, of Detroit, Minn., to Mr. Roy Lambert of this city.

Mr. Lambert for a couple of years has been druggist at the Curtis Drug Store on La Bree Avenue. He has a large circle of friends in this city who no doubt will join with the News in wishing Roy all the happiness of married life.

Miss Bush has visited this city and has quite a number of friends here. She is one of Detroit's most popular ladies. The friends of the bride wish her happiness and success through married life. They are expected to return to this city tonight and will make their future home here.

Council Meeting

Tuesday evening a regular meeting of the city council was held in the council chambers. The meeting was called to order by the president and the first thing taken up was the matter of a communication from the commercial club at Warren, in which they informed the local club that Kirkpatrick was to speak here and they wished that this would be taken up. The manager of the Auditorium was informed to work in conjunction with Prof. Hay, as the Professor has been making arrangements with Dr. Vincent to come in the near future. They were granted the use of the auditorium free of charge, providing it would not interfere with dates already set.

The Vistaunet bill was brought up and immediately rejected by all members of the council. E. M. Stanton, with a committee of others, addressed the council in regard to a park board. The president of the council appointed a committee of two with the city attorney to look up the legality, and they are to meet with the Commercial Club committee. The plans which Geo. Elder had drawn up were presented to the council and it is sincerely hoped that some definite action will be taken, so the city can have a fine park.

Bids were opened for the engine house at the east end of the bridge. Two bids were submitted, Jacob Jonas, $20; Chas. C. Schuster, $17.20. The Jonas bid was accepted.

The city treasurer's bond was accepted by the council. The City Clerk was instructed to advertise for bids for a city fire team. After considerable discussion, all aldermen voted yes and the resolution was declared passed.

Bills were allowed, after which the council adjourned.

EDITORS MEET

Editors of Minnesota Met Last Week and Elected Officers for the Ensuing Year.

The annual meeting of the Minnesota Editorial Association was held last week in Minneapolis. The officers elected for the ensuing year are:

H. C. Miller, editor of the St. Peter Free Press, was elected president.

R. C. Dunn, of Princeton, who had been the unanimous choice, declined to accept.

Other officers were elected as follows:

First vice president, G. B. Bjornson of Minneota; second vice president, Peter Schaefer, Ely; third vice president, M. S. Morelieus, Lindstrom; secretary, Carlos Avery, Hutchinson; treasurer, David Ramaley, St Paul.

Executive committee, Charles C. Whitney, Marshall; Frank J. Meyst Minneapolis; William E. Easton, Stillwater.

The editors finished their business at the morning session.

The association will meet next winter in St. Paul.

R. C. Dunn urged the editors to start a campaign for the passage of the 1-mill road tax amendment. He declared that unless the people were thoroughly advised as to the importance of this constitutional amendment, the cause of good roads would be set back two years.

"We want," he said, "the vast center of population in this state to contribute to the building of good roads. They have the property and should pay the greater percentage of the cost of road building.

"If this amendment is passed, the three largest counties will contribute 60 per cent of the road fund. The most these counties can get back of this amount for their road needs is less than 9 per cent. Indirectly, however, they will get back every dollar, in the increased business which will accrue to St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth by good roads. Every county in the state will get $15,000 each year for good roads."

SCHOOL NOTES

The high school band accompanied Dr. Gambell, D. P. O'Neill and J. H. Hay to Valhall last Friday evening, where the pupils and parents from three neighboring school districts had congregated for a social evening. Otto Olson, teacher in the Engelstad district, was master of ceremonies. The three visiting gentlemen delivered addresses, that of Dr Gambell on Alaska being the main feature of the program. The band boys received an enthusiastic reception from the young people present and they desired a repetition of the event. This meeting is a feature of the work possible of accomplishment under the Putnam law.

The freezing of a water service pipe on Monday at the Central building closed the school for the forenoon. Supt. Peterson and his men opened the frozen pipe with an electric current.

Plumber Olson was compelled to tear up the cement floor in the basement of the Washington this week to locate an obstruction in the sewer.

A public meeting was held by the Eastsiders at the Knox school Monday evening. The school buildings, which represent so much money and are centrally located and well equipped for public service, ought to be utilized more than they are for neighborhood meetings, social gatherings and for any work of an entertaining or educational character. This could be accomplished successfully by clothing such action with proper restrictions.

The total enrollment in the schools for this year to February 1st was 1233. This is a decided increase

POLITICAL SHOP SOLD

N. W. Tarrant Last Week Sold His Confectionery Store to A. W. Gray.

Was Political Headquarters. East Side Politicians Held Forth for Three Years.

Last Saturday afternoon a deal was closed whereby J. W. Gray, brother of Will Gray, city salesman for the Thief River Grocery Company, became owner of the N. W. Tarrant confectionery store on the east side of the river.

This store is better known to the public as the "East Side Political Headquarters," and has an established reputation. The politicians of the East Side offered to purchase the store providing Mr. Tarrant would stay until after election this fall.

Mr. Tarrant stated that his duties as Municipal Judge requires all of his attention, the office requiring a great deal more attention than he expected. He will also move to the west side of the river and will live in the old Walker residence southwest of the Great Northern depot. This property Mr. Tarrant purchased some time ago and has had it remodeled.

The business for the last three years has been conducted by "Nick" and he has always enjoyed a good, brisk business from the residents of the East Side. The East Side politicians will no doubt be lost by the absence of the judge and will have to be arranging for new headquarters.

Betcher Wins Match.

The wrestling match at the Auditorium last Friday did not last very long. Al Betcher defeated Prof. Buckner, securing the first fall in 3 minutes and the second in 2. Buckner was the lightest man of the two and showed himself as being a very skillful man on the mat but he was outclassed by Betchers weight.

Another good match has been arranged for, to be pulled off at the Lyceum Tuesday evening between Al Betcher and L. Curtis. Curtis is matched to meet Miller of St. Paul champion welterweigh of the world, at Hawely during the latter part of March for a side bet of $500. John Rogers will referee this big match. Tickets will be on sale Monday and Tuesday at the Effinger Pool Room.

Vaudeville Act.

The Lyceum has arranged for an act entirely different from anything which has appeared in the city for some time. The acts which have been presented at the Lyceum all have been first class but this one will prove to be the best of them all. Dean and Sterns, black and tan comedians, will put on an act which is a laugh from start to finish.

Signature of Congressman Steenerson's Application for Indian Land.

Testifying before the congressional subcommittee sitting at Minneapolis to investigate alleged frauds in the White Earth Indian reservation, Fred Dennis, former secretary to Congressman Halvor Steenerson, identified the signature to an application for a 160-acre allotment of the reservation as Mr. Steenerson's. He said he had been a witness to the signature April 22, 1905, the date the application was made by Mr. Steenerson.

Testifying further, however, he said that the congressman had made the application under protest and only after the Indians had assured him that they would feel hurt did he not make it. He also said that Mr. Steenerson did not believe his application would be received favorably in the Interior department and that, if it were, he immediately would sell the land and build a hospital for the Indians with the proceeds.

Almost in direct contradiction to this testimony was that of Chief White Cloud, a Chippewa, who swore that he and other full blooded Indians had resisted Mr. Steenerson's application. Indeed, he went further by testifying that Mr. Steenerson had never been adopted by the Chippewas and that, therefore, he had no legal right to make application for the allotment.

PRISONERS FOR TWO YEARS

Plight of Aged Couple in Southern Minnesota.

Held prisoners two years on their farm by their twin sons, near middle age, both of whom were demented, was the experience of M. O. Ladsten and his wife, who live eight miles north of Mabel. That they were virtually in captivity became known when Sheriff Blexrud and four deputies went to the farm and brought all four of the family to Preston for examination as to their sanity.

Both sons, who are thirty years old, were found to be demented. They will be taken to the state hospital at Rochester. The aged parents, who had been completely under their sons' domination, appeared intelligent and sound of mind.

AGED MAN AND TWO CHILDREN PERISH

Flames Consume Farm Residence Near Yucatan, Minn.

Two children and their grandfather were burned to death, the former's father was probably fatally burned and two others in the home were seriously injured when the farmhouse of Ole Ambroson near Yucatan was destroyed by fire. The origin of the fire is unknown.

The dead are Christopher Ambroson, aged eighty-six; Clara Ambroson, aged seven; Onga Ambroson, aged ten. Ole Ambroson is in a critical condition and probably will die, while Albert and Mrs. Ole Ambroson sustained severe burns.

Three of the family had retired for the night in upper rooms when flames suddenly broke out there. Other members of the family were in the kitchen down stairs and were only apprised of the fire when two of the boys leaped down the stairway closely followed by flames and smoke. Mr. and Mrs. Ole Ambroson made desperate efforts to rescue all the children and the grandfather, but were unable to save the three named.

MAY EXTEND TO TWIN CITIES

Reported Plans of the Canadian Northern Railroad.

Rumors are current in ore circles at Duluth that the Canadian Northern road will invade the Cuyuna iron range, and in this connection it is said that the road will build into St. Paul and Minneapolis. The same rumor includes the construction of an ore dock in Duluth.

It is said that if the Canadian Northern can get hold of a satisfactory tonnage on the Cuyuna that it certainly will build to that range. It is said to have tonnage contracts on the Mesabi ranges.

Minneapolis Lad Killed.

Miller Hale McLain, thirteen years old, of Minneapolis, this state, shot and killed himself with a revolver which he was examining in the home of his uncle, R. P. M. Day, at Lockhaven, Pa. McLain, who was a student in the state normal school there, did not know the weapon was loaded.

Man Frozen to Death.

The frozen body of Frank Blato was found in the woods near Brookston, St. Louis county. The man was overcome by the cold while trying to reach a cedar camp several miles from the place where he was found.

Wounds Policeman and Himself.

Jersey City, N. J., Feb. 6.—After reading accounts of the textile strike riots at Lawrence, Mass., Edward Ferguman, a middle aged jeweler, went suddenly insane at his home here and fired more than a score of revolver shots at imaginary "strike rioters." He shot and possibly mortally wounded one of the five policemen who tried to capture him and finally wounded himself mortally through the abdomen.

ABOUT THE STATE

News of Especial Interest to Minnesota Readers.

INDIANS SAID TO BE DESTITUTE

Witness at Congressional Probe Tells of Conditions on the White Earth Reservation.

Destitution of Indians on the White Earth reservation was the subject of testimony before the sub-committee of congress, sitting at Minneapolis. Instances of disease, poverty and bad living conditions were introduced. The Indians are said to be without lands and it is charged that they have been left homeless and penniless because of frauds practiced.

B. F. Carr, a timber cruiser who testified ten days ago, was again called. During his work, he said, he had become acquainted with the conditions of the Indians. Telling of their sufferings this winter, he said:

"The Indians on the timber portion are very poor, mostly squatters at Round Lake. At the government school there were twenty-one pupils who were given a meal a day at the school, all they got all day. The teachers told me that after the meal was over the squaws would come and beg for food.

"In a shack 12x14, one story high, I found nine grown people and seven children living. The beds were straw on the floor. In the summer they can live on fish, but in the winter mostly rabbits and in some instances muskrats are the customary diet.

Large Percentage Diseased.

"There are a great many sick. Consumption is prevalent. I found many almost dead from the disease. I have seen Indians dying, several in a house, with no one there to give them any attention, old and young alike. The doctor on the reservation told me there were 65 per cent diseased. That was last fall.

"If you could visit every house between Round Lake and Pine Point in this section you would find from two to three and ten or twelve in every house, mostly old women. The women, some eighty years old, do the work.

"They gamble and play away everything they have, not only money but clothes.

"I should recommend that the government should give each family three or four acres and make them work it and raise their food. The old people should be taken care of in a hospital. It's a shame to let these old people suffer in this way. The young people go out and work and leave the old ones to eke out their own existence."

DISPUTE AFFECTS 800 MEN

Injunction Against Iron Company Results in Closing Two Mines.

The Oliver Iron Mining company, a steel corporation subsidiary, has laid off about 800 men at the Hull-Rust and Sellers-Burt mines at Hibbing on account of injunction proceedings which have been brought by Elizabeth H. Lind, who complained of the blasting near her property. A temporary restraining order is in force and will be argued shortly. The mining company is taking steps to dispose of the entire question of encroachment and wants to know just what it is to expect as regards mining operations in proximity to Hibbing, which is a village of 10,000 inhabitants. Six steam shovels are idle as a result of the shutdown. The men were paid off, but it is expected the shutdown will be of short duration.

The United States produced 372,227 tons of lead in the year 1910, Spain produced 211,201 tons, and Germany ranked third with 174,053 tons.

The fine quality of mutton produced by the Canadian and English husbandman is due in no small measure to the generous ration of turnips which the sheep are given during the feeding period.

Ashes are all right dumped on the highway in the summer months, but in latitudes where there is snow in winter they should be put in the alley, not where they will stall teams hauling heavy loads.

While the farmer, of all men, puts in the most overtime in the summer or has ample opportunity to do so, he does usually have a breathing spell in the winter months during the day between the morning and evening chores.

No wonder that boys and girls go to the devil faster than a horse can trot when during the formative years they do not receive the oversight or attention that discerning parents would give pet cats or dogs or pure bred domestic animals.

The good folk in Kansas are feeling pretty chesty over the unusually heavy rainfall in December last. In the vicinity of Wichita it was 2.26 inches, or three times the normal, being the heaviest precipitation for December in a period of twenty-five years.

Take in the dairy special if it comes your way. Not only will you have a chance to see splendid types of the leading dairy breeds, but you will get first hand and in a way that you will remember a lot of dairy information and instruction of the most condensed and practical kind.

In the construction of both the hog and poultry house the admission of sunshine, which is a great germ killer, is a most important matter. Both in the facing of the building and the arrangement of the windows the aim should be to let into the structure just as much sunshine during as many hours of the day as possible.

In 1910 the United States produced 209,556,048 barrels of crude petroleum, which was an increase of 14 per cent over the record output of the preceding year. California led in the production of oil with 73,010,560 barrels, which is more than the production of any foreign country. Oklahoma came second with 52,028,718 barrels, while Illinois ranked third with 33,143,632 barrels.

If two people are having trouble in their married life the last person under the sun they should consult if they would mend the growing breach is a lawyer, saving perhaps old Satan himself. All too many lawyers would advise divorce proceedings, in the course of which a goodly portion, if not all, of the property of both parties to the action would be consumed in court costs and attorneys' fees.

Many a housewife in these days of high priced commodities feels that she cannot afford to buy the amount of milk that she really needs, when if the fact of the situation were more fully appreciated she could well afford to have twice as much milk as she is now using. From the standpoint of food value alone good milk is worth all it costs, while the use of it in the shape of gravies and soups makes possible a decided saving in butter and other articles.

The department of agriculture recommends the following tonic for hogs that are in need of toning up: One pound of wood charcoal, two pounds of common salt, two pounds of sodium hyposulphate, two pounds of sodium bicarbonate, one pound sodium sulphate and one pound antimony sulphate. These ingredients are thoroughly powdered and mixed and given in doses of a tablespoonful to hogs weighing 200 pounds. The dose is most conveniently given to the hogs in a thin slop.

Mention was made in these notes some time ago of the practice which is followed in some sections of Germany of growing fruit of different kinds on the borders of the highways. Recently an American consul has reported that in the province of Hanover the fruit that is grown on these roadside trees is sold at auction, the proceeds of which are used for the upkeep of the roads. This district has some 7,000 miles of country highway, and the past year the fruit trees on some of the roads yielded a revenue of $230 per mile. The fruit is protected by law, and during the ripening season the roads are patrolled by watchmen.

In the last instalment of matter for this department reference was made to the sale of a month old calf of Dolly Dimples at the long price of $6,000, the dam being put in the Jersey class. Dolly Dimples is not a Jersey, as was stated, but a Guernsey and one of the most famous of this popular breed.

The brood sow should not only be warmly housed, but should be given a ration largely nitrogenous—muscle forming, rather than fat forming. Besides this, she should have an abundance of pure water and room enough so she can take needed exercise. In a large measure these same conditions hold of both the ewe and cow that are carrying young.

Purely as a business proposition, to say nothing of the humane aspect of it, a heating tank is a good investment and will pay good returns on the money put into it; as it is a self evident fact that when the fuel of an animal's body must be taxed to warm up the ice cold water which it has to drink just so much is taken from its flesh or milk producing powers.

A North Dakota resident is said to have got round the prohibitory law in force in his state by eating mince pie put out by a certain bakery. The pies are said to be doped with a generous application of whisky, and as a result the authorities are investigating. There is surely more than one way of beating the devil around a stump when a fellow sets his mind to it.

While it is true that potatoes can be grown under a straw mulch, the seed being laid in shallow furrows and covered with the straw, it seems to be pretty well agreed that the yield is not so good as is secured under usual cultural conditions, where a dust mulch is maintained, while from the standpoint of the labor involved there is little saving by the mulch method.

Until quite recently date seeds have been a troublesome as well as unsalable product. However, in south Algeria and Tunis it has been discovered that by prolonged soaking the covering of the seeds may be softened to such an extent that they may be used as a ration for camels and mules. Datestone meal contains 9 8-10 per cent of nitrogenous matter, 26 per cent of hydrocarbons and 2 per cent of fatty matter, which in feeding quality makes it about equal to timothy hay.

While the raising of both mushrooms and ginseng, under favorable conditions and with proper handling, may yield good revenue, there is a good deal of doubt whether the same amount of ingenuity and brains devoted to plain gardening would not give as large a financial return with less risk. But, strangely, there seems to be a fascination about engaging in enterprises in which the stake may be large, but in which the risk is also great.

Not until recent years has the value of pasture for hogs been fully appreciated. In some feeding tests which have been conducted by the Missouri experiment station during the past three years with hogs on pasture it was found that clover pasture gave a return of $31 per acre per year, oats and rape $23, corn and cowpeas $20 and blue grass pasture $17. In view of such a showing as this, it would seem as though many a farmer might profitably convert a portion of his corn and grain fields into hog pastures.

Probably not in twenty years have dairy cows of known milk producing capacity under proper conditions of care and feed yielded a larger cash revenue than during the two months just past. The price received for butter fat, which has ranged from 40 to 50 cents per pound, has been the chief determining factor in the heavy returns. In instances not a few which we have noted "just average" cows have been producing a gross return of from $8 to $16 per month. The dairy business looks like a mighty inviting proposition.

While many of our readers hear a good deal about oleomargarine and butterine, there may be some who will be interested in knowing in a general way how it is made. One standard brand of which we know contains in the neighborhood of 12 per cent of the purest cream that can be secured. This is mixed with about seven times its volume of melted stearine or beef suet and fat and is then carefully churned. Where the colored product is made the coloring is added before the churning. Without any coloring the finished product is nearly pure white. From the standpoint of cleanliness and wholesomeness this product is in every way the equal of the best butter and under chemical analysis shows larger per cents of food elements than does butter.

A Kansas poultry fancier who has had forty years' experience with poultry diseases recommends the following simple remedy for roup: Take eight ounces of olive oil and add to it about 15 cents' worth of camphor gum. Next add eighty drops of carbolic acid, which is ten drops to the measured ounce of oil. Rub this mixture over and underneath the eyes and between the wattles of the affected fowls. This treatment should be given at night and in severe cases twice during the day. If the swelling in the roof of the mouth is severe a [illegible] of drops of the mixture [illegible] there with a [illegible]. Official Paper of Pennington County

Didn't we have an awfully "soft" Valentine week?

According to the Groundhog theory we are due for another cold snap.

Yesterday, Wednesday, February 21st was Ash Wednesday, the first day of Lent. Remember what you must deprive yourself of.

The first thaw of the season came last week. We might term this as our January thaw one month late, "Better late than never."

This week the Eleven Towns submitted the delinquent tax list of Pennington county to its readers. The list consists of two pages and is made up in first class form.

We were given a slap by SCHOOL NOTES in the two other local papers last week. We are here to admit that we did not make mention of the Teachers' Meeting at Bemidji. As to school notes, we have stated by locals which have appeared in our paper each week that copy coming in after 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon will be refused. We have never neglected them when they came in on time.

House of Representatives, Feb. 12, 1912.—Mr. Steenerson introduced the following bill, which was referred to the committee on the post office and post roads and ordered to be printed.

To provide for the introduction of village mail delivery.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, that after June thirtieth, nineteen hundred and twelve, experimental mail delivery may be established, under such regulations as the Postmaster General may prescribe, in towns and villages having a population of one thousand or more, and the sum of one hundred thousand dollars is hereby appropriated to enable postmasters to employ the necessary assistance to deliver the mail in such villages, and the amount to be expended at any office shall not exceed one thousand eight hundred dollars a year.

Build Addition.

On account of not having room enough, Mrs. Lang has found it necessary to have an addition built to the flower store on First street, 14x36 feet. This will be a green house with an all glass roof, which will give her more room and better light for her plants. Mrs. Lang now has a fine display of plants in her store, very nearly all of which are now in bloom.

Wednesday a large shipment of young plants were received and they will all be put on sale. They also have cut flowers at all times. Wedding and funeral designs are their specialty, and flowers and bedding plants in season. Lovers of fine plants can make some fine purchases from Mrs. Lang.

ABOUT THE STATE

News of Especial Interest to Minnesota Readers.

READY TO TACKLE HIS JOB

"Bill" Rich, Who Promised Minnesota's Delegates to Roosevelt, Returns to St. Paul.

"Roosevelt will be a candidate and will accept the nomination.

"In my opinion, Minnesota will send a Roosevelt delegation to the Republican convention."

With this statement W. W. Rich, sometime officeholder under President Taft and Moses E. Clapp, "insurgent senator," entered the political lists in Minnesota as a Roosevelt boomer.

Mr. Rich had a conference with the former president in the Outlook office last week.

He said Mr. Roosevelt had a number of things he wanted to do and which had not been done by the present incumbent. These were not named specifically by Mr. Rich, but it was inferred that Mr. Roosevelt had told Rich that things were not running just right down at the White House.

LAUNCH ROOSEVELT BOOM

Judge Purdy Chairman of Minnesota Organization.

The Roosevelt movement in Minneapolis was launched at a meeting at which a Minnesota Roosevelt committee, headed by Judge Milton D. Purdy of Minneapolis, was appointed, and the committee instructed to call a mass convention in the near future to form a permanent organization and to boost the work of getting the Minnesota delegation for the colonel.

The committee is composed of one from each congressional district, as follows: First, H. H. Dunn of Albert Lea; Second, E. H. Caufield, Luverne; Third, Dr. J. A. Gates, Kenyon; Fourth, H. T. Halbert, St. Paul; Fifth, M. D. Purdy, Minneapolis; Sixth, F. A. Dare, Walker; Seventh, Senator Frank Clague, Redwood Falls; Eighth, Representative Henry Rines, Mora; Ninth, W. J. Brown, Warren.

CONFESSES DOUBLE MURDER

Young Man Said to Have Admitted Slaying Minnesota Couple.

Jacob Doeffler, Jr., aged twenty-three, a Wisconsin farmer, who since Jan. 17 has been in jail at Red Wing for the theft of hay and fodder from the Schill farm, is the self confessed slayer of Anton Schill and his wife, Thersha Schill, according to the authorities of Goodhue county, who announced that the mystery surrounding the murder of Mrs Schill and the sudden disappearance of her husband last December has been cleared up. According to the officers Doeffler made a complete confession.

In his alleged confession Doeffler declares he committed the double murder himself and that Victor Artz and Karl Kehren, now under arrest charged with stealing cattle from the Schill farm, are not implicated in any manner with the crime.

EDITORS CHOOSE OFFICERS

St. Peter Man President of Minnesota Association.

H. C. Miller, editor of the St. Peter Free Press, [illegible] agreed [illegible] by members of the Minnesota Editorial association, in session at Minneapolis, for president of the association. R. C. Dunn of Princeton, who was the popular choice, refused absolutely to serve and forbade having his name presented. Mr. Miller has been active in the association for twenty years.

The other officers are: First vice president, G. H. Bjornson, Minneota; second vice president, P. Schaefer, Ely; third vice president, M. S. Norelius, Lindstrom; secretary, Carlos Avery, Hutchinson; treasurer, David Ramaley, St. Paul; executive committee, C. C. Whitney of Marshall, Frank J. Meyst of Minneapolis, W. E. Easton of Stillwater.

UPHELD BY SUPREME COURT

Minnesota's Anti-Discrimination Act Is Valid.

Higher prices must not be paid for milk and cream in one part of the state of Minnesota than in another, merely to drive out competition. The supreme court so held in an opinion upholding the validity of the anti-discrimination act passed in 1909.

The Bridgeman & Russell company of Duluth had been indicted in Pine county for this offense. It demurred on the ground that the law under which the indictment had been drawn was unconstitutional and appealed to the supreme court. The company will now go to trial in Pine county for the alleged discrimination.

Two Minnesotans Involved.

Two Minnesotans are among the alleged dynamiters who have been put under arrest. One of them is Charles N. Beum, business agent and secretary of the Minneapolis Building Trades council. The other is Fred Mooney, arrested in Duluth, said to be a member of the Bridge and Structural Iron Workers' organization.

A sort of a Socialist speaker put his hands in his pockets and shot wisdom ? at a small audience at the Highlanding school house Wednesday evening. He advised the people to use tobacco and drink intoxicating liquors so as to furnish employment for the manufacturers. He also roasted the churches and ministers, and quoted history enough to convince any school boy that when he entered the school room someone throwed the U. S. History out of the window. The Socialist party advocate some good ideas and principles, but they ought to muzzle a calf of that kind before they turn him loose in a respectable community.—The Sunbeam.

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

A probate judge cannot hold stock in a trust company that does business in the court over which he presides, according to a ruling by Attorney General Lyndon A. Smith. The ruling was requested by Judge Axel Haller of Goodhue county, who said a new trust company had been organized in Red Wing and he had taken stock in it. Mr. Smith told him he would have to give up the position or the stock to comply with the law.

ACETYLENE PLANT BLOWS UP

Two Persons Killed and Five Injured, Four Critically, in Accident Near Rochester.

As the result of an explosion of an acetylene lighting plant at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Postier, west of Rochester, two are dead and five are seriously injured, four being in a critical condition. The accident occurred when the hired man and the oldest son of the Postiers went into the cellar with a lighted lantern to charge the plant.

The explosion literally tore the house to pieces, bed clothing and other household goods being strung in the trees and on the tops of the farm buildings. Miss Castle Wading, seventeen years old, residing at Oronoco, died shortly after the explosion, from internal injuries. A partition of the house pinned her to the ground, it being necessary to chop it away to release her. The girl had just arrived at the Postier home for a visit and had been in the house only twenty minutes.

Mrs. Charles Postier was blown through the house. A compound fracture of the left leg resulted. She is in a critical condition. Charles Postier's right leg was broken between the knee and the ankle, and also above the knee.

Violet, the eleven-year-old daughter, died later. She had two compound fractures of the left leg and her face was cut. A two-year-old son has a fractured skull and his condition is critical. POLITICAL NEWS.

The names of two candidates for presidential delegates pledged to the support of Theodore Roosevelt will be found upon the official ballot in every congressional district of Ohio in the May primaries, according to a prediction made by Walter F. Brown, chairman of the Republican state central committee and head of the Roosevelt movement in Ohio.

Efforts of the Cook county (Chicago) Republican committee to obtain an expression in the ward caucuses of the desire of the party as to presidential nominations brought out an expression on the subject from about half of the thirty-five wards and the six county districts. In all save one of these Theodore Roosevelt was endorsed.

That Colonel Theodore Roosevelt would no more decline to take the nomination for presidency than he would decline to enlist, if needed in time of war, is the opinion of Lawrence F. Abbott, one of the editors of the Outlook, contained in a letter received by Edward C. Stokes, former governor of New Jersey.

Taft and Roosevelt sentiment was divided in resolutions adopted by Republicans of Indiana when they met in thirteen district conventions. At eight of the meetings the Taft administration was endorsed and at three the president was endorsed for renomination.

The purport of the expedition will be to clear that part of Persia from robbers and highwaymen and some interesting guerrilla fights may be looked for.

NORWAY.

Says an exchange writer: It is not often that Scandinavian institutions are praised as worthy examples in the United States senate. But this happened the other day during the debate on the Hitchcock resolution to nationalize the telegraph systems of the United States. Senator Knute Nelson of Minnesota defended the proposition. "The public, under government ownership," said Mr. Nelson, "would get as good service as it now gets and at one-third to one-half the present cost. That has been the experience of Scandinavia."

DENMARK.

Professor Carl Larsen of the University of Copenhagen, a military expert who is devoting his time to a campaign for the abolition of war, recently paid a visit to St. Paul and Minneapolis and Fort Snelling, where he visited with officers and later inspected the University of Minnesota. At the University of Copenhagen Professor Larsen compiled thousands of letters, written by business men, peasants, rich and poor during the war between Denmark and Prussia in 1864. The letters showed that the people did not want the war, but fought from a sense of duty. Their publication has awakened interest in Germany, the victorious country, and the German government has engaged Professor Larsen to direct a similar investigation showing the prevailing sentiment on the German side. Such letters, if compiled in all countries, Professor Larsen says, will show that the people do not want war. Professor Larsen lectured to a Danish and Norwegian audience in the Bethlehem Lutheran church at Minneapolis. He is commissioned and paid by the Danish government to give these lectures.

It is the corn in the ration of the laying hens that gives the yellow yolked eggs.

Quite often the worst stretches of the country highway during the winter months are caused by the roadside weeds that were left standing and served to catch the drifting snow.

Between the heavy ice bills of an unusually hot summer last year and the coal bills which are mounting up this severe winter the purses of many by the time spring comes will have a "lean and hungry" look.

Often a man's attitude toward the public is in no other way more accurately shown than in his disposition to keep the snow shoveled off that portion of the walks bordering his place which he himself seldom uses.

It is generally agreed now by medical authorities that the contraction of colds of one type and another is more often due to the breathing of bad air and to overheating than to the mere exposure of oneself to fresh air out of doors.

To those who are sitting up nights trying to keep their potatoes and other vegetables from freezing the suggestion is made that they place a tub of water on the cellar floor. The water, being very susceptible, will tend to draw the frost first.

In an article in this department a short time since, under the caption "An Illinois Inquiry," reference was made to the price at which good dairy cows could be purchased. In print the range given was from $50 to $20 when it should have been from "$50 to $120."

Boiling exactly three minutes makes an egg medium soft and about right for most folks who relish a soft egg at all. The same result is obtained by putting an egg in a pint of boiling water and setting the dish off the stove and allowing the egg to remain in the water ten minutes.

A corn belt boy, fifteen years old, of whom we read an account the other day, raised ninety-seven and a half bushels of corn per acre in a competitive contest last year at a cost of 14 2-3 cents per bushel. It is questionable if this lad's father was raising fifty bushels per acre before the youngster got interested in "better corn."

Not only does the white heron fall a victim of wanton slaughter at nesting time to gratify the whim of thoughtless women, who care a great deal more for adorning their bodies than they do of cultivating their hearts and minds, but also the crested grebes, which are slaughtered wantonly to furnish decorations for women's hats. In one way the slaughter of the grebes is worse in that it takes a greater number of victims to provide a given decoration.

It has been the writer's experience that more damage is done by rabbits to orchard trees during February than any other month of the winter. It is usually the month of deepest snow, while the rabbits have lost most of their reserve flesh put on during the fall and are almost completely barred from their usual sources of food supply. If the smaller trees have not been provided with protectors of some kind a sharp lookout should be kept to guard against damage being done in this way.

Thirty thousand pheasant eggs and 5,000 pheasants are to be distributed to farmers and sportsmen free during the present season from the state game farm in Sherburne, N. Y. Eggs or birds will be sent only to those from whom applications are received. The eggs will be distributed beginning in April, from fifteen to eighteen eggs being included in the sitting. The eggs are hatched under common hens, and the little pheasants are hardy and seem to thrive under the conditions found on the average farm.

While there may be some disadvantages in the case of the person who seems to think that the things he possesses are quite a bit finer than anybody else's, he is still several degrees better off than the fellow who is always discontented with his own achievements or possessions and who is jumping from this thing to that continuously, with the idea that the new thing will please him more or bring him better financial returns. A happy mean would seem to lie somewhere between these two types—that is, a reasonable satisfaction with what one does or has, but at the same time an intelligent watchfulness to improve his condition.

AGAINST THE BREECHING.

Most everywhere you will run across a class of people—usually men, because they are engaged in collective business undertakings more than women—who always ride in the march of progress, or, to mix the figure a little by a more forceful phrase, are usually against the breeching and mighty seldom in the collar doing straight pulling. Especially does this disposition crop out in case of new enterprises that are started in the community having in view the general welfare of the people living therein. When invited to take hold and give enterprises of this character a boost they remark, "Oh, I'll wait awhile," or "I'll wait and see if the thing pans out." Perhaps such an attitude is commendable when assumed toward decidedly risky propositions, but in many cases it is an evidence of mere stinginess or lack of good red blood. Such folk forget that whatever progress the world has made, not only in material but along other lines, has been made not by the aid of this type, but with the handicap of their either riding and letting some one else furnish motor power or backing up in the breeching.

IN RESTRAINT OF TRADE.

Those who are interested in the welfare of farmers' co-operative societies are watching with much interest the outcome of suits which have been brought against some of these societies of late. In one instance in Iowa the supreme court ruled that the provision of a company's bylaws which required that for every pound of pork which a member of the company sold to a competing firm he should pay a certain per cent to the parent company was a plain violation of the anti-trust law. More recently, after the company's bylaws have been so altered as to eliminate this feature, suit has been made to dissolve the company because its bylaws required all members of the society to trade with the society and no one else. It is contended by the party bringing the second suit that this proviso also is in plain violation of the anti-trust law.

"BAD ORDER" REBATES.

While the old system of direct rebates has been done away with, there seems to be another which is to some extent being used in its place. From one who is engaged in the express business the writer learns that many shippers and merchants are able to get quite as much in the shape of "bad order" claims as they were ever granted under the old system. Not only do such shippers make such claims when there is little or no ground for them, but the claims are paid at once, while with the claim that is honestly made by the person who ships produce only occasionally it is held up often for months, in some cases years. If this "bad order" rebate practice is general, and there is reason for believing it is, it would seem to deserve the careful investigation of state railway commissioners.

TEN POUNDS OF NUTMEGS.

Many a farmer or his good wife often miss it by ordering supplies of the peddler or of the catalogue house when just as good or a better grade of product could be secured from the home dealer. A case was reported to the writer the other day in which a farmer's wife ordered twenty pounds of coconnut and paid 8 cents a pound more for it than was regularly charged by the home dealer. The good woman evidently did not realize that twenty pounds of coconnut would last her family five or six years and that most of it would spoil before it was used up. Another case showing even worse perspective than this was one where a rural customer bought ten pounds of nutmegs, and in this case also more was paid than was charged for the same article in the home store.

NOT ALL POETRY.

The "back to the land" movement has much to commend it in the way of independence and good health for those who have been living in cramped quarters in a city flat with a 2 by 4 plot of ground in the front or rear, but none should think seriously of making the move who do not possess determination and both the willingness and ability for hard work. This being "back to the land" is no pipe dream or air castle business. Gold eagles are not plowed out of the ground and do not fall from low bending fruit trees, but come from the hardest kind of work, calloused hands, backaches and ravenous hunger. Some benefit is derived doubtless from a mere contemplation of an ideal pastoral life, but none should tackle the realities of it who are not willing to pay the price.

BERMUDA GRASS.

Bermuda grass is of southern origin and is extensively used in the latitude of Oklahoma, in sections where the rainfall is somewhat limited. The Oklahoma station, which has recently issued a bulletin on this grass, does not recommend growing it where alfalfa and similar crops can be grown. The grass does best on a sandy loam and is admirably adapted as a grass to prevent soil erosion and for a pasture on rough land not well suited to agriculture. Except in the southernmost parts of the country the grass does not mature seed and is best propagated by sowing the roots. The best time to do this is in the spring, and the general planting method followed with potatoes gives good results.

School Notes, from First Page

over that of the same date one year ago.

As the basketball season is about over, the Lincoln building will not be opened evenings after this week. A visit to this building or to any of the grade schools after four would discover to the visitor the fact that many of the teachers are busily engaged with backward and delinquent pupils until five and even until six o'clock every day. No teacher's work ceases at four.

It is stated that the authorities purpose taking steps to teach a few offenders that during school hours their places of business can not be made loitering places for children of school age. The most serious drawback to the progress of many of the boys is their inclination to "skip" and the opportunities offered them to carry out this purpose by interested persons down town. When a boy forms a habit of thus playing truant he usually becomes a failure in school, and amounts to little later in life.

The agricultural department of the high school, under the direction of Mr. Haskin, held meetings last week at the Copp and Christianson schools northwest of the city, at the Berg school on the telephone road, at the Sathre school southwest of town and at the Wright school twelve miles east. Messrs. McMillan and Hay assisted at some of these meetings.

Manager Jacobson of the Auditorium has received sufficient pledge to enable him to secure the famous state university band of eighty pieces for an entertainment in this city next month. This will be pleasing news to all music lovers and particularly to the friends and schoolmates of James Curran, Morlan Bishop and George Hicks, all of whom are in the cornet section of the band.

The North Central Teachers' Association of Minnesota which held its annual meeting recently at Bemidji, again chose that city for convention of 1913, believing that there was no other town in that section large enough to care for such a large gathering. Just what will happen to Thief River Falls when the Northwestern Minnesota Educational Acsociation convenes here next fall may be imagined when it is stated that the membership of the local organization is three times that of the eastern association. Thief River Falls will be compelled to entertain at least 750 strangers for three days.

All the schoolrooms observed the anniversary of the birth of Washington on Wednesday, either by programs or exercises appropriate to the occasion.

Next week the high school girls taking cooking will be classified in groups of two each, and given permission to prepare as complete a meal as possible for ten persons, the cost not to exceed one dollar. The two girls will sell ten tickets to ten of their friends and with the proceeds purchase the necessary supplies, prepare same for the table, set and arrange the table and wait on their guests. Detailed records will be preserved of the whole operation in note books. This is only one of the many practical and useful features of present day school work.

The old fashioned studies, so called, are not neglected in the high school courses. All students are compelled to take spelling regularly, and penmanship is also taught in high school as well as in the grades.

"Just a countryman—that's all," is the way the grower of this remarkable ear of corn, Mr. Fred C. Palin, styles himself. Though he is admitted to be one of the leading corn experts in the country—one whose services are greatly in demand as a judge of corn exhibits, Mr. Palin asks for no greater honor or distinction than to be known as a plain Hoosier farmer, and while he openly professes a reasonable pride in the achievement of growing the famous ear of corn which was adjudged the most perfect ever grown, it is without a shadow of ostentation.

Dimensions—Length, 10¼ inches. Circumference, 7¾ inches. Number of rows, 20. Length of kernels, ¾ of an inch. Width of kernels, about ⅜ of an inch. Thickness of kernels, 1-6 of an inch. Arrangement, very uniform, kernels running in straight rows the entire length of the ear without a misplaced grain, holding their length well to the ends of the ear, tip being well covered with dented grains. Weight, 20 ounces. Estimated proportions — corn, 92 per cent; cob, 8 per cent.

The champion ear of corn was not an accident. There can be no greater lesson in the value of careful study and painstaking selection of seed and breeding than the experiences of this same Palin. The farmer who thinks he stands a chance to go into his corn field and by a piece of luck pick out an ear which Nature has fashioned even more perfectly and with it wrest the honors from this Indiana man, cannot do better to disabuse his mind of this fallacious notion than to read the story of Palin and his champion ear.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE COUNTY OF PENNINGTON

NEARLY COMPLETED

Power Plant Nearly Ready for Use; One Engine is Now Ready to Run As Soon as Exhaust Pipe Arrives.

Thief River Falls People Can Well Be Proud of the New Electric Light Plant.

Thief River Falls people may well be proud of the new electric light plant, which is nearly ready to be operated. One of the large engines are all ready to be run as soon as the exhaust pipe arrives. The men who are supervising the putting in of the machinery state that it may be two days before it arrives and it may be ten days. They do not know definitely. The large storage oil tank is being placed at the east side of the building. The tank holds 20,000 gallons of oil.

A fine switch board is also being installed and is being connected up with the main lines which were put up on 2nd street by Pat Mahon and Ole Legvold. This work a few years ago was done by experts from the Twin Cities, but this time the honors belong to Mahon & Legvold.

This plant it is safe to say will be one of the finest in this part of the state, and when fully completed, there is no reason why Thief Riverites should not have all the light they may wish for. If at any time the river should rise, the water power plant could be used, which would enable the city to furnish power to outside towns.

The east part of the building will be used for the local Fire Department, and will be fitted up very conveniently for this purpose. A stall will be put in at the rear of the building for the fire team, which will be purchased in the near future.

When this light plant is in readiness, we will be assured of light both day and night, and people who wish to have lights put in will be able to have them.

Money for Dams.

The following items will be of great interest to the northern part of this state, being a dispatch taken from a Twin City daily of February 26 concerning appropriations for the improvement of waterways:

Warroad river and harbor, $3,200.

Duluth-Superior harbor, $15,000.

Surveys with a view to improvements in Minnesota are authorized as follows: Otter Tail river, Red Lake river and Red lake; Big Stone lake and Lake Traverse, and also a survey of the St. Croix river, from Prescott to Taylor's Falls.

March 1st State Day.

Friday, March 1, will be observed in the public schools throught the state as Minnesota day and while it will not be declared a holiday in Pennington county, appropriate exercises will be held in the various buildings to commemorate the date.

The last session of the legislature directed the state superintendent of schools to designate a day to the school children of the state to do honor to Minnesota and Supt. C. G. Schulz selected March 1, as it falls within the time of the passage of the act of congress creating the territory of Minnesota and the act admitting Minnesota to statehood.

The Thompson Sisters returned from the Twin Cities Tuesday morning, where they have just purchased their spring stock of Millinery. They also reported that they would have an up-to-date trimmer at their store on Main avenue in a few days.

SEATS GO FAST

Advance Sale of Tickets for the Hallowell Concert Breaks Record.

A record for an advance sale of tickets for Auditorium attractions has been broken in the number sold for the Hallowell concert, which will be given under the auspices of the Antlers Club in the Auditorium, Sunday, March 3rd. The committee which has charge of the sale reports that it has met with unexpected success. The reserved seats are being distributed at J. P. Curtis' drug store and, while a great many tickets have been sold, there is still a large number of select seats left. If you have a ticket, don't fail to exchange it for a reserved seat at the earliest possible opportunity, for the best are going fast.

Reports from other cities where the Hallowell players have been appearing laud the musicians with flattering press notices. It is assured that their concert here will be not inferior to those they have rendered elsewhere. The individual players are artists of undisputed reputation and they are capable of giving the theatre goers of this community the best musical offering to which they have ever been treated.

One of the features of the entertainment will be several solos by J. Lester Haberkorn, the wonderful baritone. Mr. Haberkorn is without question one of the leading soloists appearing before the public today. He has met with untold success on the entire tour of the company.

The Antlers Club will make every effort to afford all consistent favors in reserving seats for parties who wish to attend the concert in a body. It is necessary, however, to speak early in order to get the best reservation.

Basket Ball Games.

Arrangements have been made whereby the local High basket ball team will meet the Argyle team in a fast match tomorrow night, March 1st, at the Lincoln school gymnasium. This game promises to be the big feature of the season. Your support is needed by the boys. Turn out and give them a boost.

Tuesday evening the Plummer team came in contact with the Thief River Athletic team and were defeated by a score of 13 to 21. This was the third game these teams had played together, Plummer winning 1 and the Athletes 2, therefore the Athletes have the honor of claiming the championship.

Remembar the date of the Argyle game if you wish to see a real fast game of basket ball.

Commercial Club.

At an annual meeting of the Commercial Club recently held in the Auditorium the following officers were elected for the ensuing year.

W. B. Fuller, president.
E. M. Stanton, first vice president.
T. L. Melgaard, second vice president.
C. L. Hanson, treasurer.
N. J. Anderson, secretary.

Geo. Elder presented his park sketch, which he had drawn up some time ago. It was taken up by the Commercial Club. Mr. Elder offers this parcel of ground on very easy payments. Some action will no doubt be taken in the near future on this proposition.

Remember the Math Barzen auction sale. This will be the biggest sale of this nature ever held in Pennington County. The date of the sale is March 2nd, and it commences at 10:00 a. m. sharp.

James Havel returned from Erie Saturday. He had been working at [illegible] on the Eleven Towns for two weeks past.

A MASS MEETING

In Gymnasium Tomorrow Night to Discuss Matters of Vital Interest.

A large crowd of local athletes has for the past few days been enjoying the use of the Auditorium gymnasium. Most of the apparatus has now been installed and the rest, which includes a big wrestling mat, punching bag and racks for Indian clubs and dumb bells, will be put in in the near future.

At 7:00 o'clock tomorrow night a big mass meeting of all the members will be held in the gymnasium. It is hoped that every member will be on hand to give a little advice as to the running of the club. Subjects of vital interest to all will be brought up for discussion.

Any member who has not yet procured a key may do so at Curtis' Drug Store. Any of the people in town who have no tickets may join the club by paying the $1.00 initiation fee.

One thing of which the members must be careful is to keep off the floor with heavy shoes. No one will be permitted on the floor wearing other than light soled slippers or gymnasium shoes.

The Lyceum Bill.

Mark Edmonds and Marie True will appear at the Lyceum Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. Their hobby is singing, talking, dancing and eccentric entertainment. They work in one. They also introduce something a little different from anything that has ever appeared at the popular little show house.

Manager Morgan is also securing the best and most attractive films on the market and is showing an entire change of program each and every night. This is a pleasant and comfortable place to spend the evening.

Skaters, Attention

Saturday night, March 9th, the Mozark Roller Rink will be closed for the season, after which the building will be used by the Langseth Mercantile Co. to dispose of their $25,000 stock of General Merchandise.

A Moral Entertainment.

The Sights Theater Company filled a three weeks' engagement at the Devils Lake Chautauqua Assembly, giving, without repetition, two performances each day. We have an auditorium seating 4,000 people and that was practically filled every time the company appeared. That means greater praise than any word from me. The members of the company are cultured ladies and gentlemen. To know Mr. and Mrs. Sights is to know they would carry none other in their company.—Rev. Geo. Hindley, D. D., Supt. Devils Lake Chautauqua, 1909.

At the Auditorium 3 nights, starting Thursday, March 7.

ST. HILAIRE.

ANOTHER VICTORY

Thief River High School Basketball Five Defeated Argyle By a Close Score.

February 22nd, the Thief River High School basket ball team took the Wheat Line train for Argyle, where they played a game with the high school. The Argyle team was defeated by a close score of 24 to 21. At the end of the first half the score stood 7 to 6 in favor of Thief River. During the second half both teams played fast, the team work being very good on both sides. The Argyle team was defeated by the Agricultural College of Crookston a few week ago, and our boys defeated them by a score of 38 to 25.

The last game of the season will be played with Ada, sometime next month. This game will decide the championship of this part of the state.

Oil Pull School.

The M. Rumley Co. will establish at Thief River Falls, Minnesota, beginning Mar. 4th 1912 and ending Mar. 14, 1912, a complete and uptodate school of gas traction engineering.

The school will be free. For particulars inquire of C. Gustafson and Son.

Washington's Birthday Entertainment

Mrs. Haskins gave a very pretty luncheon to her many lady friends last Thursday afternoon at her home on North La Bree avenue. This day being the anniversary of Washington's birthday the decorations and favors were in red, white and blue. Those present report a very enjoyable time.

Rural School Notes.

Allow me to call the attention of the teachers to the fact that March 1st is designated by the Department of Public Instruction as "Minnesota Day." A neat little pamphlet has been issued for this occasion. It comes to hand rather late and it has been distributed to the schools as far as the supply lasted. I hope that the teachers will get it so as to get some help for the day designated.

SUNBEAM

From the Sunbeam

C. L. Clark left for the Warren hospital Monday, where he will have an operation performed for rupture.

Henry Arndt is busy hustling the lumber home from Oklee for his new barn, which he will build this spring.

Edward Hyland hauled a load of loose hay down to Thief River Falls Monday for Superintendent of Schools Mostue.

Our Highlanding merchants are putting in large and well selected stock of goods, so as to be ready for the spring trade when they have bad roads to contend with.

Wm. Swanson and C. Waldron drove down to Thief River Falls on Wednesday, where Mrs. Waldron, mother of Mr. Waldron, filed on a quarter of vacant government land in the township of Hickory.

If the lumber companies want to hear what the Highlanding farmers' opinion of them is, they should send a man up to listen to the language of the patrons of the Highlanding creamery when they are hauling ice from the Clearwater river to fill up their ice house.

Ye editor drove down to Kratka and visited with our old friends, Chas. Enquist and Edward Singer. Postmaster Stephen Singer now has the Kratka postoffice fixed up in a fine building where the large amount of mail that goes through that office can receive proper attention.

BAGLEY HAS FIRE

Both Independent and Herald Newspaper Plants Were Burned. Loss, $30,000.

Bagley suffered a very severe fire last week, the total loss being estimated at between $30,000 and $40,000. The fire started in the rear of a meat market and destroyed the Independent and Herald newspaper plants, the post office, City Restaurant, and Diemer building.

The further spread of the flames was stopped by a brick fire wall 18 feet high, which was constructed about two years ago between two lots for the purpose of getting a 2½ per cent reduction in insurance rates, thus saving the Bagley Mercantile Co. Store and the balance of the business district.

The loss was partially covered by insurance, but in several instances comparatively little insurance was carried.—Crookston Times.

Farmers Meeting

The purpose of the Putman School according to the bill passed by the legislative is two folds, first, to establish an agriculture center at the various High Schools and second to carry the work of the college of argriculture at St. Anthony Park out into the country, making it sort of co-operative among the farmers and the High School Agricultural department.

The object of this meeting then, is to introduce and exchange ideas and suggestions, that may be of some help during this coming season. The program of the Farmers' meeting to be held at various school houses during the week of March 11th to 16th, is as follows:

Poultry on the farm—Prof. Chapman, State Agricultural College.

An acre of corn—W. A. Haskin, Thief River Falls.

Profits in Poultry—Prof. Chapman.

Prof. Chapman is considered the highest authority in Minnesota on poultry. He has succeeded in organizing poultry associations in various parts of the state and has been instrumental in securing for poultry raisers greater returns from their hens. He is employed during the summer months by the State Dairy and Food Commission and there exerts great influence in the marketing of poultry products. All farmers and particularly farmers wives can scarcely afford to miss hearing this well known expert.

SCHOOL NOTES

Annie Haugen, one of the normal training department students, was operated on last week for appendicitis at the Warren hospital. She is recovering satisfactorily, as is Carl Nelson, who underwent a similar experience at the same institution a week ago.

The manual training students are turning out much useful material this winter from their department. As in history, science and other studies, a foundation must be laid and first principles learned in this work before satisfactory progress can be accomplished later. This has been done in manual training and now nearly all the boys are constructing various articles for use at home of which they need not be ashamed.

Next week, Mr. Chapman, the poultry expert from the agricultural college at St. Anthony Park, will assist Mr. Haskin with the extension work among the rural schools. On some evening of the week a meeting, which will be announced with particulars later, will be held in the high school assembly hall for residents of the city. Mr. Chapman is the gentleman who has organized so many egg associations throughout the state and is considered the highest authority in the Northwest on matters pertaining to poultry.

ADOPTED RESOLUTION

No Teacher Holding First Grade Certificate Can Be Employed

In High and Graded Schools After 1914--Normal Training Dept. Cannot Supply Demand.

The state high school board last week adopted a resolution whereby no teachers holding first grade certificates can be employed in high and graded schools after 1914. Recently the state normal board announced that elementary diplomas, received from state normals would be valid but two years following their issue and could not be renewed. These two actions will seriously curtail the number of available teachers without providing any means for renewing the supply. No doubt they find their origin among the authorities of the powerful normal schools who are continually securing to themselves the certification of teachers in Minnesota. The mature successful first grade teachers, such as are found in some of the school rooms in this city, have fought their way to the front by hard and earnest effort and are considered by all practical educators the equal to, if not the superior of, inexperienced normal graduates. This new ruling will lose to the state the services of a large part of these valuable instructors. The facts are that the five state normals are simply unable to turn out half the professionally trained teachers called for. Two of them last year notified the public that they were overcrowded and could not enroll more students and, generally speaking, their enrollment was purely local, as a glance at their bulletins would prove. In the fight of three years ago for a sixth state normal for northern Minnesota, these schools stood aloof and showed no disposition to assist a worthy cause, but worked hard for large appropriations for the extension of their own plants. Neither can the normal training departments in the high-schools supply the demand, as the state high school board again placed a rule in operation last fall which prohibits more than twenty students enrolling in one of these departments in any high school. In September last over forty eligible students requested to be enrolled in the Thief River Falls training school and, of course, under the ruling of the board not over twenty could be permitted to enter the normal department. Three years ago the startling discovery was made that only four per cent of the teachers in northwestern Minnesota had any normal preparation, and this included the town teachers. Today the condition is not much better. In the face of all these limitations and realizing that 3,000 of the 15,000 teachers in Minnesota leave the profession yearly, nothing less than two state normals for northern Minnesota will satisfy the immediate needs of the schools, to say nothing of the near future, when some of the latest rulings of the state board become effective. Three years ago this upper part of the state would have been satisfied with one state normal, but under present conditions at least two will be required to remedy the situation.—From School Notes.

It is quite clear that a heavy blanket of snow proved the salvation of many fruit trees when the mercury in practically all of the northern states went to 35 below zero the second or third week in January. Had the ground been bare it is more than likely that the damage would have been extensive.

The widespread recent cold wave seems to have covered not only the states east of the Rockies, but the mountain and Pacific coast states as well and extended down into the orange districts in southern California, where much damage was done not only to fruit on the trees, but to young trees themselves.

One of the most delicious beverages the writer has ever tasted is some sweetened wild grape juice that his good wife canned last fall. It possesses a flavor that seems to be far superior to the juice of the tame grapes. The juice fresh from the can is diluted by the addition of an equal amount of water.

A lady friend claims the first hatch of chicks for the present year, one of her Langshan Biddies having brought off eight chicks on New Year's day. In view of the fact that these little fellows met with 30 below zero weather before they were two weeks old, they are probably of the opinion that they have been given a somewhat chilly reception.

From Oregon City, Ore., is reported an unusual farm tragedy, in which it seems that a ranchman was kicked on the head by a horse as he was passing the animal's stall and killed. Being alone, the man's disappearance was not noticed for some time, and when neighbors investigated not only the horse that kicked him, but two cows in adjoining stalls, had starved to death.

Balky horses seem to have an individuality, just like folks, and a rule that will work with one may not with another. Brutal treatment seldom tends to fetch a horse out of its balk; neither does a loss of self control on the part of the driver. Sometimes ignoring the fit the animal is having and pretending to fix the harness or rapping on the animal's foot with a stone will cause it to forget the recent unpleasantness.

A farmer living near Milwaukee, Wis., claims that he has been able to increase the milk flow of his herd of seventy-two blooded dairy cows two quarts per day as a result of having a phonograph played in the dairy barn at milking time. He says the cows were soothed by the music and as a result let down all their milk. Waltz music seemed to give the best results, while ragtime was worse than no music at all. Next!

An interesting addition is to be made to the already practical lines of work at present being carried on by Booker T. Washington's Tuskegee institute in the shape of a plant for the breeding of standard bred trotting horses. A $2,000 stallion has been presented to Mr. Washington by a Kentucky breeder, while other breeders have promised to provide several standard bred mares, which will form the nucleus of the breeding establishment.

Some one has figured it out that if the amount required to meet the expense of maintaining our military establishment for a month—$10,000,000—were devoted to the cause of a better agriculture it would make possible the hiring of an agricultural expert in every county in every state in the Union for the period of a full year. It is well nigh impossible to estimate the beneficial results that would flow from such an investment.

A line of standard gauge railway has lately been constructed across the Andes mountains in South America, connecting the countries of Argentina and Chile. Near where the road crosses the continental divide it passes through a tunnel 9,906 feet long and at an altitude of 10,500 feet, while at La Cumbre the road climbs to an altitude of 10,057 feet, which is in the neighborhood of 7,000 feet higher than the highest point reached by any of our transcontinental roads.

Applying the tuberculin test to the dairy herds connected with the institution for the unfortunate in several states within the past few years has in some cases revealed a serious condition of the cows as a result of tuberculosis infection. It would seem to be enough of a misfortune to be confined in an institution for the blind, incorrigible or feeble minded without having to suffer the further handicap of using milk from tuberculous cows. From the standpoint of humanity alone it would seem as if these charges of the state ought to be spared this further misfortune.

A rather unique method of improving a snow roadbed was tried the other day near the writer's north Iowa home. Snow had fallen deep, and the road was full of chuck holes. A couple of farmers hit upon the idea of using a plow on them to see what effect it would have. Accordingly the beam of an ordinary stirring plow was firmly fastened to the rear of a bobsled so that it would keep in an upright position. A furrow was thrown out on the way to town and another on the return trip, while especially deep portions were given several plowings. The treatment seemed to help the road a good deal, and the only drawback urged against it is that when light snow is moving with the wind the deeper cuts fill up quickly.

SWEDISH WOMAN'S NOVEL IDEA

Organizes Singing Club Among Her Domestics and Their Friends—Government Ownership in Scandinavian Countries Praised by United States Senator—Member of Faculty of Copenhagen University Visits the Twin Cities.

SWEDEN.

Mme. Alice Tegner, a prominent resident of the charming villa community of Djursholm, near Stockholm, has started a new idea for dealing with the household question. To make life brighter for her maids she has organized a singing club for them and their friends. In the first instance she intended only to gather the domestic songstresses once a month, but the idea was taken up with such enthusiasm and there were so many good voices available that Mme. Tegner has induced her fellow mistresses to allow their help to gather once a fortnight. The new movement has given pleasure to all concerned and some say it will lead to the discovery of a fresh Swedish nightingale. There are still many charming voices, they point out, in the land of Jenny Lind and Christina Nilsson. While the good cause is progressing there are hundreds of householders with private doubts about the enterprise, for every two weeks there are no maids to answer calls and every day the kitchens ring with budding Tetrazzinis practicing their scales.

H. Reuterdal, a Swedish artist residing in New York city, has again come into the limelight and succeeded in creating quite a stir by trying to prove that the navy of the United States is highly defective in many respects. About two years ago Reuterdal wrote an exceedingly sensational article regarding the Swedish navy for which he was severely censured, but it was afterwards proven that there was an element of truth in some of his contentions. Reuterdal somehow has the regard of a great many of the naval officers at Washington in spite of his rather severe array of the defects of the American navy.

Anders Zorn, the famous Swedish portrait painter, and Sven Kjellstrom had a narrow escape from death while returning to Mr. Zorn's home in Mora the other evening. They were about to cross the track near Mora and, it being dark, did not see the approaching train rounding a curve. They succeeded in pulling back their spirited horse just in time, but came very near being run over. Mr. Zorn afterwards stated that it was the most miraculous escape that he had ever experienced and he has traveled in nearly every civilized country on the globe.

Friends and admirers of the Swedish author, August Strindberg, will be glad to learn that the latest dispatches from Sweden state that he is on the road to recovery from his recent severe illness. Never in the history of the country has there been such a marked increase in Swedish exports as during the past twelve months, says the Statistisk Tidskrift. Since 1909 it has increased from 616,000,000 to 671,000,000 crowns. Imports have also increased at a marvelous rate, showing a gain of over 120,000,000 crowns in less than a year and a half.

POLITICAL NEWS.

Gifford Pinchot, in a signed statement, announces that he has withdrawn his support from Senator La Follette's presidential candidacy and that he will hereafter advocate the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt. Mr. Pinchot declares that the events of the past month have made it apparent that Senator La Follette's candidacy will neither hold the progressive Republicans together as a fighting force nor prevent the nomination of a "reactionary Republican."

At a meeting of the Republican congressional committee Representative Burke of South Dakota, vice chairman of the organization, was named temporary chairman. This was done at the request of Representative McKinley, the chairman, who, having taken charge of the Taft movement, desired to be relieved of his duties until after the Chicago convention.

"I have received a letter from the eight governors, sent to me from Chicago, asking if I would accept the presidential nomination," said Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, "and am giving it my careful consideration. I shall reply to it within a short time, probably within a week. Until that time I can say nothing on the subject."

Governor Woodrow Wilson "fired the opening gun" in his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination in the Central states in an address before the Iroquois club at Chicago by reiterating his belief in the initiative and referendum and predicting Democratic victory at the polls in November.

The Georgia Republican state convention, in session at Atlanta, endorsed the administration of President Taft and instructed its delegates to the Chicago convention to cast their votes for his renomination.

Former President Roosevelt had a long talk with United States Senator Moses E. Clapp of Minnesota, one of the original La Follette supporters.

Forty-six members of the crews and passengers were drowned by the sinking of two Japanese steamers, the Ryohu Maru and the Mori Maru, which collided in the harbor at Nagasaki, Japan.

A reign of terror exists in the Borinage district of Belgium, where the striking coal miners continue their looting and rioting in defiance of troops sent to quell the disorders.

Lady Goschen, the wife of Sir William Edward Goschen, British ambassador at Berlin, is dead. Lady Goschen was a daughter of Darius Clarke of Philadelphia.

A large number of fatalities was caused by a fire in one of the pits of a mine at Antonienhuette, Prussian Silesia.

FARM ORCHARD AND GARDEN

CENTRAL POINT ROGUE RIVER VALLEY OREGON

CORRESPONDENCE SOLICITED

[This matter must not be reprinted without special permission.]

It is the corn in the ration of the laying hens that gives the yellow yolked eggs.

Quite often the worst stretches of the country highway during the winter months are caused by the roadside weeds that were left standing and served to catch the drifting snow.

Between the heavy ice bills of an unusually hot summer last year and the coal bills which are mounting up this severe winter the purses of many by the time spring comes will have a "lean and hungry" look.

Often a man's attitude toward the public is in no other way more accurately shown than in his disposition to keep the snow shoveled off that portion of the walks bordering his place which he himself seldom uses.

It is generally agreed now by medical authorities that the contraction of colds of one type and another is more often due to the breathing of bad air and to overheating than to the mere exposure of oneself to fresh air out of doors.

To those who are sitting up nights trying to keep their potatoes and other vegetables from freezing the suggestion is made that they place a tub of water on the cellar floor. The water, being very susceptible, will tend to draw the frost first.

In an article in this department a short time since, under the caption "An Illinois Inquiry," reference was made to the price at which good dairy cows could be purchased. In print the range given was from $50 to $20 when it should have been from "$50 to $120."

Boiling exactly three minutes makes an egg medium soft and about right for most folks who relish a soft egg at all. The same result is obtained by putting an egg in a pint of boiling water and setting the dish off the stove and allowing the egg to remain in the water ten minutes.

A corn belt boy, fifteen years old, of whom we read an account the other day, raised ninety-seven and a half bushels of corn per acre in a competitive contest last year at a cost of 14 2-3 cents per bushel. It is questionable if this lad's father was raising fifty bushels per acre before the youngster got interested in "better corn."

Not only does the white heron fall a victim of wanton slaughter at nesting time to gratify the whim of thoughtless women, who care a great deal more for adorning their bodies than they do of cultivating their hearts and minds, but also the crested grebes, which are slaughtered wantonly to furnish decorations for women's hats. In one way the slaughter of the grebes is worse in that it takes a greater number of victims to provide a given decoration.

It has been the writer's experience that more damage is done by rabbits to orchard trees during February than any other month of the winter. It is usually the month of deepest snow, while the rabbits have lost most of their reserve flesh put on during the fall and are almost completely barred from their usual sources of food supply. If the smaller trees have not been provided with protectors of some kind a sharp lookout should be kept to guard against damage being done in this way.

Thirty thousand pheasant eggs and 5,000 pheasants are to be distributed to farmers and sportsmen free during the present season from the state game farm in Sherburne, N. Y. Eggs or birds will be sent only to those from whom applications are received. The eggs will be distributed beginning in April, from fifteen to eighteen eggs being included in the sitting. The eggs are hatched under common hens, and the little pheasants are hardy and seem to thrive under the conditions found on the average farm.

While there may be some disadvantages in the case of the person who seems to think that the things he possesses are quite a bit finer than anybody else's, he is still several degrees better off than the fellow who is always discontented with his own achievements or possessions and who is jumping from this thing to that continuously, with the idea that the new thing will please him more or bring him better financial returns. A happy mean would seem to lie somewhere between these two types—that is, a reasonable satisfaction with what one does or has, but at the same time an intelligent watchfulness to improve his condition.

It is quite clear that a heavy blanket of snow proved the salvation of many fruit trees when the mercury in practically all of the northern states went to 35 below zero the second or third week in January. Had the ground been bare it is more than likely that the damage would have been extensive.

An interesting addition is to be made to the already practical lines of work at present being carried on by Booker T. Washington's Tuskegee institute in the shape of a plant for the breeding of standard bred trotting horses. A $2,000 stallion has been presented to Mr. Washington by a Kentucky breeder, while other breeders have promised to provide several standard bred mares, which will form the nucleus of the breeding establishment.

A rather unique method of improving a snow roadbed was tried the other day near the writer's north Iowa home. Snow had fallen deep, and the road was full of chuck holes. A couple of farmers hit upon the idea of using a plow on them to see what effect it would have. Accordingly the beam of an ordinary stirring plow was firmly fastened to the rear of a bobsled so that it would keep in an upright position. A furrow was thrown out on the way to town and another on the return trip, while especially deep portions were given several plowings. The treatment seemed to help the road a good deal, and the only drawback urged against it is that when light snow is moving with the wind the deeper cuts fill up quickly.

AGAINST THE BREECHING.

Most everywhere you will run across a class of people—usually men, because they are engaged in collective business undertakings more than women—who always ride in the march of progress, or, to raise the figure a little by a more forceful phrase, are usually against the breeching and mighty seldom in the collar doing straight pulling. Especially does this disposition crop out in case of new enterprises that are started in the community having in view the general welfare of the people living therein. When invited to take hold and give enterprises of this character a boost they remark, "Oh, I'll wait awhile," or "I'll wait and see if the thing pans out." Perhaps such an attitude is commendable when assumed toward decidedly risky propositions, but in many cases it is an evidence of mere stinginess or lack of good red blood. Such folk forget that whatever progress the world has made, not only in material but along other lines, has been made not by the aid of this type, but with the handicap of their either riding and letting some one else furnish motor power or backing up in the breeching.

IN RESTRAINT OF TRADE.

Those who are interested in the welfare of farmers' co-operative societies are watching with much interest the outcome of suits which have been brought against some of these societies of late. In one instance in Iowa the supreme court ruled that the provision of a company's bylaws which required that for every pound of pork which a member of the company sold to a competing firm he should pay a certain per cent to the parent company was a plain violation of the anti-trust law. More recently, after the company's bylaws have been so altered as to eliminate this feature, suit has been made to dissolve the company because its bylaws required all members of the society to trade with the society and no one else. It is contended by the party bringing the second suit that this proviso also is in plain violation of the anti-trust law.

"BAD ORDER" REBATES.

While the old system of direct rebates has been done away with, there seems to be another which is to some extent being used in its place. From one who is engaged in the express business the writer learns that many shippers and merchants are able to get quite as much in the shape of "bad order" claims as they were ever granted under the old system. Not only do such shippers make such claims when there is little or no ground for them, but the claims are paid at once, while with the claim that is honestly made by the person who ships produce only occasionally it is held up often for months, in some cases years. If this "bad order" rebate practice is general, and there is reason for believing it is, it would seem to deserve the careful investigation of state railway commissioners.

TEN POUNDS OF NUTMEGS.

Many a farmer or his good wife often miss it by ordering supplies of the peddler or of the catalogue house when just as good or a better grade of product could be secured from the home dealer. A case was reported to the writer the other day in which a farmer's wife ordered twenty pounds of cocoanut and paid 8 cents a pound more for it than was regularly charged by the home dealer. The good woman evidently did not realize that twenty pounds of cocoanut would last her family five or six years and that most of it would spoil before it was used up. Another case showing even worse perspective than this was one where a rural customer bought ten pounds of nutmegs, and in this case also more was paid than was charged for the same article in the home store.

NOT ALL POETRY.

The "back to the land" movement has much to commend it in the way of independence and good health for those who have been living in cramped quarters in a city flat with a 2 by 4 plot of ground in the front or rear, but none should think seriously of making the move who do not possess determination and both the willingness and ability for hard work. [illegible] being "back to the land" is no pipe dream or air castle business. Gold eagles are not plowed out of the ground and do not fall from low bending fruit trees, but come from the hardest kind of work, calloused hands, backaches and ravenous hunger. Some benefit is derived doubtless from a mere contemplation of an ideal pastoral life, but none should tackle the realities of it who are not willing to pay the price.

BERMUDA GRASS.

Bermuda grass is of southern origin and is extensively used in the latitude of Oklahoma, in sections where the rainfall is somewhat limited. The Oklahoma station, which has recently issued a bulletin on this grass, does not recommend growing it where alfalfa and similar crops can be grown. The grass does best on a sandy loam and is admirably adapted as a grass to prevent soil erosion and for a pasture on rough land not well suited to agriculture. Except in the southernmost parts of the country the grass does not mature seed and is best propagated by setting the roots. The best time to do this is in the spring, and the general planting method followed with potatoes gives good results.

SUNBEAM'S SUNSHINY SILLINESS.

FROM THE SUNBEAM.

We are having fine sunshiney weather at present and extend our sypthy to Okla. who are in the grip of a blizzard.

A cheery "Good morning" often sends a ray of sunshine streaming through the innermost recesses of a household, resting there all the livelong day, and again follows hastening footsteps into the mart of business, lighting up and brightening "the way of the world" as it goes. A hearty "Good night" often soothes many a troubled mind to rest, and heals the wounds which have either come anew to a struggling soul, or been reopened by the harsh words or deeds that are spoken or done in season or out of season as the daily battle of our life progresses.—Erskine Echo.

William J. Bryan, discussing the prospect of Colonel Roosevelt's nomination, says: "I believe when a party has only one man in it fit to be president, it would be better to bury the party and start all over again." Colonel Bryan probably realizes that there were at least three occasions when the Democratic party could produce only one man. Maybe he considers that his party, having been thoroughly buried, should start all over again and for that reason announces that he will not be a candidate.—Ex.

ABOUT THE STATE

News of Especial Interest to Minnesota Readers.

FINDS CASHIER NOT GUILTY

Minneapolis Jury Acquits Joseph D. Bren, Accused of Embezzling University Funds.

Joseph D. Bren is not guilty of embezzling state university funds. It took the jury at Minneapolis which tried the former University of Minnesota cashier and assistant treasurer three hours and fifteen minutes to arrive at its decision.

Bren still has four indictments standing against him and County Attorney James Robertson says he will proceed against him under one of these.

The first intimation of anything unusual regarding the treasury of the University of Minnesota came about noon of June 2, 1911, when Mr. Bren burst into his offices proclaiming he had been robbed of a little more than $13,000 by highwaymen on the campus. His arrest followed and the police denied his robbery story. Four indictments, each charging grand larceny, were returned against him.

Examination of his books showed them to be in a chaotic condition and Dec. 19 the grand jury indicted him again, this time on a charge of misappropriating university funds.

BADEN-POWELL IN ST. PAUL

Founder of Boy Scout Movement Has Strenuous Day.

Sir Robert Baden-Powell, founder of the Boy Scout movement, who arrived in St. Paul from St. Louis, spent two hours in bed, being a man who can "drop off" any time, and then spoke at an Association of Commerce luncheon at noon.

In the afternoon Sir Robert inspected several hundred Boy Scouts in the Armory, witnessed and praised their exhibition of Scout activities, pinned on the coat of Scout Joe Fendel of St. Paul a bronze medal for saving two human lives, talked to the Scouts "straight from the shoulder" and then spent half an hour in conference with scout masters—the men who have charge of the boys' troops.

In Minneapolis Sir Robert delivered an illustrated lecture on scouting at the auditorium.

INDIAN PROBE AT AN END

White Earth Investigators Return to Washington.

Congressmen Graham of Illinois and George of New York, who have been conducting the investigation in Minnesota for the past month of conditions on the White Earth Indian reservation, have returned to Washington.

Additional evidence will be taken there on hearings in March. The last Minnesota hearing was held in Minneapolis. Both congressmen severely criticised the Steenerson act and the Clapp amendment, which they charge were responsible for the Indians being in the condition in which they were found.

INDIAN ACCUSED OF MURDER

Chief Long-ga-ge-shij Charged With Slaying Wife.

Murder in the first degree is the charge which Chief Long-ga-ge-shij, the Cass Lake Chippewa, faces as a result of the death of his wife some days ago.

A coroner's jury at Bemidji returned a verdict that the woman had come to her death by blows administered by the chief.

The accused Indian insists that his squaw fell from the sleigh on the way home and that as she could not get back in he threw her a blanket and went on his way "because it was so cold."

FOR LOVE OF CHORUS GIRL

Minneapolis Traveling Man Ends Life in Cleveland.

Henry F. Carnot, forty-four years of age, a Minneapolis traveling man, committed suicide in a cafe at Cleveland by drinking carbolic acid because of the refusal of Miss Eleanor Diehl, member of the Broadway Gaiety Girls' chorus, to marry him.

Carnot once before, in a Milwaukee hotel, tried to kill himself by gas when the company was playing in that city. He left a letter on this occasion saying that the girl had refused to marry him and consequently he wanted to die.

SOCIALISTS ASSAIL PASTOR

Mill City Religious Worker Mobbed at Duluth.

Shouts of defiance by a large number of Socialists marked the close of a religious service in a Duluth theater. Dr. W. B. Riley of Minneapolis, who has been conducting meetings there in connection with the Men and Religion movement, had criticised Socialists roundly and they challenged him to debate.

He ignored them and left the theater. Several followed him down the street, gesticulating and talking loudly.

SENDS TAFT ENDORSEMENT

Governor Eberhart of Minnesota for the President.

Governor Eberhart, in a telegram to W. B. McKinley, director of the Taft Washington bureau, has officially endorsed President Taft, and his message, with that of many other Republican governors, will be published as an antidote to the Roosevelt demonstration of Western governors. Governor Eberhart's endorsement follows.

"President Taft's administration, measured by all standards of accomplishments and fidelity to duty, entitles him to the endorsement of a second term, which I firmly believe the inherent sense of fairness and justice of the American people will ungrudgingly give him."

This wire was sent Feb. 20, before the request of Secretary Hilles was received asking for an endorsement for publication. Ralph W. Wheelock wired Mr. Hilles, referring him to the answer sent to Congressman McKinley.

HOW MINNESOTANS LINE UP

Most of Congressional Delegation Are for Roosevelt.

In the stress of political circumstances following the announcement of Roosevelt's candidacy for the presidential nomination it became apparent through public and private statements that six of the ten Republican representatives of Minnesota in congress were for Roosevelt.

Senator Clapp headed the Roosevelt adherents. He unequivocally declared himself for the former president. With him were Representatives Davis, Anderson, Steenerson, Miller and Lindbergh. Representatives Stevens and Nye announced themselves for Mr. Taft, while Senator Nelson and Representative Volstead declined to commit themselves.

NEARLY BURIED LIVE TOT

Child Supposed to Have Been Drowned Alive in Coffin.

After being prepared for burial and apparently dead for two days, the three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Maholechek of Duluth was discovered to be alive as the burial service was being held.

The child had fallen in a bucket of water and was supposed to have been drowned.

Socialist Mayor at Bemidji.

The Socialists won a victory in the city election at Bemidji, electing Fred M. Malzahn mayor over William McQuaig by twenty-four votes. There were two other candidates for the office.

BURGLARS MAKE RICH HAUL

Get $14,000 in Gems in New York's Jewelry District.

New York, Feb. 25.—The Maiden Lane jewelry district is alarmed over the announcement of another diamond robbery in the heart of that supposedly burglar proof section of the city. Despite the watchfulness of the police and numerous private detectives who are constantly on guard there the robbers gained entrance to the vaults of the building at 49 Maiden Lane and walked away with a handful of gems valued at $14,000 from the safe of Emanuel S. Rose, wholesale jeweler.

The burglars worked quickly and skillfully. They were compelled to use an explosive in getting into Rose's private safe, but no one has been found who heard the muffled explosion, or suspected that anything was wrong.

DEMOCRATS WILL LOOK ON

Bryan Says Colonel Has Precipitated an Interesting Fight.

Ogden, Utah, Feb. 27.—In an interview given immediately after his arrival in Ogden William J. Bryan, who came here to speak before an Ogden audience, commenting on Theodore Roosevelt's declaration of his candidacy, said:

"The announcement of Mr. Roosevelt's candidacy for president is news that is news, except that it was foreshadowed by his speech at Columbus, O., and by an Outlook editorial on a 'Third Cup of Coffee.'"

Mr. Bryan added it would be an interesting fight which the Democrats would watch intently.

BRYAN WILL NOT MAKE RACE

Satisfied Some One Else Can Poll More Votes.

Denver, Feb. 25.—William J. Bryan, in a speech here, set at rest reports that he might be induced again to make the race for the presidency. In concluding he said:

"I am satisfied that some one else can poll more votes than myself, but I am ready to enter upon a campaign on behalf of a true Democrat with even more vigor than that with which I have fought at any time on my own behalf."

MICHIGAN IS FOR COLONEL

Governor Osborn Says Republicans Will Nominate Roosevelt.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 27.—"The statement of Theodore Roosevelt rings true. It is just like him," said Governor Chase S. Osborn in a signed statement.

"If the Republican party has not lost its sense completely and its interest in the masses and it has not, it will nominate Theodore Roosevelt. Michigan sentiment is for him three to one."

Duffy, cashier of the Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls, was the successful bidder. His bid on the $87,700 worth of ditch bonds was accepted. The transaction has recently been completed. John Gustafson had the misfortune to be bitten by a dog last Sunday morning. The dog was hitched to a sled in front of the bakery and when John came by it grabbed at him and tore a gash in his leg about an inch long and one-half inch deep. John is now under the doctor's care. This same dog has bitten several other persons, but not seriously. It would no doubt be a splendid thing if the dog was killed.

The Iverson boys are busy hauling their household goods to the Henry Johnson farm, south of Erie, which they recently purchased. They expect to get settled in their new home in two or three weeks.

With the Red Lake river in its present condition, it will be a wonder if all the people living along its banks are not sick when the ice breaks up. Every possible precaution should be taken and the water from the river should not be used in the house for any purpose and even the milch cows should not be allowed to drink it.

The basket social and dance at Baird's hall last Friday evening was well attended and with fine weather and good music, everything bid fair for an enjoyable evening, but it wound up in a disgraceful fight. It is about time to cut them out entirely or else notify the hot bloods their presence is not wanted.

The speaking in District No. 59 last week Tuesday was not very well attended owing to the speaker not putting in an appearance until 8 o'clock. Although the speaker claims to own 240 acres of good land near Grygla and is very much interested in the cause of Socialism, he proved that he, like politicians of other parties, was working for the money there was in it by passing the hat for contributions after being well taken care of by the farmers, claiming that he could not do the work for nothing. From what we can learn, the cause of Socialism was not advanced any by his appearance in Star.

BETCHER LOSES

To L. Curtis, of Halstad, in a Real Fast Match at the Lyceum Tuesday Night.

Al. Betcher met defeat at the Lyceum Theatre Tuesday night at the hands of L. Curtis, of Halstad, in one of the fastest wrestling matches ever witnessed by the local enthusiasts. Before a large crowded house Al. Betcher showed the local sports that he was capable of giving his clever opponent a good rub for his money, which Curtis admitted he did.

The first fall of this fast match was won by Curtis in 16 minutes and 30 seconds, the holds used in this fall being the scissors and bar arm.

Betcher captured the second fall in 18 minutes and 10 seconds, using a head scissor and hammerlock.

Curtis secured the last fall in 40 minutes and 25 seconds by using a scissors and half Nelson.

This was the best match ever witnessed by the local enthusiasts and every one who attended was at several instants spellbound by the clever work of the wrestlers. The men showed great strength and science, and everybody expressed himself as being highly pleased with the match.

Prospects are very good for the coming of some big matches by men who have established reputations. Watch for dates of the next big match.

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

Robert C. Dunn of Princeton has prepared a highway measure which he purposes to present to the legislature in 1913 as a substitute for the present Elwell law, which Mr. Dunn publicly has attacked as impracticable and unconstitutional. One of the main objections to the Elwell act, as far as Mr. Dunn is concerned, is the provision for assessing one-fourth the expense of constructing a state highway upon the land within three miles of the road.

The great seal of the state will hereafter appear only on official documents and may not be used on subscription papers, petitions and other private papers. Persons interested in raising subscriptions for various purposes have discovered the magic power of the great seal of the state and have made such a free use of it that Ralph W. Wheelock, its custodian in the governor's office, has prohibited the practice.

Elimination of annual waste, estimated at $500,000, due to antiquated methods of marketing Minnesota's fruit production, will be the purpose of the Minnesota Fruit association, final organization of which will be completed March 11 at a big meeting of growers at the university farm, St. Anthony Park.

The fiftieth anniversary of the Sioux Indian uprising and massacre and the attack on and defense of New Ulm is to be celebrated at New Ulm the latter part of August and may continue for several days. It will commemorate one of the most stirring events in the history of Minnesota.

A raise of $5 a month in the minimum pay allowed Minnesota school teachers was announced by State Superintendent Schultz. Beginning with the next school year the minimum will be $45.

Crazed with the pain of a frozen foot Andrew Hiltinen, a settler at Pike River, about seven miles from Tower, chopped off half the foot with an ax and he may lose his life as a result.

Sylvanus L. Heeter, superintendent St. Paul public schools since 1906, has been chosen superintendent of the schools of Greater Pittsburg at a salary of $9,000 a year.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

Albert F. McDonald, eighty-eight years old, a resident of Minneapolis since 1867 and one of the first to respond to a call for volunteers by President Abraham Lincoln at the outbreak of the Civil war, is dead at Minneapolis. Mr. McDonald was born March 24, 1824, in Gorham, Me., his parents being descendants of a family prominent in the revolution. He had retired from active business many years ago.

Elef Lien, residing near Delavan, is dead. He was seventy-one years old. Lien was an early settler in Blue Earth and Faribault counties and served with the troops that were raised to fight the Sioux Indians in 1862. He was one of the guards at the execution of thirty-eight of the Indians at Mankato.

Former Senator J. E. C. Robinson of St. Cloud, whose removal when mayor of St. Cloud resulted in a statewide application of the Sunday lid on saloons, is dead at Minneapolis. He had been suffering with heart trouble for six months. Mr. Robinson was forty-six years old.

Thomas J. Noonan, president of the Reliance Oil and Supply company and Northwestern representative of the American Asphalt company, died suddenly of heart failure at Minneapolis. He was formerly purchasing agent for the Twin City Rapid Transit company.

Dr. Archibald Bamber, one of the earliest residents of Rochester, reaching there in 1854, is dead at the age of sixty-five years. He was one of the earlier dentists of the city and a prominent man in city affairs.

Milton J. Fellows, a resident of Minneapolis for fifty years, is dead. He was seventy-nine years old.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

Frank Flusek, the first of eleven defendants to be tried in the Glenville tarring case, was acquitted at Albert Lea, the jury returning a verdict after deliberating a little more than an hour. The other ten cases, in which Dr. Freeman of Glenville is the complaining witness, will not be tried at present, but there is a probability that another case may be called in March, if any more ever come to trial.

Nine children in the family of Paul Babbler, living eight miles west of Ada, were poisoned, probably by eating mixed candy. Three of the children became unconscious and all of them were thrown into convulsions. For a time it appeared impossible to save some of them, but they recovered slowly.

Chris Anderson, a farmer about fifty years old, was killed in the woods along the Wild Rice near Ada while he and a neighbor were cutting cordwood. He was caught by a falling tree and crushed about the chest and shoulders.

Chief Long-ge-shig's squaw was found on the ice of Cass lake. The body, which was found by Indians, showed evidence of foul play, but the chief asserts the woman was frozen to death.

SOCIALISTS FIRST IN FIELD

St. Paul Minister Heads Minnesota State Ticket.

The Public Ownership party, as it is legally known, met in state convention at Minneapolis, nominated a complete state ticket and adopted a platform. There were seventy-four accredited delegates in attendance. The Socialists are first in the field with a ticket. The candidates are:

Governor, Rev. David Morgan, St. Paul; lieutenant governor, D. M Robertson, Duluth; secretary of state, J. A. Johnson, Duluth; state treasurer, J. E. Nash, Robbinsdale; attorney general, A. W. Uhl, Crosby; congressman at large, J. S. Ingalls, Minneapolis.

COOLLY AMPUTATES OWN ARM

Duluth Workman Gets Rid of Mangled Member.

With his arm mangled by being caught in the cogs of a pump at a Duluth brewery John Cyrol drew his knife from his pocket and amputated the member. He then climbed fifty feet on a ladder from the basement where the accident occurred; walked into the office of the brewery and asked that an ambulance be called. At the hospital he refused to take an anesthetic while the arm was being treated and watched the surgeon do his work. He was weak from loss of blood, but will probably recover. He is twenty-nine years old and married.

REGISTRATION TAX LEGAL

Minnesota Statute Upheld by State Supreme Court.

The mortgage registry law, passed in 1907, has been declared constitutional by the state supreme court.

According to the court's decision any mortgage, when registered, whether it be to secure an indebtedness of $50 or less, is within the operation of the law and taxable thereunder.

Henry A. Hilderbrandt, resident of St. Paul, attempted to file a mortgage with Michael W. Fitzgerald, register of deeds in Ramsey county, without paying the registration tax.

ONE FIREMAN DEAD; ANOTHER INJURED

Grand Opera House at St. Paul Badly Damaged.

John Thome, lieutenant in fire company No. 9, was killed, and Miles McDonough, a pipeman in the same company, was injured so seriously that he probably will die when a thirty-six foot ladder on which they were standing while fighting a fire at the Grand Opera House at St. Paul was driven backward by the force of the stream of water which they were playing on the flames, hurling the men to the earth and then falling on top of them.

Lieutenant Thome and Pipeman McDonough were at the top of the ladder with the line of hose, at the rear of the burning building. A third pipeman was below them and the lieutenant had ordered him to have the force of the water cut down. When he stepped off the ladder, relieving it of his weight, the force of the stream drove the ladder backwards, plunging the man at the top to his death and the other to mortal injury.

The rear of the building was destroyed, including stage fixtures and furnishings.

DULUTH FIRE IMPERILS FORTY

Inmates of Bethel Home Carried to Safety in Church.

Fire in an adjoining building threatened the destruction of the Bethel home at Duluth and the fire department carried twenty infants and as many mothers to the German Evangelical church, 100 feet distant. The fire was extinguished without much damage to the home and the babies and mothers were later returned.

REVENUE TAX HELD VALID

Federal Supreme Court Upholds Minnesota Statute.

The state gross revenue tax law as applied to express companies was held valid by the supreme court of the United States. The state will be able to recover approximately $100,000 in taxes from the express companies as a result.

Youth Given His Freedom.

Walter Wynacht, the nineteen-year-old boy who was held in the Ramsey county jail at St. Paul for several days because he had followed the suicide of his sweetheart, Harriet Kopsing, by an attempt to take his own life, has been released from custody. Coroner Jones was unable to find any evidence that the boy was in any way responsible for the death of the girl and no charge was placed against him.

Minnesota Roosevelt Manager.

I. A. Caswell of Anoka, clerk of the state supreme court, was offered and accepted the appointment as member from Minnesota on the National Roosevelt committee, with headquarters in Chicago. Alexander Revell of Chicago wired Mr. Caswell asking him to accept the place which practically places him in direction of the Roosevelt boom in this state until a permanent organization is formed.

NEW TRANSATLANTIC LINE

Direct Route Between Norway and Sweden and the United States and Mexico—Death of Herman Bang Removes Denmark's Greatest Novelist. Women Teachers of Norway Organize Independent Association.

SWEDEN.

At a meeting in Gothenburg a few days ago the so called Swedish-Amerika-Mexico steamship line was organized. The leading men in this new company are Consul M. Bryde of Christiania, who is chief of the Norway-Mexico Steamship company, and Brorstrom, Waller & Sandstrom, who are at the head of the Swedish line. The minimum capital stock will be 1,000,000 crowns and the maximum stock 3,000,000 crowns. About 1,400,000 crowns have already been subscribed but it can easily be raised to 2,000,000 crowns if necessary. The board of directors chosen for the new company consist of H. Mannheimer, president; Dan Brostrom, secretary and executive director, and Axel Carlander, Consul Ekman and Justus Waller. The merging of the Swedish and Norwegian interests in this company will mean that there will be direct and regular communication between Sweden, Norway, the United States and Mexico. The organization of this company will fill a long felt want so far as Swedish and Norwegian exporters are concerned and they are especially gratified to know that they are going to have direct traffic with the United States, which is a popular market for Scandinavian commodities.

Swedish sporting goods such as will be used in the hammer, shot, javelin and discus throwing contests in the Olympic games at Stockholm next summer have arrived in New York. They will be inspected by the American Olympic committee next week and unless some fault is found the samples will be reproduced and distributed all over the country for trials. The javelin is of wood, with a sharp iron point. It is 1.6 pounds in weight and 8.5 feet in length. No throws are counted unless the point of the javelin strikes the ground before any part of the shaft. The discus weighs 4.4 pounds, the same as the American, but is said to fit the hand better. The hammer consists of a massive leaden head, with a four foot shaft of steel wire, and weighs 15.9 pounds. The Swedish shot is exclusively of iron, not of lead, and is an ounce short of sixteen pounds, the regulation weight in the United States.

Edmund Gosse, the famous English critic, has an enthusiastic article in the Pall Mall Gazette regarding August Strindberg, whom he characterizes as the most interesting personality in all Europe. Strindberg, says Mr. Gosse, has written things that form the most beautiful and the most noble that have been written in recent days and has besides been the author of books whose contents are such that they can hardly be classed as even civilized and which are so bitter in spirit that they border on the ludicrous. Mr. Gosse maintains that Strindberg has many characteristics in common with Nietzsche and Rosseau. In spite of all his faults, however, the English critic regards Strindberg as the peer of all modern authors.

Selma Lagerlof's books continue to attract great attention all over the country. Her latest book, "Liljekrona's Home," is especially in great demand and hardly had the first edition been run off the presses than it was sold out and other editions are now selling at a remarkable rate. The book has been published in not less than nine languages and we predict that the time will soon come when Selma Lagerlof's works will be as popular in the United States as they are in Germany. In the latter country Miss Lagerlof's novels have proven very popular and thousands of copies have been sold there.

The mother of Princess Bernadotte died at her home in Stockholm the other day, aged ninety-one years. She was Henrietta Munck af Fulkila and belongs to one of the oldest families of the nobility of Sweden. She was the mother of the present Princess Bernadotte, who is the only woman not of royal blood to marry a Swedish prince. Henrietta Munck was born in 1812 and was a daughter of General Bror Cederstrom and the Countess Christina Hilda Wachtmeister of Johannishus.

DENMARK.

In the recent death of Herman Bang Denmark has lost her greatest novelist, regarding whose genius there has recently been much exchange of opinion, but who nevertheless is accorded first place among modern novelists of Denmark. The peculiar part of it is that Bang should meet his death in America, where he had been only a week. He reached Ogden, Utah, Jan. 20 and on the 28th, while on his way to the Pacific coast, he was taken suddenly ill on a railway train and was taken to a hospital in Utah, where he died, far away from home and friends in a strange land. He died from hemorrhage of the lungs. For a long time the genial author had expressed the hope that he might some day visit the great country in the West, but little did he realize that he was to die in America. Prior to starting West he delivered a lecture in New York, which was attended by over 2,000 Danish-Americans, who gave him a most cordial and enthusiastic reception. It was his intention to stop at Chicago to deliver a lecture in that city, but for some reason this date was cancelled. Copenhagen was shocked to learn of the sudden demise of Mr. Bang and most of the Danish papers came out with editions in which the front pages were lined in black. There is national sorrow in Denmark and the strangers who were with him in Ogden, Utah, did not know that Denmark's greatest literary figure had passed away. King Frederick expressed his deep regret and sorrow at the sudden passing of his favorite author and literary societies all over the country have been giving memorial programs in honor of the departed writer. Herman Bang was born in Als in 1857 and belonged to one of the old and distinguished families of Denmark, who have figured more or less in that country's history for hundreds of years. But there had been no literary man in that family and when, in 1870, he commenced writing stories and novels, members of the Bang family began to regard Herman as "a lost son." They could not understand that there was any future for him in the field of literature and discouraged him all they could. In spite of this Bang kept on writing. "Hopeless Relatives" made such a hit that he sprung into national fame at once. From that time on Bang did not need to worry about the success of his literary career. Among his most popular and best works are "Tina," "Faedra," "Ved Vejen," "Michael" and a number of other exceedingly interesting stories and novels. As a lecturer he was intensely interesting. His remains have been conveyed from Ogden to New York and are now on their way to their last resting place in the land which gave him birth.

NORWAY.

The female teachers of Norway, says a Norwegian correspondent, have organized an association of their own, about sixty fair wielders of the rod having assembled at Christiania early in January to proclaim their independence of their brother teachers, who, it is claimed, did not give the women teachers a square deal in the National Teachers' association. A large number of the women bolted the last annual convention of this association, when they were not given adequate recognition on the board of managers. Since then efforts to effect a reconciliation have been put forth by the officers of the association, but without success. The action of the women in organizing an association of their own has met with much approval in the country.

A Swedish military expert writes a powerful article in the Dagens Nyheter (Stockholm), advocating the organization of a strong international defence union between Sweden and Norway. The idea may be favorably received by the Norwegian government and judging from the many favorable comments in the Norwegian press the time may not be far distant before it is realized. It would do a great deal to further cement the friendly relations now prevalent between the two nations.

Extremely cold weather was reported from many points in Norway during the early part of February and the latter part of last month. Dr. Sven Hedin, Famous Swedish Explorer, Making Preparations for Another Expedition—Timber Lands of Norway Increasing in Value Rapidly—Danish Company Organized to Develop That Country's West Indian Possessions.

SWEDEN.

Dr. Sven Hedin, the eminent Asiatic explorer, is planning another exploration trip into the wilds of the heart of Asia. He recently visited St. Petersburg for that reason and he is now busily engaged in making the necessary preparations for his long journey. It would seem that Sven Hedin should have tired of making these hazardous trips into places where no other human being has ever set foot, but it seems that the life really agrees with him. He has compiled most of his scientific data, comprising many volumes, which have been translated into twenty-four languages. Having completed this part of his work he contemplates starting on another long exploration trip into Asia. Dr. Hedin has been promised a detachment of Russian Cossacks to protect and escort him on his next trip.

Owing to the fact that Colonel Robert M. Thompson and James F. Sullivan of New York, who have been chosen leaders of the American Athletic troupe which is to participate in the Olympian games at Stockholm next summer, have been taken ill recently, the work of the American Olympian committee has been greatly hindered of late. However, arrangements have been completed with the owners of the steamer Finland and that vessel will carry the athletes to Sweden, leaving New York June 15.

It may be interesting for Swedish-Americans to know that Jack Campbell, the San Francisco boxer and trainer, is a Swede and that his right name is Olson. Campbell, as he now calls himself, was at one time the "featherweight champion of the Pacific coast." According to the Swedish San Francisco paper, Vestkusten, Campbell will visit the Olympian games at Stockholm and will most likely be the only Swedish-American boxer present who has any particular reputation.

Judging from what is going on in the riksdag at present there is some indication that a most drastic emigration law will be passed at the present session. Hitherto the Swedish emigration laws have only regulated emigration of Swedish subjects to foreign lands, but in the event that the new law is passed it will not be as easy to leave the country as formerly. The new law is so drafted that it will, in a measure, prevent wholesale emigration to foreign lands.

It is these people that the Swedish government proposes to help.

There is scarcely any section in the country in which timber lands have not increased in value during the past few years. It shows plainly that people had little idea of the value there is in timber lands and many who sold their timber for almost a song are now deeply regretting it says the Gudbrandsdolen. For example there was the Sveum property in Vingrum, which was sold the other day at public auction. A few years ago a Mr. Fischer purchased this valuable estate for 30,000 crowns. He bought it for an extremely low price. During the years that he has been in possession of the place he cut timber on the property to the value of more than 35,000 crowns and later sold it to a timber dealer by name of Kverum for 50,000 crowns. Kverum sold timber from the property to the amount of more than 20,000 crowns and then sold it to Ivar Sohus for 33,000 crowns. The latter in turn realized something like 33,000 crowns and the other day the very same property was sold at auction for 75,000 crowns. This is true of a great many "gaards" and had the owners who were in possession of them some ten or twenty years ago and who sold them for little or nothing known how timber property and lumber was going to rise in value they would undoubtedly have held on to their properties.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE COUNTY OF PENNINGTON

VOL XXIX THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN., THURSDAY, MARCH 7, 1912 NUMBER 10

COURT CONVENED

Monday—Only One Criminal Case on Calendar, to Be Continued to June Term of Court.

Petit Jurors Were Discharged Wednesday Noon, Not Being Called to Sit in Any Case.

Court convened last Monday, Judge Grindeland, of Warren, presiding. The petit jurors were discharged Wednesday noon without being called on.

There were no cases that attracted very great attention. The court room was crowded during all the cases. The cases on the calendar were as follows:

State vs. Will Crowe—Continued to June term of Court.

Frank Finley vs. Nels Erickson—Set for trial in April, place of trial not designated.

Nels Berg vs. Mrs. Gilbert Olson—Answer withdrawn and judgment entered by default.

Louis M. Roland vs. Ole Anderson—Judgment for plaintiff.

W. J. LaBree vs. Virginia Galboury — Transferred to Morrison county.

Minneapolis Steel & Machinery Co. vs. City of Thief River Falls—Settled by payments of $500 by city.

The divorce cases of Peter Newman vs. Carrie Newman, Frank M. Hathaway vs. Maud M. Hathawy and Sever O. Finhart vs. Tillie C. Finhart were argued and submitted to the judge for decision.

The divorce case of Evind Knudson vs. Thone Knudson was settled and a divorce granted.

Sandy Miller and the Soo railway settled their case and as a result Sandy's bank account was increased to the extent of $2300.

In the case of Red Lake county against the city of Thief River Falls, arguments were heard and the case was submitted for decision.

In the case of the State of Minnesota vs. G. G. Williams, a suit to collect the bonds for Frank Peterson, under sentence on a criminal charge, the judge took the case under advisement and judgment is pending.

The divorce case of Bertha Gilsoul vs. Louis Gilsoul, which was argued at the term of court held in January, Judge Grindeland granted the divorce and gave Mr. Gilsoul custody of the children.

Railroad Surveyors.

A surveying party of fourteen men appeared in Roseau county the first of last week, working from the Canadian boundary south. If they continue the line they are running they will pass Thief River Falls about 18 miles east. No one can be found who knows where they are going or what company they represent, but it is thought that they are in the employment of the St. Louis road, which is expected to construct a line from the Twin Cities to Winnipeg some time this year. All the ties which can be secured are being bought in the vicinity of Spooner and further south, so they can be shipped to the proposed right-of-way with little expense.

Evangelical Meetings.

Rev. O. A. Osthy, of Minneapolis, will deliver a series of evangelical sermons in the Norwegian language at the Swedish Mission church, East Side, Thief River Falls, beginning Sunday forenoon, March 10th, and continuing all next week. You are cordially invited to attend.

A GOOD CONCERT

What Do The People of Thief River Falls Want Along Musical Lines?

Last Sunday afternoon the Hallowell Concert Company gave an entertrinment in the Auditorium, under the auspices of the Antler's Club. This company came here highly recommended and they proved that they fully deserved such a recommendation, and when the curtain arose for the opening number a small sized audience and a lot of empty seats greeted them. Every number on the program was good and much appreciated by the audience. Mr. Haberkorn, baritone solosist gave a number of selections and each time was brought back by his listeners.

Before the closing number of the orchestra, the manager announced that the company would give a concert in the evening with an entire change of program. Again more empty seats.

A Good Plan.

Roy Morgan, manager of the Lyceum theatre, appeared before the city council last Tuesday evening, with the intention of making some arrangement with that body in regard to renting the Auditorium, his purpose being to install a moving picture and vaudeville show.

The Auditorium has not been a paying proposition to the city since it was erected, and the offer which Mr. Morgan is making is a good one. The way he has figured, the city will no doubt realize considerable money. If the city council wishes to have the building bring in money it is high time that they take steps with this end in view.

As Mr. Morgan offers the city 25 per cent of the gross receipts and the privilege of booking one show a month, besides the use of the hall for all local purposes such as concerts, dances, mass meetings, political speeches and home entertainments, as occasion may demand, the Auditorium would become a source of profit, whereas, in the past it has been a financial burden to the city, the expenses of maintainance exceeding the profits made from the few attractions which have played in the building.

Mr. Morgan has already put up a thousand dollars.

GERMANTOWN.

The Germantown Co-Operative Store Co. held their annual meeting Wednesday of last week. Nearly all of the old officers were re elected. The financial report showed that the store had done a good business last year. Besides the 8 per cent paid on the capital stock, a dividend of 6 per cent was declared.

New settlers are coming in right along. Last week Mr. Hunt, of Iowa, arrived with a carload of horses and machinery and moved up on his place near Little River, where he intends to start in farming.

Mr and Mrs Dan and Thomas Clausen were down to St. Hilaire last Sunday visiting with their brother-in law, Mr. Bothman.

The young folks held a mass meeting here recently and organized what they call the Forward Young Peoples Social Association. About fifty members were secured and their next meeting will be at the Germantown school house. Among other things on their program is a grand debate, "Resolved, that wheat raising pays better than dairying." Four good speakers have been secured and everything points to a good, lively debate.

John Philipp, one of our hustling farmers, has been very busy this winter hauling sand, cement and lumber, which he will use to put up an up-to-date house next summer.

Tuesday next week will be town election, so better all turn out, as among other things to be voted on will be whether or not you will want to pay your road tax in cash.

Quite a few of our farmers were down to the Barsen auction sale last Saturday.

SET THE DATES

Red Lake County Fair Will Be Held During September 16, 17 and 18.

Officers of the Red Lake County Fair Association have designated September 16, 17 and 18 as the days on which the Red Lake County fair will be held. This will be the second annual event of this association.

The premium list is now being arranged and it is stated that the list will appear in the Red Lake Falls Gazette the last of this month. The list in book form will be submitted to all the farmers in Red Lake County some time during the summer. The idea of printing the list in the newspaper early is to enable the farmers to act accordingly, and to assist them in raising fine products to be put on exhibition during this event.

Calls Charges Ridiculous.

Joel P. Winkjer, state dairy and food commissioner, has branded as "ridiculous" charges that his department, backed by Governor A. O. Eberhart, was favoring centralized dairies over the independent institutions. This charge was made Wednesday at a meeting in St. Paul of the State Dairymen's association. Mr. Winajer returned today from Mankato. "The charge is ridiculous and it is not worthy an answer," he said. "I want to say one thing, however. Governor Eberhardt has never in any way tried to influence the action of this department on the dairy question."

A Big Hit.

Godfrey and Washburn, a first-class vaudeville team, will appear at the Lyceum tonight, Friday and Saturday. This team introduces comedy, singing and dancing, and they are classed with the best when it comes to putting on a clever act. The Bemidji Pioneer says: "Godfrey and Washburn have a novelty that will score a big hit." This is certainly a good recommendation, so don't miss the chance of seeing them in this clever act, Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

A Clean Show.

The Sights Theater Company are playing this week in the opera house to good full houses every night and are giving the public nice, clean, up-to-date plays. A complete change every night. They are worth going to see.—Britton, S. D. Sentinel.

At the Auditorium 3 nights starting Thursday Mar 7.

SCHOOL NOTES

All of Which Are of Great Interest to the Public—Schools Have Large Enrollment.

The Short Course boys are taking advantage of the training offered down town for ten days by the tractor companies, wherein they give free instruction to any person desiring to learn how to run one of the big gasoline or kerosene tractor engines. Ten of these machines have been sold in this territory within the last six months and the boys will be in demand as drivers if they possess the necessary skill.

On Monday morning new students appeared in school from the following places: Portland, Oregon; Ashland, Wis.; Kenmare, N. Dak., and Crookston, Minn. This is a fair sample of what occurs every Monday morning.

Last Friday evening was delightfully spent at the Lincoln by several hundred school children and many of their parents and friends. A musical and literary program was substituted for the advertised lecture by Dr. Gambell, as the lecturer was called out east on professional business and could not be present. The Argyle team of high school basketball players were defeated by the locals by a score of 35 to 20. A fish pond, a fortune teller, a booth of home made candy and some light refreshments all aided in rounding out an evening full of entertainment for those present.

To stimulate effort towards better reading and spelling, a series of weekly contests will take place at the Lincoln assembly. Next Friday evening the fifth grades from the three ward buildings will have a time contest in spelling and also an old fashioned spell down. Parents are particularly requested to attend. Next week both spelling and reading contests will take place. No admission is charged and the spelling will begin at 8 and close at 9:15, so the children may get home at a reasonable time.

The Lincoln building has not been used evenings by the school children for two weeks, except for the Friday evening entertainments.

The fire drills in winter do not force the children out of doors, but they stop at the entrances, which are opened by reliable boys at every drill. When the weather moderates, they will pass outside.

The family of over 1200 Thief River Falls pupils ought to have 300 times the troubles which a family of four persons at home sometimes face, but they do not. This is avoided by the wise parent co-operating with the teacher or superintendent and adjusting the difficulty, always keeping the child's welfare in sight. The school welcomes the parent who seeks to learn the truth of every trouble which arises in school, and these little annoyances must appear there, just as they always do even in the best regulated homes.

A brief notice in last week's School Notes as to the pressing need of two state normals in northern Minnesota has brought out a number of favorable comments. One of the proposed normals ought to be located, of course, at Thief River Falls and the other where it will best satisfy the demands of the public not now served by a state normal. This city is destined to be the educational center of the territory north of Crookston. If Warren can support the North Star college, it is evident that Thief River Falls can maintain two or three denominational schools or colleges. The city is now grown too large not to be the site of some of the schools indicated and they will surely come. A state normal, two or three denominational institutions in addition to the business college and the public school system now in operation, will make this town the mecca of retiring farmers and others seeking a home

PARK PROJECT

Soo Road Officials Agree to Haul Enough Dirt for Filler, Free of Charge.

It can be said on the very best authority that the Soo railroad officials will furnish all the dirt free of charge which may be necessary to make the parcel of land east of the Soo depot into a fine park. This is handed to us by parties who are very much interested in the park project. A park is a great need in this city and it is proper that it should be located near the Soo track. Trains entering and departing from the Soo depot carry a large number of passengers through our city daily. A park would not only beautify this part of town but would be a great advertisement, showing that the people of our city are thrifty and energetic and believe in getting to the front.

And when the railroad officials agree to fill this in free of charge it is high time that the citizens of our city get busy and take this matter up. This proposition has been presented to the city council but it apparantly has not yet taken any definate action. It is true that every person in this city is interested in a park, but they are slow in expressing themselves on the subject. The Commercial club is doing all it can. It has put the matter up to the council and is awaiting its action which we have will soon take place.

Obituary

Last Thursday morning, March 5th, at the hospital in Bemidji, occurred the death of Peter McAndress, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin McAndress, of St. Hilaire. He had been sick but a few days before his death, the cause being an attack of pneumonia.

He was 31 years, 3 months and 14 days of age and had lived in this country for a number of years. He was widely known as a respected citizen and had a large circle of friends, who extend their sympathy to the bereaved parents.

The remains were shipped to this city from Bemidji Tuesday night and were placed in the Hicks undertaking rooms over night. At 10:00 o'clock they were removed to the Catholic church, where the funeral services were held by Father Adolph Dingman. The remains were laid to rest in the Catholic cemetery.

He leaves to mourn his loss a mother and father and several brothers and sisters.

Sheriff Takes Trip.

Sheriff W. J. LaBree last Monday took Andrew Peterson of Mayfield township to Fergus Falls. It was stated that in this township they had been holding religious meetings. These meetings seemed to work on Mr. Peterson's mind. He was brought as far as Oklee by sleigh, and from there he was brought by his brother, John, over the Soo Line to this city. His brother also accompanied the sheriff to the asylum.

Mr. Peterson had not shown any signs of insanity until up to a couple of days ago when he was immediately brought to this city and examined by Wilhelm Mechelke who adjudged him insane.

IN MUNICIPAL COURT

Considerable Interest Aroused Monday in a Case of Assult and Battery.

City of Thief River Falls—Will Crowe Complaining Witness—Against W. J. McGinty.

Last Saturday Will Crowe had a warrant sworn out for the arrest of W. J. McGinty on the grounds of assault and battery. The case was taken before the municipal court in the afternoon but court adjourned until Monday at 10 o'clock, at which time the complaining witness was cross examined and the testimony taken in writing by the court stenographer. Considerable time was taken in argument and refering to the state laws. At 11.45 court adjourned to 1:30 p. m., at which time witnesses who had seen and heard the assault were called upon to testify.

Five witnesses were called upon, none of whom testified either for or against the complaining witness or the defendant. After all testimonies had been heard and the attorneys had made their rebuttals, the court rendered a decision in favor of the complaining witness and the defendant was fined $10.00 and costs.

Extension Meetings in Rural Schools For the Week of March 11th to 16th.

The department of agriculture of the Thief River Falls High School has arranged a series of meetings for next week in the neighboring rural schools. W. A. Haskin of the local school will have charge of the work and will be assisted by Prof. Chapman of the college of Agriculture of St. Anthony Park. Announcements have been sent the several teachers in the schools and these will be placed in the hands of the farmers. Mr. Haskin will discuss pure seed and corn and Mr. Chapman will devote all his time for the week to poultry. The latter gentleman is acknowledged the greatest expert on poultry matters in the Northwest and no one can afford to miss hearing him. Mr. Haskin is a specialist on corn and is succeeding in creating a decided interest in this subject which is of much importance to this section of the state.

The schedule of meetings is as follows: Monday afternoon at the Berg School east of town. Tuesday afternoon at the Aubol school on the St. Hilaire road. Tuesday evening the County Line school and the school directly west of town will combine with the Christianson school on the ridge for a joint meeting. The high school band will accompany the speakers to this gathering. On Wednesday afternoon the citizens of Thief River Falls will have an opportunity of hearing the workers at the Lincoln assembly at 2:30. Wednesday at the Sather school southwest of town. Thursday evening at the Strip school. Friday evening three districts will meet at Valhall, and Saturday afternoon the last meeting will take place out east at the Wright school.

The farmers are urged to give their wives a chance to hear the greatest poultry expert in the state and no one ought to miss this opportunity of attending a valuable series of free lectures.

Once a day is sufficient for chickens to be fed a mash. The remainder of the day dry grain is considered better.

No one has yet discovered just why it is so, but it has been noticed that a heifer twin with a bull seldom if ever breeds. If both twins are heifers they will produce normally, as if born single.

That community certainly has a pretty questionable standard of practical values in which the hired men who milk the cows get more per month than the girls who teach the country school.

While garden and other seeds will often keep their power of germination for several years, it is always more satisfactory, as well as more economical in the long run, to secure seed that is guaranteed to be fresh.

Do not throw away the parings from vegetables nor the scraps from the table. The hens are fond of them. They add variety to the ration; they are good foods and cost nothing. Be sure to save them for the fowls.

Any readers who may be interested in the culture of sugar beets should send to the division of publication, department of agriculture, Washington, for Farmers' Bulletin No. 52, which is sent free on application.

The forty cent price fixed by the Elgin butter board for Monday, Jan. 15, is the highest butter price on record in a period of twenty-four years. It is no wonder common folk are beginning to inquire into the merits of butter substitutes of one kind and another.

The Montana State college at Bozeman has lately come into possession of Grandma, declared by poultry authorities to be one of the most prolific as well as oldest hens of which there is any record. She is seventeen years old and has raised two broods of chicks every year during this period.

Good mixed hay—timothy and clover—with silage containing all the grain makes a very satisfactory feed for young stock that is being carried through the winter, but a more rapid as well as economical growth could be secured if a small amount of linseed or cottonseed meal were added to the ration. It is true this concentrate is high priced, but the feeding of it moderately would pay well.

The loss in the weight as well as the value of manure as it is handled on the average farm when piled in the barnyard and left until spring or later is shown in an experiment which was made by the Maryland experiment station. Eighty tons of barnyard manure were put in one pile and left for a year. At the end of this time it was found the pile had lost in weight fifty-three tons, or over 60 per cent, while from the standpoint of fertilizer value it probably lost even more than this.

A rather interesting climatic change seems to have taken place during the past few months along the southern coast of Alaska in the modification of the temperature by some 15 degrees as compared with normal winter temperatures. The change is attributed to the closer approach to the coast of the warm Japan ocean current, which corresponds in a general way to the gulf stream of the Atlantic ocean, which makes the winters of Europe and the north coast countries warmer than they would otherwise be.

It is said that the one disease of tuberculosis inflicts an annual expense on the people of this country of $330,000,000. It is also claimed that three-fourths of this loss could be prevented if people would use good sense and the necessary precaution to prevent the spread of the disease—ventilate the sleeping rooms, secure a pure water supply and get rid of the tuberculous cows that supply the family milk. This question of tuberculosis should be of especial interest to farm people because a majority of its victims are from farm homes.

Perhaps more than to any other quality the value of ensilage is due to its succulence—that in texture and moisture content it so nearly approaches June grass. This quality, coupled with the further fact that it has a demonstrated feeding value of [illegible] while on a general [illegible] for all items [illegible] exceed $2 per ton [illegible] it a most valuable feed for [illegible] and cattle raisers [illegible] installed a silo as [illegible] farm equipment [illegible] without it, but [illegible] managed to get [illegible] as long as they did.

A NEW OLEOMARGARINE BILL.

Congressman Haugen of the agricultural committee of the lower house of the national congress introduced a bill recently that aims to do away with several defects of the present law and seems to be viewed favorably by officials of the National Dairy union, though it does not propose all that dairy extremists asked. The ground taken by the subcommittee which framed the bill was that it favored reasonable restrictions tending to promote the honest sales of oleomargarine, effective checks on the dishonest sales of the commodity and a protection of butter men in their legitimate market. The bill as framed is conservative. It eliminates the 10 per cent tax and the color line on imitation butter and requires oleo (which it is specified shall, after the passage of the bill, be called margarin) to be sold only in half pound and pound packages, which are made the manufacturer's original package, which must be sealed by a long, narrow revenue stamp and which must remain on the print or package until it is sold by the retailer. The bill provides for a cent tax, which is one-tenth the present tax on colored oleo, five times as much as the oleo interests wanted and four times the present tax on uncolored oleo. In several instances the new bill provides for much severer penalties for violation than those at present in force, while the special taxes on manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers are reduced considerably below those provided by the law at present in force. The bill leaves the matter of the sales of margarin in hotels and restaurants to be regulated by the several states. The bill may not contemplate all that could be desired, but it has been framed in a spirit of fairness, and there is reason to believe if it is adopted in substantially its present form that it will prove generally satisfactory.

SEED SHOULD BE TESTED.

Tests of seed corn which have been made in the northern portion of the corn belt show that notwithstanding the care that was exercised last fall in the selection of seed ears many of them show kernels whose germs are entirely dead or of a vitality so low as to make them entirely unfit for seed. It therefore behooves any one who is planning to grow corn the coming season to look into the condition of his seed. Of course this job will be postponed by some until it is warm enough to make the test out of doors, but the forehanded man will test all of the ears he has saved for seed by one of the patent seed corn testers or one of the homemade kind which have been described several times in these notes, by means of which half a dozen kernels, three from two sides of each ear, may be tested so as to indicate whether the germ is dead or weak. Ears that do not in such a test show five vigorous sprouting and rooting kernels out of six should be thrown out. If one's entire supply of seed ears is shown to be in poor condition steps should be taken at once to secure a supply that will grow. Only those who are slack and dilatory will leave this job until ten days before planting time, when there is likely to be a grand scramble for seed that will grow and when a lot of fellows are likely to lose out in the shuffle.

THE EVERGLADES CONTROVERSY

A very warm controversy which bids fair to reach a still higher temperature is being waged in congress and in the public press relative to the merits and feasibility of the proposed draining of the Florida Everglades and the possibility of their use for agricultural purposes. This is one of the largest reclamation projects which have as yet been undertaken and from its very magnitude has been calculated to test the courage and faith of those who have undertaken it. While on the one hand one is by no means justified in saying that the promoters behind this big drainage proposition are untrustworthy, it will be a good plan for the one who has not investigated the subject carefully and calmly, and that at first hand, not to invest largely in those Everglade ranches. A good way to cut cross lots and discover the worth of the lands which are being offered for sale is to find out from any leading Florida banker how much money he would lend on a parcel of the Everglade land offered for sale at a given price. If the size of such a loan, if the banker were willing to make it at all, is away below what would be lent on land of known productivity, the prospective buyer should beware. This is the way to get a proof of the pudding, for the banker's estimate will cut out speculative value.

"SLOW" BUTTER.

There are several factors which tend to make the butter slow in coming in the churning process. One of these may be that the cream or a portion of it is from cows far advanced in their periods of lactation. Another and perhaps more frequent cause is that sweet cream is added to that intended for churning the same day the churning is to be done. This prevents proper and even ripening and retards the "breaking" of the butter. Another cause may be that the cream is not at the proper temperature. The cream in the churn should show a temperature of close to 60 degrees F., and if it does not it should be brought to that point before the churning is started.

While concrete has much to commend it as a material for the construction of dairy barns, it is now conceded that if used for the flooring of the stables it should be covered with slatted racks or bedded deeply, as direct contact of the floor with the cows' udders is liable to cause trouble.

In the northern tier of states where the snow has fallen deep the past few weeks there has been demonstrated on many a farm the unwisdom of having set the shelter belt of trees too near the barn and feed yards, as the drifts that have piled up in the lee of such windbreaks are well nigh impassable.

If the weighing and testing of milk did not accomplish the very desirable end of enabling the owner of dairy cattle to determine what animals were paying their board it would be advisable simply from the standpoint of enabling him to determine how large a ration each cow should be fed advantageously.

As the result of her new highway law the state of Wisconsin will during the present year spend $1,007,940 on 632 miles of good roads in 501 towns, sixty counties of the state having applied for aid under the law. Of the amount named one-third will be furnished by the state, one-third by the counties and one-third by the towns.

With good hay worth all the way from $10 to $18 a ton there is mighty little excuse of feeding it so freely that the horses will not need any other bedding. Instead the horses should be given half as much hay with some straw. They will under this method of feeding eat the hay up clean and be just as well off physically, provided they are not working.

A breeder of brown Swiss cattle living near Middleburg, N. Y., has his two herd bulls broken so that they are used regularly in work about the farm. He reports that as a result of the exercise they get they are as docile as a pair of Norman mares and that they have not only won prizes at the state fair in their working clothes, but have sired the finest and most promising lot of heifers he has ever seen.

Since the women of California have been given the right of suffrage they have in some cities taken it upon themselves to inquire into the conditions prevailing on some of the dairy farms that supply milk for the city trade and in some instances have uncovered conditions that they insist must be righted. In some other cities they have prodded the men until they have consented to make like investigations.

Farmers in some sections of the northern states are losing horses from an ailment that has been diagnosed as due to the blue-green mold that formed on corn and cornstalks that did not have sufficient time in which to ripen. In a majority of cases the poisoning seems to have occurred with animals that ranged the fields and not with those that have been fed the dry corn fodder in barns. Animals affected become dull and drowsy and generally remain in that condition until they die.

While slight frosting does not seriously impair the texture and quality of some roots, hard freezes such as have occurred during the past two months practically ruin them, making them not only worthless from the standpoint of food value, but even dangerous to feed and poisonous. Reports have been numerous of late of the illness and death of farm animals as a result of eating such frozen roots. If frozen the best use that can be made of them is to haul them out on the land for fertilizer.

Not in many a year have eggs reached as high a price during the winter months as has been the case the past two or three weeks over most of the country. From 42 to 50 cents per dozen has been paid for eggs in market centers where the price rarely reaches 35 cents at any time during the winter season. The situation referred to seems to be due in part to a greatly lessened production of fresh eggs owing to the intensely cold weather and in part to the fact that not nearly so many eggs were placed in storage last summer and fall.

In the city of DeKalb, Ill., there has been in vogue for some years past a custom that might with profit be adopted by other towns over the country. This is the setting aside of the third Friday of each month as horse day, at which time farmers and breeders within the trading area of the town bring their stock in and offer it for sale. So successful has the custom proved that buyers are in the habit of coming from long distances to buy horses, while the presence of a number of buyers is a surety that the horse raisers will receive a good price for their animals.

In the international egg laying contest which is being conducted at the Storrs college in Connecticut the White Leghorns of the Englishman Thomas Barron still lead all other pens and varieties. Alvah Eastman of St. Cloud, Republican candidate for congressman-at-large, has sent to the press a neat brochure of his announcement, in which is contained a photograph of the editor and the lines "With appreciation and thanks to my good newspaper brethren." Minnesota Day.

March 1st was Minnesota day in the public schools. The purpose is, we believe, for the scholars to learn something about the history and recources of their own state, which is an admirable idea.

No state among the forty-eight excels Minnesota in citizenship, resources or prosperity possibilities. The public schools can do no better work than to teach these facts to the children. We have been altogether too modest in advertising the advantages of the commonwealth, and have permitted other sections of the country to entice away thousands of our people who, as a general thing, would have been better off had they remained at home. Minnesota has some 20,000,000 acres of unimproved land, which could easily be converted into good farms, with a market right at home. Minneapolis, for instance, is the best wheat market in the world, and these millions of acres are capable of producing as good crops as the land of any state or country and the farmers can get better returns than those of the far west or north.

It has the finest iron mines in the world, much timber, thousands of lakes and it combines beauty with good health and prosperity. It is the gateway of the big lakes, which afford a God-given highway for commerce and will also be a regulator of freight rates.

It is peopled by the best blood of the several states and of the northern European countries, who in the great melting pot of the new world are all American citizens. They have the capacity for hard work, stability, industry and love of government. Ideal in citizenship, they stand for a square deal, and they have placed Minnesota in the front rank of progressive commonwealths, and will keep it there.—Ex.

POLICE HEADS QUIT JOBS

Chief and Assistant Chief at St. Paul Resign.

Chief John J. O'Connor and Assistant Chief John Clark have resigned from the St. Paul police department.

Chief O'Connor assigned as the cause the fact that he has been "repeatedly humiliated and insulted by the police board."

Republicans say the move is a political one, designed to disorganize the department and aid the Democratic ticket at the spring municipal elections.

Many other members of the department are said to be contemplating resigning. The chief says he has advised them all to stay.

It is known that Chief O'Connor and Captain Clark have both applied for police pensions. Their applications have already been filed with the trustees of the police retirement fund.

TAWNEY DENIES THE REPORT

Will Not Manage Taft's Campaign in Minnesota.

Former Representative James A. Tawney of Winona positively declares that he will not be President Taft's campaign manager in Minnesota, as reported in the Twin City papers. Mr. Tawney says that the burden of the campaign will fall upon the St. Paul Taft club which, it is expected, will be reorganized so as to cover the whole state. Plans already are made for opening headquarters in St. Paul, he said, and it is probable that headquarters also will be opened at Minneapolis.

Mr. Tawney declared that his other duties prevent him from giving the time to the Taft cause that would be required if he were to take charge of the campaign.

ANOTHER INDIAN PROBE PROPOSED

Will Go Deeper Into White Earth Affairs.

Another investigation of the administration of the White Earth Indian reservation in this state is contemplated by the committee on Indian affairs of the house. This investigation, if authorized, will be more sweeping and thorough than that now in progress by the special committee of which Representative Graham of Illinois is chairman.

It will cover the activities of Judge M. C. Burch of the department of justice and other officials of that department who, it is charged by Representative Clarence B. Miller and other members of the Minnesota delegation, prompted the Graham inquiry in order to distract public attention from alleged blunders made by Judge Burch and his associates.

The proposed inquiry is authorized in a resolution introduced by Representative Stephens of Nebraska.

INDICT RAILWAY OFFICIALS

Recommendation of Attorney General of Minnesota.

Indictment and speedy trial of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway officials who are responsible for the Odessa (Minn.) wreck, in which ten persons were killed, was recommended to the county attorney of Big Stone county by Attorney General Smith.

Mr. Smith also advised the attorney that the railroad officials should be indicted once and only once for killing the ten persons. It would not be lawful, he said, to indict them on the theory that the killing of each person constituted a separate offense. All were killed by the same act.

DUMAS SEEKS ENDORSEMENT

Mayor of Cass Lake Files for Renomination.

Statewide interest attaches to the political situation in Cass Lake because Mayor D. F. Dumas is a candidate to succeed himself. It appears likely his opponent will be A. W. Johnson, vice president of the Commercial club. Several others have been mentioned, but have withdrawn in favor of Mr Johnson. The town is stirred up as never before and the contest will be one of the hardest in its history.

State Railroads Earn $91,769,006.

The thirty-five railways doing business in the state had a gross income in 1911 of $91,769,096.18, or $5,622,000 less than in 1910, according to the complete returns of the tax commission. The railway's gross earnings tax for the year will be $3,670,750.25, a decrease of $226,231.49.

Second Mayor of Duluth Dead.

Clinton Markell, eighty years old, second mayor of Duluth, died at Pasadena, Cal. Mr Markell had lived in Duluth since 1869. Previous to that time he lived in Superior, Wis., going there in 1857. Death was due to old age.

While sheep will eat practically none of the manger leavings of cows, horses will, and this applies especially to the woody stalks of both clover and alfalfa.

Desirable as it might be, silage has as yet proved to have little or no value as a part ration for the hog. However, it can't be beat for the dairy cows and steers in the feed lot.

In Sheboygan county, Wis., is a country school which has but one pupil, but the directors prefer to maintain the school at a cost of $500 per year rather than close it and unite with adjoining schools.

A pie crust that is so greasy as to be nearly transparent is not only to be condemned from the standpoint of digestibility, but is a wanton extravagance when material for shortening is as high priced as it is now.

That mice now and then nibble harnesses is said to be due to their desire for the salt that is on them from the sweat of the horses. If salt is placed where it can be got at easily the rodents will not bother the harnesses.

The peach buds in states along the New England coast and farther south are said to have been badly frosted by the recent cold weather. This is likely true, but it will not be necessary to worry about the shortage in the peach crop until next summer.

An excellent ointment to rub on the cow's udder at calving time in case a tendency to inflammation appears is made by melting two ounces of gum camphor with half a pound of clean lard or mutton tallow, mixing well and applying twice a day.

While beans fed alone to hogs make a pork that is soft and lacking in texture, they do very well when cooked and fed with an equal amount of corn. The combination makes a more economical ration than either beans or corn fed alone.

That old chestnut, the prayer chain, is still being worked on a good many well meaning yet gullible folks. An analysis of the business shows at once that it is founded on a conception of religion that would shame the middle ages, and there is reason to believe that those who give aid in perpetrating the fake today show that they are morbidly superstitious if not positively guilty of blasphemy.

Many feeders and a good many dairymen make a serious mistake by skimping the feed of their young stock during the winter to the point of just keeping them going rather than feeding them in such a manner that they will make rapid and satisfactory gains and be in shape to make still more rapid growth when spring and pasture time comes. Every day that such young stock is kept down by scant rations means just so much loss in the end.

If there is any experience under the sun calculated to make the human feel he is a pretty small potato in the presence of the great natural laws and forces it is when he is trying to thaw out a frozen water pipe some morning with a rag and a kettle of fast cooling water when the thermometer is hovering near the 30 below zero mark. It would be interesting as well as humiliating to know how many of just such teakettles it would take to give us spring or summer heat.

Uncle Sam's corn club for boys is an organization which has 55,000 members, the most of whom live in the states located in the recognized corn belt of the country. Last year each of these boys planted an [illegible] acre of corn [illegible] the conditions of membership, and at the end of the season the first prize for best yield was awarded to Bennie Beeson of Monticello, Miss., who raised 227 bushels on his acre. Considering the fact that the yield of corn the country over is about twenty-eight bushels this youngster has made a record that he may well be proud of.

A note which the writer hardly knows whether to classify under the head of agricultural or political is the distribution of packets of vegetable and flower seeds by congressmen just a few days before the circulation of their nomination papers among a grateful constituency.

A rather interesting fact has been noted on a trolley line which runs through a section in which rabbits abound—namely, that the rabbits seem to be attracted by the bright lights of the cars at night, with the result that a number are killed every trip. Not long since a jack rabbit met a like fate.

During the past winter altogether too much grain was shipped to market in the raw state instead of the finished animal products of the farm. This movement was due to the high prices for the grain and relatively low prices offered for steers, sheep and hogs. From the standpoint of fertility of the soil it is an unfortunate situation.

A very interesting trait common to both dogs and their wild cousins, wolves, is the disposition which each shows to put up an unearthly and prolonged howl when a bell is rung in their hearing or a whistle given a prolonged blast, and a further interesting fact is that often they will respond in nearly the same key as that of whistle or bell.

Thin and sickly offspring at lambing or farrowing time are an unfailing evidence of a scant or unbalanced ration and improper quarters for both ewe and sow in the weeks prior to the birth of their young. It is merely a working out of the law of cause and effect. The wise breeder will appreciate this fact and will make these conditions of food and housing the best possible.

A little Iowa girl, Lois Edmonds, baked a loaf of bread not long ago. This was nothing extraordinary, as hundreds of other girls and mothers did the same thing the same day, but this particular loaf happened to be the best out of 1,400 loaves that were baked by as many other Iowa girls. Her reward for this achievement was a trip to Washington, with all expenses paid. In the same company with this prize bread baker were ten Iowa boys, winners of corn growing prizes in as many districts of the state.

The $1,000 silver cup offered by the International Harvester company at the land and irrigation exposition held recently in New York city for the best thirty ears of corn produced in the United States was awarded to W. H. Dorin of Halifax county, Va., on thirty ears of Boone County White. The excellence of this exhibit is appreciated when it is understood that it won out in competition with the best corn in the United States and against an entry of thirty ears by L. D. Clore of Indiana, who won first place in the national corn show last year.

The building of a really profitable dairy herd on the farm will result in the removal of the so called "drudgery" in connection with cow milking. It is the miserably small yield per cow and the consequent small cash return which cause many a man to object to dairying. He really does not object to the work or kind of work, but objects because he feels it does not pay. You do not hesitate a moment on doing any honorable job which you know will pay. When improvement in any line is begun objectionable features begin to remove themselves in proportion to the advancement made.

On one of the Wisconsin state experimental farms some investigations have been made as to the relative cost of storage room in a silo and in a haymow. The cement silo on the farm costs $293 and has a capacity of 100 tons, which makes the storage cost per ton a trifle less than $3. The mow in the average barn costs about $10 per ton storage capacity to build. With two tons and a half of ensilage worth one ton of good hay it is seen that there is a margin in favor of the silo as compared with the haymow of $2.50 for each two and a half tons of silage, or a dollar on each ton of silage.

Figures gathered show that there were consumed in the United States during 1911, 7,670,000,000 pounds of sugar, or an average of 81.78 pounds per capita. This is an increase of .58 of a pound over the consumption of the fiscal year 1907 and an increase of nearly ten pounds per capita over the sugar consumption of 1901. Of this total it is estimated that 1,105,000,000 pounds were of beet sugar of home production, while home grown cane sugar constituted 750,000,000 pounds. This shows a rapid increase in the production of beet sugar, which prior to 1907 never had exceeded the volume of cane sugar.

Since peaches produce fruit on the new wood and are very rapid growers they will stand heavy annual pruning. In a general way new growth on young trees should be cut back one half or more, while there should be a vigorous thinning of shoots that are too close to interfere. If the pruning is delayed until the buds swell and show plainly, the pruning may be made to take the place in part of a thinning of the fruit. If the soil in which the trees are growing is rich and there is a decided tendency to [illegible] "fetching [illegible] leaves" the late [illegible] spring pruning should be omitted and the trees pruned instead in the summer. This, as in the case of [illegible] apple trees, will tend [illegible] wood growth and [illegible] the following season.

A Philadelphia surgeon has lately discovered that the inside membrane of hens' eggs can be successfully used as a substitute for human skin in grafting operations. The new skin formed by this method is finer than the old, but strong and healthy.

For folks who hibernate in latitudes where the mercury is likely to slip down to 20 or 30 below zero there is absolutely no investment that gives more generous or immediate returns than that put into a thirty-five cent soapstone. In the comfort which it yields it pays for itself every night it is used.

It is an interesting fact shown in immigration statistics that, while the vast majority of Italians who emigrate from their native land to the western world come to the United States, just as large a per cent of the Spanish peasants go to South American countries. During the past year 230,000 people left Spain, 8,000 of these arriving in Buenos Aires in a single fortnight.

That this "watermelon stealin'" business is getting to be serious is shown in the discussion of the subject by a speaker before the recent meeting of the Western Fruit Jobbers' association held in St. Louis. Some one has suggested giving each melon a paper jacket, which would prevent the melons from being exposed to view and thus reduce the temptation to steal them.

If you would live long drink generous amounts of sour milk or buttermilk. Scientists have discovered that the family of bacteria that produce lactic acid—that is, cause the souring process in milk—have the power to destroy or neutralize another group of germs that are said to be responsible for the imperfect digestion of food in the intestines, which in turn is said to be the chief cause of old age decline.

Illinois produced last year more corn than any other state in the Union, but the largest average yield per acre—38.3 bushels—was grown in Connecticut, not usually considered in the list of corn producing states at all. It is evident that the farmers of those rocky little New England homesteads are on to some secrets of corn raising that the owners of the big farms of the central western states would do well to get next to.

Baguio, in the Philippine Islands, is said to be the wettest place in all the territory at present under the control of the United States. Meteorological records kept there show that in four days of last July 88.14 inches of water fell, thirty-four inches of this enormous amount falling in a period of twenty-four hours. This place is the health resort of the island, and the "water" cure is said to be a favorite method of treatment.

Surveys are being made for a scenic highway around Crater lake, in southern Oregon, which is conceded to be one of the world's wonder spots, but which as yet has been visited by comparatively few people on account of its inaccessibility. A proposed automobile road from Medford, a station on the main line of the railroad, some sixty miles away, and the building of the scenic drive around the lake will afford to lovers of the beautiful in nature an opportunity of viewing one of her masterpieces.

Between meridians 100 degrees and 120 degrees, which includes practically all of the dry country of the western half of the United States, it is estimated that there are 200,000,000 acres of fertile land capable of producing a crop of twenty bushels per acre of winter wheat every other year. This means that if one-third of this vast area were producing on the above basis the increase in the country's wheat crop as a result would be 1,000,000,000 bushels yearly, which is a good deal more wheat than the country has ever produced in a single crop.

Folks who are paying 30 cents a pound for the cheapest grade of coffee wonder why there was not a drop in price when the import tariff tax was removed some time ago. The reason there was not is due to the fact that the Brazilian coffee trust, backed by the government, slapped on an export duty equal to our import tax which had just been removed. As a still further aid in maintaining prices the output of coffee is so regulated that in times of big crops enough of the surplus is removed from trade channels so that the price can be kept up on the remainder.

A reader of this department who lives at Reed City, Mich., in a recent letter calls attention to the interesting fact that as a result of investigations which have been carried on it is now contended that fruit raising can be carried on in Michigan over a much wider area than was formerly supposed. In support of this statement our correspondent calls attention to the fact of the clearing of one [illegible] acre tract not far from where he lives, all of which is to be set to fruit trees as soon as cleared. He also speaks in high terms of a fruit and land show that was held a short time since in Grand Rapids [illegible]

EYE SORES OR BEAUTY SPOTS?

The wideawake people of Minneapolis carried out a plan last year in connection with the handling of her vacant lots that might well be worked by other towns and cities having a needy class of people and acres of idle land that have heretofore been weedy eyesores during the summer season. The main motive that led to the carrying out of the plan referred to was a civic celebration in July, at which time it was desired to have the city present the neatest and most attractive appearance possible for both residents and visitors. There were in all 5,000 acres of this idle land. A generous response was made to the appeal of the city officials, and the result was that 2,080,000 square feet of land was planted to vegetables and 250,000 square feet to flowers. Among the results achieved were the beautifying of the city through a substitution of beds of flowers and straight rows of vegetables for vast expanses of burdock, fennel and pigweed, the giving of healthful outdoor exercise to many a stale and pale indoor employee, such a production of vegetables that the cost of fresh vegetables was reduced from 20 to 30 per cent, while not the least of the benefits was an encouragement of a spirit of sociability and neighborliness as a result of meeting in the garden work among people who prior to that time seldom saw or spoke to each other. This method of handling vacant city lots is commendable from every point of view, and it is none too early right now to make preparations for the tilling of lots which in the past have been doing nothing but produce a lusty crop of weeds.

PROFESSOR BOLLEY ON FLAX.

As a result of tests and experiments in flax culture, in which he is the leading investigator in this country, Professor Bolley of the North Dakota experiment station has proved conclusively that the reason for the spread of the common idea that flax is hard on land is not actually due so much to this as that, as usually grown, spores of the flax wilt are left in the soil, which not only attack a subsequent crop of flax disastrously, but do not improve conditions for any other crop. Professor Bolley states that by disinfecting flax with the formalin solution and sowing on land free from wilt spores good crops can be produced year after year, having done this himself consecutively for a period of sixteen years. However, he does not recommend such continuous cropping, but the use of flax in a four crop rotation. As a result of his experiment Professor Bolley has developed wilt proof types of flax that do well on ground badly infested with this plant disease.

WILL WORK FEWER ACRES.

A reader of these notes who for several years past has been working some 600 acres of land in company with a brother-in-law has decided for the coming season to devote his energies to a quarter section farm. He tells us that with so many acres to look after the work sort o' drove him and his partner and the women folk as well and that the hired man problem presented a serious and often vexing factor in a situation that was already tense and complex. Our friend thinks that with the smaller farm he will be able to manage better, drive his work instead of having it drive him, and that in the showdown when the season's work is over he will have just about as much on hand as a reward for his labors. We believe this man is sensible and that he would be still more so if he should erect a couple of silos and work 100 acres instead of 160.

SHE LOST FIVE DOLLARS.

A grocer who is a good friend of the writer has lately been investigating the prices listed in the catalogue furnished the members of a well known club. On four of the first items listed he found that the prices charged club members ranged from 30 to 100 per cent higher than the prices he was asking for just as good a grade of the same commodities, or better, in his own store. And he further reports that a lady who had recently joined the club figured up a list of goods amounting to $15 which she had recently received and found she could have got the same goods or better of the home grocer for $10, thus saving $5 in cash besides freight charges. This reveals a situation that other small town merchants should look into and take advantage of through well directed advertising in the home paper.

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

Although weather conditions this past winter have been almost ideal for logging the cut in Northern Minnesota will not be as heavy as in some former years. Two reasons are given—the cut on burned over land the last two seasons was heavy and some of the companies are well stocked. Last fall the market was drooping and some of the larger operators did not make plans for a heavy cut.

An important movement for better farming and more farmers for Western Minnesota was launched at Morris when the West Central Minnesota Development association was organized. As a preliminary the Stevens County Farmers' club was formed and it is proposed to organize similar clubs in all the adjoining counties.

The state board of health will take steps at once to investigate the prevalence of trachoma, the contagious and destructive eye disease which was found among the Indians in Minnesota by the Graham congressional investigating committee.

Seventy wolves were killed and $1,050 bounty claimed on them in St. Louis county the first fifteen days of this month. St. Louis county leads all other northern counties of the state in number of wolves slain every month in the year.

D. M. Neill of Red Wing was reelected president of the Minnesota Federation of Commercial clubs for the fifth consecutive time at the annual convention in the Radisson hotel in Minneapolis.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

Edwin Ward, stock buyer for the hospital for the insane at Fergus Falls, was found lying on the ice at the center of a small lake near there with a deep gash on his head and bruises upon his body. He had laid there all night and his hands and feet were frozen. As a stock buyer he carried considerable money and it is supposed that he was assaulted and robbed.

Mrs. Lillian Verne Armstrong, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Birkholz of the Plaza hotel, Minneapolis, was robbed of $5,500 in jewels by a daring burglar who entered the second story of the Birkholz cottage at Palm Beach, Fla., while Mr. and Mrs. Birkholz and A. L. Belknap, vice president of the Minneapolis Insurance agency, sat at dinner.

William Carlson, fifty-five years old, a veteran section employe of the St. Paul road at Lake City, was run down and instantly killed by fast mail No. 56. Carlson was engaged in patrolling the tracks in company with another workman and evidently became confused due to the passing of another train on the opposite track.

Miss Mary Hiebert, daughter of P. A. Hiebert of Mountain Lake, is dead from burns received when her clothing caught fire while she was taking a boiler of water from a stove for the purpose of washing. The accident occurred at the home of A. Lehman, near Delft, where she was employed.

While at play in a barn Michael Kowalewski of Winona, ten years old, sought to peek through a knothole in a partition. As he did so one of the lads on the other side poked a sharp stick through the hole, catching the boy in the eye and literally tearing the optic from the socket.

Charles Pfeffer, farmer, had both arms cut off while sawing wood at the Brandin farm near Albert Lea. Pfeffer slipped and fell against the sawing machine and had both arms taken off before he could be extricated. His recovery is hoped for.

Clarence T. Edmunds was electrocuted at the General Electric company's plant at Minneapolis when a mercurial arc became short circuited, sending a strong current through his body. Edmunds was twenty-five years old.

Deputy United States Marshal Charles Kittleson has arrested Edward E. Horton, deputy postmaster at Stewartville, on the charge of having embezzled $1,170 from the money order department at Stewartville.

Fire at Bagley destroyed a number of business blocks, causing a loss of $50,000.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

Victor J. Welch, for thirty years a member of the Minneapolis bar and long prominent in the state militia, is dead, aged fifty-one. Mr. Welch's health began to fail three years ago and he spent much time at health resorts. He returned to his home last September and his health improved until three weeks ago when he began again to fail and the decline continued steadily until his death.

William Campbell, lacking but a few months of reaching the age of 100 years, a pioneer of the Northwest and a resident of St. Paul since 1854, is dead at St. Paul. Mr. Campbell was [illegible] active up to the time of his death and kept up his interest in [illegible] affairs.

John H. C[illegible], a prominent business man of [illegible] is dead at San Antonio, Tex., where he had been spending the winter. Mrs. C[illegible] was with him.

Peter Schw[illegible], mayor of Perham, and a [illegible] and brewer, is dead [illegible] He was sixty-seven years old.

POLITICAL NEWS.

The presence of President Taft in Chicago on March 9, when he will address the Swedish-American Republican clubs, is to be used to bring about a governors' roundup similar to the conference two weeks ago of the governors who are for Theodore Roosevelt. Invitations to all the pro-Taft executives in nearby states have been sent out by the Swedish-American league to attend the banquet in honor of the president.

Hiram Johnson, governor of California, heretofore an ardent supporter of Senator La Follette, issued a formal statement in New York city saying that in his opinion Theodore Roosevelt should be the next Republican nominee for president of the United States. The statement was issued, he said, with Mr. Roosevelt's knowledge, but not necessarily with his sanction.

President Taft has denied emphatically that in a speech in New York on Lincoln's birthday he said "That the people are not fitted for self government." In the first official statement of this kind the White House has issued during the Taft administration the president calls the circulation of this story a "falsehood."

After a thorough investigation into the political conditions at the request of Charles D. Hilles, secretary to President Taft, J. N. Dolley, chairman of the Kansas state central committee, has been forced to advise the president that Kansas is for Roosevelt.

Contest for control of the Oklahoma delegation to the national convention, waged between Champ Clark and Woodrow Wilson, resulted in a compromise agreement whereby a split delegation will be sent to Baltimore.

Delegates at large from Missouri to the Democratic national convention, selected by the state convention at Joplin, were instructed to cast their ballots for Champ Clark for president.

UNFORTUNATE EVENTS.

Impelled by a fierce gale from the north fire swept through the eastern section of Houston, Tex., destroying property valued at nearly $10,000,000 and rendering homeless more than a thousand persons. Several large manufacturing plants were burned down, over 250 homes were razed by the flames and several lumber yards, cotton warehouses and compresses were destroyed. Not less than fifty-seven city blocks are in ashes.

Eight persons are dead and about fifty injured as the result of a tornado which swept through the western outskirts of Shreveport, La. All the dead are negroes with the exception of the two-months-old baby of A. J. Manheim, whose home was demolished. The baby's body was found a block from the Manheim residence.

Twenty persons were killed and at least a score injured, many of them seriously, in the cyclonic storm which swept through a strip of Northern Louisiana and Mississippi. Dozens of small houses were blown down and many cattle killed. The property damage will perhaps total $500,000.

One steamer, the Old Dominion liner Madison, was sunk, twenty-two other ships were driven ashore and three scows were carried out to sea by the worst gale that has raked the Virginia coast since the big storm of 1879.

COW TESTING ASSOCIATIONS.

Probably there is no single line of endeavor being put forth, having in view the improvement of dairy conditions, that surpasses in practical value the work being done by cow testing associations all over the country. For the benefit of those not acquainted with the work of these co-operative associations it may be said that they are formed voluntarily by farmers interested in dairying and living within a given contiguous territory. The number of cows included in these testing experiments runs from 300 to 500, and the milk from each cow is weighed and tested once each week or month, this depending upon whether one or more dairy experts are in charge of the work. But even with the less frequent tests a very good idea is obtained of the actual performance of each cow. Besides eliminating the star boarders—the loafers that don't pay for their salt, let alone their feed—the experts in charge of the testing work give the farmers belonging to the associations valuable aid and suggestions along the line of the most economical as well as best balanced rations possible with the feeds available in a given locality. The work of these cow testing associations has been attended with most gratifying results, dairy work has been simplified and systematized, and the net returns per cow have been substantially increased. There is not a district anywhere where dairying is practicable on a commercial scale that the organization of such a cow testing association would not be an all round benefit. Of course a farmer can do this testing work on his own hook, but the co-operative work is the more satisfactory.

HOW TO PREVENT SUN SCALD.

This tree disease or ailment, which cripples many a thrifty fruit tree, is the result of rapid and extreme changes in temperature. While it may occur in either summer or winter, the greater damage is usually done in the latter season and in late more than early winter. The damage is usually confined to the trunk and is invariably found on the south or southwest side—that portion of the tree which received the most direct rays of the early afternoon sun. The death of the bark from sun scald is due to the starting of the sap in that portion of the trunk by the rays of the sun and a killing of the protoplasm in the sap by a succeeding freeze. Damage from sun scald is easily prevented by protecting the trunks of the trees from the rays of the sun, and there are several ways of doing this. A thin strip of wood wide enough to give the needed protection is excellent. In the section in which the writer's ranch is situated a shake, or split pine shingle, is handy. The trunk may also be shielded with a strip of gunnysacking or wrapped with corn stalks. Whitewashing produces the same result, as it enables the bark to reflect instead of absorb the sun's rays. Small trees that have been provided with the wood veneers have all the protection they need. In sections where damage from sun scald is likely to be serious the trees should be given protection in some one of the above ways at once.

IGNORANCE OR CARELESSNESS?

It is hard to account for a good many accidents that happen to individuals here and there over the country almost every day except on the basis of either gross ignorance of the nature and properties of things folks handle or carelessness that is well nigh criminal. A case in point is that of a northern Mississippi valley farmer who, following a spell of below zero weather, sought to expedite the thawing out of frozen water pipes by saturating rags with gasoline poured from a five gallon can. A smoldering fire was in the rags, with the result that an explosion and blaze followed, in which the man was so badly burned that he died after ten or twelve hours of terrible suffering. Another man put gasoline on kindling and held a three gallon can of the fluid in his hand while he scratched a match and set fire to it. He was terribly burned and his new house nearly burned up. These tragedies resulted from ignorance of the properties of gasoline, which is as treacherous as any element known. In the same week another fellow had three fingers of his right hand torn off as the result of an explosion of a dynamite cap which he was trying to thaw out with a hot poker. It thawed, with the result above noted.

A SOFT WATER SUBSTITUTE.

Where snow or rainwater cannot be had hard water can be cleansed so that it will answer practically every purpose. With water containing an average amount of lime one tablespoonful of concentrated lye will cleanse two pailfuls. If very hard more will be required, while for water containing little lime less will do. In any case water from a given well contains a quite uniform quantity of lime, and a little testing will indicate just how much lye should be added. If the water is too slippery after cleansing too much lye has been used. If a few drops of lye solution added to some of the clear water remaining after the first sediment has settled causes more of the precipitate to appear it shows not quite enough lye was added in the first place. Many who have got [illegible] cleansing of water down fine would not take free water if they had to pay for one quarter of the [illegible] it.

A GOOD INVESTMENT

Men Have Been Made Very Rich From This Same Investment In A Very Short Time.

You Can Learn More About This Proposition By Calling at The Evelyn Hotel.

One good investment is worth a lifetime of labor. By investing $50 to $100. You may easily become immensely wealthy and able to live comfortably the rest of your life. Listen now, men and women who work on a salary and save but little. One oil well flowing 100 barrels a day, at an average price of 60c per barrel (it is now worth 75c a barrel) giving an income of $60 per day or $21,900 per year. Then so many of the wells, in fact nearly all of them flow much more than 100 barrels per day even up to 3000 barrels daily.

Many men have been made rich in a day by striking one good well. Why not you? Don't let this opportunity pass by, but get in where you have a chance right here at home.

You may say you do not like to risk anything in oil wells. But every man who makes money has to run a risk to do so. Take your big merchant for instance, and look how much money he is compelled to invest before he can start in business He devotes the best years of his life —3 out of every 100 succeed—and after these long years of labor and worry he is pretty well fixed financially while in our proposition he may invest $100 and in 6 months or a year have more money than your town merchant makes in all his life. 'Tis true it requires money to develop the oil fields, but accordingly, it does not take so much money from each person, and when we get a well there is an immense profit for every one who has a share.

Don't delay a day but come right to the hotel, pay your money, and get a deed to your lots. Six years ago the oil and gas industry in Oklahoma was practically unknown. This year Oklahoma will produce more oil and gas than any other state in the union and the industry will continue to grow from year to year because they are developing more wells all the time.

One has only to visit the state and find these statements to be true. If you have any notion that you would like to make some easy money, come to the Evelyn Hotel where we will take special pleasure to explain the proposition to you. Nothing ever made men as much money in so short a time as his investments in oil. Nothing ever will. Come now, investigate to your entire satisfaction, and invest and you will never be sorry. You may work 30 years on a salary and have nothing but your salary. You may invest $100 in our oil land and in six months or a year be worth $100,000. Think of it. Act quickly. —Woolsey & McLennan, Evelyn Hotel. adv

San Diego's Exposition.

There's something doing every minute in the political line in Washington, and even Expositions get mixed up in the political whirl, just like everything else. The San Diego people, however, having for the present finished their work with Congress, have again turned their undivided attention to the work, and the slogan, "San Diego is building an exposition NOW," is emblazoned on their banners.

Perhaps the "average reader," if that mythical personage still lives may sniff at the idea of expositions and say: "Oh, yes, I've seen world's fairs and they're all alike."

THIS WILL BE DIFFERENT.

There is a deadly sameness about expositions, it is sadly true, and one often feels that the exposition he sees is lamentably like all those he has seen before. In fact, it may be said of most that they are merely county fairs raised to the nth degree. But at last there is to be one which will be different from any other World's Fair ever held, in this or in any other country. Mind you, it will not be the biggest, the most costly the most heterogeneous; it will be the MOST INTERESTING.

There are scores of scientists in Washington, many of them in the service of the government, who are taking a deep interest in the San Diego Exposition. Their interest in it does not rest on the fact that it will show to a gaping crowd the largest area filled completely with canned tomatoes, neatly arranged cases of geological specimens, woodworking machinery making doors and sash, Floffy Ruffles pulling candy and putting it up in paper wrappers, or the hundred other stock features of the traditional fair. Rather do the wise men feel interested in the San Diego Exposition because it will bring together in a great living exposition practically all of the various families of aboriginal peoples inhabiting the American continents. It will portray the manner of life of the people who once lived in Yucatan, in Peru, in New Mexico, anywhere in America, with the monuments, utensils and relics which tell their life history. There will be graphic representations of the manner in which the Reclamation Service turns the desert into blooming gardens, and the Forest Service will show how it fights the all devouring forest fires, how it guards the great timber areas from destruction, and how it afforests the denuded lands and prevents the erosion of fertile farming country by uncontrolled floods.

FREE MATINEE

Made a Hit With the Children of This City and Surrounding Country Last Saturday.

The Lyceum Theatre was crowded to its capacity last Saturday afternoon at the "Free Matinee." Nearly every child in this city was at the show, as this was an entirely new feature to the children. Manager Morgan had promised them for a long time that he would give them a free show the first Saturday the day electric power was put on, and Mr. Morgan did live up to his promise. He stated that he was very sorry that he did not have more room to accomodate each child with a comfortable seat. Those who were unable to get a seat stood in the isles and some of the smaller ones were unable to see much of the show. This matinee will make the the children feel very warm towards Mr. Morgan and will assure him a larger attendance to his regular shows.

The show consisted of three reels of pictures with a complete vaudeville act which made a big hit with the youngsters.

Buying Seed Corn.

The shortage of good seed-corn is becoming more apparent every day. Many of those who had seed-corn for sale have already sold out, and the farmer who sold out, or is short of seed, is beginning to realize that good seed is going to be in big demand and that there is going to be a continued advance in the price until the planting season is over.

Any marked advance in the price is bound to bring into the market a considerable amount of undesirable seed-corn. Even corn that in other years would have been used only for feed is certain to be offered for seed. This will mean that any one who must purchase seed-corn will have to exercise unusual care in his purchase.

Only varieties known to ripen in the locality should be purchased; and, whenever possible, it should have been grown in the immediate locality. Corn that requires the full length of the season to ripen in a given locality, cannot with safety or profit be grown very much farther to the northward. This will mean that farmers should insist on seed-corn that is high in its germination test and strong and vigorous in its vitality. Good vitality makes seed-corn worth a good price, while poor vitality makes it dear at any price. Seed-corn growers are usually honest; but, if one would know what he is buying, he should purchase his seed-corn ONLY ON THE EAR. This will afford him an opportunity to know the type of corn that he is buying; and, when bought under a guarantee as to its germination-test, he can give it the individual-ear test and compel the seedsman to make good his guarantee.—O. M. Olson, Extention Division, Minn. College of Agr.

A Young Conductor.

Walter Henry Rothwell, conductor of the St. Paul Symphony orchestra which will visit Thief River Falls on its spring tour of the western states, is considered by music critics all over the country as one of the foremost conductors in the United States.

Although a young man, being only 34 years of age, his reputation has spread throughout Europe and he is recognized in all the musical centers on the continent as a really great musician.

Mr. Rothwell spends all of his summers abroad, often directing the best known orchestras in Europe by invitation. During his visit in Europe, he makes it a point to replenish the library of the St. Paul orchestra, and he has been able to pick up many novelties which the orchestra would not have received otherwise. The library of the St. Paul organization is said to be more valuable than any in the United States.

Died at Middle River.

On March 7 occurred the death of Mrs. Margaret Brantd at Middle River, of bronchial pneumonia. Mrs. Brantd was 66 years of age and leaves a son and two daughters to mourn her loss. Mr. H. M. Hicks of this city was called to Middle River to prepare the body for shipment to Graceville, Minnesota where the funeral took place from the Catholic church.

Boy Scouts Take Hike.

Last Saturday morning the Boy Scouts of Thief River Falls with their leader, Rev. Boyden, took a hike down the St. Hilaire road on the east side about three or four miles, built a fire in the woods and cooked coffee and had their lunch. They then crossed the river and returned home on the west side. This was the first hike for the boys and it is needless to say that they hope it won't be the last.

Musical Act.

The Lyceum has secured an act for the last half of this week which is a refined and novel musical act. Bingham and Gable, the instrumental "trio," two soloists of recognized ability.

Bingham, the world's greatest artist, plays two cornets at once and at the same time. This act will be new to the theatre goers as nothing of this nature has appeared at the popular little play house. There will also be a matinee at 2:30 p. m. sharp Saturday, at which time a complete show will be presented for your approval. Be on hand to see this big feature act.

Farm for Sale.

Well improved, 160 acres in the town of Smiley, NE¼ of Section 34 Four miles east of Hazel. John Niwirth, Hazel, Minn.

Hans Angle and Al Betcher returned from Stephen last week where they had been to witness a wrestling contest between Prof. Buckner and L. Curtis. Curtis had agreed to throw Buckner a certain number of times in an hour, which he did. It took him 6 minutes to throw the proffessor 5 times. This did not satisfy the crowd so Betcher went on and wrestled a 28 minute exhibition match with Curtis.

If you have a friend who has recently gone away on a visit kindly tell us about it. It will assist us in getting out a newsy paper for the public.

Several cars of household goods and farm machinery were being unloaded in the mill yard the first of the week. It belongs to people who have recently bought land in this vicinity.

Attorney Brown has had the office in the rear end of the old First State bank building papered and painted and has moved his office there for the present.

C. L. Hanson was attending to business matters in St. Hilaire last week.

GOOD WRESTLING

Was the Source of Great Enthusiasm at the Lyceum Theater Tuesday Night.

Local fans had the opportunity Tuesday night of witnessing a real clever wrestling match between Loren C. Curtis of Halstad, weight 153 pounds, also champion of North Dakota for 12 years, not having been defeated by men of his weight during these years.

This match may well be termed as a "hummer" from start to finish. Both men worked hard all through the game, showing clever mat work and breaking some very painful holds. The first fall Curtis seemed to have the advantage over Powers, as he seemed to be unable to do anything. Later in the game Powers began to show up by getting Curtis into some very tight places.

The first fall was awarded to Curtis, after 18 minutes, the hold which he used was a hammer lock and body hold. Curtis was working earnestly all through the game and showed the fans that he was well worthy of the applause and cheers which he received.

Powers secured the second fall in 40 minutes and 10 seconds, his clever opponent making him work all the time. They both exhibited very clever and active wrestling, at times the fans were spell bound and during this fall both men were met with great cheers from the audience. Powers used a double bar and head lock on Curtis to secure this fall.

The last fall also went to Powers after 2 minutes and 20 seconds, the hold being a half Nelson and crotch. Owing to the fact that Curtis in the second fall had his shoulder badly hurt was a handy cap for Powers, but never the less, the match was satisfactory and everyone expressed themselves as being very well pleased with the match. The audience was of a good size and very orderly.

The preliminary match between Bill Kline and the "Big Dutchman," (as he was introduced by the referee) but later announced himself as Farmer Jones of Devils Lake, N. D., was a "short but sweet match." Jones secured the first fall in 2 minutes and the second in 10 seconds. Jones is one of the North Dakota heavy weights and challenged any 5 local men and agreed to throw them in 1 hour, but his challenge was not accepted.

It is expected that Gustafson of Winnipeg will wrestle here in the near future. Watch for date of next match.

SCHOOL NOTES

The agricultural department of the high school is conducting a series of meetings this week in the neighboring rural schools. Mr. Chapman, the poultry expert, is seriously ill and Mr. Bigsbee was substitated for him on Monday. The latter gentleman is one of the regular institute workers and will not fail to satisfy his audiences. Mr. Haskin of the local school is devoting his attention at these meetings to corn and is organizing small corn clubs. Mr. Chapman will appear later in the term.

The enrollment in the city schools to March 1st consisted of 578 boys and 671 girls, which was devided among the several schools as follows: Lincoln High School-90 boys, 155 girls; Washington-156 boys, 183 girls; Knox 134 boys, 144 girls, Central-198 boys, 189 girls, total 1249. It will be noticed that the Central is the only school in which the number of boys exceeds that of the girls.

The spelling match between the 5th grade pupils from the three grade buildings last Friday evening was a perfect success and furnished much entertainment for the 500 children and grownups who attended. The first part of the contest was a written test of 50 words; the second a test by teams of the best ten spellers from each building, each team spelling for eight minutes; the third was a "spell down". The 5th grade from the Central won all three contests, but by a very narrow margin in each case, the Washington school being second and the Knox third. Mallie Hermanson and Shefferd Johnson for the Central were the winners for their side. Ruth Ringham stood longest for the Knox and Andrew Kisch for the Washington.

The board of education met in regular monthly session Wednesday evening.

School closes on March 29 for the customary one week of Easter holidays.

A novel exercise in domestic science was inaugurated in the high school last Friday and it will be repeated every week until the close of school. Miss Ward, the instructor, gave one dollar to Irene Higgins, Ethel Hilbats, Alma Olson and Esther Kelberg, with instructions to make their own purchases, prepare the best meal they could with the proceeds of the dollar purchase and invite ten visitors and serve them with their cookery. It cost the ten so favored ten cents each to partake of the product of the kitchen and they all acknowledged that they had received more than their money's worth. The meal, its service and the attention of the waiters were proof that some useful information of various kinds is being dispensed in the domestic science department.

The normal training department visited the Sathre and Ness Schools

SAYS VALLEY BEATS IOWA

Former Iowa Farmer Says St. Hilaire Raises Much More Than $100-an-acre Iowa Land.

Returned from Trip to Iowa This Morning Better Satisfied than Ever.

George Eastman, a well known farmer east of St. Hilaire, spent a few hours in the city, returning from a visit to his old home at Waterloo, "with more enthusiasm than ever for the Red River Valley and a bad cold which I accumulated there as usual" is the way he put it. To the Times representative he added:

"I farmed for years in Iowa, and the best corn crop that I ever raised from my $100 an acre land was 80 bushels per acre. Last year on my farm east of St. Hilaire I raised 20 bushels of flax per acre, 24½ bushels of wheat per acre, and 100 bushels of corn figuring 37 pounds to the bushels.

"I would not trade my St. Hilaire farm, acre for acre, with my old farm near Waterloo which I sold for $100 per acre, and no man can raise so much from it, acre for acre.

Not only that, but when it comes to climate we have Iowa backed clear off the map. I always feel good here and am never bothered with a cold. This is the fifth winter I have made a trip to Waterloo and every time I have returned with the same beastly cold, or one similar. There is snow and slush down there now, with the meanest kind of weather, and I am heartily glad to get back.

"We are just beginning to realize what grand opportunities farmers have in this section and how few drawbacks we have compared with some of the states where land is valued much higher. As a matter of fact I would not return to Iowa to farm if I received a farm as a gift. As long as I farm I will farm right here in the Red River Valley.—Crookston Times.

THE CONSANGUINITY OF THE HUMAN RACE

God Determined In Advance the Bounds of the Nations.

Pastor Russell Finds Great Changes Imminent Amongst the People of the World—The Barriers of Language Yielding Because of the Approach of the Divinely Appointed Times.

PASTOR RUSSELL

London, March 17.—London Tabernacle was crowded today to greet Pastor Russell. Behind him on the rostrum were the six other members of the Foreign Missions Investigation Committee, viz., Gen. W. P. Hall, United States Army; Prof. F. H. Robison, Dr. L. W. Jones, Mr. J. T. D. Pyles, Mr. E. W. V. Kuehn and Mr. R. B. Maxwell, all of the United States.

His text was: "God hath made of one blood all nations of men, for to dwell upon the face of the earth; and hath determined the times before appointed, and the bounds of their habitations, that they should seek the Lord, if haply they might feel after Him and find Him." (Acts xvii, 26, 27.) He said:—

My text is taken from Saint Paul's address to the Athenians, whom he found so religious that they had erected an idol to every known deity, and then one prominently "to the unknown God." The words of my text have been repeatedly borne in upon my mind in my sojournings of the past four months. I marveled as I perceived the thoroughness of the division of the human family as a result of the confusion of language.

Conditions Now Changing.

It should not surprise us to find at this time great changes imminent amongst the peoples of the whole world. The bounds of human habitation and the barriers of language are rapidly yielding because of the times of Divine appointment which have been reached, the period mentioned in Daniel's prophecy as "The Time of the End." (Daniel xii, 4.) And here we must remind you afresh that The Time of the End does not mean the end of time. It merely signifies the time for the ending of the present order of things, that a New Order, the Messianic Kingdom, may be substituted. Twenty-five centuries ago God determined this time and gave us four important proofs by which to identify it.

(1) The first sign of The Time of the End was to be, "Many shall run to and fro." How wonderfully this prophecy is fulfilled before our eyes today! Its fulfillment has been in progress, especially, for fifty years, and it is less than eighty years since the first locomotive was built. The nations, first separated by diverse languages, have kept well within the bounds of their habitations until now; suddenly we have a running to and fro in fulfillment of this prophecy which is amazing! The various nations and languages are being scattered all over the earth.

(2) The next step in the prophecy marking The Time of the End of this Age is, "Knowledge shall be increased." The general increase of education amongst all classes is a logical result of the commingling of humanity and the lessons of comparison and competition being learned. Suddenly, as though in obedience to the Divine command, nation after nation has made schooling free; and more, have made it compulsory; and this spirit is spreading to Oriental lands. The whole world is waking up! Personal rights and national rights are everywhere being discussed. The schools of India are said to be turning out a million graduates in the English language every year. The Chinese also are introducing English schools. What will be the results? Enlightenment? Yes! Godliness? No! Contentment? No! Dissatisfaction, war, strife, anarchy, are coming to the world by leaps and bounds, as a result of general education and the breath of liberty, because not backed by reverence for God and His will.

These Days Will Be Shortened.

(3) The third item indicative of The Time of the End of this Age is: "The wise shall understand;" not the worldly-wise, but [illegible] toward God." And so we find it today. While the great and the learned and the masses are rapidly drifting into heathenish darkness, [illegible] from the Bible, God's saintly [illegible] every nation and denomination [illegible] gradually seeing more clearly the teachings of the Scriptures.

(4) [illegible] of the fulfillments of Nos. 1 [illegible] 2, [illegible] beating us, portentously. No. 4 [illegible] "There shall be a time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation." That time of trouble [illegible] up on the horizon of [illegible] nations. It comes in the [illegible] knowledge. It [illegible] utter wreck of all [illegible] for the inter[illegible] of God's dear [illegible] long waited [illegible] "Thy [illegible] earth as in heaven." [illegible] declared [illegible] the days were shortened [illegible] flesh be saved, but for the [illegible] those days shall be [illegible] of the elect;" and [illegible] they will establish [illegible] will be cut short. Dan xii 1; Matt. xxiv, 21, 22.

While sheep will eat practically none of the manger leavings of cows, horses will, and this applies especially to the woody stalks of both clover and alfalfa.

Desirable as it might be, silage has as yet proved to have little or no value as a part ration for the hog. However, it can't be beat for the dairy cows and steers in the feed lot.

In Sheboygan county, Wis., is a country school which has but one pupil, but the directors prefer to maintain the school at a cost of $500 per year rather than close it and unite with adjoining schools.

A pie crust that is so greasy as to be nearly transparent is not only to be condemned from the standpoint of digestibility, but is a wanton extravagance when material for shortening is as high priced as it is now.

That mice now and then nibble harnesses is said to be due to their desire for the salt that is on them from the sweat of the horses. If salt is placed where it can be got at easily the rodents will not bother the harnesses.

The peach buds in states along the New England coast and farther south are said to have been badly frosted by the recent cold weather. This is likely true, but it will not be necessary to worry about the shortage in the peach crop until next summer.

An excellent ointment to rub on the cow's udder at calving time in case a tendency to inflammation appears is made by melting two ounces of gum camphor with half a pound of clean lard or mutton tallow, mixing well and applying twice a day.

While beans fed alone to hogs make a pork that is soft and lacking in texture, they do very well when cooked and fed with an equal amount of corn. The combination makes a more economical ration than either beans or corn fed alone.

That old chestnut, the prayer chain, is still being worked on a good many well meaning yet gullible folks. An analysis of the business shows at once that it is founded on a conception of religion that would shame the middle ages, and there is reason to believe that those who give aid in perpetrating the fake today show that they are morbidly superstitious if not positively guilty of blasphemy.

Many feeders and a good many dairymen make a serious mistake by skimping the feed of their young stock during the winter to the point of just keeping them going rather than feeding them in such a manner that they will make rapid and satisfactory gains and be in shape to make still more rapid growth when spring and pasture time comes. Every day that such young stock is kept down by scant rations means just so much loss in the end.

If there is any experience under the sun calculated to make the human feel he is a pretty small potato in the presence of the great natural laws and forces it is when he is trying to thaw out a frozen water pipe some morning with a rag and a kettle of fast cooling water when the thermometer is hovering near the 20 below zero mark. It would be interesting as well as humiliating to know how many of just such teakettles it would take to give us spring or summer heat.

Uncle Sam's corn club for boys is an organization which has 55,000 members, the most of whom live in the states located in the recognized corn belt of the country. Last year each of these boys planted and harvested an acre of corn (one of the conditions of membership), and at the end of the season the first prize for best yield was awarded to Bennie Beeson of Monticello, Miss., who raised 227 bushels on his acre. Considering the fact that the yield of corn the country over is about twenty-eight bushels, this youngster has made a record that he may well be proud of.

In a newspaper dispatch a few days ago the writer noticed another instance of the explosion of a farm gaslighting plant which, through some defect in mechanism or carelessness or ignorance on the part of those operating it, exploded and not only badly wrecked the house in which it was located, but killed or seriously injured several of its inmates. The frequency with which these plants are blowing up would seem to urge the greatest caution in regard to them. It's nice to have the house well lighted, but it's a whole lot better to keep on using kerosene lamps than to install a plant, beastly made and be blown into "kingdom come."

EYE SORES OR BEAUTY SPOTS?

The widcawake people of Minneapolis carried out a plan last year in connection with the handling of her vacant lots that might well be worked by other towns and cities having a needy class of people and acres of idle land that have heretofore been weedy eyesores during the summer season. The main motive that led to the carrying out of the plan referred to was a civic celebration in July, at which time it was desired to have the city present the neatest and most attractive appearance possible for both residents and visitors. There were in all 5,000 acres of this idle land. A generous response was made to the appeal of the city officials, and the result was that 2,000,000 square feet of land was planted to vegetables and 250,000 square feet to flowers. Among the results achieved were the beautifying of the city through a substitution of beds of flowers and straight rows of vegetables for vast expanses of burdock, fennel and pigweed, the giving of healthful outdoor exercise to many a stale and pale indoor employee, such a production of vegetables that the cost of fresh vegetables was reduced from 20 to 50 per cent, while not the least of the benefits was an encouragement of a spirit of sociability and neighborliness as a result of meeting in the garden work among people who prior to that time seldom saw or spoke to each other. This method of handling vacant city lots is commendable from every point of view, and it is none too early right now to make preparations for the tilling of lots which in the past have been doing nothing but produce a lusty crop of weeds.

PROFESSOR BOLLEY ON FLAX.

As a result of tests and experiments in flax culture, in which he is the leading investigator in this country, Professor Bolley of the North Dakota experiment station has proved conclusively that the reason for the spread of the common idea that flax is hard on land is not actually due so much to this as that, as usually grown, spores of the flax wilt are left in the soil, which not only attack a subsequent crop of flax disastrously, but do not improve conditions for any other crop. Professor Bolley states that by disinfecting flax with the formalin solution and sowing on land free from wilt spores good crops can be produced year after year, having done this himself consecutively for a period of sixteen years. However, he does not recommend such continuous cropping, but the use of flax in a four crop rotation. As a result of his experiment Professor Bolley has developed wilt proof types of flax that do well on ground badly infested with this plant disease.

WILL WORK FEWER ACRES.

A reader of these notes who for several years past has been working some 800 acres of land in company with a brother-in-law has decided for the coming season to devote his energies to a quarter section farm. He tells us that with so many acres to look after the work sort o' drove him and his partner and the women folk as well and that the hired man problem presented a serious and often vexing factor in a situation that was already tense and complex. Our friend thinks that with the smaller farm he will be able to manage better, drive his work instead of having it drive him, and that in the show down when the season's work is over he will have just about as much on hand as a reward for his labors. We believe this man is sensible and that he would be still more so if he should erect a couple of silos and work 100 acres instead of 160.

SHE LOST FIVE DOLLARS.

A grocer who is a good friend of the writer has lately been investigating the prices listed in the catalogue furnished the members of a well known club. On four of the first items listed he found that the prices charged club members ranged from 10 to 100 per cent higher than the prices he was asking for just as good a grade of the same commodities or better, in his own store. And he further reports that a lady who had recently joined the club figured up a list of goods amounting to $15 which she had recently received and found she could have got the same goods or better of the home grocer for $10, thus saving $5 in cash besides freight charges. This reveals a situation that other small town merchants should look into and take advantage of through well directed advertising in the home paper.

THE TOWNSHIP SCHOOL.

Sufficient time has gone by so that it is now possible to judge the experiment of a consolidation of country school districts by the results that have been attained. In a majority of cases the feasibility as well as utility of the plan has been demonstrated, and only in rare instances has the consolidation plan been given up and the old district plan returned to. Among the favorable results which have been noted are better attendance, a better spirit among the pupils due to a greater number of pupils and larger classes and more competent and satisfactory instruction due to higher priced and more efficient teachers. There are a lot of school townships all over the country where the little white school houses with their five or six pupils ought to join hands in the establishment of a township school such as the one referred to.

Official Paper of Pennington County

Last week the work of putting together the second large electric engine was completed and both engines are now in constant use, one being run during the day and the other at night. Friday was the first time for a number of months that this city had street lights and it certainly gave our city a different appearance. Now that continuous power is assured it will be found very necessary for a number of extensions to be made on the east side and places about our city.

As this is to be a "banner year for Thief River Falls in every way, we hope to see our citizens take extra pains this spring in cleaning up and improving their property. Would it not be a good plan to get together on this question and plan a grand old "clean up day" and get even the children interested and make each one try to do a little better than his neighbor along this line? We are all agreed that in the past there have been a number of back yards and alleys that have been a disgrace to a city the size of ours, and we feel assured that a little interest along this line by each and every citizen will bring about the desired effect. So let's get together and boost for a "Clean UP Day."

The Symphony Orchestra.

The St. Paul Symphony Orchestra, under the conductorship of Walter Henry Rothwell, will leave St. Paul March 26 on a spring tour of the Northwest, which will include fifty-three cities and require six weeks' time. Fifty-five musicians in addition to Mr. Rothwell and the managing staff of the organization will make the trip. The orchestra will visit Thief River Falls on Friday, March 29, afternoon and evening.

Louis W. Hill, president of the St. Paul Orchestra Association, is giving the details of the trip his personal attention, and it is not unlikely that he will accompany the orchestra on part of the tour.

"I consider the St. Paul Symphony Orchestra as an important educational factor," said Mr. Hill when asked the purpose of the tour. "Its educational value to St. Paul is incalculable. There is no reason why the territory tributary to St. Paul should not benefit by the orchestra, and as the St. Paul season closes in March, we decided to send the orchestra west."

Although a young organization, being only six years old, the St. Paul Orchestra has advanced so rapidly that it is now considered one of the standard musical organizations in the United States. It has brought St. Paul to the front as a musical city and given that city the name of being the most liberal supporter of high class music in the United States.

ABOUT THE STATE

News of Especial Interest to Minnesota Readers.

FOR RELIEF OF RED MEN

Bill In Lower House of Congress to Provide Funds for Indians on White Earth Reservation.

Immediate relief for the stricken Chippewa Indians on the White Earth reservation is proposed in a bill introduced in the lower house of congress by Representative Graham of Illinois, chairman of the house committee on expenditures in the department of the interior. The measure provides for an appropriation of $25,000 to be immediately available for giving food, shelter and clothing to the afflicted members of the tribe.

Chairman Graham, after a three week tour among the Minnesota Indians, accompanied by Representative George of New York, was so struck by the evident destitution and disease among the tribe that he concluded upon his return to Washington that relief—and immediate relief—is absolutely necessary. His bill is the result.

It provides that of the millions of funds now placed to the credit of the Chippewas in the treasury $25,000 shall be placed at their disposal at once.

SOLDIERS READY TO MOVE

Fort Snelling Troops and Militia Under Waiting Orders.

Active preparations have begun, following orders received at St. Paul from Washington, for the mobilization of the Fort Snelling troops and state militia on the Mexican border.

The quartermaster's department notified officials of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad at once to provide cars sufficient for entraining the entire Fort Snelling garrison on an hour's notice.

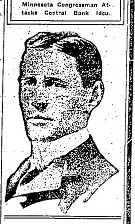
Pursuant to orders issued by Colonel Earl D. Luce, First regiment M. N. G., recruiting officers were detailed to the St. Paul armory to receive enlistments to bring the various companies up to the full complement of 105 men.

The company captains were instructed at once to eliminate all guardsmen who will not be able to go to Mexico.

Major G. K. Sheppard is in personal charge of recruiting at the armory.

C. L. LINDBERGH.

Minnesota Congressman Attacks Central Bank Idea.



SEES JOKER IN ALDRICH BILL

Representative Lindbergh Opposes Measure In House.

Shooting holes through the Aldrich central bank plan, in which he declared there is a neat little "joker" carefully concealed, Representative C. L. Lindbergh of Minnesota renewed his attack in the house on the money trust.

Lindbergh said the Aldrich "association" plan provides for taxation of United States bonds transferred to it by the banks composing the association, but without peremptorily requiring such transfer.

"The banks could transfer these bonds to individuals friendly to the money trust," he added, declaring that in this way they could avoid paying taxes on $900,000,000 and thus save $244,000,000 in taxes during the years the bonds are maturing.

Lindbergh objects to Aldrich's alleged plan to give $20,000,000 to the association free of charge.

"The plain people have to pay for every dollar they get," he declared.

FOUND MANY INDIANS SICK

Professor Moorehead Tells White Earth Experiences.

Senator Moses E. Clapp of Minnesota and Darwin Hall were severely arraigned by Professor W. K. Moorehead before the house committee on expenditures in the interior department. Moorehead told of his experiences on the White Earth reservation when he went there as a special investigator.

The witness said that in 1908 he told the authorities in Washington of the bad state of affairs among the Chippewas in the vicinity of Leech lake, Cass lake and Red lake. His request that he be sent to White Earth to ameliorate their condition was refused.

"Finally, with the aid of funds from the Indian commission of which I am a member, and other funds donated by philanthropists, I went to White Earth in 1909," said Professor Moorehead, "and conducted an investigation. I found that the Indians were sick and diseased and that they had been swindled out of their lands. No full report of this condition, it seems, had ever been made to the government and I was opposed on many sides. I gathered 100 affidavits concerning the land situation to take to Washington."

Earnings of Great Northern for Seven Months.

The gross earnings of the Great Northern railway for the first seven months of the present fiscal year were the largest for any similar period in the history of the system.

The total operating revenue of the Great Northern from July 1, 1911, to Jan. 31 1912, was $40,424,161.86, an increase of $2,315,652.93 over the corresponding period of the previous year.

Total operating expenses were $20,902,171.84, a decrease of $[illegible], leaving net revenue at $19,522,[illegible], an increase of $2,270,623.85. PASTOR RUSSELL IS HOMEWARD BOUND

Foreign Missions Investigation Committee on the Atlantic.

They Will Report at a Mass Meeting in the New York Hippodrome Next Sunday Afternoon at 3 o'Clock—The Interest Centered Is Country Wide.

PASTOR RUSSELL

Mid-Ocean, March 24.—On the Atlantic, speeding homeward, the Foreign Missions Investigation Committee is in communication by wireless. It is understood that arrangements have been made for a public mass meeting in New York's largest auditorium, the Hippodrome, next Sunday afternoon, to hear the report of this committee respecting its findings. A report of the same will be given in these columns.

Pastor Russell's discourse today was reminiscent of Arabia as the Cradle of our Race. His text was: "As all in Adam die, even so all in Christ shall be made alive; every man in his own order."—I Cor. xv, 22, 23.

Arabia is accredited with being the ancient Eden, eastward in which was the specially prepared Garden wherein our first parents had their trial—not for a reward of heaven or a punishment of eternal torment, but for a reward of everlasting life under perfect earthly conditions, or for a penalty of death. Here man, created very good, in the image of his Creator, sinned and became subject to the penalty of sin—"The soul that sinneth, it shall die." Here also is Mount Ararat, on which the ark rested after the flood, and from which came forth the family of Noah to people the earth afresh. Thus was Arabia twice the Cradle of mankind.

"Israel Hath Not Obtained."

The first declaration of the Gospel, the first mention that Divine favor would yet rescue mankind from the reign of sin and death, was made, not publicly, not to all of the race, but merely to one man, the friend of God—Abraham.

But God gave Abraham words only, "Wonderful words of life"—that in him and in his posterity eventually all the families of the earth should be blessed. But there was not a sign of change so far as the Divine dealings were concerned. Doubtless it was because God foreknew that approximately four thousand years would intervene before the blessing of the world that He added His oath to His promise.

In due time, at Mount Sinai, God entered into a Covenant with the children of Israel, by which He agreed to bless them and to fulfill in them the Abrahamic promise that they, as Abraham's seed, should bless all the nations of the earth. The only condition connected with the promise was that they were to show their fitness to be the Divine channel. Full of joy and faith the Israelites obligated themselves thus.

Ah! much they knew not. They did not realize their own weakness and imperfection through the fall and their inability to fulfill the Divine requirements, the spirit of the Law of their Covenant. They soon found that while the Law said, "He that doeth these things shall live," they were not able to do those things; and therefore they were all dying like other men. Had God deceived them and entrapped them? No. God's proposition was simple enough. He was merely teaching them a great lesson—that sin as a disease had taken hold upon humanity and that, however willing they might be, all were weak and perverse and unable to fulfill their good intentions.

As a consolation God assured Israel that He would send the Deliverer, One still greater than Moses, who had delivered them from the Egyptian bondage. This great Deliverer would deliver them from the greater bondage of sin and death, so that they would be able to obey the Divine Law and be used of God in blessing and instructing other nations. This Greater than Moses, they were assured, would inaugurate a New Law Covenant, based upon better sacrifices than the blood of bulls and goats, and He was known to them as Messiah, the Messenger of the New Covenant.

Heirs of the Promise.

We must never lose sight of the kernel of the Gospel Message. The ultimate blessings of the Messianic Kingdom, through the Seed of Abraham, will be to all the families of the earth, but previously, the Divine work is the calling of the Seed of Abraham which is to do that work of blessing. The promise was not made to all the families of the earth, but to Abraham and his Seed. Hence the heirs of the promise are not all the families of the earth, but the Seed of Abraham.

To the saints of Galatia, who had been Gentiles, but had accepted Jesus and were trusting to become joint-heirs with God's dear Son in His Messianic Kingdom as members of His Bride Elect, Saint Paul writes, "If ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's Seed, and heirs according to the promise." (Galatians iii, 29.) How strange that we should have lost sight of this great inheritance! With our Lord, as Abraham's Seed, we shall inherit the earth; as it is written, "I will give thee the heathen for Thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for Thy possession."

FOR STUDY OF TUBERCULOSIS

Stockholm Proposes to Pay for Special Course for a Number of Physicians. Conference in Regard to Future Government of Spitzbergen Islands. George Brandes, Danish Critic, Celebrates Seventieth Birthday.

SWEDEN.

The medical board at Stockholm has taken up the matter of giving stipends to a certain number of physicians to enable them to take a special course in the study of tuberculosis. It is proposed to give aid to six at first as an experiment, the means to come from the jubilee funds, which are designed for philanthropic work. It is the intention that physicians receiving this special aid shall take up public work in the campaign against the white plague and thus help spread information as to how to guard against the disease and how to care for those who have it. The medical profession is more and more coming to realize that prevention measures are more certain of results and a general campaign of education is being undertaken.

The total abstinence people of Sweden have asked the church authorities to set aside one Sunday in the year on which the ministers of Sweden be requested to preach on temperance. The authorities have refused to grant the request on the ground that the texts for every Sunday in the year have been established and are not to be changed. Furthermore the Sunday proposed, the first Sunday in Advent, was especially objectionable. The authorities might well have added that the ministers who preach on the regular Gospel or Epistle texts have more than one opportunity a year to preach on temperance.

A recent dispatch from Christiania says: The annual conference in regard to Spitzbergen between Norway, Sweden, Russia and Denmark has just been held in this city and like the conference of last year was conducted behind closed doors. Until the governments of these countries make public the proceedings there can be nothing but conjecture as to the nature of the proceedings. The delegates to the conference from Russia and Sweden were welcomed in an address by Minister Irgens in behalf of the Norwegian government. Minister Krupensky of Russia responded and nominated Minister Hagerup of Norway as chairman of the conference. Hagerup's nomination was endorsed by Minister Falkenberg of Sweden. The purpose of the conference is to establish some form of government for the Spitzbergen islands, whereby property rights will be defined and properly safeguarded. The islands have no organized government and are not laid claim to by any of the European governments. Russia, Sweden and Norway, however, being most directly interested in the development of the minerals of the islands, have taken the initiative toward establishing a joint provisional government.

DENMARK.

George Brandes celebrated his seventieth birthday recently and the occasion was observed by all classes of people, both rich and poor. They were all desirous to do honor to the great critic, who has earned for himself an international reputation. Brandes has often been referred to as the "Taine of the North" and ranks among the greatest critics of the world. He did perhaps as much as any one to make known the merits of both Ibsen and Bjornson and he is looked up to with reverence by the younger literary set of Scandinavians. King Frederick awarded Mr. Brandes a golden medal on the occasion. It was a medal of reward in pure gold and has never before been awarded to a Danish citizen. The medal has been awarded Dr. Sven Hedin of Sweden, Mittag-Leffler, Nansen and Roald Amundsen.

southwest of town last week. The students are studying rural schools at first hand. They found Mr. Jackson in the Sathre school and Edna Evenson, a 1911 graduate of the normal department, in the Ness school.

Messrs. Haskin, Bigsbee and Hay, accompanied by the high school band, attended a meeting at the Christianson school on the Ridge on Tuesday. Three districts joined forces for this event and fairly bulged the walls of the building in their endeavors to find room. These rural meetings are a part of the Putnam school work and they are proving most enjoyable to all concerned, and are certainly profitable to school students.

W. C. WINTON DIES IN WEST

Well Known Duluth Lumberman Passes Away In Los Angeles.

Brother of C. J. and D. N. Winton of Thief River Falls Lumber Company.

W. C. Winton, 44 years of age, one of the most prominent lumbermen and dealers of timber lands in Duluth, died yesterday at Los Angeles, Cal., of typhoid-pneumonia, after an illness of about two weeks. Mrs. Winton, who is a daughter of S. G. Knox, was with him at the time of his death, having left for Los Angeles about ten days ago upon receiving word of her husbands serious illness.

Until eleven years ago Mr. Winton was actively engaged in the lumbering business in this section of the country, being associated with Mr. Knox in the Knox Lumber company. They operated on a large scale at Winton, on Fall lake on the Vermillion range, the village being named for Mr. Winton. They sold out eleven years ago to the St. Croix Lumber company, which was controlled by Stillwater people and which was absorbed by the Hines interests about two years ago.

Since that time Mr. Winton has been interested in timber lands in the South, together with other Northern capitalists who have invested in the Southern field. He has been making his home in Duluth at 1511 East First street and maintained an office in the Palladio building with Mr. Knox.

Mr. Winton was born at Addison, N. Y., where his father, the late David Winton, was a well-known banker. His mother and his sister, Mrs. McVitty, are now at Salem, Mass. Three brothers, Charles, David and Maynard Winton are residing at Minneapolis. Mr. Winton also leaves his widow and three children, Knox, Frances and Mary Winton.

During his residence here Mr. Winton took an active interest in the Y. M. C. A. He was a leading member of the First Presbyterian church and a prominent Mason.

The body will be brought to Duluth and it is thought that it will reach here next Wednesday, accompanied by Mrs. Winton. The funeral arrangements will be announced at that time.—Duluth Herald.

Land Business in Valley Good.

The steady increase in the demand for northern Minnesota land is shown by the business being done by the United States office in Crookston. The increase last summer resulted in the department sending an additional permanent clerk to the office here, and the work has again so accumulated that word was received yesterday that a third permanent clerk was to be sent here.

Land filings and final proofs are being received at the rate of from twelve to twenty daily and the homesteaders are coming from practically every state in the union and many from Canada. Asked as to the reason of the increase in business Register A. P. Toupin said today:

"From what I gather in talking to the majority of them, they have heard of the prosperity of this section. While there have been partial and total crop failures in many of the agricultural states the past few years, the Red River valley and northern Minnesota generally have continued to prosper. We have had good crops every year. Many are coming because of the success achieved by the dairymen of this section. They have heard of the prices carried off by northern Minnesota butter and cheese, and Illinois and Iowa farmers keep closer watch of these things than many people think. They have also heard of the successful raising of corn and this is attractive to many.

"For some reason, we are getting many applications for homesteads from people who have been in Canada and desire to farm in Minnesota.

TO POTATO GROWERS.

Preparation of the land—Potatoes require rich, deep, mellow soil. Clover sod fall plowed is best. It should be plowed at least six inches deep in the spring. Apply the manure before discing or hoeing and mix it in. Cultivate several times before planting.

Planting—Plant in the latter part of April or early part of May. Plant in rows 36 inches apart and drop the pieces 14 to 18 inches apart in the rows. Plant 4 inches deep. Cultivation—Cultivate 2 or 3 times before vines are up. Cultivate deep at first, 4 or 5 inches before the roots are formed, and shallower later in the season. Cultivate once a week in summer, and after each rain. Keep out weeds. It is not necessary to hill the potatoes. Spraying—Do not let potato bugs eat the leaves. Use paris green. One heaping tablespoonful to a pail of water. Stir up well before applying. Cutting seed potatoes—Cut the average sized potato into 4 pieces, first once lengthwise and once more crosswise. See that there is at least one eye in each piece. Storing seed—Keep in cool place. Don't let potatoes sprout; sprouting weakens the seed.

Do Not Be Misled.

(From the St. Paul, Minn., Dispatch.)

The problem that is agitating the Modern Woodmen of America in this state is particularly interesting to those outside the order, as well as those within it, because of the principle involved. The contested point is a proposed increase in rates. It is not for outsiders to attempt to pass on the merits of the case at issue among the Woodmen, but the public will not be slow to recognize the importance of having the rates high enough to pay the cost of the insurance. While the rates imposed on members of that order may be high enough, it will be conceded that many fraternal organizations have been furnishing insurance below cost. That has been possible because of the acquisition of ever increasing numbers of young members.

It is obvious that pyramiding could not continue indefinitely; that a time would come when the insured must expect to pay for what he gets or eventually there would be nothing left to get. The adoption of fraternal insurance rates based on accurate mortality statistics is a question of national importance. There are more than nine and a quarter millions of people in this country carrying fraternal insurance totaling more than ten and one-third billions of dollars. Every bit of the protection implied in those figures should be fortified by rates that will leave no chance for disaster. It is the duty of the state to see that its citizens are not misled by insurance schemes that are not sound.

Attention.

BASE BALL BUG

Is Beginning to Bite the Local fans. Lots of Good Material for the Making of a Fast Team.

Considerable talk has been circulated during the last week about a base ball team. This is always the time of the year that base ball begins to "thaw out;" this city has a good bunch of players all of whom no doubt will be here during all the summer months.

The first that must be taken up is the arrangement for a meeting at which time the best officers be elected and a good fast team be organized, the material for a fast team can be secured here in the city as there are a lot last year's players, all of whom made good last year.

When the meeting is called have it understood, the parties who are elected Captain and Manager are to run the team. It has been rumored that the ground back of the Auditorium be fitted up and put into condition for the ball park, as the fair grounds are too far out of the city and people do not feel like walking so far on a hot day.

In order to have a good ball team the public must take as much interest in the team as the players do turn out and give them your support financially, base ball is like everything else it takes money to run the team. It is sincerely hoped that everybody will be interested. Watch for date of meeting and turn out and let the boys hear your oppinion.

Ladies Please Take Notice

that on Friday and Saturday March 22nd and 23rd we will place on Sale our Salvage of Silk. Consisting of Suesines, Japonese, Foulards and Satins, don't forget the Silk Sale, Friday and Saturday. At the Roller Rink. By the Langseth Merc. Co. Fire Sale.

A Secial Train.

Arrangements have been completed to run an excursion on the Minneapolis Soo Line for the St. Paul Symphony Orchestra, on March 29. The train will leave Winnipeg at 7:25 A. M. and will arrive at Thief River Falls about 12 o'clock M. stopping at all intermediate points. The train will be held to take people back after the concert. Another train will probably come up from Crookston in the afternoon so as to pick up people at Red Lake Falls and St. Hilaire.

This looks like show business, judging from the number of tickets already sold, the business done by the Minneapolis Orchestra last spring will be equaled if not exceeded.

Were Badly Injured.

While fixing the pump at the Soo water tank Tuesday Frank Hoppe and Iver Urvald, of Thief River Falls, both employes of the Soo Railway company, had an accident in which the former sustained a broken leg and the latter the fracturing of two ribs. While raising the water pipe from the well to be repaired the pipe slipped and the two men were caught under a clamp attached to the top of the pipe. Dr. Hansen was summoned immediately to administer medical aid and they were brought back to Thief River on the local that evening.—Plummer Pioneer.

Auto Clubs Banquet.

The recently organized Automobile Club of Thief River Falls is taking steps towards perfecting an organization that will become an important factor in city affairs and in improvement to the tributary country. Organization will be completed at a banquet to be held at Hotel Evelyn March 27, at 8:00 o'clock, P. M.

The auto owners of the city are giving the banquet and members of the Automobile Clubs of Warren, Crookston, Red Lake Falls, St. Hilaire, Middle River and Roseau and other surrounding towns will be guests of the local club. Covers will be laid for Seventy-five or a Hundred people. The Menu containing such delicacies as Vulcanized Lamb, Hard Oil Cake and Mitred Nuts.

The organization is important in one respect at least and that is in regard to its avowed purpose of improving the public highways. This movement is a commendable one and will result in a great deal of benefit, not only to the auto owners but to all others having occasion to use the country road and will doubtless result in a harmonius understanding between the road authoritis of the various towns and the automobilist.

A program concerning subjects of interest to the auto owners and the citizens alike has been prepared and will be presented after the banquet.

The program is as follows.

Toastmaster - C. L. Dolmer

Benefits of Organization - W. F. Powell, Warren, Minn.

The Bachelor's Auto - C. L. Hanson

Si Sells His Rat Skins.

(By A. W. Clark.)

"These yer settlers comin' in is interfearin' mightily with trappin' up on the Moose," said Si as he broke off some tobacco from a twist of homestead and filled his corncob pipe. "I reckon Tige an' me'll ha'ter take the trail fer Canada soon ef they keep a crowdin' on us this a way. Hit's jes allarmin' the way they'r comin' in sp'ilin' the country. I was down to Thief River las' week an' sole' my rat skins. Fust time I been thar since 1900, an' I could then catch mush rats in the pot-holes right in main street, but the town's all spread out now an' sp'iled the trappin. Ever'body wore gum boots in them days an' hit was notain' to see fou' hosses pullin a baby wagon an' a man or two follerin' with a rail. I tuck Tige along to let him see the fashions an' have a taste o' civilization an' tame dogs. He is half catomount an' half wil' cat. He is docile an' tractable at home but hit kep' me purty busy to keep him from fightin' the new clo'se; he jes mortally hates them pegtop pants, but a'ter he'd helped hisself to a tame dog or two that nobody seemed to claim, he began to enj'y hisself mindin' his own business, which is a rare accomplishment, even in dogs.

"When I come to look around fer the old land marks, I found myself plumb lost; couldn't find moself no how. Old fur house, whar we used to sell our pelts, gone; old postoffice, kep' in a cracker box, gone; Squaw Point an' the old warehouse at the landin', gone, an' not a shack behind. Whar is the old town an' all the people as used to live here, anyhow? Tige, les go home, we can't stan' this lonesomeness. Why we used to know ever'body; when we didn't have a church in town, ever'body turned out to the meetin's, hilt in the little school house; when the river was full of birch bark canoes an' the woods full of Ingins; when we didn't have a doctor or a lawyer in a hundred miles, an ever'body lived in peace an' plenty; when, if a man got a leg broke, we cut it off with a cross cut saw, drown'd his sorrows in the flowing bowl, an fiddled at his funeral. In them days, ef a hoss thief came to town, ever'body felt hisself in honor boun' to he'p him hide his hosses till the clouds rolled by, so that the name of our city should mean something more than an emty sound."

"Mr. Kelly foun' us wanderin' roun', an' tuck us to the Rumbly Show, hilt in a marble factory whar they make tombstones. Thar was about 300 farmers an' a whole lot o' Rumbly agents an' speakers thar, an' at fust I thot they were sellin' the monuments at auction, but one of the fellers came up an' pinned a Rumbly badge on me an' said they were havin' a school mettin', teachin' the farmers how to run Rumbly Oil

FOSSTON OUT CLASSED

By Thief River High School Team at The Lincoln School Gymnasium Last Friday evening.

Local Boys Played fine Game and Exhibited Clever Team work Throughout whole Game.

Fosston claiming the championship of this part of the state came up Friday night with the intention of rubbing it into the High School team of this city, but lo and behold, they went home defeated by a score of 48 to 10. It seemed too bad to have the local boys play the "champions" off of their feet, but the boys had no sympathy for them, they continued to practice throwing baskets all through the game, and the "champions" were easy money. They lined up as follows:

FOSSTON		T. R. F. H. S.
Movold	Forward	Brude
Overly	Forward	Carter
Hanson	Center	Fossum
Rue	Guard	Adolphs
Peterson	Guard	Boyden
Quarnes	Guard	Iverson

Field goals by Brude 3, Carter 16, Fossum 4, Adolphs 1. Fouls committed by Carter 3, Adolphs 2, Boyden 3, Iverson 2. Fosston made 4 foul goals and committed 2 fowls.

After the first half the score stood 12 to 6 in favor of the locals. 20 minute halves were played. The last half the local boys made 36 scores while their opponents were making 4. If the Fosston team ever got trimmed in their life they surely got it last Friday. Richardson and Naplen were the referees and did justice to both teams.

The High School Band, under the direction of Benj. Lonson rendered very appropriate music for the occasion. The music in some instances being very sad in order to make it fit with the Fosston team.

After the game the Junior girls entertained both basket ball teams, a very pleasant evening was spent and the visiting team was very well pleased and satisfied with the way they were entertained.

The Gymnasium was crowded, which enabled the boys to pay all expenses of the visiting team and still have a small sum to put in the treasury.

We must not neglect to state that the high school has a great bunch of rooters and deserve much credit for the way they helped to win this big game.

PAUL FOURNIER SHOT BY G. CYR

Paul Fournier was shot and killed Friday morning at Quiring by his cousin George Cyr. Fournier was about to attack Mrs. Cyr with a dirk, when Cyr grabbed a gun from the wall and shot Fournier, killing him instantly.

The three are said to have been talking when Fournier became angry, and drew a dirk from his shirt, saying, "I have killed two up here and will kill two more now." He started after Mrs. Cyr but was shot before he could harm her.

Paul Fournier was implicated in the murder of N. O. Dahl and daughter in Quiring 8 years ago, Fournier and "Shorty" Wesley being arrested, charged with the crime. They were found guilty and sentenced to prison for life. Wesley is still in prison but on an appeal the supreme court granted Fournier a new trial, being acquitted. Since then he has been living on his homestead in Quiring. —Kelliher Journal.

CAUSE OF MUCH COMMENT

Dr. Sven Hedin's Recent Statements Regarding Russian Aggression—Traffic in Denmark Practically Suspended Because of Intense Cold Weather. Movement to Bring About Teaching of Norwegian in American Schools.

SWEDEN.

There are a number of correspondents both in Sweden and in Norway who commented very prolifically regarding Dr. Sven Hedin's recent statements regarding Russian aggression. In the Norwegian papers there has naturally been various comments inasmuch as it would seem that Dr. Hedin does not look upon Norway as being especially friendly to Sweden. In this latter contention, however, the good doctor, awarded with honors and crosses of merit from nearly every scientific society in Europe of any repute, may be mistaken. But taking the words of a Norwegian-American correspondent for granted the writer submits the following in full and begs leave to the readers of these columns to draw their own conclusions:

Sven Hedin, the noted Swedish explorer and scientist, who has on various past occasions created considerable stir by addresses on political subjects, has published a warning to the people of this country against the danger of Russian aggression and pictures a time Russian artillery may be planted in the streets of Stockholm, when the schoolhouses may be used as Russian barracks, and when Russian horsemen may be quartered under the very shadow of the statue of King Charles XII.

Stealthily and noiselessly as the cholera Russia has advanced step by step through Finland toward the Swedish border. Finland, Hedin says, is now a crepe-draped sarcophagus. Railroads, built for the transportation of troops, are being pushed through Finland toward Sweden.

And yet, says Hedin, the Swedish people put aside the dark forebodings that intrude themselves, in order to amuse themselves with the flowing cup and at the gambling tables.

Hedin also raises the question whether Sweden is entirely safe to the west. He has but little liking for the Norwegians and speaks with bitterness of events in 1905, when Norway declared the union dissolved. Remarking that Norway in accepting the guarantee of European powers also assumed obligations which may lead to unforeseen consequences, he says:

"After all, can Norway be considered a sovereign power, which independently determines its own political policy? What about the powers that are a party to the guarantee? A person in private life undertaking responsibilities for another person, also has not a little so say with regard to the actions of his ward. What of such a relation between governments?"

So much interest is being shown in the coming Olympian games in Stockholm and so many people from all parts of the world, especially from the Scandinavian countries and Germany, England and France, have signified their intention to see the games that it is feared that the city will not be large enough to accommodate all the people. There is, therefore, every effort being made to prepare the necessary rooms and accommodations.

A gratifying fact to note is that the seed growers and seed dealers of Sweden are receiving large orders from all parts of the globe. The most satisfactory feature of this trade is that England and Germany afford the best markets, although those countries are noted for the fine seeds which they produce. The prospects are that the seed crops of this year will break all former records.

J. Andreen, representative of the Swedish Machine company of Stockholm, has just completed a 1,600-mile trip through Sweden, most of which was made on bicycle. It is a singular thing that the bicycle holds its own in Sweden so well, especially in the southern country districts. The Swedish Machine company continues to sell a large number of bicycles throughout the country.

DENMARK.

The month of February brought the cold weather to its culmination point in Denmark. The Danish waters, especially the sound and the Big and Little belt, have an ice extension pointing oceanward the like of which has not been seen for thirty years or more. As a result of all this cold, snow and ice traffic has been practically crippled. Traffic on the Aarhus-Kullundborg route has been abandoned altogether and this is something that has not happened for many years. The steamer Flonda is stranded on Thuno Ron. The Danish torpedo boat Guldborgsund started about two weeks ago for Fredrikshaven with orders to bring food for the inhabitants there, who were reported starving owing to the crippled traffic and cold. It was reported from Fredrikshaven recently that there were 300 families there, mostly fisher folk, who were without food and had to be cared for at once. The direct mail connections between Copenhagen and Bornholm have been so crippled that the mail has had to be sent to Bornholm from Copenhagen via Malmo and Ystad. The traffic connections with Copenhagen and the islands have all been crippled and some entirely abandoned. Traffic will continue to be in a precarious state until the spring ice floes have passed away.

A recent telegram from Copenhagen says: Bendix Thostrup, a member of the Danish Greenland expedition which returned recently, has published an exceedingly interesting and instructive scientific report regarding researches conducted by the expedition along Greenland's eastern and northern coasts. It shows that the old American Eskimos penetrated the country as far as the eastern coast of Greenland. Many ruins of Eskimo villages were found along the route taken by the expedition, showing that they must have been traversing the eastern and northern sections of the island several hundred years ago. It further proves that the last Eskimo tribe of which any trace has been made lived about 77 degrees north until as late as 1870. The only Eskimos that were found now were those living on the east coast of the island, at Angmasalik. They came originally from the west coast.

On June 1 another Greenland expedition will start out. The expedition will start from Copenhagen June 1 and the expenses of this expedition will be defrayed by the Carlsberg's fund of the Danish capital. It is expected that the expedition will return during the latter part of 1913. Captain P. J. Koch, who is in command, has made several trips to the interior of Greenland and knows parts of the island well. Much interest attaches to the expedition, which will gather collections of scientific value, besides making geographical observations of vast importance to the National Geographic society of Copenhagen.

The little Norwegian navy was put to a mobilization test the other day and it was proven that in less than thirty hours the Norwegian fleet can be placed in fighting trim. It proved a busy time for machinists and officers and the order came from the government officials so suddenly that they did not have any extra time to spare. Such mobilization tests in winter are not without their value and it proves that even a little country like Norway can in event of trouble get ready to defend itself on short notice.

POLITICAL NEWS.

Colonel Roosevelt's own views of the present political situation and his reasons for entering the campaign have been explained by him. As he trudged along the country road from Oyster Bay village to his home at Sagamore Hill the former president talked freely of his prospects and briefly stated that his reason for entering into a political campaign as an active candidate was that men who share his political beliefs had convinced him that they needed an effective leader. As to the prospects of victory Colonel Roosevelt expressed the opinion that on a popular vote he would be the choice of his party by a big majority. How far this result might be modified by the interposition of the machinery of politics he was unable to say.

The Roosevelt campaign assumes definite form with the appointment of the men who are to assume active management. Senator Joseph M. Dixon of Montana is the man at the helm. His official title is chairman of the executive committee of the National Roosevelt committee. The executive committee is to have general supervision over the campaign. Senator Dixon's associates on the committee are Frank Knox, chairman of the Republican central committee of Michigan; William L. Ward, Republican national committeeman from New York; Walter Brown, chairman of the Ohio Republican central committee; Cecil Lyon, Texas national committeeman, and Senator William Flynn of Pittsburg.

The political situation in New England was canvassed at length at Boston by Colonel Roosevelt and the men who are leading the Roosevelt movement in the Northeastern states. Governor Robert Bass of New Hampshire; Fred P. Hale of Portland, Me., son of the former United States senator, and a score of other men active in politics attended a conference at the home of Grafton D. Cushing, speaker of the Massachusetts house.

That Senator La Follette will continue in the race for the Republican nomination to the presidency and that he will go into the Chicago convention with all the delegates he can muster to fight for the progressives principles he represents and to battle for the nomination, is indicated in a statement over the senator's signature published in La Follette's Magazine.

To combat the "governors' letter," which brought forth Colonel Roosevelt's announcement of his candidacy, the headquarters of the Taft boom at Washington gave out statements from nine Republican governors, including Governor Eberhart of Minnesota, endorsing the president for a second term.

Senator Dixon Says Minnesotan Will Be Neutral.

Senator Dixon, chairman of the Roosevelt campaign, made public a statement as follows:

"Another governor claimed by the Taft bureau as advocating the renomination of the president has announced his purpose to keep hands off in the pending nomination campaign. A telegram received from Minneapolis by the Roosevelt headquarters authorizes the positive statement that Governor Eberhart of Minnesota has definitely declared that he is taking no part in the presidential contest in Minnesota. His endorsement of Taft is purely personal. Many of the governor's friends are openly supporting Roosevelt without objection from him."

Governor Eberhart, however, assured the president that there was much sentiment in his behalf in Minnesota and promised him anew his friendship and such efforts as he could [illegible] put forth to procure his renomination and reelection.

It is not strange that the Florida, Mississippi or California winter appeals strongly to persons who have reached sixty and whose blood is thinner and flows a good deal slower than in days gone by. With means at their disposal they are perfectly justified in leaving the latitude of blizzards and 30 below zero weather.

The jackknife test for determining the vitality of seed corn may be all right some seasons, but the fellow who relies on it entirely this season in view of the generally poor condition of the seed will likely have quite a bit of time on his hands next husking time to whittle sticks or most any old thing else with this same jackknife.

That dairying is well worth while, even out in the drier country, is indicated in the report of a Ward county (N. Those having horses they intend to ship to Canadian markets will save themselves both expense and delay in shipment by having the horses inspected by the proper veterinary authority before putting them aboard cars. Farm fertilizers are a very desirable byproduct of dairy operations, but cows should not be kept as manure producers alone when their milk is not meeting their board bill. Weed these no accounts out by the use of the Babcock test and get in place of them cows that will give enough milk to pay for their feed and leave a margin of profit, besides the manure byproduct.

The value of Alaska's mineral production for 1911 is estimated at $20,370,000. Of this amount $17,150,000 was of gold. This total takes no account of timber, fish, furs or other products. In view of the marvelous wealth of this possession it is interesting to recall that when Seward purchased Alaska from Russia in 1867 at $7,200,000 he was considered pretty near loony.

A mighty nice illustration of a common failure to adapt means to ends is noticed in the case of the farmer who sells prime hogs for as low as $1.50 to $5 and then goes to the meat market and shells out from 20 to 22 cents a pound for bacon, from 18 to 20 cents for ham, 15 cents for pork chops and 15 cents a pound for lard. And there have never been finer hams and bacons than those our grandfathers used to smoke.

"Baby beef" is a term that is properly applied to the carcass of a calf that is kept fat and growing from birth and marketed at about eighteen months old. Not only is such beef the finest that can be produced—juicy and tender—but it is coming to be pretty well recognized among cattlemen that it is also the most profitable beef that can be produced where feeding and market conditions are at all favorable. With the advent of the silo in the corn belt to take the place of summer pasture the conditions are just right to raise such beef to advantage.

States which are doing much along the line of horse breeding have within the past few years passed laws which require that stallions which are to be used as sires shall not only be examined and pronounced clean and sound from the standpoint of physical health, but that a certificate showing that they are pure bred and properly registered shall be displayed near the stalls in which they are kept. This is merely a safeguard that every horse raiser who uses them is entitled to. These same laws also provide that where a grade sire is used this fact shall also be plainly stated on a poster placed in his stall, while a certificate of sound health and physical condition is required, the same as with registered horses.

The chestnut blight, which is said to have been introduced into America in chestnuts imported from Japan, is fast killing chestnut trees in all directions from New York city, where it first got a foothold. The blight is caused by a fungus that gets under the bark in places where there is a cut or break. The tree is girdled under the bark, and often the damage is not detected until the tree is nearly dead. Owing to the way in which the blight works, there is no spray which can reach it. Experts in the federal agricultural department who have been waging a campaign against the pest recommend the felling and burning of all chestnut trees within a zone of twenty miles about the infected area as the only method which will be adequate to hold it in check.

Official Paper of Pennington County

Cass Lake citizens took Dumas down several "notches," at their election last Tuesday by a vote of two to one.

To-day the 21st is placed on the calender as being the Opening Day spring. It certainly is a fine spring morning.

The prohibitionists seem to have full control of Roseau county as every village in that county went "dry' with the exception of Warroad.

We are submitting this week to our readers a ballot, for the purpose of getting a vote and sentiment of the people of this city and surrounding country. Kindly read the ballot over carefully, place an (X) after the purpose or candidate you prefer and mail it to us.

The Primary election was held in the state of North Dakota Tuesday, and the weather was very disagreeable and stormy. Both Roosevelt and LaFollette polled a large vote.

Bemidji's Irishmen, it seems, induced the Daily Pioneer of that city to do something in memory of St. Patrick, and its regular issue of the 17th was very neatly and attractively printed on green paper.

A farmer near Warren by the name of A. P. Vansickle marketed a load of Timothy seed consisting of 75 sacks weighing from 125 to 130 pounds each and it sold for $12.50 per 100 pounds, he received $1,204.45. This is remarkable Warren, you have shown us the check, the load and the man so we cannot doubt your word.

Our last week's paper was not as newsy as we would have liked to have had it, the reason is that we were very unfortunate and had a good lot of "hard luck," the reason for the "hard luch" was that our "press night" was on the 13th, according to the old saying, anything attempted on the 13th will never be successful and this seemed to be the case with us last week.

Thief River Falls merchants are preparing for a "Big Bargain Day," which will be called the "Symphony Orchestra Bargain Day." The object of this bargain day is to attract people to this city by giving them bargains and they may also have the opportunity of attending the concert which the orchestra will render in the afternoon and evening of Friday, March 29th. Read the bargains which are advertised in this issue.

ALLEGED "TRANSFER RING"

Minneapolis Street Car Conductors Accused.

Twelve street car conductors on various Minneapolis lines have been discharged as the result of an investigation of what officers say was a "transfer ring."

The men have been involved for at least a month and, it is said, have defrauded the company of several hundred dollars.

Three men were sent to the workhouse on charges of petty larceny. Another conductor is awaiting trial. According to General Superintendent Cairnes evidence against the other discharged men sufficient to cause their arrest could not be obtained. He said that the evidence was destroyed before it was learned the ring embraced so many conductors.

GOOD SEED IS VERY SCARCE

Situation in Minnesota Borders on a Calamity.

The scarcity of good seed for the spring planting of corn and smaller grains borders on a calamity, according to Professor C. P. Bull, agronomist at the agricultural college of the University of Minnesota and secretary of the Minnesota Field Crop Breeders' association.

The alarming situation has resulted in an appeal by Professor Bull to all members of the association to furnish the college with information as to the availability of good seed in any of the grains. The appeal took the form of a circular issued by Professor Bull and sent broadcast throughout the state.

GOES TO EASTERN COLLEGE

Miss Ada L. Comstock to Leave State University.

Miss Ada L. Comstock, for five years dean of women at the University of Minnesota, has been elected dean of Smith college, Northampton, Mass., a position ranking second only to the presidency of the college. She will leave Minnesota at the end of the present college year. Miss Comstock is a graduate of Smith college, class of 1897.

The work of Miss Comstock as dean of women at Minnesota was the cause of her election by the trustees of Smith college. At Minnesota her position is advisory, while at Smith college she will have a more direct control, probably will not teach but give her entire time to administrative work.

Miss Comstock's election took place early in February. She attended a meeting of the college trustees, of which she is one, was asked to leave the meeting temporarily and in her absence was elected.

Miss Comstock became an instructor in the English department at the university twelve years ago and later was made professor in the same department.

The homes which are without modern conveniences have escaped the inconvenience and annoyance of frozen and bursted water pipes with which those fortunate enough to have them have had to contend the past winter, which is another example of the old saying "There is no loss without some gain."

A Minnesota farmer protects his sheep from dogs in the neighborhood by putting up each night at different places in his sheep pasture the dummy of a man holding a stick shaped like a gun. He says a sheep killing dog will not go near enough to the contraption to find out whether it is a real or bogus man. He takes it for granted that it is the real article and hence passes on.

An interesting crop fact not generally known is that potatoes weigh much more than any other crop produced in the world.

According to the official chart of the American Poultry association, the parts of a male fowl which are passed upon in scoring a bird number twenty-five.

Many lambs which come in the early spring owe their lives to the kindly warmth of the kitchen range. It can be put to no more profitable use, however, if the lives are thus saved.

America failed last year to produce enough of many common food products for home consumption, and as a result potatoes, onions and cabbages are being imported from European countries.

It is considerably cheaper as well as all around more satisfactory to give the sow proper attention at farrowing time than it is to bury her little pigs that may die as a result of her owner's neglect or carelessness.

Out of the many who attempt poultry raising on a large scale comparatively few succeed. The safest and surest way is to "grow" into the business— begin with a small flock and with increasing knowledge and experience add to it.

City dwellers who depend entirely upon gas for cooking purposes have been put to no end of trouble the past winter on account of the gas freezing in the pipes. On the other hand, the intense cold is said to stimulate electricity used for the same purpose.

It is well and good, if unavoidable for one to have a mouthful of gold teeth at forty, but it's a good deal cheaper as well as less bothersome to look after the teeth as they need it from four years on. A transplanted tooth is never as good as the sound one that grows on its own roots.

Every person who reads and thinks and has any imagination at all is hoping that the brave folks who have pushed the tilling of the soil way out past the agricultural dead line which runs nearly due north and south through North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas and southward will this year, after two famine years, be rewarded with bountiful crops. Heavy snows in many sections of the territory referred to give promise of this, but it is hoped that showers may also come to help the good work along. In case settlers are in such dire straits that they cannot procure the necessary seed and feed for animals until harvest time state legislatures should authorize loans for this purpose.

A silo saves all the corn you grow in the hill, from the roots to the tassel. It saves the part of the crop that evaporates, dries up and blows away when you shock the corn. It adds 40 per cent to the value of the crop over the old way of harvesting. When corn is stored in a silo you can feed it at any time. A silo should be filled at a time when the corn is at its best and if left in the field longer would lessen its value. You have your corn crop where it can be fed this year or next or in three years from now with no loss by age. The total cost of filling a silo is only one half the cost of shocking the corn crop. None of the silage is wasted or refused by the stock. They relish it every day in the year.

SEVENTEEN VOTE OUT LIQUOR

"Drys" Make Gains at Town and Village Elections Held Throughout the State.

If the returns from the village elections held throughout Minnesota are any criterion there are to be many thirsty souls in the state during the coming year. Seventeen towns from which returns were received changed from "wet" to "dry," while but five previously "dry" towns voted "wet." Alexandria, with a record of sixteen years of continuous wetness behind it, voted to transform itself into an arid Sahara for the first time, and Spring Valley voted to cease selling liquor after an experience of nine continuous years of it. Excelsior, in Hennepin county, went "wet" after being "dry" five years. At Alexandria Rev. A. A. Secord was elected mayor by thirty-seven majority over the present incumbent, Michael Kraemer.

Andy W. Johnson was elected mayor of Cass Lake over Dr. D. F. Dumas, recently convicted of arson, by a vote of 179 to 85. The election was quiet and orderly, Sheriff Delury and County Attorney Funck being present all the time.

After the election Dr. Dumas made the following statement: "The opposition was too strong. I had to make my fight alone. The victor is a good, clean man and I believe the affairs of the village are in good hands and will be conducted as well as in the past. As far as my record as an official is concerned it is admitted by the opposition that it was good."

M. N. Koll, who managed the campaign for the victor, said that the result of the election speaks for itself. "The eyes of the state were on us," he said, "and we made good."

MANY SETTLERS ARRIVING

Great Influx of Immigrants Since the First of the Year.

The biggest and most valuable influx of settlers that Minnesota has ever known is on. More than 2,000 families, principally farmers from states east and south of the state, have already entered since Jan. 1. The movement is getting into full swing. As many settlers who are farmers with means came into the state last year as came in the entire three years preceding, and this year, if the present rate is maintained, twice as many will have settled here as came in last year. Railroad officials pronounce it the most important factor of the day in consideration of the future wealth and prominence of the state, and although the Far West movement is still on and thousands are going to the Western states and Canada, the immigration stream is being tapped within the borders of this state and Minnesota is profiting as never before.

SHOT TO DEATH BY COUSIN

Paul Fournier Slain in Row at Quiring, Minn.

Paul Fournier, convicted for killing N. O. Dahl near Quiring, Beltrami county, in the spring of 1907 and who began serving a life term for the crime and afterwards was found "not guilty" by a jury at a new trial, was shot and instantly killed at Quiring by his cousin, George Cyr. The latter voluntarily surrendered to John Morrison, Jr., deputy sheriff, in Red Lake agency.

Fournier had been residing with Cyr and his wife. Cyr claims that Fournier became enraged and rushed at Cyr's wife, flourishing a dirk and saying that he had killed two in the woods at Quiring and would kill two more.

Cyr grabbed a gun that was hanging on the wall and shot Fournier, instantly killing him.

Urine makes an excellent fertilizer for house plants, but it should be diluted by an equal volume of water before using.

Those who took the trouble last fall to plant bulbs are now reaping the benefit in the fragrance and beauty of hyacinth and narcissus.

In the feeding of a baby animal, human or otherwise, milk should not be expected to take the place of water. Milk is the food, water the drink.

A pen of a hundred good laying hens will produce enough eggs to supply the sugar and coffee of an ordinary family, besides supplying the home table.

On the island of Ceylon they now and then have a plague of snails which not only devour decaying animal matter, their usual food, but also the leaves, bark and fruit of trees.

A study of the various seed catalogues before the spring work opens up and a list of the seeds wanted for the vegetable and flower gardens will be found worth while when the busy time comes on.

The experience gained last year should guide us in meeting the duties of life this season. As years come and go let us separate the grain from the chaff and store up the golden harvest in the granary of old age.

Make all of the needed improvements on the farm before planting time. See that the fences, gates, barn, etc., are in good repair. Whitewash and paint will be a good investment in making the farmstead attractive.

It is said to be impossible to make a whistle out of a pig's tail, but a fellow living in Philadelphia has discovered a process whereby he converts cotton waste into artificial rubber. The imitation is said to be excellent and to wear well.

Some people have an idea that the only way to make dairying profitable is to have every possible contrivance that one can think of. This is hardly right or just. Many a man has been a successful dairyman with a limited equipment.

It is always well to discount from 100 to 300 per cent the yields that are reported and pictured in some seed catalogues that are being distributed about now. Oats are not going to yield, as promised, 150 bushels per acre, nor corn 120, nor potatoes 700 bushels.

Those fellows down in Nebraska, Kansas and Oklahoma who have been pretty badly blocked with snow the past few weeks put up with the inconvenience of the situation very good naturedly, for in this same snow they see the moisture necessary to the maturing of a crop the coming season.

Two neighbors living near Hazard, Ky., have had a long drawn out legal battle over an eight dollar hog, which was settled after having been twice in court by a decision in a third trial, in which the jury agreed that each litigant should bear his own share of the costs, which altogether amounted to a trifle over $500. Besides this, each party paid his own attorneys. It is needless to say that the cause of all this trouble was long ago converted into pork steak and bacon.

Husbandmen have been making hay for centuries, but it was not until a few months ago that a Mississippi valley farmer who evidently thinks as he works devised a plan for keeping loads of hay on bobsleds from tipping over. He rigged curved boards running parallel with the sleigh runners and fastened a short distance to either side and at a height of about a foot and a half from the ground. If the load tipped to either side these supports would rest on the ground and prevent a spill.

A north Iowa county has arranged a corn growing contest for the present season that has several features which make it worth reporting. A real estate association having offices in several towns in the county has offered prizes for the best five acre tracts of corn raised in the county during the season. The winner of the first prize will get $100 and the other four amounts ranging from this down to $20. Further interest has been added to the contest from the fact that since the prizes mentioned have been hung up fourteen landowners in different parts of the country have agreed to double any one of the prizes should any of their tenants be among the winners. It would be interesting to know just what the real effects of this contest will be [illegible] the corn raisers of this county this year.

To furnish poultry with green stuff, which they relish so much in the winter, oats may be planted in shallow boxes filled with earth. These should be kept where it is warm, should be well watered and receive the sunlight in order that the growth may be made quickly and so be tender.

Not in many a season has house cleaning time been more eagerly anticipated by housewives than it is now after a winter calling for unusually heavy fires, with their attendant dust and dirt, and for many of those who are in the habit of burning hard coal, meaning the additional trial of burning soft coal on account of short fuel supply.

The Amana Society of Iowa is one of the few successful communistic societies in this country. It has some 1,800 members, who are of German extraction, and these people together work 26,000 acres of land, besides having mills, shops and factories, from which are turned out, according to their motto, "only goods of the highest grade."

Both cottonseed and linseed meal are highly concentrated or rich foods and on this account should be fed sparingly. While as high as five pounds of the former feed constitute a day's feed in some sections of the south, in the north dairymen usually feed between one and two pounds a day, while steers being fitted for market are fed from two to three pounds daily.

The other day a Connecticut farmer died after nine weeks' illness following the sneezing in his face by a horse affected with the glanders. He contracted the disease in the manner mentioned, and there was no cure for him. Instances not a few of this kind would seem to suggest the utmost care on the part of those who have the care of horses afflicted with this serious disease.

In just the proportion that the flock of laying hens is denied the range which gives them necessary exercise opportunity should be given them for scratching in lively fashion for all the small grain they get. The seemingly small difference between getting grain this way or picking it out of a pan without exercise is often just enough to make the difference between eggs and no eggs.

Unless they have been coaxed under feed sheds and fed regularly it is to be feared that those European pheasants that were distributed last spring in different sections of the northern states have succumbed to a combination of deep snow and intense cold. They have not had time to get acclimated, but have been subjected to the worst winter in well nigh a generation. If any of these pretty birds do survive the rigors of the winter be kind to them.

We Yankees eat on an average three and a half bushels of potatoes annually, the total crop of the country varying but little either way from 300,000,000 bushels. Germany, with approximately two-thirds of our population, raises 1,600,000,000 bushels yearly, and the average per capita consumption, instead of being three and a half bushels, is twenty-five bushels. And it takes just as many "praties" to keep Paddy during a year as it does his neighbor across the North sea.

Interest in education in a general way will lag just so long as the quite prevalent plan continues of having the district school, with its poorly paid and often inefficient teacher and its quota of from four to fourteen pupils. Rural communities today need badly the larger and more attractive school building and grounds, the improved equipment and the more efficient teaching force that are possible as a result of uniting the several districts of the township. The question is one that is deserving of careful deliberation by all directors who are vitally interested in the welfare of the boys and girls of their several communities.

The importance of having the cow at her best all through her period of lactation is so great from the financial standpoint alone that she should receive especial care prior to, during and after calving. Besides receiving a ration in which fat formers are low and bone and muscle forming elements are relatively high, she should have comfortable and, above all, dry quarters. Just after the birth of the calf she should be given water that is warmed a bit and a half pail mess of oats soaked in warm water or a bran mash containing a [illegible] meal. This should be repeated [illegible] a day until her condition is [illegible] to normal. From then on she should be fed a balanced ration in proportion to her ability to assimilate it to advantage.

Many [illegible] to young [illegible] hood or [illegible] dwarfed and crippled physically, mentally and often morally because of the presence of adenoids—spongy growths in the nasal cavity, which not only prevent proper breathing, but seem to interfere with the child's [illegible] almost every [illegible]. The growths are removed by [illegible] operation. Where [illegible] [illegible] about which [illegible] is said in agricultural journals.

SEEKING MURDER SUSPECT

Duluth Authorities Expect Early Arrest of Alleged Slayer.

The sheriff's office at Duluth is making every possible effort to apprehend Frank McClusky, on whose land the body of Asa Shepard, the Kelsey homesteader, was found buried in the snow with evidence of murder, and expect to announce his arrest hourly.

Sheriff Meining received a telegram from Deputy Sheriff Frank Magie at Kelsey in which it is intimated that the murdered Grand Army veteran never went to Superior to mortgage his land. The deputy telegraphed that Shepard had no acquaintance in Superior, and that his murderer came to Superior with the deed to his farm and his pension papers. The deputy stated that McClusky was seen in Eveleth Feb. 29 with $300 in his possession.

VALUE OF A HOTBED.

Early lettuce and radishes, which will be most welcome after winter fare, may be had for the table if one will take the pains to build a hotbed. This may be made large or small, as one desires, but the method of construction is the same in either case. Select a spot with a southern exposure and protected from cold winds. The earth should be removed to a depth of six or eight inches from the spot decided on for the bed and about this a frame built which the window sash that one has will fit. This should be about eight inches deep on the south side and from twelve to fourteen on the north, the end pieces being cut on a slope to connect the two. Fresh horse manure containing a small amount of litter is the best "heater" to use. This should be put on evenly to a depth of five or six inches over the bottom of the bed and tramped or tamped down firmly. Several pailfuls of water should then be added, the sash put on and things allowed to warm up. After the manure has begun to steam in good shape the earth—preferably a rich mellow loam—should be added to the depth of about five inches, and as soon as this has become well warmed the seeds may be sowed. Not only should radish and lettuce be sowed, but cabbage, tomato, peppers, eggplant, cucumber and other vegetable seeds that are desired for early transplanting. More hotbeds fail through over than under heat; hence the bed should be watered freely and the sash raised to give ventilation when the weather is warm enough. In case of very cold weather the bed should be protected with straw, old carpets or some other covering.

WHY WE CULTIVATE.

Judging from items which have been appearing within the past few months in agricultural journals here and there, the family seems to be quite numerous of that type of farmers who seem to still hold the view that the primary object of cultivating a field crop is killing weeds and not stirring the soil to properly conserve moisture. The fact of the matter is that the weeds there are, few or many, are a decidedly minor consideration as compared with such stirring of the soil as will keep the surface loose and enable it to retain moisture. A few weeds here or there are a comparatively unimportant matter, for if the soil is loose so air and moisture can circulate through it readily a growing crop will mature in spite of them, but if through lack of stirring a surface crust is allowed to form the crop will make but slight progress, whether there be weeds or not.

THEN AND NOW.

It is a far cry from the days when our grandmothers, during a spinning season, sat up all night every other night to spin, to say nothing of making the children's and men's clothes after the cloth was done, knitting their stockings and mittens, dipping candles, drying apples and answering frequent calls to attend sick neighbors, besides performing the usual round of household duties, to the present time, when many women feel abused if they are expected to do their own work, which in many cases means doing what is left after the washing and ironing have been sent out, the bread bought and a woman hired to sweep and scrub. In this connection, however, it is not unreasonable to believe that the woman of today would have had the strength and inclination to do more had her grandmother done less.

CRITICISES YOUNG SWEDES

Prominent Physician Says They Are Mollycoddles and Frumps—Norway Enthusiastic Over Amundsen's Discovery of the South Pole—Mormon Missionaries Continue Their Activity in Denmark.

SWEDEN.

Are Swedish young men mollycoddles and frumps? This is what Dr. Nettelblad seems to believe and he bases his observations on those of Dr. Sven Hedin, who recently wrote a very caustic newspaper article in which he severely criticised the young men of the country, principally those who refuse to do military service. "Every word that has been uttered by Dr. Hedin is true to my way of thinking," says Dr. Nettelblad, "and I desire to heartily thank him for what he has said. There is an unlimited selfishness which seems to permeate them and it seems to increase from year to year and has absolute control over our young men. I have just received the annual reports from the various regiments and after reading them through I wish to underscore every word of the criticism entered by Dr. Hedin. When more than 25 per cent of a regiment reports sickness when a forced march of twenty miles is to take place, can one call this anything but weakness? Are they anything but frumps and mollycoddles? Military doctors are practically in despair and they cannot begin to supply the places made vacant by those pretending to be sick. This glaring weakness among our military young men is a most disgusting feature and one would really wonder how they would conduct themselves on a real battlefield. They are sorely in need of the most rigid discipline and something thoroughgoing and epochmaking will have to be done soon or our young military men will surely become nothing but a frumpish and good for nothing lot." Judging from other newspaper comment it would seem that it is not so much weakness on the part of the young men as it is their aversion for military service. The young man of today in Sweden is not very enthusiastic over military matters.

Interest and patriotism still clings to the memory of King Charles XII., as may be noted from the following: "A movement has been started in Stockholm to add a deeper interest to the monument in Artillery park commemorating the Swedes who died while fighting under the leadership of King Charles on the battlefield of Pultava, in the war with Russia, by burying beneath the monument the skulls and bones recently brought home from the famous battlefield. As will be remembered a company of Swedish officers some time ago made a trip to the battlefield to make investigations as to the exact location of the great common Swedish grave and on their return they brought a number of skulls and bones that they had succeeded in unearthing. A careful investigation of these by Professor Retzius seems to indicate that they undoubtedly were the remains of Swedes and it is therefore probable that the remains will find a permanent resting place beneath the monument erected in memory of their bravery at Pultava.

The Swedish-American art exhibit has been opened at the Swedish club in Chicago. The Chicago Record-Herald some time ago published a long review of the art exhibition and the Herald's critic pronounced it to be one of the most interesting and most pretentious seen in Chicago or in the country, for that matter, for many years. The art critic of the Record-Herald claims that Zorn's influence can easily be traced in nearly all of the productions, but other eminent critics take a different view of it, stating that the Swedish-American painters show a variety of independent tendency and originality, which is, if anything, purely Scandinavian.

The ecclesiastical authorities of the country have announced that a collection may be taken up in all the churches of the country during the years of 1912, 1913 and 1914 for the Gustavus Adolphus societies. It is also specified that said collections shall be used only for the establishment of Lutheran congregations in Roman Catholic countries.

NORWAY.

When Captain Roald Amundsen's brother Leon personally took the explorer's telegram announcing that he had reached the South pole to King Haakon his majesty was attending the maneuvers at Sandviken. King Haakon immediately addressed a dispatch to Amundsen, at Hobart, Tasmania, saying:

"I thank you for the information. The queen and I beg to send you and all on board the Fram our most cordial congratulations on the accomplishment of your results, which are so satisfactory to all of us."

This is all the correspondence that has passed between King Haakon and Captain Amundsen. King George of Great Britain and King Fredrick of Denmark have telegraphed their felicitations to King Haakon.

Many scientific, educational and commercial associations throughout the country cabled congratulations and in Christiania and in all cities of the country there was naturally general rejoicing.

On March 8 the meeting of parliament was devoted to glorifying the success of Captain Amundsen in reaching the South pole. It was decided to cable him congratulations and the fact that there was no hesitation in doing so was accepted as conclusive proof that the cables received by the king, which have been withheld from the public in order not to prevent Amundsen selling the story of his achievement, told of his successful trip to the pole. This belief was added to by the address of the president of the storthing, who said: "We are filled with joy over the receipt of the news that Captain Amundsen and his comrades have succeeded in planting the Norwegian flag at the South pole."

A London dispatch says: "No question of his proofs will be raised so far as Captain Roald Amundsen is concerned when he reaches civilization. The captain landed from the Fram at Hobart, Tasmania, for a brief period on Friday, March 8, but positively refused to make any statement regarding his achievements. He made it very plain, however, that he will not wait to submit his proofs that he actually discovered the pole, but will send them to the various geographical societies in the near future. There seems to be general acceptance from Englishmen that the Norwegian did exactly what he said he did in the cablegrams received by his brother, which stated that he spent three days at the pole. That he did this to prevent any suggestion of 'Cookism' is the belief in England. Observations taken on three days in succession at high noon, it is said, could not be faked and there can be no question raised such as happened in connection even with Admiral Peary's proofs among certain scientists. When the question was bluntly put to Amundsen whether Captain Scott reached the South pole the Norwegian explorer refused to answer it."

Captain Amundsen left Christiania on board the Fram, which he selected for his latest expedition. The Fram has been used for many years in Arctic explorations. From 1893 to 1896, during the expedition of Dr. Fritiof Nansen, she covered a journey of about 7,000 miles in the Arctic ocean, 3,000 miles of this being accomplished while she was frozen solid in the ice. She was not damaged at all during this voyage. Captain Amundsen left Buenos Ayres on his present trip toward the close of 1910, with a small party of Norwegians, all of them experienced in Arctic work.

DENMARK.

Shipping interests throughout Europe are watching with the keenest interest the doings of the world's largest motor vessel, the Selandia, built at the yard of Burmeister & Wain, Copenhagen. This ship has just completed her trials in the North sea with all success. It is expected that the Diesel motors, instead of steam engines, will entail a saving of $50,000 a year, in addition to a material saving in space. Her displacement is 10,500 tons and her carrying capacity 7,400 tons. She has two propellers, each worked by a four-stroke Diesel motor with eight pistons of 1,250 horsepower. She also carries two smaller auxiliary motors.

Mormon missionaries continue to make things interesting in different parts of Denmark as well as Sweden. There are two missionaries who have been operating in both countries and it is claimed that they have been making quite a few converts in Copenhagen. Owing to the fact that the Danish government has not been overly friendly to Mormon missionaries they have not been working so much in the open recently as they did some time ago. The methods used by some agents of the Mormon church have been to provoke Danish people to go to Utah to settle on the pretense that they could in such case better their financial conditions.

At latest reports King Fredrick has improved somewhat in his health, but there is still much anxiety expressed regarding his real condition. The present king is popular with all classes of people and there have been general expressions of kindly interest for the monarch.

The winter has been an unusually severe one and spring is backward in making its appearance in Denmark. There has been suffering during the past winter among the poorer classes of Copenhagen and other cities of the country. MARION S. NORELIUS.

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

Never before have furriers of Duluth and vicinity received so many silver gray foxes as during the past winter. Many winters have been passed without a single silver gray fox being brought to any towns, but this winter Duluth has received two or three, Hibbing one, Ely one, Tower one and International Falls two. How scarce such foxes are is shown by the fact that all last winter London, the great fur market of the world, received but twenty-two silver grays.

A special "better farming" train will be run out of Duluth beginning April 1 and will cover thirty towns on the Duluth and Iron Range, Duluth, Missabe and Northern and Great Northern roads. The purpose of the train will be to promote farming interests in St. Louis county. The Duluth Commercial club, Duluth and Iron Range railway and the state agricultural college extension division are behind the plan.

Expenditures from the Minneapolis school fund since July 1 to March 1 aggregate $1,127,135.20, according to a statement issued by Clerk Hugh Marchbank. The estimated expenditure for the year was placed at $1,835,972 and the present rate of expense leaves a balance of $708,837 for the three months remaining.

Two hundred and fifty cases of typhoid fever are being treated at Two Harbors at the present time. The epidemic is believed to be spreading. Physicians are making addresses on street corners to show the seriousness of any carelessness in handling the cases and to give an idea of just what the epidemic means.

The 1912 sale of state lands will start at International Falls April 8, according to announcement from the office of S. G. Iverson, state auditor. The next will be at Bemidji April 10, Walker April 12, Grand Rapids April 15, Duluth April 17, Aitkin April 19 and Roseau April 22.

President F. E. Lister of the Virginia Commercial club is planning to call a convention of farmers' clubs as well as various commercial clubs of the range, to be held in that city about the middle of April for the purpose of discussing road construction.

Miss Amanda E. Brecks of Minneapolis, a Wellesley college senior, is to be awarded the Durant scholarship. She has beaten out over a thousand bright girls in this effort and is receiving a large number of congratulations.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

Henry Hendricks committed suicide at his home near Welcome by placing the muzzle of his revolver in his mouth and pulling the trigger. Family troubles led to the tragedy, he and his brother's wife having been arrested upon complaint of the brother, Jacob Hendricks, who returned from Germany recently.

Oscar Hill of Swan River, aged eighteen years, saw an owl in a tree and climbed up to get it. He stepped on a dead limb, which broke, and he fell a distance of twenty feet. He suffered injuries which are expected to cause his death. The boy's back is broken and the spine injured.

Nils Bernt Linquist, who fractured the base of his skull when he jumped from one of the upper floors of a hotel which burned at Albert Lea last November and who has been confined at the city hospital there ever since, is dead.

O. H. Havill, president of the defunct State bank of Bowlus, convicted at Little Falls in February of receiving deposits after the bank was insolvent, was fined $1,500.

The Northwestern elevator at Atwater has been burned. All the books and records and 9,000 bushels of wheat were destroyed.

Michael Cogswell, twenty-four years old, whose home is at St. Paul, was instantly killed while he was hunting near Albert Lea.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

F. A. Pierce, aged fifty-one, died of apoplexy at the First Baptist church at St. Paul following a prayer meeting in which he had taken part. The stroke came as he was talking to a number of friends at the close of the meeting. Mr. Pierce was engaged in the grain and commission business in Minneapolis. He had been a resident of St. Paul a number of years.

John R. Bowman, a pioneer resident of Minneapolis, is dead. Mr. Bowman was born in New Brunswick June 16, 1827, living there until 1857, when he removed to Minneapolis. He was one of the oldest Odd Fellows in the city, having been a member of North Star lodge more than fifty years.

D. A. Morrison, a veteran of the Civil war, former mayor of Rochester, former state senator and at one time grand master of Odd Fellows of Minnesota, is dead at Rochester after a lingering illness. Mr. Morrison was with Sherman on his famous march to the sea.

William C. Stimson, president and treasurer of the Stimson Tennes[illegible] company, a figure in the grain business in Minneapolis for twenty-five years, died suddenly in the M[illegible]. He was fifty-seven years of age.

Nehemiah Martin, a business man of Hastings for more than forty years, is dead. He was seventy years old.

CONGRESSIONAL DOINGS.

The second filibuster within four days preceded the passage of the agricultural appropriation bill in the house. The measure, which carried approximately $15,800,000, was delayed in its final legislative stage in the house by Minority Leader Mann. He led a bitter fight against it in an effort to obtain added appropriations for the national forests and to eliminate those voted for drainage purposes.

Revolutions, filibustering expeditions, or promoters of domestic violence in any country in Pan-America hereafter may not hope for war supplies of any description from the United States. This principle, proclaimed in a concurrent resolution, unanimously adopted by the senate at the instance of President Taft, is practically certain to be passed by the house.

At an informal conference of Republican members of the senate finance committee Senator Cummins of Iowa urged that the Republican senators enact legislation revising the wool, cotton, sugar and steel schedules of the present tariff law. Senator Cummins favored free iron ore and a reasonable reduction of the duties on the other schedules.

Guy M. Freer, a traffic expert, told the Stanley steel investigating committee that the Duluth, Missabe and Northern railroad, a subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation, made a return on its ore charges in 1910 of 240 per cent on its capital stock. The freight rate on ore was 80 cents a ton for a haul from the Mesabe mines to Lake Superior.

The vote by which Mahlon Pitney, chancellor of the state of New Jersey, President Taft's nominee to succeed the late Justice Harlan on the supreme court bench, was finally confirmed by the senate was 50 to 26. Republicans who voted against Mr. Pitney's confirmation were Bourne, Bristow, Kenyon, Cummins and Poindexter.

That the Indian bureau has known of the conditions on the White Earth reservation in Minnesota for more than two years and has recognized the need for relieving them was shown conclusively by Indian Commissioner Robert G. Valentine on the stand before the house committee investigating the conditions at White Earth.

The Democratic free sugar bill passed the house, 198 to [illegible]8. Its passage was helped by twenty-four Republican votes, although this was partly offset by the defection of seven Democratic votes against the bill by members from Louisiana and Colorado.

CRIMINAL NEWS.

In a flame of unprecedented outlawry the entire human fabric of the Carroll county (Va.) circuit court, in session at Hillsville, was wiped out by assassination. Just as Judge Thornton Massie had sentenced Floyd Allen to one year in prison for aiding in the escape of a county prisoner two of Allen's brothers and several of their friends opened fire with revolvers. Judge Massie fell dead in his place on the bench on the first volley. Then the weapons were turned on the commonwealth's attorney, William Foster, and he sank to the floor with several bullets in his brain, death being instantaneous. Sheriff Lewis Webb, making a frantic effort to reach the ringleaders, was shot before he had taken ten steps. Several of the jurors who had tried the case were seriously wounded, J. H. Blankenship probably fatally.

According to announcements sent out this week by the department of public instruction at St. Paul, no first grade subjects will be permitted to be taught at the teachers' summer schools. All prospective teachers desiring instruction in the first grade subjects will have to attend a state normal or a school of agriculture at Crookston or Morris. A sixth state normal school at Thief River Falls would prove a great convenience to hundreds of young people this summer under this and similar rulings. At the present time they have to travel long distances to reach Moorhead in the central western part of the state. Moorhead is almost exactly west of Brainard, which lies about the same distance from the extreme north and south ends of the state.

The Senior—Junior reception will take place at the Lincoln next Friday evening, as a suitable hall could not be secured down-town. The basketball team gloriously redeemed themselves last Friday evening at the gym from the impression which so generally prevailed in the fall that they were unable to play winning basketball. The overwhelming score of 48 to 9 against the Fosston high school team, which proudly boasted that they were the Northwestern champions, proves conclusively that the local boys are second to none in basketball knowledge and skill. An immense crowd saw the contest and witnessed the fastest game which was ever played in Thief River Falls.

Mr. Bugbee, the agriculture extension worker, and Mr. Haskin held eight meetings last week in Pennington county. They succeeded in reaching 760 people. The former gentleman proved himself the most practical and useful lecturer which this section has listened to this winter. Mr. Haskin is organizing corn growing associations in the rural districts and these will be under the direction of a central association of which Rev. H. Pope of Rocksbury is president. If all the interested farmers and farmers' children raise at least one acre of corn, as they have promised to do, this county will bear a striking resemblance to Iowa next summer.

The short course will close one week from Friday. The 39 young people, nearly all of whom are from the country, who have been attending the local school during the five months of this course will then lay aside school studies and take up the more active duties of farm life. It is the prevailing impression among teachers and students that this Short Course is the most useful feature of the whole high school work.

A U. S. cream seperator was received at the high school this week. The labratory of the agriculture department resembles a machine shop, as it ought to do. All the machines there are loaned free and serve as advertising mediums for their various manufacturers.

...School Notes...

The reading and spelling contests last Friday evening attracted a large audience to the Lincoln assembly. The reading contest was between teams representing the third grades from the three buildings. The judges decided that the Washington team won first place, the Centrals the second, and the Knox pupils were third. In the sixth grade spelling contest, the written test of fifty words by all the pupils was won by the Knox children, with the Washingtons second and the Centrals third. The Centrals and Knox students tied for first place in the time contest, not a pupil on either missing a single word in the time allotted. The Central team of ten, however, won the spell down.

On account of illness, Miss McConnell was absent from her room the first of the week.

State examinations in the four common school subjects were held on Monday and Tuesday in the grammar grades. The final state examinations in all subjects will occur the last week of May, and the teachers' examinations will take place immediately following the close of the teachers' summer school in July.

Brydons' Dogs

Are certainly a well trained set. They appeared at the Lyceum the last half of last week and attracted a large audience of children to the matinee on Saturday afternoon. The dogs may well be termed as having human intelligence. One great feature of the vaudeville troop of dogs, was the ladder climbing; one of the small dogs being put on a swinging ladder and climbed to the top from where it made a high dive into its master's arms. They were also trained to waltz alone as well as with each other.

This is the greatest exhibition which has been put on at the show house, and it is one that the public was very well pleased with.

Mr. Morgan expects to have more vaudeville acts of this kind in the near future.

To The Parents.

Through special arrangements with the Management of the St. Paul Symphony Orchestra, all children attending schools in the city will be admitted to the afternoon concert for the small sum of 50c, and all parents are urged to give their children the advantage of this opportunity of hearing high class music by one of the greatest organizations of its kind in America.

This is not a ten cent show but an entertainment of high merit and of educational value.

Yours truly,
The Committee.

Mr. C. R. Stowell was over to Hallock Monday, transacting business.

Co-Operation in Getting Seed.

The benefits of co-operation are finding a splendid illustration, this year, in the work being done by the Minnesota Field Crop Breeders' Association in collecting and distributing information as to the location and ownership of available supplies of seed grains and grasses in Minnesota: The Association's first Bulletin, just issued, gives the addresses of fifty-six members who have corn, oats, barley, wheat, flax, clover, timothy, millet and other seeds for sale; also of 98 other, Minnesota farmers, who have for sale similar seeds grown from stock purchased from the Minnesota Experiment Station. They are located in all parts of the State, and by writing for the bulletin the most convenient source of supply may be learned. Every farmer will find it to his advantage to join the Association; the membership fee which is only $1. Address C. P. Bull, Secy., St. Antony Park, Minn.

Forms Partnership.

Readers of the News will no doubt be interested in knowing that C. A. Patkin and H. O. Kjomme have formed a partnership in the law business. Mr. Kjomme is well known, as he has been in business here for some time. Mr. Patkin comes to this city highly recommended from St. Paul.

The gentlemen will have their temporary office over the First National Bank, but as soon as a more suitable place can be gotten they will move. The gentlemen will be pleased to have you call and get acquainted with the new member of the firm.

Two Cent Summer Fare.

According to a statement made yesterday in the twin cities, the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Soo lines have declared a two cent fare from the twin cities to summer resorts during the coming summer. It is said that the rate will go into effect May 29, and will be offered daily for the balance of the year. The limit of the tickets will be thirty days.—Ex.

COUNCIL MEETING

Tuesday Evening, Adjourned to Friday when the Matter of Liquor Licenses will be taken up.

At the regular meeting of the city council last Tuesday evening it was decided by the council to call for bids for a hose wagon and chemical combined, W. S. Knot Company of Minneapolis, had a representative before the council and demonstrated how much in need the city was of a combination of this kind.

It behooves some company to put in an up-to-date fire equipment in this city with very little expense as next year the State Firemen's Convention will be held in this city and it would be a great advertising for what ever company that can do the best on the apparatus.

The council also accepted the Standard Oil Company bid for 30,000 gallons of oil at 2 and two tenths per cent a gallon. Other items of minor importance were taken up, but nothing of great interest to the public. They adjourned until Friday evening.

An Iowa apple-grower declares that by thorough spraying, several times repeated, he is able to gather a crop 99 per cent free from worms. That this counts when marketing-time arrives, is shown by the fact that he gets twice as much per barrel for his apples, as do growers who have neglected spraying, besides having a larger crop to sell.

Campbell, Nellie Sommers, Martha Brokke, Alpha Erickson, Vernette Lambert, Tillie Melbye, Lillian Skoag, Sadie Shyder, Mable Patterson, Rella Palmer.

School Notes.

On Friday at 3 p. m. the St. Paul Symphony Orchestra will give a matinee exclusively for the pupils and teachers of the city schools. The entrance fee for this event has been reduced to 50 cents in order that the schools may have the privilege of hearing an entertainment of standard music rendered by a large company of artists. This is highly educational and ought to merit a large attendance of children.

School closes Friday for the week of Easter holidays. A number of the teachers will visit their homes during the week.

As the first primary rooms are now filled with children, one being on half day sessions, it is suggested that parents do not enter beginners after Easter. They can be more satisfactorily cared for when the new year begins next September.

It was considered best to postpone the second grade reading and the seventh grade spelling matches until the week following the Easter holiday. The Symphony entertainment and several of the teachers leaving for home would interfere with the success of the contests.

For the interest of former English students the following set of test questions for the month of March in senior English is presented:

1. Give the arguments against consistency and conformity.
2. What is Emerson's idea of the revelation of truth?
3. What is Emerson's idea of God?
4. Explain, "An institution is the lengthened shadow of a man".
5. Explain, "When the spirit is not the master of the world, it is its dupe".
6. What is the compensation for calamity (disasters of all kinds)? Answer fully.
7. Give the quotation from Ruskin or the one from Holmes.

The class scored high standings in the above test questions, and the answer of one pupil to the first question is given herewith as a sample of what the children are doing: "If a person conforms, he will do just as the other people do and he will not have any development of character. Each person has his or her place in this world and a certain work to perform. If we do as others do, we will not be filling our place and won't be our real selves. If a person is consistent, he will keep to an old idea, even tho he knows it is wrong, for the simple reason that he had that idea yesterday. This leaves no room for character development. A person would then be as narrow-minded when he is old as when he was a young child. There will be no self-trust. If a person is consistent, the memory must help one and he must remember what he has said before. He has no opportunity to look

A Hoodoo.

They call me the hoodoo of the Thief River Falls—Fosston basket ball game, but our boys did not have in any way a chance to show their ability to play in that game.

Thief River Falls, of course, had the advantage over our boys as they were upon their own floor, but our boys never objected to that as they wished to play most of their games away from home and they have won them all except this one. Thief River had three strong points in their favor:

1st. We had no referee along with our team to call fouls upon Thief River Falls when they were in order.

2nd They had the wide rim baskets which were about two inches from the walls instead of being six inches away and round according to Spalding's rules.

3rd. Thief River Falls were used to playing upon their own floor which was as wide as long, this giving them the advantage of playing across the field instead of with it, as other floors are laid out.

The Fosston boys made a good showing by making the first three points, one basket and one free throw, but after that they saw things were against them they did'nt seem to care.

First half ended 12 to 6 in favor of Thief River Falls. The second half wasn't played—but just given away, as Fosston did not play. Fosston boys agree that they were outplayed up there with these things against them, but feel sure they can put one over on them in any town hall, say McIntosh.

Before and after the game, we were treated fine. The junior girls gave us our lunch and we had a good time talking to the ones we met. They had planned upon an entertainment for us but when lunch was over it was close to twelve o'clock, so we left the school. Most of us were taken to the new electric light plant. Here we saw many new things of interest and of knowledge to us.

The Fosston boys wish to congratulate the Thief River boys upon their hospitality as they were entertaining and wished and did show us a good time when there. We also wish to thank the junior girls for their efforts.

We cannot see how Thief River can claim the championship in just defeating us once; and, again, they have lost about all if not all the games they have played off their own floor also one or more that was played upon it. We wish to be shown how they can claim it.

One thing our boys cannot expect to do. That is, to hold the championship, at basketball, or any other game with one practice in a week or even two. Let them get busy and keep busy at what they are trying to do.—Fosston Thirteen Towns; U. R. S.

Mr. Hill says, "I consider the St. Paul Symphony Orchestra an important educational factor. Its educational value to St. Paul is incalculable." There is no reason why the country tributary to Thief River Falls should not be benefited by the orchestra. The St. Paul season closes this month, then the orchestra will tour the west. This organization is but six years old but is classed among the very best of the United States.

The organization under the direction of Walter H. Rothwell consists of fifty-five musicians, and the managing staff. We urgently request every person who is able to attend to be sure to hear the orchestra at either the afternoon or evening performance. Remember March 29th afternoon and evening.

Convention Will Be Held Here in June.

The Lutheran Free church will hold their annual convention in this city June 11th to June 16th.

Elaborate perparations are being made by the members of this congregation and they hope to be aided in every possible way by the citizens of Thief River Falls.

The Auditorium will be at their disposal for the holding of their meetings and a committee will be at work among the citizens of this place in a short time to see what arrangements can be made for the lodging of the visitors. Rev. J. W. Peterson, traveling financier of Augsburg Seminary of Minneapolis was here Monday conferring with Rev. Larson about the meeting. While here he visited our Auditorium and was surprised at a city of this size having such a fine place to accomodate gatherings of this kind. He said he had not seen anything as good in the Northwest outside of the twin cities. Among the prominent speakers who will be here during the convention will be Rev. E. E. Gynild of Fargo, N. D. who will speak on Sunday forenoon, June 16.

A hog can be starved to eat almost anything, but this is poor economy, for it retards development.

The egg trust, whatever that may signify, has had some pretty hard licks of late from the cackling Biddies of the country.

It is a fact that the pigs of large litters are usually more uniform in size and fatten more quickly than those of small litters. Here is where the good breeding sow comes in.

Ontario, Ore., is the center of a district which produces much alfalfa seed, 250,000 pounds of which are said to have been shipped to eastern markets within the past three or four months.

The revival of the good old custom of co-operative killing of beef and sheep among neighbors would solve one of the causes of the high cost of living, so far as farmers are concerned.

The increased use of aluminium in utensils and in other forms is shown in the growth in the output of the metal from less than 100,000 pounds in 1883 to more than 50,000,000 pounds in 1911.

The repulsive looking scaly legs in chickens can be improved in appearance a whole lot by rubbing them at intervals of a few days with a salve made of equal parts of lard, sulphur and kerosene.

A farmer living near Polo, Ill., has a cow that gave birth to a calf the other day having two heads with eyes and mouth perfect and identical and with two backbones running the entire length of the body.

It should be mighty small consolation for the man whose boys or girls are going wrong that he has stowed away in the bureau drawer or writing desk blue or red ribbons won on blooded stock at the county or district fair.

It will be in mighty good taste for the fellow who trusts to luck and doesn't test his seed corn this spring in some accurate way to cuss providence or the weather next November when he is husking fifteen or twenty bushels per acre.

The manure spreader should be the most generally used tool on the farm, but this is no reason why it should be left unprotected in the storms and wintered in the snow bank. A shed for the spreader would be the best economy.

Thoroughbred boys and girls should stay or be kept at home nights unless there is an excellent reason why they should be somewhere else. They are at least entitled to the same care in this regard that the pure bred domestic animals receive.

Midstate brewers (or, more correctly, the National Brewers' association) are said to have secured control of the bulk of the hop growing business in western Oregon. The high prices of a year ago seem to have been more than the brewers were willing to stand for.

Lots of folks, both men and women, get into the miserable habit of whining and complaining a good deal over little troubles or annoyances, overlooking the while blessings that should obscure these little troubles completely were a right standard of values employed. It is just as easy to cultivate the habit of looking on the bright side as looking on the dark and a whole lot more enjoyable for the folks one has to live with.

The mere fact that many men and women who were denied the privileges of an education in their youth have still made a success of life should not be used as an argument by the boy or girl of today for neglecting opportunities for schooling that may be had free of cost. One cannot but wonder in the case of these so called self made people how much more they might have achieved along desirable lines had they been able to have such advantages as are open to practically everybody today.

A great service might be performed by the merchants of many a town for the womenfolk living in the rural community tributary to them if they or some other organization in the town would provide comfort and rest rooms which the former could use on their visits to town. In all too many towns there is no place whatever, aside from store or shop, where the farmer's wife or daughter can go while waiting for her husband or father. This would be a thoughtful provision for townfolk to make and would be a courtesy that would be greatly appreciated.

ABOUT GROWING ONIONS.

For those of our readers living in the northern states, where spring will be on directly, and who would like to try raising onions, we have a few suggestions that may be helpful. First, the ground on which the crop is to be grown should be well drained, rich and as free as possible from weed seeds. The tract is preferably fall plowed and harrowed and floated as soon as the ground can be worked in the spring. Best results will be had if the seed bed is well firmed and in the finest tilth. The seed should then be drilled in to a depth of half an inch in rows from fourteen to sixteen inches apart, depending upon the variety. The seeder should be tested on a board floor in order to ascertain how many seed will be dropped in a given distance. If they can be sown so that they will be on the average about an inch apart, it is well. Before the seed is sown, however, it should be tested as to germinating power and more or less seed sown to make up for this. The best seed is none too good, and in the long run money will be saved by paying two or three dollars extra, if need be, to get fine pedigreed seed. In the section in which the writer has lived the red globe onion is very popular, but this matter would be determined by the preference of the buyers in the nearest market centers. In northern latitudes, where the growing and ripening season is none too long, the seed should be sown just as soon as the soil can be worked. The onions should be cultivated as soon as the rows can be seen, should be hand weeded once or twice and thinned to about two inches apart in the row. If a dry spell should come on, especially after a driving rain, care should be taken to give thorough cultivation, as this may mean the saving or losing of the crop. If commercial fertilizers are desired, and there is no question that it pays to use them, they may be applied at the time the seed is sown, while a second application may be made after the onions are two or three inches high. If a very dry spell should come in July the field should be kept thoroughly cultivated, so as to preserve a dust mulch. It costs about $60 per acre to raise and harvest a crop of onions, and one can count on from 40 to 60 cents a bushel f. o. b. shipping station. In the matter of yield one may reasonably expect from 500 to 600 bushels if the stand is good and growing conditions have been favorable.

SHOULD INVESTIGATE.

The writer is receiving many inquiries these days from readers living east of the Rocky mountains who are tired of the frightfully cold winter just past and are looking for a home place where the winter season is milder and where it doesn't take quite all a fellow can earn during the summer season to keep him and his family from freezing to death during the winter. We sympathize with our readers keenly in this matter and are advising them to take a trip to the west country, get acquainted with it first hand, learn both its drawbacks and advantages and then, after a calm and sober balancing of points good and bad, settle in a section where one will feel most at home. Where one has considerable money to invest it is well to take plenty of time in making one's investigation of the property to be bought, and, as said in a recent department of these notes, it is always a good idea to limit one's mouthful in an investment way to what one can masticate nicely.

1,126 POUNDS OF BUTTER.

An Ohio Guernsey cow by the name of Spottswood Daisy Pearl has lately completed a year's milking record during which she gave 18,602.8 pounds of milk testing 5.14 and yielding 957.38 pounds of butter fat. On an 85 per cent fat basis this means a butter yield of 1,126 pounds, or considerably more than half a ton. It is interesting to note the raw products that were put in the hopper of this animated milk manufactory. In January, three months after freshening, she received daily five pounds of wheat bran, one and a half pounds cornmeal, four pounds brewers' grains, two pounds gluten meal, one and a half pounds cottonseed meal, two pounds old process oilmeal, one pound corn and oat chop, thirty pounds silage and ten pounds of hay. During succeeding months much the same ration, strong in concentrates, was given, but varying somewhat according to roughage available for the season. The grain ration was given in three feeds and was thoroughly soaked beforehand.

THE VALUE OF ONE SUGGESTION.

Once on a time a Minnesota farmer attended for the first time a farmers' institute in which a speaker recommended the use of the Babcock test. He forgot a good deal of what was said, but this stuck in his crop. He acted upon the advice and began testing his cows. He found on the showdown that there were just two out of the whole lot that were paying their keep. The rest he sold to the butcher and as fast as he could bought cows of large milking capacity that also showed up with a good test. That was twelve years ago. In the interval he has continued to improve his herd by purchase and breeding until today he has one of the most profitable as well as finest herds of Guernsey cows in the state. What this man has done others can do, and it is high time they were getting busy and weeding out the loafers.

PRAISE FOR SWEDISH RIFLE

English Expert Says It Is Better Than Those Used by the Larger Powers. Marvelous Growth of Norway's Merchant Marine—Danish Government to Expend Large Sum in Improving Harbors in the West Indies.

SWEDEN.

At a recent banquet given under the auspices of the London Rifle club a most noteworthy utterance was made by Colonel Seely, an English army expert, who said among other things: "If I were asked which gun among the four greatest nations of the world had been recognized as possessing the greatest merit, which I myself were to use in the event that I were to defend my own life and were to choose from the smaller nations, I would choose the Swedish. For I am of the firm conviction that the Swedish army rifle is better than any in use by any of the great powers. I do not believe that there exists a superior rifle and since we have only a small army in England it should be equipped with these guns, or one equally as good as they are. The question of choosing a real serviceable army rifle is much like a horse race, where one horse rushed ahead of the other. Now little Sweden has taken a lead in this particular and it is up to the other nations to follow her."

Prince Bertil of Halland will be the official name of the little prince who arrived in the royal household of the crown prince and crown princess of Sweden recently. He arrived Feb. 28 and the day after the official announcement of his birth followed, officially sanctioned in the presence of King Gustaf, the minister of state and the foreign minister, the Countess Lewenhaupt and the British minister to Sweden, Sir Cecil Spring-Rice. After the proper protocol had been issued the king held council to determine a name for the little prince and it was decided that his name should be Bertil Cecil Oscar, Carl Eugen, duke of Halland, and his first name shall be Bertil. A salute of forty-two guns was fired when the little prince arrived.

The Swedish Clergymen's association has issued a strong protest against using the Sabbath day in Sweden as an election day. Hitherto the Sabbath day in Sweden has never been used as an election day, but it seems recently a proposition to make Sunday a voting day came up before the Swedish riksdag. It is this proposition that the Swedish clergymen are vigorously protesting against, declaring that Sweden, least of all nations, should thus desecrate the Sabbath, which has since time immemorial been set aside as a day of rest. Undoubtedly the clergymen will find little trouble in having their protests in this regard respected.

A dispatch from London says that British sporting experts are highly delighted over the chances of England annexing first honors at the Olympic games at Stockholm this year in the 100, 200 and 400-yard events with D. McMillan, the long striding Cambridge university runner. In practice he showed record time and it was believed that he will defeat any of the sprinters, despite the contention of Americans that they have the winners of the big three events bottled up across the pond. McMillan's best figure for 100 yards is 9⅘ seconds and the experts believe he will shave that in Sweden.

✣ ✣ ✣

That there is a genuine interest being evinced in the Olympic games which are to be held in Stockholm this summer can be gleaned from the following: When the public sale of tickets for the Olympic games in Stockholm was opened on Feb. 19 it was announced that the sales up to that date had brought over $80,000. The American committee had ordered some of the best seats for about $7,000.

NORWAY.

Norway's merchant marine takes a leading rank among even the great nations of the world and that the growth of it has been marvelous may be gleaned from the following facts submitted recently by a Copenhagen authority: "In 1870 the tonnage of the Norwegian steamship fleet was only 20,000 tons. In 1878 it was 50,000, in 1884 100,000 and in 1890 it was 200,000. From that time on the tonnage increased enormously, amounting in 1900 to 500,000 and in 1910 to 896,000 tons. It is expected that by the end of 1912 the figure will be a full million. The tonnage of the sailing fleet reached its highest point in 1890, when vessels with a total tonnage of 1,502,000 tons sailed under the Norwegian flag. In 1910 the tonnage had fallen to 630,000. The value of the sailing fleet has, however, not fallen proportionately with the tonnage, as a large share of the sailing ships at the present time are iron or steel vessels, which were practically unknown in Norwegian shipping in 1890."

In view of the possibility of the organization of a Swedish-Norwegian Defense society the Norwegian journal Tidens Tegn says: "In order to protect the peace and safety of the Scandinavian peninsula much would be gained if the defense movement could be so arranged that we, as nations, would stand together in time of peace as well as war and never cross the border unless we did so in the defense of both nations. No one who sincerely believes in a great future for the brother kingdoms of the North can have any doubt that we may come to a full understanding and agreement on this important question and when this occurs everyone will agree that the Karlstad treaty, which saved us from war in 1905, was a courageous and epochmaking piece of statesmanship."

He served in the Mississippi squadron, United States navy, during the latter part of the Civil war, after which he located in Minnesota. He was county auditor of Yellow Medicine county from 1874 to 1878, after which he became postmaster at Granite Falls, Minn., serving until 1893. He was a candidate for state treasurer on the Republican ticket in 1884. In 1897 Mr. Bordewich was named American consul at Christiania and in 1900 he was made consul general.

There is general rejoicing in the Danish West Indies because of the news that the Danish government has determined to spend 7,000,000 crowns for harbor improvements on the islands. The St. Thomas Weekly contains a long article regarding the government's plans and starts out by saying that the people of St. Thomas could scarcely believe the good news when they first heard of it. The fact that the Danish government will engage in such extensive harbor improvements means much for the future of the islands in the belief of the people of St. Thomas and the next few years will reveal a remarkable rejuvenation of the industrial spirit among the people of the Danish West Indies.

The record price for tame hay on the Kansas City market was registered the other day, when $23.50 per ton was paid for a carload of hay shipped from Rupert, Ida.

Roughly speaking, it takes a depth of from twelve to fifteen inches of snow to make one inch of water. Again, one inch of rainfall will moisten the earth to the depth of about twelve inches.

Switzerland has 2,100 dairies, which employ on the average four people each. Of the total number of dairies 1,400 are engaged in the production of Emmenthal cheese, a brand that constitutes a large share of the cheese exports of the little country.

Probably the highest price ever bid for a calf was $6,000, which a Wisconsin breeder bid at auction the other day for a month old calf of the famous Dolly Dimples, a prize winning Jersey that is owned on the Ames stock farm near Boston and rated as one of the most valuable cows in the world.

The Japanese sugar cane, which has lately been introduced into some sections of the south, gives promise of being a valuable forage crop. While it will produce more sirup than any other cane, its chief value is for forage, as the stalks are small. However, the variety is hardy, grows to twelve or thirteen feet in height and produces many stalks to the hill. It yields from fifteen to twenty-five tons of green forage per acre.

The Black Giant is the name of a breed of poultry that is making a good record in several eastern states, few if any having as yet been brought west of Pennsylvania. The cock birds weigh nine or ten pounds and the hens from seven to eight. Unlike some other black feathered breeds, they are yellow skinned and have black legs free from feathers. The breed is hardy and easily kept. The Black Giants are favorites in several eastern markets for caponizing and usually top the market in this class.

One breeder of Jersey cattle whom the writer is personally acquainted with is following a plan in the improving of his herd of some forty or fifty fine cows that has much to commend it. Recently there was shipped to him by the owner, on terms that were mutually satisfactory, a prize winning $1,000 Jersey bull, with which some thirty of his cows are to be mated. This arrangement will cost the owner of the herd mentioned a snug sum, but there is little question that it will pay him a handsome return on the investment.

During the closing days of 1911 grapes were taken from cold storage in some eastern markets that had been shipped from California six weeks before and held there during the interval. They were found in prime condition—practically as good as when put in storage—but the other important feature connected with the experiment was that when put on the market finally these grapes brought more than twice as much as they would had they been sold at the time of shipment from the west. The experiment is likely to have quite an effect upon the grape growing business.

Dynamite is queer stuff, and there are a whole lot of things about it that are difficult to understand. Unlike a good many other substances, there does not seem to be much uniformity in the laws which govern its ignition and explosion. Often the slightest jar or the application of heat to it is sufficient to set it off. In a case related to the writer the other day a chunk of the stuff fell off a wagon on which it was being hauled and a few minutes later was run over by a disk pulverizer without exploding. Again, a chunk of it put in a fire will burn quietly without exploding. We would not advise making this experiment, however.

The writer had the pleasure last winter of spending a day aboard a dairy special which made some eight or ten stops on a given line of road. He was fully persuaded at the close of the day that no farmer living within a radius of twenty miles of the town where its stops were made and who was at all interested in the subject of dairying could afford to miss the practical and instructive lectures and demonstrations which were given. If such a [illegible] during the coming weeks makes a stop within reaching distance by team or trolley of any reader of this department it would be decidedly to his advantage to attend and get all the information possible out of the men in charge of the train.

A pug nosed, bowlegged canine, with a gait like a hippopotamus, that the writer saw the other day had just been bought for $600. His pedigree was the only thing that saved his face, for not one person in ten would have taken him as a gift and given him feed and shelter.

Many people would be greatly benefited if they would throw their medicine bottles into the back alley and substitute for tonics and what not plenty of fresh, pure air, breathed deeply, sufficient sleep and rest and proper exercise, with a generous allowance of pure water and rich milk.

It is not strange that the Florida, Mississippi or California winter appeals strongly to persons who have reached sixty and whose blood is thinner and flows a good deal slower than in days gone by. With means at their disposal they are perfectly justified in leaving the latitude of blizzards and 30 below zero weather.

The jackknife test for determining the vitality of seed corn may be all right some seasons, but the fellow who relies on it entirely this season in view of the generally poor condition of the seed will likely have quite a bit of time on his hands next husking time to whittle sticks or most any old thing else with this same jackknife.

That dairying is well worth while, even out in the drier country, is indicated in the report of a Ward county (N. D.) farmer, who has fed and clothed a family of thirteen children on the income from seven dairy cows and who claims he has made more profit off this little dairy herd than many of his neighbors have growing grain on two sections of land.

Those having horses they intend to ship to Canadian markets will save themselves both expense and delay in shipment by having the horses inspected by the proper veterinary authority before putting them aboard cars. In case the inspection is not made in this way they will have to be taken from the car at the international line and the job done there.

Farm fertilizers are a very desirable byproduct of dairy operations, but cows should not be kept as manure producers alone when their milk is not meeting their board bill. Weed these no accounts out by the use of the Babcock test and get in place of them cows that will give enough milk to pay for their feed and leave a margin of profit, besides the manure byproduct.

The value of Alaska's mineral production for 1911 is estimated at $20,370,000. Of this amount $17,150,000 was of gold. This total takes no account of timber, fish, furs or other products. In view of the marvelous wealth of this possession it is interesting to recall that when Seward purchased Alaska from Russia in 1867 at $7,200,000 he was considered pretty near loony.

A mighty nice illustration of a common failure to adapt means to ends is noticed in the case of the farmer who sells prime hogs for as low as $1.50 to $5 and then goes to the meat market and shells out from 20 to 22 cents a pound for bacon, from 18 to 20 cents for ham, 15 cents for pork chops and 15 cents a pound for lard. And there have never been finer hams and bacons than those our grandfathers used to smoke.

"Baby beef" is a term that is properly applied to the carcass of a calf that is kept fat and growing from birth and marketed at about eighteen months old. Not only is such beef the finest that can be produced—juicy and tender—but it is coming to be pretty well recognized among cattlemen that it is also the most profitable beef that can be produced where feeding and market conditions are at all favorable. With the advent of the silo in the corn belt to take the place of summer pasture the conditions are just right to raise such beef to advantage.
